In an interview after the closed session, Mr. Turner said:

"The provinces, as I understand it, will consider their position in the light of what subsequent action the federal government might take. . . . It may be, as a result of these discussions, there'll be some amendments to propose, amendments to the bill."

Several western representatives had indicated little optimism before the session that they could move Ottawa much. Mr. Turner spoke later of possible "accommodations of detail."

He said Ottawa is not prepared to negotiate the principle of the bill, objected to by the West in its present form as unconstitutional and an unnecessary way to extend bilingualism.

The bill would recognize English and French as official languages and set up bilingual districts, with federal services available in both tongues, in areas where there is a French-speaking population of at least 10 per cent.

There was no indication after the meeting that the western provinces had changed their stand that bilingualism should be extended on a voluntary basis rather than through legislation.

But Mr. Turner appeared to hold out the possibility of avoiding a Supreme Court of Canada showdown on the constitutionality of the bill, promised by Saskatchewan if it passes in its present form.

"I can't predict what's going to happen because the provinces have kept their positions but I think the possibility of an understanding has improved as a result of today," he said.

The meeting was proposed at the constitutional conference in Ottawa last week by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson of B.C. He and Mr. Turner were joined Monday by Attorneys-General Sterling Lyon of Manitoba, Darrel Heald of Saskatchewan and Edgar Gerhart of Alberta.

Explosives Control Discussed

MONTREAL (CP) — Officials of three police forces met with a representative of a federal government at Montreal police headquarters Monday to discuss amendments to existing legislation concerning explosives.

The main topic at the meeting was what amendments can be made to federal, provincial and municipal laws concerning the purchase, transportation and use of explosives.

Attending the talks were E. J. Fraser, chief inspector of explosives at the federal department of energy, mines and resources, Montreal Police Director Jean-Paul Gilbert, Director Maurice St. Pierre of the Quebec Provincial Police and Deputy RCMP Commissioner J. X. Dube.

The meetings are the latest in a series of stepped-up efforts at all levels of government to curb the wave of bombings in the Montreal area.

There were 58 bombing incidents last year and eight since Jan. 1 this year.

Fredericton Students Bow to Police Order

FREDERICTON (CP) — Demonstrators at the University of New Brunswick vacated the former office of a suspended professor, Dr. Norman Strax, early today after they were confronted by more than 20 policemen who threatened to lay charges.

The administration called police to the campus after 10 to 15 demonstrators, mostly students, moved into the office to show their support for the Canadian Association of University Teachers which has criticized the university for its handling of the Strax affair.

Police arrived shortly before midnight and threatened to lay charges if the students did not leave within 15 minutes.

The group held a brief conference and filed out shortly after midnight. There were no reports of damage.

Students said the incident was also staged to dramatize a meeting here later this week of CAUT officials and the university's board of governors.

Arab Nations Warned

Israel Plans Action To Protect Planes

Extradition To Be Asked

ZURICH (AP) — Israel was expected today to file an early request for the extradition of three Arab commandos who riddled an El Al airliner with submachine-guns from an ambush at Zurich airport Tuesday night.

This forecast came from Swiss official sources as the cabinet met in the capital, Bern, to discuss the incident in which six persons aboard the Israeli Boeing 720 were injured and one Arab raider was shot dead by an Israeli security officer.

Legal sources said Switzerland was virtually certain to reject any demand for extradition. They pointed out that Article 3 of the Swiss criminal code stipulates that defendants accused of a crime committed in Switzerland must be tried by a Swiss court.

The three Arabs and the Israeli remained in custody and were soon to appear before an examining magistrate.

Official Swiss sources said that because of the political nature of the raid any extradition request would undoubtedly have to come before the federal tribunal for final decision.

The passengers included Gideon Rafael, director-general of the Israeli foreign ministry. He was not injured.

The attackers, also armed with hand grenades and other explosive charges, riddled the plane with more than 50 bullets. The blue and white four-engined craft carried 17 passengers and a crew of 12.

One device thrown at the plane fell short and burned out harmlessly—but smoke alerted the patrol tower. A fire brigade was called, and firemen managed to overpower the attackers.

Trainee pilot Yoran Pees, who had been most seriously wounded in the attack, was reported out of danger following an emergency operation.

Pees was hit in the stomach by three bullets from the attackers' Soviet-made automatic weapons that shattered the glass of the cockpit and tore into other front parts of the fuselage.

Zurich Attack Wounds Six

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel warned Arab nations and airlines today they must "take immediate measures to prevent further attacks on Israel's air routes." It claimed the moral right and ability to break up guerrilla raids at any place.

Transport Minister Moshe Carmel outlined the government's position before the Knesset, Israel's Parliament, in Jerusalem in the wake of the Arab attack on an El Al jetliner in Switzerland Tuesday.

"Israel's air routes are of the highest security priority," he said. "Israel has the full moral right and operational ability to take all necessary defensive measures at any place to break up the ring of terrorism on the airways and assure that Israel has completely free air traffic."

He singled out neighboring Lebanon and declared the government in Beirut had the duty to "uproot any nest of piracy from its territory."

Carmel was the first high-ranking government official to blame Lebanon for the Arab attack on an Israeli jet at Athens in December. Israeli commandos subsequently struck Beirut's International Airport and destroyed 13 Lebanese planes.

Carmel said the hijack of an El Al plane to Algeria last July and the attacks in Athens and Zurich all originated in Israel's view, from Lebanon. He pointed out the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine took full credit for the Swiss incident in a statement published in Beirut Tuesday.

"The responsibility for such acts is not only with the perpetrators, but with the Arab states in which these acts are being planned and where the terrorists are being equipped," Carmel said.

He warned of "complete chaos among the airways of the Middle East unless" the attacks are halted and added:

"Safeguarding air safety is important not only to Israel but the Arabs and all the Arab airlines who want to keep their routes open. They should take immediate action."

Carmel had hinted earlier that there might be retaliation for the machine-gunning of El Al's Boeing 720 at Zurich's airport. Six persons aboard the plane were wounded. Of the four raiders, one was shot dead and the others, including a woman, were arrested.

The transport minister told the Tel Aviv newspaper Maariv: "The Arab governments who are concerned with preserving the international airlinks of their countries would do well to hold back the saboteurs, and thus avoid the deterioration destruction of the airways of the Middle East."

The U.S. state department and UN Secretary-General U Thant condemned the Arab attack in Zurich, and Thant expressed hope there would be no reprisal. But leading Israeli newspapers promised retaliation.

The semi-official newspaper Lemerhav declared: "The sabotage of airways cannot be one-sided. The Israeli security authorities must reach the proper conclusions with regard to this extension of Arab terror."

Hayom, published by the right-wing Gahal party, said Israel "must react because her neighbors understand no other language."

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — California is suing four oil firms and the federal government for $1,300,000,000 on charges that negligence caused the giant ocean oil slick that damaged beaches and killed sea life.

A $500,000,000 claim against the interior department was filed Tuesday by Charles A. O'Brien, chief deputy attorney-general of California.

O'Brien said an $800,000,000 damage suit would be filed today against Union Oil Co., operator of the ruptured offshore well, and Texaco, Inc., Mobile Oil Co., and Gulf Oil Corp., Union's partners in the federal drilling lease.

O'Brien said the claim and the suit ask payment for damage to fish and wildlife and beach cleanup plus general damages including damage to tourist potential.

The oil spill reached 800 square miles in size before the well was capped Feb. 7. Now crews are working to relieve pressures that have spewed a new slick into the polluted channel.

Code Violated Without Torture

CORONADO, Calif. (CP) — In a long, dark room at a jail they called The Barn, the six officers of the Pueblo broke the U.S. Code of Conduct for prisoners one day after capture during an interrogation without torture, two of them testified Tuesday.

The officers violated the code by revealing their jobs on the intelligence ship, Lieut. Timothy Harris and Lieut. Fredrick Schumacher said. They included themselves as violators.

Harris and Schumacher told a navy court of inquiry they later falsely confessed to spying and invading North Korean territorial waters—but only after beatings and death threats.

Harris returns today for more questioning before five admirals on the court, which began by investigating the Pueblo's capture and conduct of its men as prisoners in North Korea.

The Code of Conduct forbids U.S. servicemen to tell their captors anything but name, rank, serial number and date of birth.

Airliner Missing

Gamblers' Special Is Down In Death Valley or Sierras

HAWTHORNE, Nev. (Reuters) — A massive search was scheduled to resume today in California's Death Valley and the snow-packed Sierra Nevada range for a DC-3 airliner, the Gamblers' Special, which vanished Tuesday with 35 persons aboard.

Air force planes and rescue parties on horseback, in jeeps and on foot called off their search at dusk Tuesday.

The search was concentrated about 40 miles south of here—the last point where the airliner checked in before disappearing—and along the flight path which crosses the Sierra Nevada and bleak Death Valley.

An airline spokesman said the weather was clear when the plane embarked but then worsened. Enough fuel was carried for four hours of flying. The flight itself would have taken two hours.

There was no indication where the plane might have gone down. The aircraft carried 32 passengers and a crew of three.

Bonn Backs Down

West Germans Accept French View on European Union Rules

LONDON (CP) — In a quick reversal of its position, West Germany has delivered what British officials suggest may be a blow to their hopes of using the seven-country Western European Union as a stepping-stone towards European unity.

After rejecting the French argument that a Feb. 14 WEU council meeting here on the Middle East was illegal, the German government issued a fresh statement in Bonn late Tuesday saying the meeting, which France boycotted, was an exception and that the future special council meetings can be held only with the approval of all seven countries.

The WEU is made up of Britain and the six Common Market partners—France, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg. France has accused Britain of trying to use the WEU in a back-door attempt to get into the Common Market despite President de Gaulle's veto.

A spokesman for the West German embassy here, asked to explain the sudden change in the German position, said he interpreted the latest Bonn statement as indicating West Germany will join her WEU associates in routine council meetings, such as the one held here Tuesday and another to be held here Feb. 26, but will stay away from any special meetings called, say, by Britain, if France refuses to attend.

The spokesman also said that while the situation may be confusing, German policy would become evident as the future of the WEU unfolds. While he did not say so, what apparently Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger intends to do is watch how the battle between Britain and France develops and then take a decision in the light of West Germany's best interests.

But it appeared evident from Bonn's latest statement that if, for example, Britain called a special meeting of the WEU council to discuss its blocked membership in the Common Market, West Germany would, along with France, refuse to attend and the meeting would collapse.

British officials said they are seeking further clarification of the German statement but some of them indicated deep disappointment with the latest German position. The Daily Express, in its report from Bonn, accused West Germany of "welshing" on the WEU and obediently bowing to de Gaulle's tough line. The Daily Telegraph said Bonn yielded on the WEU issue "in the face of massive intervention by President de Gaulle."

The Bonn statement came after French Ambassador Francois Seydoux made a call on Kiesinger. The chancellor and de Gaulle are to meet in Paris next month and Paris reports have suggested de Gaulle threatened to leave the WEU altogether if his partners did not stop consorting with Britain behind his back.

YMCA Celebrates 75th Birthday

With the advent of 1969, the Belleville Family YMCA is celebrating its 75th anniversary and with that anniversary comes an interest by many members in the history of the organization.

But, one man, Vernon Weir, is recognized by all as the unofficial historian of the local "Y".

Mr. Weir has been a member of the organization since 1916 — a total of 53 years — and he has seen many changes in the YMCA and the community which it has served since 1893.

He served with the Y's Men's Club as secretary from 1928 until 1931 and he holds that position at present.

Mr. Weir has checked the minutes of YMCA happenings in Belleville right back to the time when the institution was just an idea.

In September, 1892, J. A. Stead Burns of the National Council YMCA discussed the possibility of organizing a Young Men's Christian Association in Belleville with the Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Members of the guild and Col. W. N. Ponton, their president, felt the idea had merit and in April 1893 meetings were held in the Royal Templars' Hall.

In August of that year meetings were moved to the Mechanic's Institute on Front Street where they remained until the YMCA building on Campbell Street was constructed in 1912.

Early records show that ever since organization there was co-operation with the ministerial union in the arrangement of meetings and conferences regarding the program of the association.

In 1895 it assisted in Sunday services in the churches. During the year 1900 free membership tickets were issued to the men who had volunteered for service in the Boer War.

And those were the good old days, especially when it came to finances. A yearly membership in 1893 was $1 per member. In 1903 it was increased to $2 a year.

This year annual membership fees are $75 a year. In the same vein, minutes of a meeting in 1897 discussed a search for janitors for the YMCA offices at a wage of $2.50 a week.

It was in 1903 that the first building committee was organized for a new YMCA building. A campaign to raise funds in 1910 was begun with an objective of $40,000.

After two campaigns $41,342 was raised including pledges. Contract price for the new building was $28,961.

Finally in 1911 the association was incorporated. It moved into the new building in 1912.

Mr. Weir remembers that this building served the public well for over 50 years.

The building contained a pool, a gymnasium, three bowling alleys and a billiard room. It saw the Y's Men's club receive its charter in 1925.

That year — 1925 — also was a highlight for the Belleville YMCA in another regard. That year the annual meeting of the organization saw Mackenzie King, then Prime Minister of Canada, and former PM Arthur Meighen in attendance as guests.

It organized a teen-age club which operated weekly dances at BCIVS from 1945 until 1949. According to Mr. Weir, at least 400 young people attended these dances every week.

Because the association was "interdenominational and for the rich and poor alike" it became the community building for meetings. Almost every Belleville organization met in the "Y".

With the construction of many halls and meeting places in Belleville since then, the YMCA is no longer the focal point it once was.

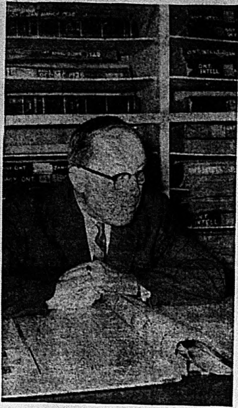
"There weren't halls to meet in in those days," says Mr. Weir. "There are still some who use the YMCA to meet, but not as many."

In June of 1955 the first meeting was held by the board of directors of the organization to discuss the erection of a new YMCA building or extensive repairs on the Campbell Street location.

In 1959, option was taken on six acres of land on Victoria Avenue and plans for the new building began. A campaign for funds in 1961 failed to meet the $550,000 objective.

However the "Y" decided to go ahead with the project and a contract to build was signed for $392,548. Official opening of the Victoria Ave. building was Sept. 15, 1964.

Mr. Weir has seen many changes where the YMCA is concerned. He even remembers when a YMCA hockey team wasn't allowed to play for a trophy because it wasn't considered proper to play for material accomplishment.



YMCA Historian

Vernon Weir, a member of the Belleville YMCA for 53 years, is the acknowledged historian of the organization. Here he researches in the morgue of The Intelligencer.

City Says It's Working To Buy Howell Land

Expropriation proceedings in connection with the city's Road property owned by Mrs. Dorothy Howell, are going ahead according to regulations, City Manager J. R. Reynolds said today.

Assurance that the proceedings were going ahead was made in reply to a letter from Mrs. Howell stating that she would give the city until Friday of this week to take action or she would commence excavations on the property.

Mr. Reynolds said that new expropriation regulations called for an outside appraisal.

"This has now been done and Mrs. Howell will be getting the information in a few days," Mr. Reynolds said.

Controversy between the city and Mrs. Howell over the Cannifton Road property arose last autumn when the city refused to issue a building permit. Grounds for the refusal were that the city wanted to acquire the property as part of its riverside park development scheme.

But Mrs. Howell took the matter to court and won her point at a Toronto hearing when the city was ordered to issue the permit.

However, the city countered with a decision to expropriate the property and Mrs. Howell was so notified by the assessment department.

When she heard no further word regarding the expropriation Mrs. Howell had her lawyer write the city giving until Friday or she would commence excavation.

Robbery Suspect Arrested

A suspect wanted in connection with a violent robbery in Belleville has been arrested—17 months later and nearly 3,000 miles away.

OPP officers leave Belleville today for Victoria to charge James Peter Phillips, 34, with the armed robbery of Food City store manager Sam Mulholland in September, 1967.

Provincial police were informed today by the RCMP that Phillips, a native Montrealer, had been picked up last night on the Canada-wide warrant issued for his arrest after the incident.

Two men already are serving lengthy jail terms for the robbery — during which $15,000 in cash and cheques were stolen after Mr. Mulholland was abducted at gunpoint outside the Towers discount shopping complex west of Belleville.

Larry Wayne Morrison, 24, of Belleville, was sentenced to 12 years, and Lawrence Schler 34, to 10 years after both men were tracked by OPP to Montreal.

Provincial police said Phillips will be back in Belleville by the end of the week to await his trial.

Mrs. Thelma Lykins, a blood donor over 50 times, and her son Michael, two, take a look at some slides shown by Harry Black, campaign chairman of the Ontario Division of the Red Cross, which show the horror of Biafran starvation.

Slides Tell Horror Story Of Biafra Starvation

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Slides and information about the Biafran situation shocked members of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society at its annual meeting last night.

Guest speaker was Harry Black, campaign chairman of the Ontario division of the Red Cross.

Mr. Black related some of the background of the Nigerian - Biafran war and described the starvation situation in the Biafran province as "horrible".

He explained that great hordes of people had moved into an already crowded region of the country and the result was a terrible shortage of food.

"There was no way for organizations like Red Cross to get food in," he said.

Mr. Black added that "political intrigues" between Nigeria and its wayward province made the chore of trying to feed the starving even harder.

For example, he related how the Nigerians wanted daylight flying of supplies and the Biafrans wanted night drops.

Mr. Black's slides showed the poor health of the Biafran children and described the two main types of starvation — carbohydrate and protein starvation.

The slides bore systems of the latter type, hair taking on a reddish tinge. Mr. Black said that thousands were starving every day.

He added that the work of the Red Cross in trying to supply food and medical aid to Biafra was becoming very costly.

He spoke of several agencies and private groups and individuals that campaigned to try and meet the heavy cost.

Mr. Black related how a Kingston bartender raised $3,000 by holding a dinner at $100 a plate. He said a campaign in Canada raised $300,000 for supplies, but this would fall short of the real need

"We have enough money to continue until the end of March," he said. "There are as many as 500 Red Cross workers in Nigeria, most of them from other parts of Africa."

Mr. Black added that the Red Cross would continue to try to get supplies in as long as possible, but carbohydrate starvation was beginning to add to the toll of starvation. On top of that Biafra has announced that it will have no foodstock after February.

"Biafra is an impossible situation," Mr. Black said. He explained that in reality the only possible solution to end the starving would be the end of the war.

Cameron Re-elected

The Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society held its annual meeting last night, almost as a prelude to Red Cross Month in Canada scheduled for March.

President of the branch, G. R. Cameron, congratulated members of the blood donor committee for their work. He mentioned that the last clinic was the most successful to date with 425 bottles of blood collected from 452 donors.

Throughout 1968 the blood donor service collected 1,516 bottles of blood from 1,611 donors and supplied 3,741 bottles of blood to 698 patients.

Mr. Cameron also mentioned the work of the water safety program which had 1,000 participants and the homemaker service which serviced 161 cases in 1,833 days of service. The service included 267 children.

A financial statement submitted by branch treasurer, Newton Thompson, showed a cash on deposit figure of $1,454 as of Dec. 31, 1968.

According to the report, general receipts added up to $42,358 including a balance of $1,991 forwarded on Jan. 1, 1968. Actual receipts for 1968 amounted to $40,366 and actual expenses were $40,903.

Last night's annual meeting also saw the presentations of blood donor awards to Belleville area donors.

Officers were elected at the meeting. President for 1969 will be G. R. Cameron. A. S. Lewis will remain past president for this year.

First and second vice presidents will be Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson and Mrs. Effie McCabe.

Newton Thompson will remain treasurer for another year and Mrs. M. L. Egger will be secretary.

IN MEMORIAM

AUSTIN — In loving memory of a dear husband William (Bill) Austin who passed away, Feb. 19, 1963.

I think of him in silence,
His name I oft recall,
There is nothing left to answer,
But his picture on the wall.

—Ever remembered by wife Eva, and family.

AUSTIN — In loving memory of my father and grandfather, Charles William Austin Sr., who passed away 4 years ago, Feb. 19, 1965.

May you always walk in sunshine,
And God's love around you glow,
For the happiness you gave us,
No one will ever know,
It broke our hearts to lose you,
For part of us went with you,
But you did not go alone.
The day God called you home.

—Sadly missed but always [illegible]membered, your daughter Mary McInroy and 2 grandsons and 1 granddaughter.

The Cause Is Conservation

C. G. MacDonald, last night re-elected chairman of Lower Trent Valley Conservation Authority, talks common problems with vice-chairman Arthur Workman. In background is secretary William Lawson.

Trent Valley Authority Plans $75,000 Budget

BRIGHTON — The Lower Trent Valley Conservation Authority last night released its budget system for the next five years and discussed some of the areas in which this money will be spent.

The budget figures, which are tentative, pending a further study of the authority's needs, set this year's total $8,600 with the budget five years estimated at $75,000.

The tentative system is set up as follows: 1969 — $8,600; 1970 — $22,000; 1971 — $35,000; 1972 — $50,000 and for 1973 — $75,000.

"All these figures are tentative and could be changed if future studies of our area show a change in our needs," said C. G. MacDonald, chairman of the authority.

But for the Conservation Authority, which was formed last July, this year's budget was real enough and suggestions were made on how to put the money to good use this year.

Perhaps the most imaginative idea came from Peter MacGilen, one of three provincial appointees to the baord when he suggested that area streams be stocked with Cohoe salmon.

"I am surprised these fish have been placed in areas of the province where the water is more polluted," stated Mr MacGilen.

"Why not stock some of the streams around here where there is no pollutiion," he asked.

The executive member said this would be a great "dollar bonus to the area if it caught on."

"The money made from tourism, motels and the many other businesses which would branch out from the influx of people could easily pay for the operation", continued Mr. MacGilen.

Referring to the state of Michigan, where this sort of project was tried previously, he said the operation has shown nothing but success since it started. Pressing the matter, Mr. MacGilen asked that a submission be sent to the government while "the eggs are still in the hatchery." The proposal will be studied.

Another area of expenditure will be a bus tour for authority members in which they will tour the total area they control and it is then that suggestions for future projects will be made.

Pollution at Domtar Not Completely Cured: Trenton Representative

BRIGHTON — Members of the Lower Trent Valley Conservation Authority made it clear last night that their recent pollution report on Domtar Newsprint did not say that the plant had completely cured its pollution problem.

The subject arose during the annual meeting of the authority at the Brighton Agricultural Hall. Paul Tripp, one of Trenton's representatives on the body, said that much of the critical publicity the board was receiving was due to this report.

He said the impression seems to have formed that "we visited Domtar and found no pollution whatsoever."

The tour was made approximately three weeks ago and in a report the authority found the steps taken by Domtar to curb pollution to be "most gratifying."

C. G. MacDonald, chairman of the authority, said, "we are not naive and we didn't say that all pollution was stopped, we merely said an effort was being made."

"We are not professionals in the pollution field and it would take an expert to tell if all pollution was stopped."

"I agree," said Mr. Tripp, "and I think the public should realize that we feel Domtar is making an effort to control pollution but in no way has it reached the end in this project."

Executive Officers To Remain Unchanged

BRIGHTON — The slate of officers which will form the executive of the Conservation Authority for 1969 remain unchanged from those who served during the six months of the body's existence last year.

There was no change because the authority believed that the 1968 officers had hardly got started since the body only came into being in July of last year.

Chairman is C. G. MacDonald with Art Wartman taking up the post of vice-chairman. The five remaining members of the executive body are the chairman of the five advisory committees.

They include W. G. Carter, fish and wildlife committee, S. J. McMillan, forestry and land, Claude Trumble, water control, J. M. Bush, information and education and Russell Sills, conservation areas. Secretary treasurer is William Lawson.

There are 16 townships and the town of Trenton represented on the Authority. Trenton is allowed two representatives and the others one.

It Is Licence Time And No Extension

With only nine shopping days left until the Feb. 28 deadline, only about one half of the slightly more than 2,000,000 Ontario motorists have their 1969 licence plates.

And Transport Minister Irwin Haskett says there will be no extension of the deadline.

That is the picture across the province but here in Belleville sales of new licence plates have been slightly more brisk.

Local licence issuer George Olsen said Tuesday that 7,200, or about two thirds of the 11,500 sets of plates normally sold have now gone out.

"Sales are picking up, but it will be the same story as in other years - - - there will be a last minute lineup," he prophesied.

Following repeated delays of one kind or another, the city's recreational building at the Belleville Fairgrounds is soon to be ready for use.

If everything goes as expected, the new auditorium will be ready for use on March 3, with the first scheduled event being a Kin-20 dance on March 8.

Completion of the building has been held up by late delivery of plumbing fixtures. However, the fixtures have now been installed and the interior of the structure has been completely painted.

Mushroom Plant Site Still in Air

PICTON — No decision has been reached on the location of a mushroom plant in the Picton area.

According to C. G. McCalpin, director of the Picton office of the Canada Manpower Centre, a survey to ascertain the number of potential employees has been completed but no action has been taken by the interested company.

"The company is quite satisfied with the results of the survey but I don't know when a decision will be made," he said.

Mr. McCalpin said firms usually like a three or four to one ratio of potential employees compared with their total labor force before they settle in any area.

Where There's Fire -- There Are Kids!

Youngsters returning to school yesterday were the main spectators as firemen put out blaze in this Charles Street residence. Fire, in home owned by Mr. and Mrs. Dan Stewart, started in bedroom of unknown causes and resulted in smoke and water damage.

Bridge Street Board Rejects Pastoral Change

The Official Board of Bridge Street United Church voted unanimously last night to express a vote of confidence in its Minister and to urge him to reconsider his intention to ask for a change in pastoral relations.

Rev. Dr. H. M. Davis had earlier addressed a letter to the annual congregational meeting stating his desire for a change in pastoral relations.

That meeting referred the matter for consideration to the official board and last night's board meeting was called for this purpose. The subject was of such concern that the largest attendance of members in many years was registered.

In discussion with church officers after the meeting, Dr. Davis expressed his appreciation of the action of the board and indicated his willingness to accede to the wishes of the meeting.

Dr. Davis, who was honored by Queen's University with a Doctor of Divinity degree in May, 1967, has served Bridge St. Church for 14½ years.

Since coming to the city he has been chairman of the Belleville Presbytery, president of the Belleville Ministerial Association and president of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church in 1965-66.

Humane Society Handled 849 Pets During Year

From Sept. to the end of 1968 the Humane Society's Animal Shelter in Belleville handled 849 dogs and cats. These figures were announced at the annual meeting of the society on Monday.

The report indicates that the shelter is also being used to stable horses over the winter. Several injured animals have also taken refuge at the old G. Crowe for his efforts

The report says a two way radio has been installed to provide communication between the shelter and the mobile units. This has provided greater efficiency in the operation of the shelter.

A lack of capital funds has also caused a problem for the society. The group has not been able to make changes in the premises to meet certain society standards.

The group hopes to conduct a fund raising campaign to provide the necessary funds to complete the work.

The society also plans an "Open House" in the near future.

President R. W. Whiten paid special tribute to Harold G. Crowe for his fforts on behalf of the group.

Elected to the new board of directors were Mrs. E. W. Phair of Sydney, Mrs. H. G. Crowe of Belleville, Mrs. A. N. Morin of Trenton, Mrs. Kenneth Sager of Thurlow, Mrs. A. D. Revill of Ameliasburg, R. W. Whiten of Thurlow, A. C. Jones of Belleville, T. Rhenius of Belleville, A. L. Gnaedinger of Tyendinaga, M. A. Vasey of Thurlow, M. W. Andison of Trenton and Richard Ellis of Belleville. Re-elected president was R. W. Whiten and E. W. Phair was re-appointed chairman of the shelter committee. Appointed as their representative on the board by their municipal council was M. W. Andison for Trenton and Ald. Richard Ellis for Belleville.

Salaries and Students

Salaries in the field of education, under fire for some time, have reached the point where a supervisor of janitors hired recently by Lennox and Addington at $11,000 was almost as well off as the county engineer, a veteran of almost 15 years' service.

Introducing a motion to raise County Engineer Alex Moffat's salary from $11,400 to $14,000, Ernestown Reeve C. J. Kidd told county councillors in Napanee that the wages of education officials were too high. "The school board has really gone wild," said Mr. Kidd. The reeve is not alone in criticizing the wage structure in education. For instance, administrators of the new county system are making from $29,000 to $30,000. These officials could be making $18,000 to $20,000 and still be doing very well. And the money thus saved by the education authority could be used to excellent advantage, say in the financing of sporting and physical education programs.

All we hear these days are moans and groans about youngsters who have nothing to do. Increasingly, authorities say, these young people are turning to experimentation with alcohol and drugs. Why? Well, one of the main reasons is the absence of the kind of competitive sporting programs that are such a feature of the educational systems of Britain and other parts of the Commonwealth. Anyone who does not believe this should observe at first hand what is being done by schools overseas in this regard.

Without such a program, the great vacuum in the leisure time of young people is being allowed to deepen. It is a void they are seeking to fill by non-conformist behavior of the type we are witnessing on university campuses, by political radicalism and by the kind of eccentricity associated with drug addiction and the so-called new morality.

There are better things in life, and students should be intelligent enough to realize it. It is time the responsible ones among our students — and they are in the majority — took the lead, for the future of the entire student body and of the country lies in their hands. If all they see ahead is anarchy of their own making they must be very stupid indeed. Meanwhile, the education authorities can give a lead by setting aside funds to encourage recreational programs that will help build young people with real guts and character.

Wise Words

Canada's Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce, Jean-Luc Pepin, made some useful observations regarding Franco-Canadian relations the other day. His remarks had particular relevance to the interfering ways of President de Gaulle with regard to Canadian sovereignty.

Mr. Pepin was speaking at a press conference in Paris and here in part is what he had to say: "It has always seemed to me that France could do a tremendous amount in Canada in a positive way and without fuss, and without raising political acrimony. This has seemed to me to be in the interests of both French and English-speaking Canadians.

"But the general (de Gaulle) seems to see things in a slightly different way — and I do not challenge his way of seeking things differently — but I try as much as I can to prove that this is not the best way to help promote French culture. It is not the best way of helping French-speaking Canadians or even the Quebecois."

Full marks to Mr. Pepin. These were wise words. They struck a note of responsibility where much of what emanates from Quebec spokesmen is just the opposite.

Rule Britannia

Britain and West Germany are said to be drawing closer together. This willingness to let bygones be bygones between two countries that some 25 years ago were at war is taking some interesting forms. Next May, according to the German Travel News office in Montreal, the KD — German Rhine Line will put a fifth cabin boat, the MS Britannia, into service between Rotterdam and Basle. The others are the Europa, Helvetia, France and Nederland, names which also recall the hostilities Germany perpetrated in Europe three decades ago. The war of course is long since over, and other problems — many of them economic — abound. Britain at least can take comfort in the fact that while the liners Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth are now retired, there are now at least two Britannias in service, one of them courtesy of its former enemy!

Is It Student Power Or Student Anarchy?

Letters to the Montreal Gazette

The quest for change and the varied methods of demonstration used in the efforts to have it enacted follow similar patterns throughout the world. The demonstration is directed to authority because that is the only instrument that can logically enact the change requested. It is suggested that the underlying reason for the unrest may really be the pattern of living and not the campus or the factory or the office; although these fields do contribute by their box-like environment. It is suggested that the intensity of the unrest varies directly with the amount of time spent in rented manufactured community boxes during non-working hours.

From any logical standpoint, the focal point seems to be the home environment. . . Off hours can and should be spent in an environment calculated to satisfy the human desires, unwitting or otherwise. They should be spent in disciplines offering latitudes calculated to dispel the unrest.

When discipline went out the door and the nominal head of the household, the father, threw up his hands, the child became a potential and very often an active delinquent. Today we see the result of this parental acquiescence. Further to this is the disappearance in the elementary schools of discipline in the form of corporal punishment, now considered abhorrent by so many teachers and parents of the "permissive" school.

We are now reaping the whirlwind. A last resort before the police, courts and jails take over may be a concerted effort by the responsible students in our colleges today, those who are there to obtain an education and not a listing on a police blotter. Such bona fide students might form an Alma Mater Society with their own campus police, lawyers, judges and courts. Any act judged detrimental to the best interest of the university, its administrators and students could result in the summary arrest, trial and probable expulsion of the offender, his fees expropriated and he or she black-balled from any and all recognized universities.

If the parents and administration are incapable of controlling such agitators and malcontents, it would be up to the dedicated students to protect their best interests as well as those of the universities and decent society as a whole.

Universities: Taxpayers Investment Is at Stake

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

Would you invest your money in a company where the executive staff was inept, ineffectual and too timid to take the necessary steps to safeguard your investment? Not by a long shot!

For that reason many of us have withdrawn our annual donations to our alumni associations. To be sure I don't expect these gestures to affect the universities to any great degree but in my own case it makes me feel ever so much better. For several years now I have felt that my money has been mismanaged by an administration that all too readily has abdicated its responsibility to the taxpayer and to the student alike.

I fail to find any 'beauty' in the foul-mouthed, rude exponents of violence for the sake of reform. Do the means justify the end? I think not. Do these students really think the world today is so much worse than that of older generations? They seem to see only one side of the coin.

Shrieking obscenities and destroying property are not original ideas, nor do they demonstrate much maturity. What is this mutinous minority doing to the majority of serious students whose main role at university is to learn? This is what should concern us all. I am not impressed with students who take days off from lectures to travel out of town to picket in strike lines. Protest for the sake of protest seems to be the order of the day.

I sympathize with the administration because I feel that it has been conned into shucking its responsibilities. But it has gone too far in accommodating these destroyers. A university education used to be a privilege. Now many regard it as a God-given right to be trifled with.

The immaturity of these rebels allows them to be led by uncommitted trouble - makers whose very involvement in these protests reeks of insidious treachery that is a threat to our national security. The recent events at Sir George Williams University in Montreal show the danger of these situations. As a taxpayer I shall be interested in following up the results of a full investigation of these riots. Will the involvement of foreign students be whitewashed and excused or will they be deported as we should insist? In no other area would wanton destruction be tolerated to the degree that it has been in student uprisings. Force cannot be met with feathers. I for one have had enough. How about you?

ELIZABETH MORTON

McMaster Student Speaks Out Against Campus Violence

Letter to the Ottawa Journal

I was shocked and amazed, annoyed and concerned by the violence at Sir George Williams in Montreal.

Most university students want only to learn; we ask only that our ideas be given consideration, and of course, if need be, constructive criticism.

Most of us want not to change everything with which we do not agree, radically or violently, but rather to discuss our ideas, to keep and to build the respect of our elders and our peers through co-operation and understanding.

We need not make blithering idiots of ourselves by proving ourselves incapable of coping with the world and responsibility which will inevitably pass into our hands, by joining in riots and violence.

Deliberating with student associations and university governments can certainly be trying and slow at the best of times but is it not preferable to the immaturity shown by something which is equivalent to the temper tantrum of a spoiled three-year-old?

Sectarianism Bedevils Politics in Ireland

Peterborough Examiner

While the Rev. Ian Paisley, the Protestant extremist, was being chaired from jail among a throng of 5,000 cheering supporters in Belfast recently, a reporter asked a member of the crowd who he would like to see as prime minister. The man waved a Bible and said: 'A good Protestant who would rule Northern Ireland according to the good book.'

If the choice should be Mr. Paisley, who will challenge Prime Minister O'Neill in the snap election called for Feb. 24, there is a likelihood that rule by the good book will lead to a civil war that could encompass both Northern and Southern Ireland.

The prime minister was virtually forced to call an election following massive dissension in his cabinet and among party backbenchers over his unwavering determination to end Protestant discrimination against the minority Catholics. His critics are particularly anxious about his intention of instituting a one-man, one-vote policy that would reduce Protestant influence in elections. Catholics are at a disadvantage in the fight for local council seats because only fully-recognized tenants or house-owners are permitted to vote. Many Catholics are too poor to be classified as anything better than lodgers and are therefore unqualified to vote. Furthermore, owners of companies — mainly Protestants — are able to cast six votes.

Prime Minister O'Neill goes to the polls with three advantages: he has sufficiently strong Catholic and Protestant support within his own constituency that he has always obtained his Parliamentary seat by acclamation; there was widespread support for his television appeal a few weeks ago for calm and reason in the religious strife of the country; and he is striking with a snap election while his opponents are in disarray over potential alliances and leadership choices.

His major disadvantage is that he must cut across the historic and bitter religious lines to gain support for candidates who will follow his moderate approaches.

In the 1965 election the prime minister's Unionist party held 37 seats; Nationalists held nine, Labor two, Republican Labor one, Liberal one, Independent one, National Democrats one. The Unionists usually attract the Protestant vote. Some Catholics support the Nationalists whose policy is to break from Britain and unite with the Irish Republic.

An overwhelming defeat for Prime Minister O'Neill would undoubtedly mean the establishment of a militant, ultra-Protestant government and the possibility of Catholic persecution. That alone is enough to arouse the predominantly Catholic republic to the south to rise in sympathy and return to its passion for guerrilla warfare against the British - oriented North.

Parishioners of St. Thomas' Church assembled in large numbers at the Parish House, the occasion being a parochial party. The first part of the proceedings took place in the upper assembly room and the guest speaker, the Rev. Northcote Burke, formerly of Ottawa, and now rector of Christ Church, Deer Park, Toronto, was introduced by the rector, Archdeacon the Ven. Arthur Smith. The subject of Mr. Burke's address was "A Parson Looks at a Mule" and from the beginning to end he kept the large audience in a state of merriment. He possesses great ability as a story teller and is endowed with rare wit, the combination of which resulted in delightful entertainment.

No Change On World Scene Since Nixon Took Office

By STEPHEN SCOTT

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Much of the world seems to be holding its breath these days, watching for signs from Washington or Moscow.

From Biafra to Berlin eyes are on Richard M. Nixon as he completes his first month in office as president of the United States.

Officials from Paris to Peking are giving Nixon a chance to show that he has something new to offer with his new Republican administration in Washington.

There are continuing signs that neither the Soviet Union nor the U.S. want to rock the global boat so hard as to affect prospects of talks between them.

Even Communist China has come out of its shell to propose talks —to be held in Warsaw this week—with the Americans after a 13-month interruption of dialogue caused by China's "cultural revolution."

Mighty France and little Biafra, the secessionist Nigerian state torn by civil war, see hope of some form of detente with the new U.S. government.

Fears and warnings emanate from the Middle East. But Arab and Israeli are getting no backing for resumption of tension. Instead the Big Four are attempting to get together to discuss the road for a peaceful settlement.

The greatest fear in the Middle East situation is that one side or the other will take precipitous action and thus hamper Big Four efforts.

The Soviet Union and the U.S. want to talk arms limitation.

Neither side wants Berlin to deteriorate to the point where the super-powers will find themselves in positions that will make conversations impossible.

Nixon visits West Berlin next week, as British Prime Minister Wilson did last week, to show support for West Germany's right to hold presidential elections in the divided city.

The world will watch to see how cool the president will play his hand, not only in Berlin, but on his entire European tour.

He will be walking on thin ice the entire time. It will be difficult for him to say anything on European unity, for instance, without offending somebody.

Everything he says will be dissected, weighed, analysed.

There seems a chance, just a chance, that progress can be made in some of the trouble areas of the world.

The sixth annual Pepsi mixed junior bonspiel was held at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday with sixteen rinks from the district taking part. The local club entered eight rinks, four came from the OSD, two from Tweed, one from Picton and one from Brighton.

Murray Johnson was the bonspiel chairman and draw master, while Bill Spinelli, manager of Moira Beverages, presented the trophy to the winning Picton rink of E. Bishop, L. Chapman, D. McAlpine with M. McLeod as skip. He also presented pen and pencil sets to the runners-up, a rink from the OSD of G. Jarva, P. Rinnie, G. Gaudreau with W. Durand as skip.

Mr. Joe Demeza, principal of OSD, congratulated the young curlers on their deportment, fine sportsmanship and display of fellowship.

Mrs. Gladys Lewis, Miss Joyce Johnson, Mrs. Doreen Lovett and Mrs. Adele Stewart worked tirelessly to provide meals and snacks for the participants.

A rink from the Quinte Curling Club of B. McPherson, M. Johnson, D. Ward with Jerry Hyde Jr. as skip won the high two-game count with a local rink of B. Glover, D. Kuntze, L. Charlton with J. Lovett as skip in second place.

The one-game high rink was skipped by J. Caverly of Tweed while the runner-up was a rink from Quinte of B. McCluskie, S. Sullivan, D. Smith with T. Sullivan as skip.

James McDivitt, David Scott and Russell Schweickart

Moon Flying Machine A Tissue Paper Bug

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — "I wouldn't give you two dollars a day for a room in it. But it's destined to land us on the moon."

That's Air Force Lt.-Col. James A. McDivitt describing the fragile lunar module which he will help test on the Apollo 9 flight scheduled to start from Cape Kennedy Feb. 28.

They are to orbit the earth for 10 days in one of the most complex man in space flights yet attempted. Many rate it toughter than the Apollo 8 moon orbit mission.

The major goal, McDivitt said, is to give the lunar module, called a LEM, its first manned test in space. The LEM looks like a giant bug.

"My impression when I first saw a LEM," McDivitt said, "was 'Holy Moses, we're going to really fly that thing in space?'

"It's a very flimsy craft—like a tissue paper spacecraft. If we're not careful, we could easily put a foot through it.

"It has an entirely different mission than any other spacecraft has ever had. Other spacecraft had to withstand re-entry Gs, earth landing with parachutes and had a pretty rough environment to live in.

"The LEM isn't like that," he said. "It is not designed to re-enter the atmosphere or make hard landings. It will fly only in the vacuum of space and not in any atmosphere. It is intended to make a soft landing on the moon."

McDivitt noted there aren't any seats in it, that the two men who pilot it must do so standing up. That's because weight is very critical in the vehicle and because it's not intended to support life for more than a day or so while astronauts are on the moon.

"It's not designed for comfort," McDivitt said. "When they want to rest on the moon they'll have to lie on the floor or against the equipment bays."

When Apollo 9 is launched by a Saturn 5 rocket, McDivitt, Scott and Schweickart will ride in the main Apollo ship, with the LEM resting in an adapter section between the third stage and the spaceship.

Once in orbit 118 miles high, the astronauts separate the main ship, called a command module, and turn around to dock with the LEM, pulling it free on the third stage.

"When you put the LEM and command module together you have a pretty big mass weighing about 90,000 pounds," McDivitt said. "It's a completely new guidance task from what we experienced on Apollo 7 and Apollo 8.

"Our job on Apollo 9 is to prove in earth orbit that we can actually fly this gigantic mass to the moon, stop it there and perform a lunar landing with the LEM."

Farm Groups Founder On Unification Plan

Officials of the Ontario Farmers' Union will consider proposing to the Ontario Government that their union be certified as the one organization to represent Ontario farmers.

This is the outcome of events at Saturday's meeting of executives of the OFU and the Ontario Federation of Agriculture which saw the OFA unwilling to negotiate further toward a single farm organization stating they would settle for nothing less than a federated structure on the style proposed by the government's Farm Income Committee.

Ontario Farmers' Union vice president Ellard Powers of Beachburg, chief negotiator, said he thought until Saturday that good headway was being made with the OFA for one farm organization.

"I am frustrated and disappointed with the whole deal. been expended by the OFU in the belief farmers could have one farm organization that would embody all farmers and would be effective in improving farmers' incomes," Mr. Powers said.

"On a previous meeting of the two executives, certain areas of mutual agreement were found and we were hopeful these could be further developed. This sudden change of attitude by the OFA's executive shows that the OFA executive is not willing to be cooperative to set up one organization for farmers," Mr. Powers concluded.

Walter Miller, president of the OFU said, "The OFU executive shares the feeling of Mr. Powers. This executive, and our previous executives and will continue with all efforts to do so regardless of the disappointing, unco-operative attitude of the Federation of Agriculture." Mr. Miller said the OFA has used the same sudden change of attitude as they did last year within the six man Committee for One Farm Organization.

JOHN J. CARSON

Carson to Address Y

Guest speaker at the annual YMCA dinner meeting Thursday night will be John J. Carson, chairman of the Public Service Commission of Canada.

His familiarity with the peculiarities of federal personnel management began in 1961 when he was loaned to the Glassco Commission by the B.C. Electric Company.

It continued when in 1964 he was loaned to the federal Treasury Board as a special advisor on personnel.

He was appointed as chairman of the Public Service Commission in 1965.

He was born in 1919 in Vancouver and received his Bachelor of Arts at the University of British Columbia. He then received his Masters degree in psychology at the University of Toronto.

During World War two Mr. Carson was with the directorate of personnel selection at National Defence Headquarters as a staff captain.

In 1966 he was appointed a member of the United Nations' International Civil Service Advisory Board. This year he became president of the Canadian YMCA.

Hydro Strike Hits Eastern Region

Eastern Ontario region supervisory hydro personnel have started working 12-hour shifts to keep power flowing after the employee's union "lowered the boom" on the system today.

Norman Manning, public relations officer for Hydro, said this morning there were 400 employees out in this region as of midnight last night.

Operating staff has been called out of 52 of the commission's 73 generating stations in Ontario.

Ontario Hydro is buying power from the United States and Quebec so that the strike has little effect on customers.

Wilfred Hickey, chairman of this division of the Union, has promised that service to customers will be maintained.

LONDON (AP) — Police of six nations are completing plans to protect President Nixon against organized demonstrators and individual fanatics and screwballs during his European tour.

In Britain, France, Belgium, Germany and Italy, security agents are charting routes, vantage points for potential assassins, assembly points for demonstrators and compiling lists of local "nuts" who might do something weird if they got the chance.

Cmdr. John Lawlor of Scotland Yard, who dealt with the riots at the American Embassy last year, has sent a list of potential troublemakers, including Continental agitators, to all immigration officers.

The president will stay at Claridge's Hotel rather than the U.S. Embassy residence in Regent's Park because every British security officer knows every alcove and corner of the venerable establishment in Mayfair. Heads of state and government chiefs have stayed there for generations.

Militant opponents of the Vietnam war have served notice they intend to give the president a hot time in London. Edward Davoren, secretary of the Revolutionary Student Federation, claims that 50 organizations have formed a Hot Reception for Nixon Committee. He promised 60,000 at one demonstration before the U.S. Embassy Monday, before Nixon's arrival.

London police will be out in force and the home office has issued special permission for American security officers attached to the president to carry guns.

Paris police are planning the same protection for Nixon that they give President de Gaulle. That is considerable.

Police will line roads and streets, spaced 50 yards apart. Firemen and police will be stationed on rooftops. Plainclothesmen will mingle with the crowds. Traffic will be stopped on the presidential routes, and Nixon's motorcade will travel at high speed. Any unusual assembly will be promptly broken up.

Belgium, home of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Common Market, generally practices the European system of smothering the involved area with police.

Bonn and West Berlin present special problems in the light of their proximity to East Germany as well as the presence of energetic leftist students from many countries who attend West German universities.

West Berlin will have 13,000 uniformed police on standby, with possibly half on special duty. American troops and public safety officers will be mobilized as well.

But no trouble is expected from East Berlin. The Soviets have a habit of telling their satellite to cool it when such a personage as an American president is in town. Hotheads in West Berlin may be inspired by Communist propaganda but they won't have Kremlin support.

Rome is expecting some flurry of protest but only from maverick extreme leftists. The big Italian Communist party seems more pleased at Nixon's visit than against it.

Massive police forces are being assigned to the president's routes—from the airport to the Qurinal, to the Vatican, and to the American Embassy—but they expect mostly an enthusiastic welcome.

Arab Makes A Point

Israel's Claim to Sovereignty Over Jews Prevents Accord

SASKATOON (CP) — Israel's claim to sovereignty over the world's 15,000,000 Jews makes any workable solution to the Middle East problem impossible, Ibrahim Shukrallah, director of the Arab Information Centre in Ottawa, said Tuesday.

Mr. Shukrallah, addressing a meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, said Israel's self-imposed custody of the world's Jews increased Arab fears that the country is an expansionist state.

Israel is based on a religious and racist premise, he said, and continues to encourage Jewish immigration from all over the world. This causes uneasiness in neighboring Arab nations who fear that an immigration surge will force Israel to expand its borders.

Mr. Shukrallah said the Israeli cause is supported by Jews in every country who have a dual loyalty.

"They are victimized by legend, by a mythical interpretation of history," that persuades them of the Jewish right to Palestine, he said.

He said Israel's choice lies between withdrawing from the occupied land and maintaining its Jewish character and allowing Palestine to become a bi-national or secular state bearing its own name.

The road to peace in the Middle East is blocked by the fact that Israel is a militarist nation, he said.

"They will negotiate, but they specify areas in which negotiation does not apply, such as withdrawal from territories occupied in the June war of 1967."

Mr. Shukrallah said the Israeli establishment was composed of the militarists in the country who feel the only effective instrument is deployment of force.

He said Israel manifests "a straight-forward colonialism in which indigenous peoples are thrown out rather than absorbed; a colonialism supported, surprisingly, by Western liberals."

Western support evolves from guilt following Hitler's massacre of Jews during the Second World War, and from "a curious sort of anti-semitism which would like to see all Jews pushed off somewhere together."

This support is encouraged by "an extremely well-organized, well-financed Zionist movement," he said.

Guerrilla warfare currently being waged by Arabs is inevitable in any occupied territory, Mr. Shukrallah said. The resistance doesn't hope to defeat Israel, but to establish a sense of insecurity within that country.

"But I don't approve of attacking airplanes," he said.

He said the "movement for the liberation of Egypt" operating among young Egyptian intellectuals, who protest the one-party state and a press which is not free, "is an extension of the feeling of restlessness all over the world."

He said it reflects student's determination to see "a speedy end to the present situation created by Israeli occupation of Egyptian territory."

WEDDING

MARACLE — MARACLE

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — The wedding was solemnized in Christ Church, Saturday, Feb. 15, 1969, at 3 p.m. when Rev. F. F. Downing united in marriage Donna Elaine Maracle and Glen G. Maracle. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Maracle of the Slash Road, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest ("Pat") Maracle, also of RR 1, Deseronto. Mrs. Elwood D. Brant played appropriate wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride had chosen a floor-length gown of white velvet fashioned on Empire lines, with a fold of the material marking the raised waistline, emphasized by a flat bow at the front. It featured a chapel train, a lowered round neckline and long sleeves pointed over the hands. Her shoulder-length veil fell from a seed-pearl encrusted rose. She carried a cascade of cranberry red roses.

Miss Diane Maracle was her sister's maid-of-honor, and the bridesmaids were her sister Gail, Mrs. Ivan Clement of Napanee, and her cousins, Norma, Mrs. Laverne Maracle, and Miss Carol Maracle. All four were gowned identically in cranberry red velvet, their gowns fashioned on the same lines as that of the bride, except for the pointed sleeves and the train. A single rose of the material formed the headdress, with a wisp of veiling at the back. Each carried a white fur muff, crested with a corsage of carnations matching the gown.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Legion Hall in Deseronto, where the mother of the bride and the mother of the groom received the 100 guests. For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride wore a three-pieced suit of cherry red wool, with matching hat and other accessories in white. The groom's mother, assisting her, was in light blue metallic brocade with navy accessories. Each wore a corsage of pink carnations.

On return from a brief honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Maracle will take up residence on the Slash Road on the Reserve, although both are employed in Belleville.

Medical Secretaries Enjoy Tour

The Quinte Medical Secretaries recently enjoyed a tour through the new hospital conducted by Mrs. S. Haggerty, Instructor, School of Nursing. Eighteen Medical Secretaries were present to view the beautiful addition to the hospital and the modern equipment which will be used.

The regular monthly meeting for February was held at Education Hall. Mrs. Beth Cunningham reported on the meeting of the House of Representatives held recently in Toronto.

Mrs. Margaret Stanfield introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Seymour of the Christmas Exchange, who gave a most interesting talk.

Appreciation was voiced by Mrs. Doreen Ware.

Local Catholic Women's League Sponsors Annual Valentine Ball

A mod decor of love posters and flowers formed the setting in St. Michael's auditorium for the annual Valentine ball sponsored by the Catholic Women's League held last Friday evening convened by Edna Kroetsch and Monica Heisz.

Music was provided by Frank Howard's Orchestra and spot dances throughout the evening were won by Dorothy and Clyde Pope, Rick and Lois Harvey, Mickey McDonald, Mary Surina, Jack Fletcher and Mary Lou Letersky. The door prize was won by Leo Kent.

In keeping with the theme of the decor the huge smorgasbord table was particularly eye catching and laden with an assortment of salads and meats where Mrs. J. Morey and other members of the league assisted the large number of guests in their selection.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN

The Presbyterian Women of St. Columba Presbyterian Church met on Monday evening, Feb. 17 in the Church hal.

Mrs. B. Hackett opened the meeting with the reading of a poem.

Dividing into groups the members were asked to give their definition of Mission. With a desire to see new forms of mission it was concluded that Mission is the care of the earth, a pilgrimage of experimentation belonging to each one of us.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. C. Cook and Mrs. R. Bartlett.

During the business period it was agreed to send a donation to Camp Iona and renew membership in the Armagh auxiliary.

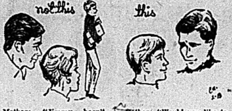
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "Jimmy hasn't saved a cent of the money he's earned on his after-school job. Every penny seems to get spent immediately on frivolous things. Do you suppose he will ever learn to budget and save?"

Father: "Would you like to talk to the banker about investing some of your money. You will need to save for college, you know. When you work so hard, you should have something to show for it at the end of the year. Mr. Jones could advise you about interest rates."

A teen-ager with his first job may go overboard on spending. Parents should tactfully guide him against foolish expenditures, even though he has earned the money. An outside financial expert may be able to help.

Senior Citizens Club Sponsors Valentine Tea

CAMPBELLFORD — Encouraged by the warm winter weather, attendance at the Valentine Tea held by the Campbellford Senior Citizens Club was quite good.

The tea was held in the club rooms on Saturday.

The club was organized nine years ago on Valentine's Day, by the late F. M. Rutherford. It first began with a Valentine Tea, a feature which has been carried on each year since.

Harry Cassidy was elected as president, and with the exception of a few years, has held that office almost exclusively for nine years. At the present time, the office is now held by Mrs. Cassidy, because of Mr. Cassidy's ill health. Much of the credit for the continued success goes to Mr. and Mrs. Cassidy.

Conveners for the tea were Mrs. Charles Shaw and Mrs. E. Cooper. The tea room was beautifully decorated with plants and flowers by Mrs. E. Abernethy.

Pouring tea for the occasion were club members Mrs. M. Cain; Mrs. Eva Gray; Mrs. E. Abernethy; Mrs. A. Clarke; Mrs. C. MacArtnur and Mrs. E. MacConnell.

The registration was taken care of by Mrs. Ethel Blake. Looking after lunch supplies were Mrs. C. Shaw and Mrs. Don MacMullen, the social convener.

The birthday cake was the congratulatory gift of Harry Dooher of Dooher's Bakery. Guests were welcomed by hostess president, Mrs. Harry Cassidy.

Blind Operator

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gail Brewer, 19, is blonde, vivacious and courageous — she is British Columbia's first blind dictaphone typist. While still partially sighted, she graduated from high school, using Braille textbooks. After a nine-month crash course in dictaphone typing and office duties, she was hired by St. Paul's Hospital.

At the recent meeting of the Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association on Feb. 13, Mrs. N. Petto, Mrs. J. Sowden and Miss J. Worrell the music teachers of the Primary Division, demonstrated the new "Threshold to Music" plan with their students. This is a new method of teaching music emanating from Hungary.

Miss Nancy Priest of King George School and Miss Debbie Hager of Harry J. Clarke School competed in the finals of the public speaking contest sponsored by the Ontario School Trustees and Municipal Councillors Association. Miss Priest was declared the winner by the Chief Judge Mr. Palmateer and she was presented with an award by His Worship Mayor Russell Scott on behalf of the trustees and councillors.

The school choir, under the direction of Mr. A. Brooks, entertained the audience with the songs they will sing in the Rotary Musical Festival '69.

It was decided to make a donation of cups and saucers to the Rylstone Women's Institute.

Mrs. Wilfred Spencer conducted a Bible contest, and later a hymn was sung. Mrs. Ross Dickie gave two short readings.

BELLEVILLE ART ASSOCIATION

Art Association Displays Works

By LINDA GELDART

There is a rich and colorful cache of talent worth seeing at the Belleville Library Gallery.

A few minutes browsing is time well spent — because the contributing members have put forth some of their finest efforts — bold black and white etchings, oil paintings, watercolors, even metal sculpture.

Advantages of a situation in which the paintings never have been on display previously, is usually just the incentive new up and coming artists need.

President of the Belleville Art Association, Mrs. R. Williamson, explained that regardless of painting experience, every member is encouraged to submit their work to the show, appropriately called "Artist's Choice."

"This is a first showing for several of our new members, and I'm sure it is a real encouragement to them," said Mrs. Williamson.

"A non-juried exhibition such as this is a real chance for the beginner, not only to show his paintings in public, but to experience what it is like to participate in a display," she added.

Each artist has contributed two paintings which are original works, completed in the past 18 months.

"Our purpose in exhibitions is to encourage the public to get out and enjoy painting, as a hobby or a healthy recreation," the president said.

"At the same time the Association wants to keep paintings on the gallery walls to give the public the opportunity to enjoy art."

Librarian, Miss O. Delaney explained the Library Board provided the alloted room space as a public service.

She also told about the newly formed Art Gallery Commission, consisting of three members of the Library Board, and two members of the Art Association.

The purpose of the Commission is to promote art in the city of Belleville. In supplementing their main goal, the group is currently formulating a criterion for the gallery — guidelines for the future.

The current gallery served other purposes, but the popularity of the painting exhibitions has already decided its main use.

The popularity of the gallery has been proven over and over again — "people are disappointed if there are no pictures there," Miss Delaney remarked.

"The general public, even when they come in to get library books, are looking for art too. Books and art seem to go together," Miss Delaney concluded.

A Meatless Dish

Rice Flamenco is a vegetable dish for Lent but there is nothing austere about it. Cheese is sprinkled generously over top. Mary Moore suggests that you serve two or three colorful vegetables with it and a custard pie.

Ann Landers

Serving the Public Is Thankless Task

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do you know that the majority of people in this country are dumb, careless, lazy, and they love to chisel? I retired just in time. I don't think I could have survived another 30 days of dealing with the lousy American public.

ANN LANDERS

As the head of a repair service department, I met just about everybody. This is what I learned: All kinds of people — the well-educated, the ignorant, the rich, the poor, the old and the young — they all want something for nothing. Furthermore, they can't read or they don't want to. They ignore instructions and assume that the rules were written for other people.

They bring in electric coffeemakers, toasters, irons, portable radios, stereos and they want free service. "It's covered by the warranty," they announce as if they have uttered some magic words. When I asked, "Where is the warranty?" they looked shocked and replied, "I threw it out. I never keep that junk." My next question, "Do you have a bill of sale?" produced such responses as, "Who do you think you're talking to? Are you trying to say I stole this radio?"

I've been called every rotten name in the book and several names not in any book. Some people think the dirtier they talk to the salesperson, the more intimidated he will become and the better their chances of getting something for nothing.

Please print my letter, Ann. Maybe it will shake up a few million people. And it might make life a little easier for the unfortunate woman who took my job.—LIBERATED AT LAST.

DEAR LIB: Customers bringing in broken appliances are understandably irritated and belligerent. This is no justification for abusing salespeople, however, and I hope all the rude and thoughtless customers will take note.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our college sophomore daughter is going steady with a law student. His name is Jason. A few weeks ago Cynthia wore a pantsuit and her boyfriend didn't like it. He told her to go put on a skirt. She refused. Finally he said, "O.K. you win, but this isn't the end of it."

Last night Jason showed up in a skirt. My husband answered the door and almost collapsed. You can't imagine the shock of seeing a 6' 1", 200-pounder in knee socks (hairy legs showing) — wearing a plaid jumper with pleats. When Cynthia saw him she gasped. Jason greeted her with, "It's a kilt."

They left to fight it out in private. My husband thinks Cynthia should not have gone with him. I don't know what to think. Do you? — HUNG JURY.

DEAR JURY: It sounds like kilt to me, Madame in which case, yes it's a respectable outfit. Somewhat unconventional unless worn to a clan meeting, but respectable nevertheless.

Promotes Ballet

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. CP — Mrs. Wendy West, a Prince Rupert ballet instructor, has been working for the last year attempting to show her students that ballet is not an isolated art with appeal to intellectuals only. She says that ballet does much for the general health as well as posture and gives children a form of self-expression.

Kitchen Tested Recipies

Rice Flamenco Ideal for Lent

By MARY MOORE

The Lenten season gives an extra impetus to our vegetable cooking.

A vegetable plate can be a beautiful picture and a flavorful meal. I am not an advocate of vegetarianism but regardless of the slogan "meat makes the meal" without vegetables that meal would lack lustre.

Today I have a recipe using rice as its basic ingredient but enhanced with three or four or five vegetables that give it its name. Cheese adds the protein.

RICE FLAMENCO
(Serves 6)

6 tbsps. cooking oil—divided
½ cup chopped onion (or ¼ cup bottled flakes)
1 cup celery
¾ cup carrots
½ cup green pepper (optional)
One 10-oz. can tomato sauce
One 10-oz. can mushroom stems and pieces (see note)
4 cups hot water — divided
1½ cups raw long grain rice
2 chicken Oxo cubes
1½ tsps. salt
About ¾ to 1 cup grated old Cheddar cheese

In 4 tbsps. of the oil in a frypan gently saute the onions, celery, carrots and green pepper (if used) for five minutes. (NOTE: 1) If you use bottled onion flakes be sure you do not burn them for they burn easily if neglected. 2) Of course you may use fresh mushrooms — as much as one pound. If you do, gently saute them along with the other vegetables.) Add the tomato sauce, rinse out can with and add one cup of the hot water and simmer covered until tender — about 15 minutes.

Meanwhile parch the rice in remaining oil in large frypan stirring until it is opaque and pale gold. Add remaining 3 cups hot water, chicken Oxo cubes and salt, stir well to dissolve cubes and cook covered 20 min. until all liquid is absorbed. Turn into attractive shallow preheated serving dish, pour cooked vegetable mixture over evenly, sprinkle top generously with grated cheese, and serve. NOTE: If this has to be held for a little while use a good-looking baking dish for it and cover with lid or foil and keep warm in oven at 200 deg. Fahr. Cheese melts a little and is very attractive. Serve with a colorful vegetable and a rib-sticking protein dessert such as custard pie.

Dinner Menu

WEDNESDAY
(Ash)

Pineapple Juice; Macaroni and Cheese; Creamed Onions; Green Beans; Harvard Beets; Lemon Meringue Pie; Tea.

Successful Living

Teenager Extremely Nervous Person

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am a 16-year-old student. Due to various aspects of my childhood, I have grown into an extremely sensitive, nervous person. Faced with new responsibilities I cry easily because I am afraid of humiliation. I always seem to be attempting to prove my intelligence. I move from one mood to another.

I can joke around with people but rarely confide my true feelings to anyone. While other girls have close friendships, staying at each other's overnight, shopping or travelling together, I can't.

We don't have a family doctor in whom I could confide. I want an outsider who will be able to provide objective, professional help. There is nothing my parents can do, so why should they know?

I think that I know some of my motivations but someone to uncover more clues and furnish suggestions for improvement is necessary. What would a consultation with a psychiatrist involve? — All Bottled Up

Dear Bottled Up: You need to uncork, and that's for sure. But the sensitivity, the fear of humiliation — who doesn't feel this way sometimes, at 16?

Don't write off those parents so quickly. It took Mark Twain all of his teen years to discover how wise his father was. By that time a person has passed the time when he or she desperately needs to talk and be understood.

Before going to a psychiatrist (via the hospital clinic) visit the child care or family service agency nearest you. A social worker can help you sort yourself out; which is probably all you need, apart from growing up a little more.

• • •

Dear Doris: My son is almost 16 and only five-foot-five. He is quite concerned about his height. The doctor says he will still grow slightly. Do you know of any "stretch" exercises that would help?

As for nutrition, I give him lots of protein foods. I am five-foot - four, my husband five-foot-eight. — All Shorties

Dear Shorties: He may still put on a spurt and grow several inches. Athletics and Yoga exercises are also said to help bodies to stretch and limber up.

But with your family stature he is not likely to be really tall. He can still be a giant of a man without growing another inch. Just be sure the personality he grows does not belittle itself by preoccupation with something which doesnt matter two hoots.

Dear Doris: I was married when I was 17. Now after 11 years and five children Im bored.

My husband and I get out about twice a year without the kids. I'd like to get out more often but my husband won't go and I dont enjoy myself alone. Id like to get a job to get away from the kids for a few hours a day but I'd have to drive about 25 miles and if I have to get a babysitter I won't make anything anyway.

I can't tal kto my husband and never could. If I could we might be able to work this out. The kids are getting me down more and more every day. — Bored.

Dear Bored: Something has to give. Your husband won't The young ones can't. And you say you "dont enjoy yourself alone.

The only mind you can change is your own. Lonelier souls than you have enjoyed breaking ground, making new friends and starting something different. You can do it if you think you can.

Serve notice to your husband that you require his babysitting services one night a week. Pick a fun group and take the plunge. Whether he knows it or not, your diversion is in his interest. He doesn't want a truly depressed female on his hands, does he?

• • •

Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.

You can choose from five 18-hole golf courses; go to the races at Florida Downs and Turf Club; see the Bounty Exhibit, a full-sized replica built in Nova Scotia for the film "Mutiny on the Bounty"; visit Fort Desoto Park and have a picnic; explore the Grace S. Turner House, Haas Museum, St. Petersburg Historical Museum, the Museam of Fine Arts and the beautiful Sunken Gardens.

Sarasota: Here you may swim from 35 miles of white sand beaches along the Gulf of Mexico; fish from bridges, piers and boats; catch mackeral, trout and redfish near shore, tarpon and kingfish in deeper waters; golf at ten 18-hole golf courses in the city; watch the Chicago White Sox display their skills; dine on flounder stuffed with crabmeat or mullet; see antique cars at Bellm's; see circus memorabilia and live acts at Circus Hall of Fame; view huge oil paintings by Ben Stahl at Sarasota Museum of the Cross; tropical birds and plants at Sarasota Jungle Gardens; see the John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art, the Circus Museum and Residence built in the style of a Venetian doge's palace.

Naples: This is the place to surf-cast from the beach — seven miles of white sand; cheer the Swamp Buggy Races in Feb.; gaze at orchids in the Caribbean Gardens where four daily shows feature trained waterbirds; take an all-day wildlife tour of the National Audubon Society's 6,000-acre Corkscrew Swamp Sanctuary and of the Caribbean Gardens in search of rare birds.

Everglades National Park: Rent a houseboat at Flamingo and explore the waterways of this largest remaining subtropical wilderness in the US; skim through 10-foot-high sawgrass marsh on airboats along the Tamiami Trail, or take conducted boat tours out of the Flamingo or Everglades; see films at the Royal Palm Visitor Centre at the park entrance; shudder at alligators from the elevated Anhinga Trail boardwalk; marvel at mahogany trees on Mahogany Hammock, at sawgrass wilderness from Pay-Hay-Okee Overlook and at giant mangroves along Mangrove Trail.

The distance from Belleville to Tampa is 1,550 miles. The temperatures there run in the 70's in February.

The Darien Disaster, by John Prebble.

A little-known episode in Scottish history was the founding of a colony named Darien on the Isthmus of Panama in 1698. Three years later the undertaking ended in disaster, crippled by the quarrelsome stupidity of its leaders and obstruction by the English government. Nine ships had been sunk and the colonists never returned. John Prebble's book is the first detailed account of the Darien settlement.

Belleville Displays Industrial Wares at Manufacturers Show

TORONTO — Belleville's initiative in being the only Eastern Ontario community exhibiting at the big Manufacturers Opportunity Show here has drawn warm approval from Trade and Development Minister Stanley Randall.

Mr. Randall, touring displays at the CNE Queen Elizabeth building here yesterday, stopped by the Quinte - city booth with its display of local industry and expressed himself "delighted" at Belleville's participation.

There are 10 major city industries co-operating in the exhibit, organized by the Belleville Industrial Commission.

Only four other Ontario cities have community displays in the exhibition and the first entry by Belleville is a venture into wider fields obviously sparked by a new development buoyancy in the community.

"I'm delighted indeed to see the municipality of Belleville here," said Mr. Randall. "We are trying to help Belleville get more industry and create more jobs in the rural area of Ontario — and I was delighted indeed to see them doing something for themselves."

The display's organizers also are happy with the response.

During the opening day of the three-day show, one new industrial prospect appeared on the horizon as a result of contacts made at the premiere, says BIC chairman Ald. Jerry Joyce.

"We're delighted with the results and the favorable comment and the response was substantially better than we anticipated," said Ald. Joyce.

Ald. Joyce, recently named to head the BIC, says Belleville was the first municipality to sign on for participation in the show.

The results, he believes, show Belleville came up with the best community display, outmatching its muncipal competitors in a field where competition is acute.

Besides its a benefit to local industry, it gives the city a boost publicly in the industrial-promotion stakes.

Contacts made with business concerns in such an environment can be excellent — direct, but informal, sparking an initiative that could bear fruit in future city development.

Industrial commissioner Ray Brown says the display had two basic objectives:

(1) To provide free marketing facilities for local industry, and

(2) to assure the existing industrial community of commission's desire to aid business expansion.

Ambition of the show, says Mr. Randall, is to discover new goods for Ontario manufacturers which now are imported.

This ultimately can play a role in creating jobs for the 100,000 new workers in the province each year.

This is the fifth show of its kind. The previous four generated $26,000,000 in new business, claims Mr. Randall.

"And we anticipate this is going to be one of our most successful (shows)," he added.

The Belleville booth is being staffed by Patricia Burns, Mr. Brown's secretary.

A City's Industry on Show

Belleville's industries are on display as the big Manufacturers' Opportunity Show opens in Toronto. Miss Avon Jewellery — Toronto model Marjorie Kent — was on hand to help greet visitors, among them Trade and Development Minister Stanley Randall.

Drug Scene Is New Form of Communication: Hippie Priest

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

"The drug scene is a new form of communication," Montreal's former hippie priest" told a group of about 80 Moira Secondary School students Tuesday.

John Burke, an Anglican priest now serving as a consultant with North York's social planning counsel startled his listeners with the concept during a "teach in" on 20th century communications at Albert College.

Mr. Burke's casual remarks on drugs, thrown out during his lecture on the communications gap between the generations, provoked the most inquiries and discussion during workshop session later.

"Drugs are a new kind of chemical TV," Mr. Burke asserted. "At one time we had only written communication. Then radio added sound, and TV added the visual aspect. Now, you don't turn on the TV set — you turn on yourself."

"Now, communication is not only outside you, but inside you also. The drug scene is a box inside yourself. Kids on the drug scene are those who find it most difficult to communicate with others, so they communicate with themselves," Mr. Burke said.

The credo of the drug user, the speaker said, is "to hell with other people, I'll listen to myself."

"We (the older generation) have taken adventure away," Mr. Burke said. "We've taken your dreams from you and part of the drug scene is you taking your dreams back again."

"What next?" the priest asked, and answered his own question.

"We are going around in circles. We'll end up back where we started — with people taking to people again."

"Kids are hung up on the need to communicate," Mr. Burke asserted.

He suggested they begin by trying to understand "the place from which your parents talk".

The parental generation, he told his listeners, is the product of depression, war, and an ordered society where the traditional virtues of work, thrift and status were emphasized.

The mid-1950s marked a technological watershed, with the advent of new techniques and new means of communication.

"We are coping with two ages, that of pre-technological revolution and that of the post-technological revolution," Mr. Burke said. "Hence the attitude: 'Don't trust anyone over 25'."

"How to communicate the transition from one age to another without killing off everyone in between?" he asked the students.

"We had a part in making this new society; now we don't know what to do with it," he claimed. "Parents have as much trouble understanding the new world they created as they have understanding you."

Mr. Burke cited university riots to illustrate the generation gap.

In the pre-technological revolution era a university degree conferred status and entitled the holder to enter a special group within society.

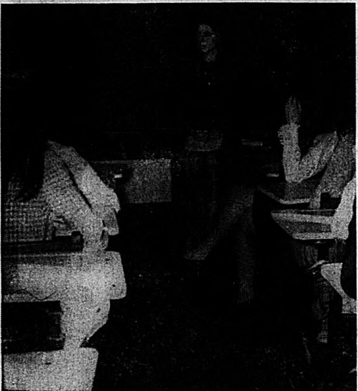
"We can't afford status today," he said. "Kids want knowledge because they want to know, not because they want status. They question the wisdom of people who run universities as status-conferring institutes. The rioters aren't invalidating knowledge.

"A kid of 15 today knows as much as I did at 25. How are you going to use this knowledge to make valid decisions, when our generation is reluctant to give you training in the decision-making processes?"

Following Mr. Burke's address, the audience broke up into small groups for workshop session on decision-making and the shape of the stable society of the future.

All discussion was under the direction of student leaders.

The teach-in was arranged by Murray Irwin, head of Moira's English department, and Dale Soble, a student, who was in charge of the day's activities.



Student Leader

Teach-in Speaker

John Burke, priest and social worker, "turned on an audience of 80 Moira grade 13 students yesterday with his explanation of the social revolution of the 20th century.

Translation Is Problem at Vietnam Talks: Stanley Burke

The Vietnamese and Americans at the Paris peace talks don't know what they are talking about, CBC personality Stanley Burke said in Belleville yesterday.

He told about 80 Grade 13 students from Moira Secondary School that the two languages cannot be translated accurately from one to another.

"The Vietnamese language is abstract, with no word for 'I'," he said. "The American's English is more concrete and oriented to the individual.

"How hard it is for us to penetrate another man's skull — to realize that someone else thinks in a different way than we do."

Mr. Burke said many international problems arise because two sides are playing the same game, but each is using a different set of rules.

"The Cuban missile crisis was precipitated because Russia failed to realize that Americans regard the Atlantic as a sacred moat," he said. "When the Russians violated it they were surprised at the extent of the American reaction."

"In the past the Americans have never gone to war, they have always gone on crusades," Mr. Burke added.

The speaker sees Canada playing a role in teaching the rest of the world how to use new communication media.

"We are more flexible than the Americans," he said "We can use TV to make things happen, to promote a dialogue across the nation.

"When a new technique comes in we have a tendency to use it in the old way. We use TV now in a passive way."

"Soon we will be able to wire up a city with 42 channels and lay TV on like sewers and water mains," he said.

"Then society will change and you will be able to get your ideas across to the people who count. You won't need to burn down universities."

The Welland entry of Robert Gruhl and Howard Brennan has beaten Arthur Wishart's stable to the legal wire, but John Turner, sporting Justice Department silks, threatens a big parlay for his Ottawa stall.

No less a judge of horse-flesh than the Supreme Court of Canada this week upheld the dismissal of bookmaking charges lodged against the Welland entrepreneurs a year ago for operating a self-styled "track messenger service."

The behavior found so offensive by Attorney-General Wishart's department involved nothing more sinister than the delivering of bets to race tracks for a 10 per cent carrying charge.

(It's been done for years, of course but like sweepstakes tickets, public Sunday drinking, and birth control pamphlets, it's been illegal).

At the time of last month's Ontario Appeal Court ruling in favor of the dismissal of the bookmaking charges, Mr. Wishart was apparently content to abide by the court ruling. "This man was not a bookmaker," he said in an interview.

"He was only acting as a messenger and did not keep the money that was given him to bet .As far as I'm concerned, the matter rests."

Something between that juncture and the pounding of the gavel in the land's highest court obviously gave the attorney-general cause for re-consideration of the issue.

And going by Mr. Wishart's remarks this week, and those of rookie Justice Minister John Turner, that something is a fear that organized crime will get its hooks into a legalized betting service as a front for illegal operations.

The Justice Minister hinted, following the Supreme Court decision, that his department would have legislation drafted to ban the messenger services by fall.

There seems to be the naive suggestion behind all this legal wrangling that organized crime will steer clear of bet delivering if it is not legalized.

Would the legal eagles have us believing that people don't use illegal bookmaking channels every day?

Open the sports section in any big daily and you'll see a page devoted to track action that would keep a computer operator in a job until doomsday.

While the police departments of the land vainly try and nab every corner bookie, the government could be allowing bettors the opportunity of placing wagers for a completely open and above-board fee. Nobody would even squawk if the government took its luxury tax cut from the messenger-service profits.

As it stands, bettors receive 80 cents back on every dollar wagered in person at the tracks. The same could apply for bets delivered legally.

Could we say as much for bets placed through bookmakers?

A final note: legalized bet delivery would be a boon for the fellow who has given a friend his choice for the day, exulted when his filly came in, andcried himself to sleep when he found out his buddy never made it to the wicket in time.

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Kevin O'Shea scored three successive goals in the second period Tuesday night to lead Canada's Ottawa-based National team to a 6-0 win over Woodstock A's in an Ontario Hockey Association senior series game before 720 fans.

The line of O'Shea, Dennis Dupere and Don Davidson picked up nine points for the Nationals who won seven of eight games in the league this season.

Steve Rexe made only 20 saves to record the shutout. Ottawa had a two-to-one advantage in shots on goal.

Next Seven Days Could Tell Bruins' Tale

Boston Bruins have been one of the hottest teams in the National Hockey League for most of the season, despite injuries to some key players. But the next seven days could prove crucial for the team, now tied for first place with Montreal Canadiens in the Eastern Division.

The Bruins had lost only one game since the beginning of the year until the weekend's two straight losses—the first successive losses for the team since the season started.

Tonight, with some of its top players out with injuries, the team continues its six-game road trip. The Bruins lost to Montreal last Saturday and to Chicago Sunday. Another problem the Bruins must face is playing without league-leading scorer Phil Esposito, suspended for two games after an inquiry into his attack on referee Bob Sloan in Boston Feb. 8.

The Bruins will also be without forwards John McKenzie and Derek Sanderson, who have knee injuries and will be out for at least another two weeks, star defenceman Bobby Orr, expected back Sunday, and rookie Tom Webster, called up from Oklahoma City to replace McKenzie.

Beliveau, who scored four goals against Los Angeles Kings last week, has averaged a goal a game in his team's last seven games in which they won five and tied two.

Yvan Cournoyer, also having his best season with the Canadiens, collected eight points last week with two goals and six assists. He now has a total of 67 points, surpassing by seven his personal mark set last season.

Another big plus for the Canadiens in their fight to retain first place is the goaltending of Gump Worsley who played well in Montreal's 3-1 win over Boston Saturday and came back the next day to shut out the Penguins.

The Leafs, three points out of fourth place, meet the Canadiens again Thursday night in Montreal.

In other games tonight, Detroit Red Wings meet the Rangers at New York, Chicago Black Hawks play at Oakland, Philadelphia Flyers are at St. Louis and Los Angeles Kings tackle the North Stars at Minnesota.

More Training Camps Face Sparse Turnouts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five more major league baseball spring training camps open in Florida and Arizona today, and at least two players plan to report despite the current pension dispute between the club owners and the players' association.

Palmer, a right-hander who had a big season in 1966 and then suffered a sore arm, said: "I've got to show them I can pitch. So I'm going to sign and start workouts on schedule."

The Orioles are training at Miami, Fla.

There was no indication of what players would show at the other four camps slated to open.

No veterans were on hand Tuesday at the opening of the New York Yankee camp in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., but Bob Bailey, expected to be the regular right fielder, was present at West Palm Beach, Fla., where Montreal Expos started training.

Only two veterans, catcher Russ Nixon and relief pitcher Dan Osinski, worked out with the rookies for Chicago White Sox at Sarasota, Fla. The White Sox camp opened last Friday.

Poll Result On Pension Issue To Be Decisive

NEW YORK (AP) — A break in the dispute between major league baseball owners and players may come today. If it does not, a strike by the players appears certain.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' association, said Tuesday he expects to receive today the result of his poll of the players' executive committee on whether to accept the owners' latest offer in the pension dispute.

Miller has recommended that the committee reject the owners' offer of Monday, increasing the players pension package to $5,300,000 a year compared to the $6,500,000 yearly the players want.

The owners' latest offer came after they had rejected Miller's offer to submit the pension dispute to binding arbitration.

John Gaherin, head of the owners' negotiating committee, said the owners' latest offer would increase benefits for 10-year players to $590 a month from $500. The players seek $600, plus various improvements in health and insurance benefits.

The big-name players, who have said they will refuse to report to spring training until the pension squabble is settled, have until March 1, the official date for holdouts and the actual strike deadline.

Three Say Yes

NHL Governors Again Veto Switch

NEW YORK (CP) — Will National League hockey make the grade in Oakland, Calif.?

"No," said Toronto lawyer Edwin Goodman, who tried unsuccessfully Tuesday to persuade the owners of the 12 NHL teams to allow the Oakland franchise to be sold and transferred to Vancouver.

"Yes," said league president Clarence Campbell, citing rising attendance figures and construction of a subway system which will eventually deliver fans from the San Francisco Bay area to the door of Oakland Coliseum.

"I am distinctly bullish about hockey interest in the area," said Campbell.

The owners reaffirmed their determination to operate in the San Francisco Bay area despite the financial difficulties of Oakland Seals, plagued by low attendance figures since joining the circuit as an expansion team two seasons ago.

But the club may change hands. Campbell said "three or four solid offers" have been made to purchase the franchise and continue to operate in the San Francisco Bay area.

"We hope that by March 25 it will be resolved who will operate the franchise," said Campbell. March 25 is the date the NHL governors will meet again, in Miami Beach, Fla.

The governors turned down, by a reported 9-to-3 vote at the closed meeting, the bid by Burrard Hockey Club Ltd. in co-operation with the present owners, San Francisco Seals Ltd., to move the club to Vancouver.

Goodman told the governors that a Burrard survey indicated the NHL team could not succeed in Oakland. He cited the seven competing major-league franchises in baseball, football and basketball and the high proportion of the population which has no interest in hockey because of its ethnic origin.

Nor did the Burrard group believe hockey could succeed in San Francisco as long as the Cow Palace remained the only hockey arena.

He argued that U.S. network television arrangements would not suffer—"for every person watching hockey in the bay area, there would be 50 in the Vancouver area."

And the Vancouver group offered to reimburse the other NHL clubs for the extra travel cost involved in playing in Vancouver, 800 miles north of Oakland.

A motion by Frank Tatum, representing Oakland, that the frachise be moved to Vancouver was seconded by Toronto. It was learned that the third favorable vote came from Montreal. The other nine clubs turned it down.

"You can't leave one partner out in limbo," said Campbell, asked for the reasons behind the turndown. Jack Kent Cooke's Los Angeles Kings would be left in an isolated position, more

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A private investment group said Tuesday it had selected a suburban site 11 miles east of downtown Buffalo for construction of a domed sports stadium.

The Kenford Co. Inc., which proposes to lease the stadium for 40 years, told the Erie county legislature it felt the facility should be constructed in the town of Lancaster. The county would build the stadium

The legislature has authorized a $50,000,000 bond issue for the construction.

Last Two Spots In Doubt In Quinte League

STAFF — The 15-game Quinte Hockey League schedule ends Thursday night at the Belleville Arena, but the final two spots in the four-team league may well be deadlocked at the completion of the schedule.

The Aluminum Stars have clinched the league title with a record of eight wins, three losses and three ties, while Stinson's Construction assured themselves of second place with a 3-1 win over third place Central Taxi last week.

The Constructionmen brought their record to six wins, five losses and three ties as Wayne Tuman, Garry Genereaux and Rick Denard scored single goals, in the game which saw Stinson's pull three points ahead of the Taximen with one game remaining in the schedule.

However the Hotelmen, fresh from last week's 2-2 tie with the pennant - winning Aluminum Stars, will be out to move into a third - place tie with Central Taxi.

The Belvedere crew will be hoping for a win over Stinson's Construction in the final game of the season, and a Central Taxi loss to the powerful Aluminum Stars, which would deadlock the two teams and create a problem for the league executive.

League President Art Deline said yesterday that he would have to call a meeting of the league executive to decide on the procedure should Central Taxi and Belvedere Hotel end up in a tie.

The first and third teams, and the second and fourth teams meet in the playoff semi - finals in a pair of best four-out-of-seven series, with the two winners playing off in a best of seven series for the championship.

Ramos Champ At 20

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new lightweight champion of the world is Mando Ramos, at 20 the youngest ever to reach the top of the 135-pound division.

The Long Beach, Calif., native won the title when he stopped Teo Cruz, 31, of the Dominican Republic in the 11th round of their scheduled 15-round fight Tuesday night. Cruz weighed 134¾ Ramos 134½.

"Sorry about that," quipped Mando when reminded of the quest which failed in the first fight with the man from Santo Domingo.

Ramos ripped open an ugly gash over Teo's left eye in the eighth round. He kept reopening it, as well as slicing a smaller cut under the eye, until the bloody fight was stopped with 19 seconds remaining in the 11th.

Under California rules, it goes as a knockout, only the second suffered by Cruz in more than a decade as a professional fighter.

Legion Keglers Have Sights Set

STAFF — The Belleville Legion Branch 99 5-pin Bowling team captured the Zone F3 championship Saturday at Tweed and will now try to match the feat of the Legion shuffleboard team which captured the Ontario Legion championship in Woodstock last November.

The six-man team advances to the District F championships in Whitby, March 29th, to compete against other teams from Eastern Ontario, with the winning team advancing to the Ontario Legion Championships in London, April 19th.

The Belleville keglers triumphed over two teams from Bancroft, two from Deseronto, two from Marmora and one from Tweed in Saturday's competition.

The Legion team of Jack Calnan, Jim Begley, Leo Lucciola, Ed Nicholson, Jim Calnan and Charley Marriott had a total pinfall of 3,243 for 15 games, and edged out second place Deseronto by 33 pins. The host Tweed team came in third with a pinfall 3,079.

The best five three-game totals for each team was the basis used to decide the team total, while the individual title went to Belleville's Jack Calnan, who rolled the meet's high triple.

PCs Fearful of Camp vs. Dief Battle by Proxy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservatives have their fingers crossed that a contest for the party presidency will not turn into a re-run by proxy of the Diefenbaker-Camp combat.

Dr. Lewis Brand of Saskatoon, a long-time supporter of former prime minister Diefenbaker, has announced he is a candidate for the presidency at the Conservative association's annual meeting here March 10-12. Dr. Brand was MP for Saskatoon in the last Parliament but was defeated in the election last June 25.

Some Conservatives say that if a known and vociferous supporter of Dalton Camp, the former party president, enters the race, a Diefenbaker-Camp proxy rematch could result.

Mr. Camp when president called for a review of the leadership. The result was a leadership convention in the fall of 1967 which ousted Mr. Diefenbaker and installed Robert Stanfield. Mr. Camp resigned from the presidency last fall and the post now is empty.

Frank Moores, freshman Conservative MP for Bonavista-Trinity-Conception, is a candidate for the presidency. He was in Vancouver Tuesday to line up support.

Neither Mr. Moores nor Mr. Doak is considered to have been either strongly anti-Diefenbaker or pro-Camp.

The same would not seem to apply to bilingual Heward Grafftey, the former Conservative MP from Missisquoi who is considering running for the presidency. He opposed Mr. Diefenbaker and has a lot of Quebec support.

Red-haired Flora MacDonald, fired from a key post at party headquarters here by the Diefenbaker forces during the Diefenbaker-Camp struggle, was approached by some friends to run for the presidency.

Now a faculty member at Queen's University, she said Tuesday in an interview that she does not plan to enter the contest.

Fumes Overcome 17 at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — At least 17 persons were taken to hospital Tuesday after they were overcome by unknown fumes at a computer school on the corner of Bedford Road and Bloor Street in mid-town Toronto.

Tricia Tremayne Lloyd, a key-punch operator at the school said she and her classmates began to feel dizzy shortly after noon and collapsed on the sidewalk when they left the building.

The sick were taken to Toronto General and Wellesley hospitals, spokesmen reported. Some were carried in on stretchers while others were able to walk with help. All required oxygen and were to be released after treatment, the spokesman said.

Police Inspector Lawrence Gaskin said fumes from a refrigeration unit may have caused the collapse. He did not say where the fumes may have originated.

A fireman at the school, located on the top floor of a two-storey corner building, said he could not smell fumes when he entered the offices, but noticed a tangy taste in his mouth.

The building was evacuated and cordoned off as police investigated.

Meanwhile, a Consumers' Gas Co. spokesman said inspectors checked the building for gas leaks, but found all mally and there were no block mally and there were no blocked chimneys or outlets

Hospital authorities said Tuesday night that the type of fumes inhaled by the 17 persons had not been identified.

Opposition in Pakistan Rejects Bid to Parley

KARACHI (Reuters) — The fate of major talks to end a three-month-long political crisis in Pakistan hung in the balance today after main opposition leaders said they would not attend.

Seven party chiefs who previously said they would attend wound up a seven-hour meeting early today without making a final decision on whether to meet the president to seek an end to national unrest through constitutional reforms.

The seven-members of the Democratic Action Committee urged that the start of the conference be postponed after reports came in of new violence against the Ayub government.

At least 54 persons have been killed in disorders since January.

Troops Tuesday night were reported to have killed two anti-government demonstrators —one a university lecturer—in the East Pakistan city of Rajshahi.

In Dacca, capital of East Pakistan, one person was killed and another injured when troops opened fire on curfew breakers.

Bhutto, a former foreign minister who commands militant student support in West Pakistan, told a news conference Tuesday that the government had withdrawn a corruption charge against him so that he could attend the Rawalpindi talks but he said he would not attend because he had not been given enough time to study the invitation.

The former minister, freed from house arrest Friday after being under detention since the start of political agitation against Ayub's 10-year-old rule, told reporters there are only two ways to confront a government—by elections or a revolution.

Pakistanis do not want concessions from the president, he said. They want to end his rule.

Quebec Teachers To Resume Strikes

QUEBEC (CP) — Raymond Laliberte, president of the Quebec Teachers Corporation, has announced that rotating strikes will resume today because efforts at mediation "have not produced sufficient substance."

He said in an interview Tuesday that the two mediators selected by the teachers and acceptable to the school boards and government had refused to take the job.

Efforts at mediation began last weekend after two weeks of rotating or spot strikes in which teachers boycotted classes for at least one-half day in all parts of the province.

They were protesting the refusal of the Quebec government to agree to mediation in contract talks, dragging on for more than 18 months.

English-speaking Roman Catholic and Protestant teachers did not take part in the strikes which involved more than 2,100 teachers since Feb. 3.

Mr. Laliberte said the teachers still are seeking "suitable mediators" but that negotiations are not moving fast enough.

Soviet Troops Prevent Czechs Achieving Unity

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Pressure on Czechoslovak Communist leaders to expose a pro-Soviet splinter group blocking party unity is checked by the presence of 70,000 Soviet troops in the country, party sources said Tuesday night.

Premier Oldrich Cernik confirmed in a magazine interview that party action was paralyzed by a lack of unity which, he warned, would take a long time to overcome.

The Czechoslovak press reported again that unsigned pamphlets and sheets slandering progressive politicians were circulating in the country and complained that little or no action was taken against them.

But the party sources said pamphlet distributors were top-level men backed by the Soviet Union and could not be denounced without exposing the party to dangers of a split and further Soviet intervention.

Two leading communists closely identified by party members with Soviet policies here are Alois Indra and Vasil Bilak, who both control departments of the party's governing secretariat.

The outspoken magazine Reporter, which surprisingly is still in business, said: "Light should be shed on anti-Socialist forces here. . . .

"If youths create a scuffle in Wenceslas Square the public is informed precisely on their numbers and ages . . . but if a dangerous anti-Socialist group is printing an enormous number of booklets attacking the honor of statesmen the public is told nothing. . . ."

In an interview with the Slovak political weekly Zhivot Strany, Cernik said the Czechoslovak communist party's ability to act and master the political-social movement in the country will be won with difficulty.

The political situation, although quieter, still is serious, he said. Recent events in Prague could have resulted in conflicts. Firm words and measures were necessary against extremist groups who might have provoked an open clash, he added.

Meanwhile, support for workers councils—whose fate seemed sealed by last year's Warsaw pact invasion—is growing and proposals for strengthening their authority now are pouring into labor union headquarters here.

The question of how much authority to give the councils will be a key point at a labor union congress next month.

The Prague labor union paper Prace said that the councils should have the right to decide on a firm economic policy, to appoint and dismiss directors and to assess leaders competence.

Contention Challenged

Small Companies, Family Farms Said Doomed by Estate Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — Small businesses and family farms are "doomed to extinction" under the government's proposed estate tax changes, a Conservative MP told the Commons Tuesday.

William Scott (Victoria-Haliburton) made the statement as the Commons once again dwelt on the gloomy topics of death and taxes.

The burden of the Conservative argument again was that the government's planned changes would make it difficult to pass on family farms or small businesses.

But a freshman Liberal cut against the theme with the argument that the individual should stand on his own, not dependent on the support of the last generation.

Said Gordon Blair (Grenville-Carleton):

"We live in a society where most people like to believe that a man is judged by what he is, not who he is or whose son he is."

Mr. Blair also argued, however, that the nature of the changes have been exaggerated and misrepresented and that it is "simply not true" that they pose a threat to the family farm.

Much of the debate dealt with the basic exemption from federal death duties, set at $52,000 under Finance Minister Edgar Benson's proposed legislation.

The present limit is $40,000 and Mr. Benson originally had planned to cut it to $20,000. He revised it to $50,000 after signs of unhappiness within and outside the Liberal party.

But Mr. Scott said Tuesday the revision really changed nothing. Estates of more than $50,000 would be taxed on everything above $20,000 and Mr. Benson had been guilty of devious conduct in trying to convince Canadians he had done them a favor with the change.

Mr. Benson had set out to destroy any accumulation of private capital that remained in the country.

"His intent is still the same. All he did was change the load in the murder weapon."

Mr. Blair, in rebuttal, said the tax would have none of the horrendous effects ascribed to it.

He backed his case with figures on what the tax would be for an Ontario farmer who wanted to leave his entire estate to an adult son.

On a $100,000 estate, he said, the federal estate tax would go up to $6,000 from $5,100 and the provincial tax would be $7,910.

On the $150,000, the federal amount would go up to $13,350 from $10,700 and the Ontario tax would be $13,950.

Mr. Blair said most city dwellers in his constituency favored the tax change and farmers had been inordinately alarmed by statements about it in farm newspapers.

Many Ontario farmers are unaware of their present tax liability, he said. An unintended benefit of the changes was that many farmers and businessmen for the first time were examining how to reorganize their affairs to lower the tax burden.

Several Conservative members said it would be "more realistic" to raise the exemption figure to $75,000 or $100,000 since inflated values had pushed most economic farms or small businesses past the $20,000 figure.

George Muir (PC—Lisgar) said the change would cost Ottawa only $12,000,000 a year.

But Norman Cafik (L—Ontario) said a $100,000 exemption would remove any pretense of just taxation and would not be tolerated by the working men.

Mr. Muir also joined several colleagues in criticizing present methods of evaluating estates, which he said bear no relation to market conditions or economic cycles.

He said a Manitoba farm that could have been sold for $250 an acre last year might not be salable for any price this year because of the surplus grain situation and other factors. A farm might be greatly over-valued in these conditions.

The debate took place on the second-reading stage of the tax bill, which will be before the House again today.

Who Makes Rules?

OTTAWA (CP) — Who has the power to write cabinet orders and government regulations?

Is this power abused by cabinet ministers and public servants? Do some orders and regulations conflict with acts of Parliament and the Bill of Rights?

A special 12-member Commons committee headed by Mark MacGuigan, Liberal MP for Windsor-Walkerville and a professor of law, has been established to investigate these and related matters.

Mr. MacGuigan said in an interview Tuesday that Prime Minister Trudeau was the main driving force behind formation of the committee. Mr. Trudeau has more than once warned of the potential danger of the regulation-making authority of a growing bureaucracy.

Mr. MacGuigan said objective of the committee's hearings, to which ministers and public servants will be summoned to testify, is a permanent Commons scrutiny committee to oversee—and challenge if necessary—all government orders and regulations.

He said it is even possible that a system will be established comparable to that in the United States whereby public hearings would have to be held before regulations based on legislation approved by Parliament could be drafted and promulgated.

A permanent committee might become known as an ombudsman committee to make sure that all regulations made by government are not contrary to the intent of the law as passed by Parliament, he said.

Two other prime movers behind the current committee investigation are Donald Macdonald, government House leader, and Gerald Baldwin, Conservative House leader.

Committee counsel have already been appointed—at $200 a day each. They are Dr. Gilles Pepin, dean of the civil law faculty at the University of Ottawa and a brother of Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, and lawyer John Morden of Toronto, a Conservative who campaigned against Mr. Macdonald in the last election.

Mr. MacGuigan said the committee will start calling witnesses in about a month. It was hoped all evidence would be collected before the end of June and that the committee could spend the summer drafting a report for submission to the next session of Parliament.

Trudeau Tells Hees Tighter Control Or Outside Agitators May Be Forced

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday the government may have to be severe in future if it becomes clear agitators are coming to Canada to spread sedition.

George Hees (PC-Prince Edward-Hastings), suggested that because of "greatly increased frequency of disruptive" activities the government should reconsider its "open door" policy that allows free entry to agitators advocating the forcible overthrow of the government.

Mr. Trudeau said that kind of activity is kept under surveillance.

The government's position was that in a free society with free speech it is preferable to give persons entering the benefit of the doubt.

But, if it became evident people were entering "for seditious purposes," the government would have to be more severe in future.

Robert Thompson (PC-Red Deer) asked Immigration Minister Allan MacEachen whether he was aware that Transport Minister Paul Hellyer had been quoted as saying a lot of student unrest was prompted by political forces from outside Canada.

Mr. MacEachen said no.

Eldon Woolliams (PC-Calgary North) suggested that a Commons-Setnate joint commiteee be established to hear students and professors on the question of campus unrest.

Mr. Trudeau replied that the government is "hardly in a position to address inquiries to educational institutions."

Both police and education were matters of provincial jurisdiction. Only when sedition and security were involved could Ottawa intervene on its own.

United Church Board Attacks Ontario's Stand on Medicare

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's stand on the federal government's medical care insurance plan came under attack Tuesday from members of the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada.

Alfred Best, a Toronto lawyer and member of the board, said Premier John Robarts was not speaking for the people of Ontario when he described the plan as a fraud during the federal-provincial constitutional conference last week in Ottawa.

"We've got to straighten out Mr. Robarts," Mr. Best told the opening session of the board's annual meeting.

Mr. Robarts had said the federal government's medical plan was a "Machiavellian" scheme which was one of the greatest political frauds perpetrated in Canada.

The board said in a resolution that rising premium costs of provincial medical care insurance plans "are imposing a severe hardship of many people" and commended the federal government for its program.

Rev. Charles H. Forsyth, secretary of the board, called medical care insurance a "human necessity" for thousands of families.

"The real fraud is not medicare.

"The real fraud is for governments to back away from the necessity to do much better planning of medical and support facilities, along with much franker negotiating with the medical and para-medical professional groups."

The board also criticized the federal government's task force on housing and urban development for failing to suggest "realistic policies" that will meet the needs of 1,000,000 Canadians whose annual income is less than $5,500.

In a resolution, it said it supports the principles of the task force report but asks the federal government and provincial housing authorities "to make top priority efforts to provide publicly-financed and publicly-subsidized housing for this most vulnerable group in our society. . . ."

Mr. Forsyth attacked the "tremendous spending on defence items when more money should be spent on economic development."

Members of Parliament were caught between a desire for de-escalation of defence expenditures and the fact that thousands of Canadian workers and communities were dependent on the defence budget and military supply orders.

Earlier, Rev. W. Clarke MacDonald, board chairman, said the church could be "written off" within the next two decades unless it makes drastic changes.

The church will never again be safe and it now has to earn the right to be heard, he said.

"It will never again be able to proclaim its position on war, sex, human relations and all the multifarious affairs of men and find there is a willing ear and a responsive heart just because the church says so."

Addressing the board's annual dinner, Rev. Loren Halvorson of Minneapolis said he believes that what appears to many to be the breakdown of society is rather "the breaking open of our institutions, people and beliefs to fresh and new relationships."

Mr. Halvorson, director of research and development for the American Lutheran Church's board of college education, said society stands at the end of "single track" systems.

"We have been driven relentlessly by the technological progress and social revolutions to the realization that we must work together. . . ."

CBC President Assails Those Who 'Gossip' About Kickbacks

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons broadcasting committee put CBC President George Davidson on the griddle Tuesday about claims that financial kickbacks are common in the CBC and the French network is separatist-controlled.

Mr. Davidson issued strong denials on both counts, taking some swipes along the way at persons who make unsubstantiated allegations against the publicly-owned corporation.

"We do not tolerate kickbacks," the lean, dark-haired president declared crisply on this point. In the few instances where such a practice had turned up, "we root it out."

But most claims about under-the-table payoffs in the CBC, including those by former state secretary Judy LaMarsh, had been in the category of gossip, completely unsubstantiated. Their repetition constituted "one of the vilest means of undermining" the reputations of honest Canadians that he had ever seen.

On separatists within Radio-Canada, Mr. Davidson said "I repudiate the suggestion" that they had control.

He was not a separatist. Neither was Laurent Picard, his executive vice-president.

He was not suggesting there were no separatists in the CBC ranks. If there are he said, they have "a perfect right" to hold such political beliefs.

J.-A. Mongrain (L—Trois-Rivieres) described the separatists as "professional revolutionaries" and said the CBC should make some distinction between them and other political organizations.

Mr. Davidson said he was firmly opposed to separatism but this did not mean that a legal separatist political party should be denied time on CBC.

Replying to Louis Comeau (PC—South Western Nova), Mr. Davidson said if anyone had linked his appointment as CBC head with the wish that he would "clean out" separatists in Radio-Canada, "they had better get someone else."

Separatism was "a fact of political life in Canada." It was "a malaise, a disease."

But it was present and "a problem for you gentlemen to solve."

Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) said he did not like Mr. Davidson's description of separatism as a malaise. For CBC employees, "I don't think it should matter a damn, frankly, whether you are or are not a separatist."

Harold Stafford (L—Elgin) said one CBC job is to promote national unity. He felt separatism gets far more coverage than it should. If there were 10,000 separatists in Canada, separatism should get only one minute out of 2,000 of air time.

Mr. Stafford said when Rene Levesque expounds Parti Quebecois theories on the CBC, the network is helping spread the separatist "disease" Mr. Davidson mentioned.

Mr. Davidson said much was made of the fact that the CBC devoted more coverage to the founding last year of the Parti Quebecois than to the annual Creditiste party convention taking place on the same weekend.

But CBC judgment of the news value of the two events was backed by newspapers.

Ralph W. Stewart (L—Cochrane) raised the question of kickbacks. He said related to this are allegations that some CBC producers required young ladies who wanted a return CBC engagement to "bring forth their sexual favors."

Jack and Jill--CBC Style

OTTAWA (CP- — MP Gordon W. Stewart suggested Tuesday that a CBC dramatized version of Jack and Jill might go this way:

—The pair would have climbed the hill and "slipped into the bushes for some other purpose" than to fetch a pail of water.

—When Jack fell down and broke his crown, it would be "because he was dizzy from marijuana or something."

Mr. Stewart (L—Cochrane) used this example in the Commons broadcasting committee in trying to find out why, in his opinion, the CBC seldom portrayed "good, normal family life."

He wanted to know whatever happened to The Plouffe Family, a series built around a French-Canadian family group.

There must still be plenty of ways the CBC could show family programs with normal people meeting and resolving normal problems, Mr. Stewart said.

CBS News Series Has Its Ups, Downs

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Geographic Society's special shows and the CBS series 60 Minutes, like situation comedies and westerns, have their ups and downs.

But since both CBS shows are thoughtfully and intelligently put together, they make pretty good viewing even on nights when they are a little off pace.

The National Geographic show suffered primarily because it tackled a subject impossible to handle in an hour—the entire continent of Australia.

The program consisted principally of film shot by some bold adventurers travelling by car across the vast sparsely-inhabited desert. Most interesting portions showed the lonely life on a cattle ranch 150 miles from the nearest town. The owner's children get their education by two-way radio and a distant doctor prescribed medicine by microphone after hearing the symptoms.

There was not, apparently, enough significant film made by the expedition to fill the hour, so some other material was shot to pad it out. Thus there was some scanty, tantalizing footage showing the primitive Aborigines, a fascinating subject to explore. There were pure filler shots of Sydney, a modern city, of horse races, rugby matches, beer drinkers and sheep shearing. We only had one brief look at a koala, and not a glimpse of a kangaroo.

60 Minutes kicked off its bi-weekly show with a disturbing inspection of some Arkansas families, who are poverty-stricken and without enough to eat.

The families were being studied by a presidential commission concerned with poverty and the welfare system. One man, a $60-a-week tractor operator with a big family was unable to get steady work and unable to get welfare help because he was "able-bodied." Another sick man and his ailing wife had 10 children—and welfare payments were woefully inadequate for their needs.

Travel Problems Cited In NHL Transfer Refusal than 300 miles south of Oakland, and Campbell said scheduling problems would be significant.

Teams visiting the West Coast now have an easy overnight jaunt between Los Angeles and Oakland. An extra day would have to be provided for the 1,300-mile trip between Los Angeles and Vancouver. Teams must have time for land travel if planes are grounded.

The Burrard offer of compensation for extra travel costs "would be an unreasonable impost" against the Vancouver club, Campbell added. He said the $18,000 extra cost mentioned by a Vancouver representative sounded low.

Campbell also noted that the Seals had climbed to second place in the West Division this season and that management now is doing a good promotion job.

"It would be a dreadful thing to move the team when it is getting stronger," he said.

Campbell said Oakland had fulfilled a commitment to Labatt's, the Canadian brewing firm, in seeking the transfer. Labatt's had made a large loan to the Oakland club to help it over last year's rough spots. The NHL had turned down the application and the decision was irrevocable.

Only one of the prospective purchasers of the troubled Seals franchise was identified by Campbell. That was Niagara Frontier Hockey Inc., represented at the meeting by Seymour and Northrup Knox and lawyer Robert Swados, all of the Buffalo, N.Y., area. Campbell indicated the group has abandoned an earlier project to move the franchise to Buffalo, but still is interested in buying the club.

"This would not be a phase toward transfer to another area," Campbell declared.

He did not rule out the possibility the present owners of the franchize will carry on.

When the NHL will expand again remains uncertain. Campbell said a talent evaluation committee headed by Sam Pollock had been asked to put its report in writing for the March 25 meeting. The contents of the report, which will help decide when more teams can be added, were not revealed.

SURPRISE! THE BIRDIE IS WATCHING YOU

What was the world really like in the early centuries? We have to depend upon the artists of long ago for pictures of what life in general and people were like. The first cameras became popular in the 19th century, and people have been saying "Cheese" by the millions ever since.

If someone just gifted you with a new camera, don't throw your old one in the closet. — Someone is reading The Intelligencer Want Ads today with a good used camera in mind. Help him and you.

THE ROYAL AND ANCIENT GAME

of golf, so called because it was played by the English royal family in the 16th century, was probably invented in Scotland. The best golf courses in the world are still there where the Scots call them links.

Maybe the king in your family no longer uses his old clubs because he received new ones for Christmas. Sell those perfectly good woods and irons with a Intelligencer Ad . . . just by dialing 962-9171 today!

Clogged Milk Glands Produce Fibrocystic Lumps in Breast

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 36 and have had lumps in my breast for the past few months. Both my family doctor and an excellent surgeon say I do not have cancer. They call it "fibrocystic disease." But I am still worried. Is there anything else I can do? — Mrs. T.

Comment: Every lump deserves respect and investigation — especially when found in the breast. As in your case, it's wise to think of the possibility of cancer. I am sure your two doctors have considered it carefully.

If, after study, they say it is noncancerous, then be thankful and accept their word. I am sure that if they found cancer they would not hesitate to advise radical surgery. Not having done so, is in itself, reason enough for believing them.

Fibrocystic disease — lumps in the breast — are quite common and are usually due to clogged milk-producing glands which turn into cysts. Sometimes they are quite painful, but usually do not cause too much discomfort. Occasionally, this is intensifed during the menstrual period. If the pressure becomes too great, removing some of the cystic fluid with a needle relieves the pressure and pain. The fluid can also be examined to determine whether it is a cancerous or benign growth we are dealing with.

These cysts are usually freely movable, multiple and not as firmly fixed as the usual single cancer growth. Nevertheless they should be observed routinely by the physician for any change — as in some cases they may become cancerous.

As you can see, I am in favor of continued caution whenever a breast tumor is present. In patients who have painful fibrocystic disease, operation may be necessary to remove the cysts. However, there is no guarantee that some may not recur.

I suggest, Mrs. T., that you stop being so concened. Undoubtedly your doctors will also advise X-ray of the breasts if they have any further doubts about the diagnosis.

Did I say stop worrying? Not entirely. Just enough to see your doctors periodically to check up on the harmless lumps to make sure they stay harmless.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I often get cramps lately. My doctor says I have a spastic colon. I've had no X-rays or anything else. How can he tell? — Mrs. R.

Comment: In this tense age we're livng in, some get tension headache, others break out in hives, still others get an upset stomach. Psychosomatically speaking, tension can attack any part of the body.

I suppose your doctor has made his diagnosis of spastic colon on the basis of your history. But if you continue to complain undoubtedly he will put you through the diagnostic mill of sigmoidoscopy, barium enema, stool examinations, GI X-ray-series and other tests.

Although spastic colon is often due to nerves and tenseness, he will want to be sure that there's no other trouble in the colon: like abnormal growths, polyps, ulceration, or infection.

The colon makes up the greater part of the large intestine. After extracting nourishment from the food we eat, it's job is to move waste matters out to the rectum and anus.

Ordinarily there are no symptoms. But when it is spastic, for instance, then come the cramps (and either constipation or diarrhea). If your cramps are really due to spastic colon, then bland diet, tranquilizers, and antispasmodics should bring improvement.

Lloyd Dennis Is Taken Ill

LONDON, Ont. (CP) —Lloyd Dennis, 44, co-author of the Hall-Dennis report on education, was unable to complete a speech he began before an audience of 1,000 here Tuesday night and was helped off the stage by members of the audience.

Howard McTaggart, an assistant superintendent with the London board of education, took Mr. Dennis to his home where a doctor checked him over, gave him a sedative.

Mr. Dennis said when in London last October he had been warned by his doctor to slow down. Tuesday night's speech to London area teachers and school board members was the 251st time in recent months. Mr. Dennis had addressed an audience on the subject matter the educational report, published last June.

Ontario's Economy Maintains Growth

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's gross provisional product-total value of goods and services produced — was $26,900,000,000 in 1968 and should reach $28,800,000,000 in 1969, government economists said in a report Tuesday.

The 1968 gain over 1967 was eight per cent and the 1969 growth is expected to be 7.4 per cent, says the Ontario Economic Review, a magazine published by the treasury and economics department of the government.

The 1969 increase should be made up of a 3.2-per-cent inflationary price increase and 4.2 per cent of real growth.

Real growth of the economy in 1968 was 4.5 per cent.

The 1968 advances in income, production, investment and employment were "all the more remarkable" because of adverse economic factors, the January-February issue of the magazine said.

"Undoubtedly the largest single contributing factor was the outstanding 15-per-cent rise in provincial exports. At the national level the total value of exports increased by 19 per cent . . . the biggest annual percentage increase in 17 years."

The United States book 67 per cent of total Canadian shipments abroad, with sales increasing by 25.4 per cent to $9,183,000,000, and the biggest contributor was the automobile industry, concentrated in Ontario.

Sales to all other countries increased by 7.5 per cent to $4,393,000,000.

The Economic Review said that in four years of continuous growth since the auto pact was signed, Ontario has gained 50,000 new jobs and $600,000,000 has been invested in new plant and equipment.

Ontario housing construction rose sharply in 1968 for the second consecutive year, the review said.

"Injection of additional funds into housing and some easing in money markets contributed to the estimated record 80,375 starts, a gain of about 18 per cent."

Increasing wages, salaries and profits pushed Ontario's total personal income to $20,500,000,000, a gain of nine per cent.

Labor force increased to $2,935,000 while employment rose to only 2,830,000, representing an increase in the rate of unemployment to 3.6 per cent from 3.2.

Angry Judge Fires Broadside At Montreal Students' Lawyers

MONTREAL (CP) — Municipal court Judge Emmett McManamy Tuesday fired an angry broadside at defence lawyers representing 90 of the 97 persons charged in connection with destruction last week at Sir George Williams University.

Judge McManamy's outburst came at the opening of preliminary hearings of 60 men and 30 women accused of conspiring to commit arson and destroy property in the Feb. 11 incident which caused an estimated $2,000,000 damage.

The judge became angry shortly after listening for more than an hour to pleas by about 30 defence lawyers who sought bail for the accused.

Standing firm on his decision to postpone the hearings until today and to deny bail, Judge McManamy asked defence lawyers to submit in writing their requests for bail.

He then ordered a court clerk to read his ruling to each of the accused.

After the third name had been called out by the clerk, several defence lawyers protested, saying there was no need for the formality since all of the accused already had heard the judge's decision.

"Do you mind letting me operate this court in the best way I can?" asked the judge, visibly angered.

"After all, this is the first day of the hearing and I've been operating under difficult conditions.

"Any lawyers who aren't satisfied may leave the courtroom."

At the start of the hearing, Judge McManamy had warned high-spirited persons among the accused, who applauded and shouted when their lawyers entered the courtroom, that he would postpone the hearing unless order was maintained.

The seven juveniles charged were to appear today in social welfare court.

The occupiers piled furniture down stairwells, elevator shafts and escalators and blocked doorways to police called in by the administration.

Then they threw business equipment, computer tape and punch cards down nine storeys to the street, destroyed $1,000,000 worth of computer equipment with fire axes, caused another $1,000,000 in damage by turning on fire hoses and smashing interior fittings. They ended by setting fire to the computer centre before riot police broke in and made arrests.

Conviction on the charges could bring them fines or up to life imprisonment.

The university announced Monday that all 97 had been suspended until charges against them were dismissed.

Defence lawyers seeking bail for their clients interrupted Tuesday's preliminary hearing of Kennedy J. Fredericks, 29, a Sir George Williams University student from Grenada, an island in the West Indies.

The hearing of Kennedy's case, the first of the preliminary hearings, was suggested by Claude-Armand Sheppard, counsel for the university, and was accepted by defence lawyers.

Only three witnesses had been heard when the defence lawyers made their strong motion seeking bail for all the accused.

Harold Sire, 44, director of physical plants at the university, told the court that when he arrived on the scene of the disturbance Feb. 11, the ninth-floor computer and auxiliary machines were "broken."

"The machines were not damaged by fire but from what appeared to be heavy blows—axe blows, judging from the scars."

Mr. Sire said he is in charge of maintenance and security at the university.

Two photographers—one a commercial photographer called in by the university following the incident and the other a police photographer—were asked to identify and submit their photographs as evidence.

Earlier, Judge McManamy dismissed a motion by Myer Gross, one of Frederick's lawyers, to quash the charges against Fredericks.

Mr. Gross said it is illegal to "throw the book" at his client. He said that one of the charges is "not contained in the law code."

Since it had not been proved that human life had been threatened, the charge was illegal, said Mr. Gross.

Windsor Students See Prexy

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Students occupying a section of the University of Windsor administrative block met Tuesday night with university President Dr. J. Francis Leddy, on the eve of a student referendum.

The closed-door meeting was the last round of negotiations between Dr. Leddy and the students, who have been barricaded in the theology and classics departments and part of the psychology department for eight days. Dr. Leddy walked out of the meeting after students asked that a special committee be set up to consider their demands.

The students are asking equal representation on decision-making bodies, open policy meetings, the reinstatement of Dr. William Kelly—theology lecturer whose dismissal sparked the occupation—if he so wishes and an amnesty for the demonstrators.

At the referendum today students will be asked if they support the demands. A second question asks if the students will back a strike if the occupation fails to bring about changes in the university structure.

Strictly Personal

Parent Must Draw Fine Line

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One reason that parenthood is the most difficult discipline in the world — far more difficult than any academic discipline — lies in the fine line that parents must draw between what the child is and what they want for the child.

Many children are "loved" in the loose and sentimental sense of the word — but at the same time the parents want him or force him or expect him to be different. And, to the child's nascent mind, their wanting him to be different means he must be unacceptable as he is.

If he comes to believe this, and takes it for granted, then he has given up as a personality in his own right. He becomes self-less, and turns into a kind of automation, reacting to parental pressure — and it makes little difference if he reacts with conformity or with rebellion. In either case, he is not an authentic personality, but a blind responder to external forces, often for a lifetime.

But the parents have a legitimate claim to "develop" the child, even a duty to civilize it, to instill values and shape attitudes and correct malfunctions and misapprehensions. Being a parent is being a teacher, only on a deeper level.

This is where the problem and the paradox come in. The child desperately needs to be loved for what it is, and yet the parent is continually prodding it to become other than what it is — to eat better, to look more attractive, to strive harder, to meet the standards of the family and the milieu and the society at large.

So that the parents' drive to be satisfied by their children is in constant danger of being interpreted as rejection by the child; and the more the parents hold to some objective, abstract standard of what a "satisfactory" child should be, the more the real child loses his own feeling of identity and worth.

At bottom, the emotional task for the parent is to learn how to tread this fine and delicate line between acceptance and change. Someone has said of God that "He is always pleased but never satisfied" with human beings; and that states the attitude nicely. Children must be made to feel that parents are pleased with them even though they are not satisfied with what the children have made of themselves.

The attitude of pleasure, of joy, of acceptance of a fresh and unique personality is much rarer among parents than we like to think; most of them have an abstract model of "the child" in their minds and want the real child to resemble the ideal one, usually for reasons that have more to do with parental vanity than the welfare of the child.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For Feb. 20th.

Your birthday today: The year ahead is full of social activity, action, change. Much that comes to you to do is for reasons you haven't yet fully discoverd, so you will have exploratory chores which are keenly interesting. Mental conjecture is an outstanding trait of today's natives, and this year brings a bumper crop of speculative activity. Nothing stays put for long. No danger of a serious decrease in resources now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The end of the energy surge has come; everybody is short in patience and temper. Play it safe. Things run smoother if you ignore the distractions. No critically important matter now, so relax.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Keep your self busy and exempt from unnecessary worry. New directions are, for now, just something to think about a little at a time.

GEMINI (May 21 —June 20): The early hours are full of confusion. If you will select one line of action and stick with it, the day turns out to be wonderfully productive with routines satisfactorily wound up and settled.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Conferences, group or joint actions are featured. Put in all you can share; go along with the team. Business does not move along very rapidly, but long - range deals hold much promise.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Bargains are available, but you are apt to rub people the wrong way with just a little pressure. The soft sell is the only pathway today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Go right after potentially profitable business but cover up concerns about the stability of your position. Economy is needed but is not a major factor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): In this strange day creative interests and personal relations are delicately balanced. Any of your projects could be easily tipped into new directions or reversed. Stick with the things, and people, you cherish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): An old associate returns from a long absence and bears interesting information. Intense feelings in their expression brings hazardous conditions if you let them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Young people bring tender experience to you today. Relax and feast your senses on the expression of healthy youth. No time to go to extremes in comments to loved ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Small items demand your attention, likewise home problems and the needs of older people. Take first things first, and by afternoon all is in order. Meditation this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): A slow start does not hinder. Some facts are unwelcome but constructive. Take an optimistic view. But do not squabble with the opposite sex this evening .

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Focus your attention on enjoying life today. People respond well to a smile and will meet you halfway. Health improves; use intelligence to help matters along.

Miss Julien Won't Sing

Niger Embarrassed by Separatist's Shout at Conference

NIAMEY, Niger (CP) — The Niger government was reported Tuesday to have been acutely embarrassed by an incident Monday when Quebec singer Pauline Julien shouted a separatist slogan while Canada's representative was addressing an international conference.

A source close to the Niger government said that if the incident had been caused by a man rather than a woman he would have been expelled immediately.

Miss Julien shouted "Vive le Quebec Libre"Long Live Free Quebec—while State Secretary Gerard Pelletier was addressing a conference which has brought together some 25 wholly or partially French-language countries. The conference is discussing closer cultural and educational co-operation among French-language countries.

Miss Julien explained her action by saying that she became angry at Mr. Pelletier because he was speaking about culture while representing a government which she felt was trying to assimilate Quebecers.

Marcel Masse, head of Quebec's delegation, said Miss Julien had shouted "an idea shared by part of our people."

She had expressed an "idea directly opposed to Prime Minister Trudeau's ideas," he said, and "democracy gives them both the right to speak out."

The slogan was the same as that shouted from the balcony of Montreal city hall by French President de Gaulle in 1967. His action was criticized by the federal government and Canada-France relations have since remained frosty.

The government source said that if there had been any plans to have Miss Julien sing "there no longer is any question of that now."

LSD Suspect Was Whistling Before Suicide

TORONTO (CP) RCMP Sgt. Leonard Rozmus told a coroner's jury Tuesday that CBC technician Mandel Kussner, 22, was whistling seconds before he killed himself with a cyanide base poison Jan. 10.

Sgt. Rozmus said he and Det. Ron Clifford raided Kusner's Ron Clifford raided Kussner's land Yard tipped police that Kussner was manufacturing and exporting LSD to Britain.

Kussner told police he used marijuana and LSD and admitted having hashish — a compound of marijuana—in his apartment at the time.

"We told him he was under arrest for illegal possession of hashish," Sgt. Rozmus testified.

Sgt. Rozmus said Kussner insisted on washing dishes in the kitchen before he left because he didn't want to leave the apartment in a mess.

Det. Clifford went with Kussner to the kitchen. Sgt. Rozmus said he overheard Clifford ask: "What are you drinking?"

"They came into the living room and Clifford kept asking him what he had taken," Sgt. Rozmus said. "Then he (Kussner) went into a mild convulsion and muttered 'It's too late now' as he began to slump."

Suspicious Packages Searched

MONTREAL (CP) — The hunt for the perpetrators of a 14-month string of bomb incidents intensified Tuesday as city police put into effect a top-level order to search all persons seen carrying suspicious packages.

Meanwhile, government and police authorities from municipal, provincial and federal levels are taking steps to revamp explosives legislation, in an attempt to prevent terrorists from obtaining the necessary materials for compiling bombs.

Persons entering several downtown buildings, including the Dorchester offices of the CBC, were required to open their lunch bags and shopping parcels for inspection.

In a secret meeting Monday of government and police representatives—including E. J. Fraser, chief inspector of explosives with the federal department of mines energy and resources, and Montreal Police Chief Jean-Paul Gilbert—possible changes in the federal Explosives Act were discussed.

Bus Driver To Be Tried

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Clement Riley, 56, charged with dangerous driving after two teen-age girls were killed when his school bus collided with a train Nov. 26, was committed for trial in a preliminary hearing Tuesday.

Lung Cancer Will Double

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's lung cancer death rate, which doubled between 1950 and 1967, will double again in another 20 years if current cigarette consumption goes unchecked, health department witnesses suggested Tuesday.

The statistical warning signals were produced for the Commons smoking investigation by Dr. Gordon Josie, assistant director-general of health services, and Dr. H. N. Colburn, the department's consultant on smoking.

Their figures showed that the number of lung cancer deaths between 1950 and 1967 tripled and the rate of death doubled. Studies in nine countries over 30 years showed conclusively that proportionately more smokers became lung cancer victims than non-smokers.

But the death rate of the 1950-67 period really reflected lung cancer from a 20- or 30-year smoking pattern.

Per-capita cigarette consumption climbed steeply from 500 a year in 1930 to 1,250 in 1950 and 2,300 in 1967.

Regional Rule Probed

Overflow Crowd Queries Municipal Affairs Head

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

What will be the benefits of regional government?

Will it make for efficiency and lower taxes, or just more bureaucracy, less efficiency and higher costs?

And what happens to local autonomy?

These were just a few of the many pointed questions fired at Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough last night as he faced an overflow crowd of more than 300 people at Club Canara in Belleville.

Without exception everyone in attendance at the meeting had but one purpose in mind — that of finding out all they could about the proposed new form of local government which could see many of the old traditions and municipal identities disappear.

Close to 20 persons, most of them local government representatives, had long lists of questions for the municipal affairs ministers.

Others wanted answers only for specific questions.

One of these was Robert Wood of Huntingdon township, who wanted to know how the smaller municipalities could hope to have equitable representation on regional governments.

"And will regional government be forced on us in the same communistic way as was done with the county school boards — without a vote?" he asked.

"Mr. McKeough said the answer to the last question was "no."

And a Trenton man stated emphatically that in his view, county school boards were no more efficient than were previous boards, but were costing more money.

"And now its regional govern-

Argentine Mummies Older Than Pharaohs

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — Two professors have discovered 11 Argentine mummies believed to be twice as old as the Egyptian pharaohs and have asked police protection for the find, police said Wednesday.

Pablo Sacchero and Mariano Gambier of the Provincial University of San Juan, 74 miles northwest of here, discovered the mummies when they went to a cave to study paintings and carvings on rocks.

The mummies were wrapped in cloth, except for one which was packed in a Guanaco skin, with the wool inwards. At least 40 more mummies are believed to be in the cave.

Sirhan Seemed 'Purged'

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Author George Plimpton says he lacked the courage to look at dying Senator Robert F. Kennedy, but instead lunged against the senator's assailant—a man he describes as "composed and peaceful."

"My eyes were solely on the hand of the defendant which had the gun," Plimpton testified Wednesday at the trial of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, charged with Kennedy's murder.

"He struck me as enormously composed," Plimpton said of the young Jordanian who had been pictured as disturbed with Kennedy for supporting Israel.

"The rest of us, given this sudden tragedy, were not composed," said Plimyton not so Sirhan. "He seemed almost like the eye in the centre of a hurricane, composed and peaceful.

"He seemed purged."

Levesque and NDP-er Agree Bilingualism Will Solve Nothing

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, and John Harney, secretary of the Ontario New Democratic Party, criticized what they referred to as Trudeau federalism in a two-hour debate Wednesday.

Both agreed in their French-language debate at the University of Montreal that:

—Nationwide bilingualism, as proposed by Prime Minister Trudeau, can solve nothing and never will work.

—Canada is composed of two distinct "nations".

—Quebec is a province "not like the others" and has to have a special status to allow free development of its own society.

Talks Resume Today

Hydro Union Plans 'Retaliation' If Alleged Lockouts Continue

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations between Ontario Hydro and Local 1000 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees were to resume today in efforts to resolve the contract dispute affecting 9,740 workers at the publicly-owned electric utility company.

W. H. Dickie, Ontario's chief conciliation officer, said he spoke to one of the sides, not identified, Wednesday after talks adjourned Tuesday night, and he decided to call both parties back to the bargaining table today.

Union officials meanwhile warned that the union will retaliate against Hydro if the company continues to lock out workers participating in rotating strikes.

Union spokesman Andre Bekerman said 250 workers were locked out Wednesday in the Niagara region and another 425 in eastern Ontario.

Mr. Bekerman did not elaborate on what kind of retaliation measures the union would take.

About 975 workers were on strike across the province Wednesday, hitting 52 of the company's 73 generating stations and forcing Hydro to import about 550,000 kilowatts of energy at a cost of $90,000.

A Hydro spokesman said 300,000 kilowatts was imported from Michigan and 250,000 from Quebec.

Change Brings Danger

LONDON (CP) — Defence Secretary Denis Healey said today changing forces stirring within the Communist world may produce changes in Soviet policy "which would bring new dangers to world peace."

Healey said in a defence white paper that although the Soviet Union has invaded Czechoslovakia, nothing was said or done by Soviet leaders in 1968 to indicate they would make war in Western or Southern Europe for political gains

But the Czech crisis increased the risks of war. Forces stirring within the Communist world foreshadowed more crises such as the one in Czechoslovakia.

"We cannot rule out that some crisis of this kind may present a more urgent and immediate threat to the stability of Europe as a whole than we have seen so far," he said.

Hawks Awaiting Action by World

From AP-Reuters

Israel's hawks today held in abeyance their demands for retaliation for the latest Arab attack on an Israeli airliner. They awaited the outcome of calls from their government and that of the United States for international action to protect civil aviation.

Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, one of the more militant members of the Israeli cabinet, told a closed meeting at the Weizman Institute of Science Wednesday night that Israelis must be restrained and let the diplomats fight their battles for the moment. But reliable sources said he warned Israel's Arab neighbors:

"We regard all our neighboring states as responsible for all terrorist activities. When we make reprisals, we will hit them in the place that will hurt them the most and will be the most convenient for us. We will not be bound to any particular target."

Dayan had just come from a top-secret ministerial security meeting at the home of Premier Levi Eshkol.

"We'll let the Arabs stew for a while," said one leading Israeli commentator. "All their governments are certain of a big Israeli reprisal, are scurrying around frantically to accuse each other of complicity and thus escape the consequences themselves."

Lebanon denied any part in the Arab commando attack.

"From the information announced about the operation," Lebanese Premier Rashid Karami said: "There can be no excuse to decide that any responsibility for it falls on us."

Karami's statement was issued after Israeli Transport Minister Moche Carmel charged that Lebanon was responsible for the attack Tuesday on an El Al airliner in Zurich, Switzerland, in which six persons on the plane were wounded and one guerrilla was killed.

Carmel, speaking to Israel's parliament Wednesday, cited the publication in Beirut of a statement by the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine claiming responsibility for the Zurich attack. But the statement had been issued earlier in Amman, the Jordanian capital.

The Popular Front said the attack was planned in the Jordan River Valley, and Zurich police said the three surviving guerrillas told them they came from Damascus, the Syrian capital.

The authoritative Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said today in an editorial Arab commandos would mount attacks on Israeli targets anywhere regardless of reprisal raids.

The newspaper, which usually reflects official Egyptian thinking, said Palestinian Arab resistance would not abate despite any counter-moves by Israel.

World Can Feed Many More People

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Underdeveloped countries could increase food production "20 times over" if technology was applied, Agriculture Minister A. J. Olson said Wednesday night.

"Thousands of acres are not producing five per cent of what they could if technology was applied," Mr. Olson told a service club meeting.

"Less people can produce more food today than ever before," Mr. Olson said.

"We must take a look at our marketing and distribution system. We need to stop worrying about production because we don't want to produce more surplus.

"The premise that the increasing population of the world increases our inability to feed ourselves is ridiculous if you consider all the surplus."

Montrealer Secretary Of New French Agency

NIAMEY, Niger (CP)—An agency to provide greater cultural and educational co-operation is to be established by a group of countries, including Canada, that totally or partially use the French language.

The decision to form such an agency was reached Wednesday at an international meeting here of 25 such countries, most of them African.

The meeting winds up today.

Selected as secretary of a temporary executive of the agency is Jean-Marc Leger, 41-year-old journalist with the influential Montreal French-language daily Le Devoir.

State Secretary Gerard Pelletier, head of the Canadian delegation, said it has no reservations about Mr. Leger, even if some consider him to be an ardent defender of independence for Quebec.

Pilots Quit

SAO TOME, Fernando Poo (Reuters) — Eight American pilots hired by church groups have returned home after their demands for danger money were turned down, leaving relief supplies for Biafran refugees piling up in warehouses on this West African island.

The joint church-aid organization—which groups European and North American Protestant and Catholic movements operating mercy flights from here to Biafra—said it could not afford the pilots' demands for an extra $50 a trip.

Proposals Outlined

Citizens Assured Voice in Establishment of Regional Plan

Community participation and wherever possible community acceptability, will be among the guidelines for the establishment of regional governments across the province.

This was the assurance given a Belleville audience last night by Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough as he addressed an overflow audience of more than 300 people at Club Canara.

The meeting was called by Quinte riding member Dr. R. T. Potter to acquaint area residents with the government's proposals on regional government and to allow local people to air their views on what to this point has been a controversial matter.

Mr. McKeough first outlined his government's proposals and then for the next hour answered questions from the floor. Belleville businessman Ben Cork acted as moderator for the discussions.

Mr. McKeough said the government would use several criteria as guidelines in establishing regional governments.

He said a region should exhibit a sense of community identity based on social characteristics, economics, geography and history.

He said also a region should have a balance of interest and that there must be a financial base adequate to carry out regional programs at a satisfactory level.

Also the region should be large enough to allow local responsibilities being performed efficiently. Regional boundaries should facilitate maximum inter-regional co-operation.

These five criteria had been accepted by the government as being entirely valid but Mr. McKeough said there were still other factors to consider.

The additional criteria adopted included community participation and, where possible, community acceptability.

"This does not mean that any municipality will have a veto over regional government proposals in its area.

"What we do want is participation by all communities in an area in the discussions leading to the formation of regional government," Mr. McKeough emphasized.

He noted that the government must accept the final responsibility for any regional government legislation, but it would work with communities in developing specific proposals.

Another criteria was that the new regional government boundaries should be acceptable by provincial departments and local units of education.

The ultimate aim of regional government was to eliminate overlapping jurisdictions with the hope for greater efficiency and economy without loss of local contact. However, no assurance was held out for lower taxes.

Mr. McKeough said that the old concept of town and country outlined in the Baldwin Act was gradually disappearing.

"There is not too much difference in the way people now live and the old distinctions between town and country are not so valid any more.

Mr. McKeough said he was unable to suggest possible boundaries for any Quinte area regional government. He did, however, foresee a two level form of government with the "super" government looking after regional problems and the lower level of government dealing with purely local matters.

Ideally, he said, regional governments should serve a minimum population of from 150,000 to 200,000 if efficient provision of services was to be provided. This, however, could vary dependent upon the population density of the area.

Minimum populations of local municipalities in the lower tier of a two tier government should be between 8,000 and 10,000 it was stated.

No specific date was set for establishment of regional government in this area although a target date of 1971 had been previously suggested.

"We are not setting any fixed target date," Mr. McKeough said. "We will establish regional governments on a problem-area priority basis, concentrating our attention on those parts of Ontario where the situation is most serious."

A second reason for not accepting an inflexible deadline is that there is not sufficient trained and experienced personnel to cover all Ontario.

"We see the importance of concentrating our talents in those areas where the need for change is greatest," he said.

Currently, he said, his department was dealing with 14 areas where recognized changes in local government organization were needed.

In concluding his preliminary remarks, Mr. McKeough said he could not over-emphasize the importance of local municipalities participating in regional government discussions. "It is the people in the local municipalities who will have to live with regional government," he said.

He hoped for many more such dialogues as was taking place at Club Canara and referred to press and radio co-operation in making the meeting possible.

Dr. Potter, as Quinte riding representative, expressed his appreciation for the large turnout and said the night's meeting was the forerunner of several such meetings planned.

A second public meeting would be held in October with taxation as the topic of discussion.

An Important Question

Questions Numerous

McKeough Faces Lively Crowd

ment," he said. "I can see larger areas of administration, more inefficiency and more bureaucracy.

"Frankly, I am worried."

To this attack Mr. McKeough reminded that governments were only as good as the people who elect them.

He said the government could have all local municipalities governed by bureaucrats from Toronto.

"But that's not the game — we want decisions made locally."

To this Earl Sager, former reeve of Madoc township, said the provincial government was apparently using more conservatism than it did in the formation of county school board.

He accused the government of getting away from participation by the people through the formation of regional governments and stated that the government action in pushing through county school boards was "nothing to be proud of."

"Will the government jam regional governments down our throats in the end?"

First questioner of the evening was Belleville druggists Cleo Colling who wanted to know how large the Quinte regional government would be, what boundaries were suggested and whether it would eliminate city, town and township councils.

And he also wanted to know what the benefits would be.

Answering the last question first Mr. McKeough said the benefits would be greater efficiency of operation and better services.

Greatest benefits were expected to be in the area of planning — of looking further ahead. Maximum efficiency would be accomplished by one central government but Mr. McKeough said this would be a horrible thought.

"We are talking of two things — service and access," he said.

Of the two, Mr. McKeough said access of the people to representatives at the local level was most important.

Mr. McKeough had no definite answer with respect to regional boundaries for the local area but suggested the area could be composed of the county of Hastings, Belleville and Trenton in which there would be a two tier level of government.

Former Belleville alderman Jack Allin asked whether a vote of the people would be asked on regional government.

Mr. McKeough didn't dismiss the possibility of a plebiscite but warned that the issue was too complex for a straight yes or no vote.

Community acceptability was the key word, he said. "If it is not acceptable we will not push it," he said.

"No, I won't say it will lower taxes," returned Mr. McKeough. "Taxes have already reached a level that should not be exceeded, but there are ever increasing demands."

Mr. McKeough did say, however, that with regional government and its greater efficiency taxes shouldn't increase so fast.

Ron Knight, Liberal member for Port Arthur, but who lives in the Trenton area, also wanted to know about a vote on regional government and whether municipal and transient grants would be lowered. "Also what guarantee will we have that senior government employees will not receive salaries six or seven times that of ordinary citizens.

Mr. McKeough had no guarantee that grants to the municipalities would be raised or lowered.

He said, however, that if the government was to spend more money with the municipalities it wanted assurance that it would be spent well. "We must make sure of the structure."

Mr. McKeough admitted that he too was not happy about high school board salaries.

"But we don't have wage controls in Ontario and I don't recommend that we do."

Allan Ketcheson, heading up the Hastings county committee on regional government discussions, had the longest list of questions for Mr. McKeough.

Noting that the county, along with Belleville and Trenton, had a population of about 91,000, he wanted to know what would happen to local municipal boundaries, whether the townships and villages would have a joint council and whether there would be direct or indirect elections for the regional government.

Mr. McKeough replied that in many instances todays municipal boundaries did not make much sense as many problems would better be handled on an area or regional basis.

He felt that direct elections to regional government were preferred rather than the indirect manner in which county councillors are now chosen.

To a question of the respective functions of a two tier level of government, Mr. McKeough said the regional body would have control of such items as regional roads, borrowing of money, tax billing, health and welfare.

The lower level of government would look after such local items as sidewalks, lights, and local roads. Police and fire departments could be operated at either level.

Mr. McKeough said regional governments would have authority to sell water to neighboring municipalities and also could look after sewage problems.

The idea was to make regional governments as strong as possible so they could "talk back to the provincial government," suggested Mr. McKeough.

Other questions by Mr. Ketheson were how assets and liabilities of local municipalities would be handled and whether there would be any curtailment of annexation rights.

Mr. McKeough said the concept of annexation is now under review by his government.

Zdenek Kvarda felt that local planning boards should have more authority, citing the local instance of the city having to make application to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval on a local shopping plaza.

Local people, he suggested, could more effectively deal with such problems.

Rosemary Soden, daughter of Belleville Alderman Kenneth Soden and now a third year university student in economics, wanted to know how parochialism could be stamped out among regional government members.

Under such a system local loyalties would be difficult to overcome, she said.

Mr. McKeough admitted that parachialism could never be stamped out.

"And I don't know that we should" he said. "But with a larger body the problems are larger and there is less tendency to parochialism."

Graham Bell, chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority, wanted to know the fate of river authorities under regional government — whether their boundaries and levying authority would be affected.

Mr. McKeough assured river authorities would never lose their identities as their boundaries were determined by watersheds in some instances spreading over several counties.

Former Belleville Mayor Jack Ellis referred to the multiplicity of services such as health, welfare, education, planning, hospital and provincial departments which now served many municipalities and asked if it was possible to have these come within one regional area.

Mr. McKeough said this would be impossible.

"We will possibly end up with up to 30 regional governments," he said. "But my own department will continue to have only five or six regional offices."

Belleville Lawyer Thomas Lally asked if there was any chance that regional government for this area would include Prince Edward County and Napanee. His interest was in the area of administration of justice.

Mr. McKeough was unable to answer the question.

And Belleville's Harry "Senator" Rollins asked if we weren't already overgoverned. He wanted also to know whether Ameliasburg township would be included with Hastings.

"Yes, we are over governed admitted Mr. McKeough.

He suggested however, that regional governments might to some extent remedy this.

To the question regarding Ameliasburg Mr. McKeough said he didn't have an answer. "You will have to work that out yourselves."

Sidney Reeve Jack M. Bush asked whether there was any consideration for what he termed two tier planning, while Belleville alderman Robin Jeffrey wanted to know about the possibility of recreational facilities being handled on a regional or county scale.

Still another man wanted to know about property taxes under regional government asking whether the present "punitive" tax increase for property improvements would be continued.

He was told this matter was not a regional government problem.

Chamber Backs Tax Reduction

The board of directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce today submitted a statement to the Ontario chamber showing dissatisfaction with the present taxation on water pollution prevention equipment.

At present industries are paying a five per cent Provincial sales tax and a 12 per cent federal sales tax on their purchase of the equipment. The equipment is mandatory by law.

The directors feel that the sales taxes should be dropped with regard to water pollution and have offered support to the Ontario chamber which has also taken this stand.

The committee will survey existing facilities and possibly recommend new ones so that visiting boaters in the summer months have enough toilet and water facilities or any others that are needed.

A second committee was formed this morning to review the activities of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce over the past five years.

The committee, chaired by Harry Fast, will analyze present programs in the hopes of recommending future programs in which the chamber should or could become active.

Junior Farmers To Attend Conference

After enjoying the game all went to the Cooper hall where the Guelph Conference which will be held from March 21-23 was discussed. Four delegates will be chosen to attend.

Hot pizza and coffee were served.

STIMERS — In loving memory of a dear wife, mom and granny Alice Stimers, who passed away February 20th, 1966.

So many things to share with you,
Had you been left to stay,
Every day in some small way,
Memories of you come our way,
Though absent, you are ever near,
Still missed, loved always dear.

BLAKELY, Mrs. Elinor E. Jean — In loving memory of a dear devoted daughter who passed away Feb. 20, 1965.

We little knew when we woke that morn,
The sorrow the day would bring,
It brings back a day we will never forget,
For the call was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear,
No tears can show, no words can say,
How much we lost on that sad day.
—Always remembered and so sadly missed by Mother.

BLAKELY, Mrs. Elinor E. Jean — who passed away Feb. 20, 1965.

We lost a mother with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth untold,
Without farewell she fell asleep,
With only memories for us to keep,
Like falling leaves the years slip by,
But loving memories never die,
No longer here, our lives to share,
But in our hearts she's always there,
But Jesus took you home to rest,
And He knows best.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by your children.

DENYES — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother Mary Denyes who passed away Feb. 20, 1958.

Gone is the one we loved so dear,
Still is the voice we loved to hear,
In our heart she will always stay,
As we remember her day by day.
—Remembered by husband and family.

GRANT — In loving memory of our dear mother, Lillian Mary Grant who passed away Feb. 20, 1967.

Her weary hours and days of pain,
Her troubled nights are past,
And in our aching hearts we know,
She has found sweet rest at last.
—Sadly missed by daughters Margaret and Mary.

GRANT — In loving memory of our dear mother, Lillian Mary Grant who passed away Feb. 20, 1967.

Not dead is mother, but sleeping,
In her Father's home above,
Reward for her suffering,
Reward for her love.
—Sadly missed by daughter Rose, son-in-law Lorne, grandchildren Vicky and Perry.

GRANT — In loving memory of a dear mother Lillian Mary who passed away suddenly Feb. 20, 1967.

More each passing day we miss her,
Many think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
Lying in our hearts concealed.
—Sadly missed but ever remembered by daughter Katherine and son Douglas and families.

GRANT — In loving memory of a dear mother Lillian Mary who passed away suddenly February 20, 1967.

Two sad and lonely years have passed,
Since our great sorrow fell,
The shock that we received that day,
No one can ever tell,
God gave us strength to meet it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose her,
No one will ever know,
It's lonely here without you,
We miss you more each day,
For life is not the same to us,
Since you were called away.
—Sadly missed by Charles and Georgina.

Loyalist Work Project

Community Firms Add to Girls' Education

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

New arrivals at Quinte-area business offices are marking a new departure in educational techniques these days.

The newcomers are a temporary work force totalling less than 40, but their brief encounter with business could make a lasting impression on local academic and commercial methods.

As part of that training they are being moved out of the classroom to office desks in a program of co-operation between Loyalist and the Quinte community.

Object of the plan is to provide the trainees with a working knowledge of real-life business conditions — a found principle of the Loyalist project.

The process now is being broken down through mutual college - community involvement that sees the business establishment willing to give the future graduates practical field experience.

Both sides apparently are in agreement with the potential results of the scheme — a college-trained employee with an appreciation of real working conditions on the first day of work.

"This sort of exposure is excellent," says Mrs. C. M. Lowe, administrator of Trenton Memorial Hospital where 18-year-old Janet Hogan is brushing up on professional terminology for her medical secretarial course.

While the information is privileged and she cannot peruse it, nonetheless Janet is enjoying the task because she is "getting experience all the time."

With only a week available, not all businesses can admittedly find tasks sufficiently sophisticated for the students.

Like Bell Telephone, for instance, where Belleville area manager Charles Buckley points new company employees need training even before assignment to their jobs.

"We can't make it as challenging as we would like," says Mr. Buckley.

Nonetheless, he "wholeheartedly supports the project," for allowing students to rub shoulders with realistic job conditions.

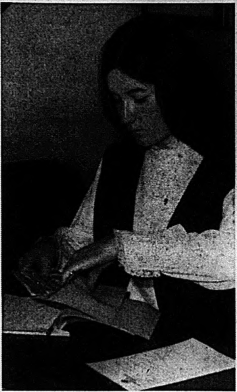
The students get "a very good idea what it's like inside a work situation. They may like it, they may not. But that's part of the game," says Mr. Hamelink.

Student reaction is predictable: it's an enjoyable experience, breaking routine while providing new dimensions to their studies.

"I'm doing things I never learned in class," said Rose Ann Helferty, Picton girl assigned to Tom Stanton Insurance in her hometown. "You have to learn quickly — and I've never had any business experience before. And you learn real business conditions a lot faster in the office."

Her Work - - It's Legal

Law is the option for 18-year-old Carol Scott, of Foxboro, now in training as a legal secretary at Loyalist College. As one of the students now engaged in practical education project, she's spending a week in office of Belleville lawyer K. G. M. Ross.



Rose Ann Helferty

A New Experience

Janet Hogan, a pretty, red-haired Loyalist student, gets some on the job experience at Trenton Memorial Hospital. She is spending the week working in hospital records department.

Assistance By Firms Boosts Plan

The scheme, giving secretarial students a week's experience of practical working conditions was given the co-operation of hospital authorities, local managers for international enterprises, doctors, lawyers, and a small host of hometown businessmen across the Quinte district.

Co operating in the project were: Bell Telephone, American Optical, Canadian General Electric (Trenton), Gerald Joyce Realty, Allin Insurance, Stanton Insurance (Picton), Vagden Mills (Trenton), Mead Johnson, Wilson Concrete, McFarlane Gendron, Picton public utilities, Trenton Chamber of Commerce, Northern Electric, W. J. Wilkinson, Canadian Imperial Bank (Trenton), Patterson Motors, Industrial Acceptance, Doug Whitley Insurance (Trenton), Lambert Construction, Morch Manufacturing, Stephens-Adamson, The Intelligencer, Walwyn Stodgell, William Argue, K. G. M. Ross (Belleville lawyers), Dr. Russell Scott, Dr. Jim Nellis, Dr. Bruce Cronk, Dr. W. A. L. McDonald and Dr. D. H. Bunt, Trenton, and Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Business Bureau Head Says Ottawa Control Faulty

PICTON — The president of the Montreal Better Business Bureau, George Blundell charged last night in Picton that the government's consumer protection department is less effective than his organization.

He claimed the government spent $15 million last year to operate the service and "it didn't do as much work as the Better Business Bureaus."

"Whenever the government gets into the picture it costs 25 to 100 times the amount ordinary business would spend on the project," Mr. Blundell said.

He was speaking to a meeting of the Picton Chamber of Commerce last night.

"Anyone can get information on firms or businesses from our organziation," he claimed.

To back up his case Mr. Blundell cited several instances where the Better Business Bureau is combating fraudulent business practices.

"Many companies save money on their charitable donations through our organization," he said. "We have some fraudulent charities operating in Canada and in one instance we saved a firm $5,000 in one year."

The Better Business Bureau also checks out rackets operating from the United States.

"One of the worst of these is the selling of real estate by telephone. In one instance a doctor paid a top price for land which we found was valued at only $200."

Many of these cases are directly concerned with the Mafia and more than once my family life has been threatened because I am involved in exposing the operations," he said.

Mr. Blundell said his organization is constantly in touch with local police, the fraud squad, RCMP and all government agencies involved in regulating fair business practices.

"In some cases we direct people to the proper legal authorities but in nine out of 10 cases we handle the problem ourselves.

"Over the years the bureau has been sued many times but we have never lost a case. This shows we are not afraid to speak out in an attempt to protect the public," he claimed.

There are 11 Better Business Bureaus across Canada and they work together to compile information on companies operating in different provinces.

Mr. Blundell concluded by citing two slogans: "When in doubt — find out," and "when it's too good to be true — it probably isn't."

Scouting activities

Boy scout week activities will climax on Saturday evening with a giant scout rally in the Belleville armory. The public are welcome to witness competition at the patrol level.

Each patrol will consist of four boys and the competition will be in first aid, physical fitness, rope work, highway safety and map and compass.

Scout week began for the th Belleville (Holy Rosary) cub pack with an old fashion sleigh drive. Last Sunday afternoon Leon Gauthier, with the assistance of Father George, bundled up 40 boys and adults on sleighs drawn by old dobbin on the property of Edward Colden at Harold.

Hot chocolate and doughnuts were served from an open campfire afterwards.

The 17th Belleville "B" pack led by Akela Cliff Wheeler and his assistants, Richard Sealey, Bill Lobb and Welly Reynolds recently visited the local police station. As part of their blue star work 20 cubs were guided through headquarters by officers Bob Hall and Bill Stephenson.

The parents of cubs of the 2nd Belleville Pack were recently invited to Christ Church Hall by Akela Lois Rodgers to see displays dealing with each of the five stars. Fathers of this group were reminded of the father and son banquet planned for March 19.

The ladies auxiliary of Belleville are planning a tea on April 16 in Tabernacle United Church. A hobby show for boys probably will be held in the evening.

This year's scout week activities will end for many groups on Sunday with church parades.

Fire Protection

Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott says Belleville cannot continue to provide fire protection to the townships for next to nothing.

No one would dispute such a statement, but when that "next to nothing" is increased by the city ten fold or more, and the townships complain, we can scarcely blame them either.

Thurlow's cost under the city's projection would jump from $5,000 to $57,000 a year, while Ameliasburg would be required to pay some $32,000 as against only $2,495 at present.

In effect, these increases place the cost of fire protection for the townships up in the stratosphere. Even in these inflationary days (fire department costs, like most others, have been going up) it is difficult to imagine such a dramatic boost. In the circumstances, why there was no gradual increase over the years is a matter of some puzzlement.

In any event, the townships have said the city's plan is unacceptable and are now preparing counter proposals of their own. Involved are the townships of Ameliasburg, Sidney, Thurlow, and Tyendinaga. They form a scattered area and the difficulties of affording adequate protection can be readily imagined. Often it is a matter of too little and too late. This being the case, township residents will be doing themselves a service if they remain alert to the possibility of fire and take the necessary precautions. Wiring and heating systems of older homes can be particularly suspect. Prevention is better than cure.

Scenic Route

Another milestone has been reached in the checkered history of the highway from Gananoque to Long Beach and Brockville. A two-lane stretch of about 30 miles passing through the Thousand Islands region, its beauty unfortunately has been marred by many accidents, particularly during Expo 67 when traffic was heavy.

Now this danger has been eliminated to a large extent by completion of the four-lane stretch of 401 running further inland from the shores of the St. Lawrence. Similarly No. 2 highway via Mallorytown affords another route.

With such an embarrassment of highway riches, another problem, nevertheless, arose affecting motel and other tourist operators along the Scenic Highway 2S, as it is now called. They expressed concern that their businesses would deteriorate through lack of traffic.

Now there is word it is to be renamed the Thousand Islands Parkway. Ontario Minister of Tourism and Information James Auld told a Gananoque meeting recently the decision could solve the problem of the tourist operators.

Mr. Auld said this was part of a ten-year master plan for the area. We welcome this announcement. The scenic highway is one of the most beautiful in Canada and we agree with the minister when he says "We do not want to degenerate the area into a lot of hot dog stands and for this reason it will remain an access free driveway until the plan is approved." He indicated it will be presented to area councils for their approval shortly.

A Cowardly Attack

Man is a cowardly animal. The attack on another Israeli jet airliner, this time at Zurich airport, by Palestine Liberation Front gunmen is a case in point.

Unfortunately it is typical of violence perpetrated for political ends since the beginning of time. In recent years it has been witnessed everywhere from Ireland to Algeria, Palestine (what is now Israel) and Cyprus, as well as on Israel's present-day frontiers with its Arab neighbors.

Those selfsame neighbors, still smarting from the overwhelming defeat handed them by Israel in the six-day war of the summer of 1968, are responsible for much of the violence of late.

The attack on the civilian airliner follows one that took place recently at Athens airport. Brutal, senseless and cowardly, it cannot but harm still further any legitimate claims the Arab nations may have following annexation of their territories by Israel in 1968, or the claims of Arab refugees dispossessed by many years of conflict in the Middle East.

The Baffling Business Of the Kidnapped Butterflies

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Seen any butterflies recently?

Out at Ottawa's Central Experimental Farm this week they are painfully remembering —if not joyously celebrating — the seventh anniversary of the entomological crime of this or any other century.

It was the theft of 10,000 butterflies.

Not just any old common cabbage - type butterflies.

But the best of the breed, from Mexico, Texas, British Columbia, Newfoundland and the High Arctic.

The RCMP has been on the hunt ever since that mind-boggling morning of February 22, 1962 when the missing butterflies were discovered — or, more accurately, when the butterflies were discovered missing.

Interpol has been on the prowl all that time.

Scotland Yard, the FBI, and who knows, perhaps even the NKVD, have been on the great butterfly chase.

But of the vanished 10,000, they have netted not a one.

Dr. Thomas N. Freeman of entomology division was there that morning seven years ago and well remembers the case that has baffled the best brains in the world of crime detection.

The 10,000 butterflies were without real commercial value on the open market — but to collectors they were beyond price.

Dr. Freeman and his fellow entomologists had helped collect them. So had entomology-minded members of federal government survey parties, museum groups and other specialists in the fields of natural science ranging the continent from the mountains of Mexico to the Arctic islands.

The collection had been begun in 1919 and only the cream had been skimmed for mounting. It had been a labor of love through 43 years.

So the trays in the display cabinets, sorrowfully recalls Dr. Freeman, contained, as he describes it "one of the world's finest collections of rarest specimens."

The room in which they had been on view had become overcrowded and some of the display cabinets had been moved out into the hall.

It was Dr. Freeman who discovered this strangest of thefts.

The display cabinets had been "casually inspected," as he recalls, when suddenly, one eye-popping morning, there was nothing casual about it.

For the critical point had been reached where "a gap here and a gap there" in the collection instantly became apparent "as a great hole."

Now here is the mystery

The building housing the collection was under 24-hour guard —so how could anybody spirit out 10,000 butterflies, each individually mounted on pins in trays within locked cases?

But spirit them out somebody did.

It had to be, Dr. Freeman says, some specially skilled and educated amateur, or a calculatingly patien,t painstaking professional.

From the hundreds of thousands, the chosen 10,000 were carefully culled, the creme de la creme of the vast swarm.

It had to take time, says Dr. Freeman. Maybe weeks. Nights. Weekends. And it had to be the work of a man who cared neither for time nor money.

For it is just barely possible the collection has been broken up and sold, very, very slowly and carefully, perhaps through the mail, a specimen at a time, one to an envelope.

But the RCMP does not think so.

The way they figure it, the missing 10,000 are still together. Somewhere. Because every lepidopterist of standing in the civilized world knew of this most bizarre of thefts — it was just that immense—and would instantly spot, at the very least, those rarest of High Arctic specimens the moment they came on the collectors' market.

Who, then, might the Great Butterfly Thief be?

A mad scientist now skulking alone in his hidden study, doors locked, windows blacked out, gloating over his loot, mentally fondling each priceless specimen?

Crazed fisherman or mad scientist, suspects the RCMP, he had to be a bachelor. Either that, or his family has to be wearing tapes over their mouths these last seven years.

There are 10,000 of them somewhere in someone's collection.

With the RCMP, Interpol, the FBI, Scotland Yard and who knows what other crime-detection agencies, the case remains open, the net wide and waiting.

"Is it too much to ask you what you plan to remove this time?"

Service in Belleville Stores Criticized by City Resident

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

I would like to tell of my experience in a Food Market on Thursday last. I had bought a delivery order and after passing four stalls with at least three loaded carts in front of each I came to the last one, and a lady had just purchased $40 worth of groceries, so I had to line up behind her until I couldn't stand any longer and went and sat down until all her groceries were put in cartons.

There were four empty stalls and no one in charge. It was just 2.30 p.m. when one would expect the clerks to be in their places. Why does this wealthy firm not give better service to their customers? I think perhaps a new Shopping Plaza might smarten them up. I made up my mind never to go there again, unless I had an express order, eight items or less.

Then there are two wealthy department stores on Front Street, each about half a city block long, and the other day I had to go to the back of the store of one, pick out what I wanted, and walk all the way back with the goods in my hand to pay the one and only clerk that I could see in the store. No wonder so much is stolen from these stores! Oh, for the days when a clerk would come to you and say "May I serve you please."

Yours for better service,

(Mrs.) B.M.S.

Letter Took Five Days From Toronto to Trenton

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

I have just been reading your editorial relative to the mail service. I also read Mr. D. Strachan's letter to The Hamilton Spectator.

I was really burned up when I received a letter this morning (Feb. 18) from Toronto. It had been mailed at 12.30 p.m. Feb. 13 and informed me that a member of the family was very ill and had to go to hospital.

This is the 18th of Feb. and she could have died and been buried in the meantime. Are they trying to discourage us from using the mails?

Information Sought About Winners of Victoria Cross

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

For some seven years I have been compiling a V.C.'s "Who's Who" to be entitled "Aristocracy of the Brave" with short biographies of the 1,346 men who have been decorated from the Crimea in 1854 to Vietnam in 1966. The majority of Victoria Cross medallists are unknown — forgotten outside a very limited circle. How many Canadians know what happened to Col. Dunn—Canada's first V.C and the only officer to be decorated for valor during the Charge of the Light Brigade? He died of gunshot wounds in Abyssinia. Canada's second V.C. was Surgeon Reade of Indian Mutiny fame. Irritated by snipers whilst attending to wounded in a street in Delhi, he seized a sword and led his walking wounded in a charge that cleared the area of the enemy. Later this adventurous doctor outran everyone to be first up the glacis and into the breach in the walls of the great Delhi Magazine. To complete a doughty trio for Canada another surgeon named Douglas by his valor saved British soldiers from capture by cannibals in the Andaman Islands.

Canada has her own section in my book — with details of Canadian Expeditionary Forces of this century and their casualties.

The records of several Canadian V.C.s are not yet complete. I should be very glad to hear from families, friends and any of your readers who can pass on helpful information about any V.C.

Tommy Douglas' Victory

Vancouver Sun

The outcome of the byelection in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands is a well-deserved tribute to Tommy Douglas, who now goes back to Ottawa. He will assume once more the leadership of the New Democratic Party which he offered to relinquish in a moment of despair eight months ago.

There will of course be other interpretations of the outcome of this byelection. The NDP has been dug into the constituency for many years and from this point of view it could be shrugged off by the rival parties as a safe seat for Mr. Douglas. The late Colin Cameron, a doughty fighter and so greatly liked and respected, had made it something of a personal fief.

The point is that Mr. Douglas, after tasting a humiliation in Burnaby-Seymour, made a runaway of this election. The people of Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands are probably no smarter, politically, than Canadians anywhere else. But it is no slight to Eric Winch, a strong runner himself, that they realized Mr. Douglas' place is in the House of Commons, where at this present time his voice is needed in his own party's counsels, as in the affairs of government.

People have conflicting views about Mr. Douglas' value to the country, of course. What some praise as his eloquence in the cause of the common man others regard as verbosity. But with his tendency to sermonize Mr. Douglas has a fiery eloquence, a ready wit and a fund of knowledge of public affairs which have made him the leading debater of the Commons. At any rate, his great experience in politics, to say nothing of his practical outlook, is too valuable to be lost.

Mohawks Appoint Police

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

Mohawk Indians came up with a first when they pressed their own police force into duty during a blockade of traffic crossing a Seaway International Bridge.

It is not quite clear who authorized the Indians to act as police, and it is obvious they had no real authority to act. But the concept of Indians policing a reserve is not without precedent. And the idea possesses considerable merit.

John McGilp, Ontario regional director of the department of Indian affairs, commented that such a force could gain government approval if the proper steps were followed in setting it up. In that case, it would work with the RCMP.

Mulrooney's Is Class Of League

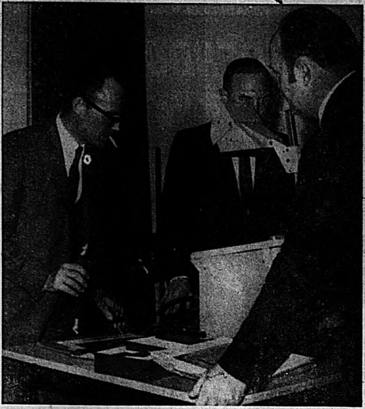
STAFF — After 13 games of the 15 game Gas House League schedule have been played, one can safely conclude that Mulrooney's Sunoco is the class of the four team league.

The unbeaten, untied Sunoco squad has rolled up 13 consecutive victories, while accumulating twice as many points as the second place Mustangs.

The Sunoco club is on the verge of becoming the first undefeated team in the history of the Gas House League, and the two teams, the Wings and Mustangs, which must play Mulrooney's in the season's remaining games, have each lost to the Sunoco club four times previously this season.

The Mustangs, who have stood out above the rest of the league, have clinched second place with six wins, six losses and a tie, while Marysville is in third spot with three wins, eight losses and a pair of ties, and the Wings occupy the league cellar with two wins, ten losses and one tie.

Marysville leads the Wings by three points, and needs only a win or a Wings' loss in two remaining games to clinch third spot. It appears likely that the race for third place could come down to the last game of the season between the Wings and Marysville, while the second place Mustangs get one last crack at Mulroney's astonishing record in the second game of the night's doubleheader.



Joseph Farley, safety manager of Lever Brothers in Toronto and guest speaker at last night's meeting of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, chats about safety with Stanley Skea, a representative of the Safety Supply Company in Toronto.

Accident Prevention Group Discusses Safety in Plant

TRENTON — "If our industries are to operate safely there must be an environment which allows the employees to find solutions to their safety problems."

Joseph Farley, safety manager of Lever Bros. Ltd., Toronto, told 40 representatives of industry in the Quinte area last night safety must be put across on an "individual operation."

The occasion was a meeting of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association at Batawa and those present were seeking the best solution to reduce accidents in their firms.

"A safety manager should guide the foreman and his employees in the right direction," explained Mr. Farley, "he must make safety appeal to the workman."

He said that employees must be stimulated to work towards safety for this is the only way that any sort of success can be reached.

"If a man is not wearing his safety glasses the safety manager should not take action but should allow the foreman to do this." he continued.

"In this way the whole concept of safety is kept within the realm of the working man and he soon gets the idea that it is up to him as an individual to solve the problem.

"The safety manager can stimulate interest through educational programs," said Mr. Farley, "but after that it is up to the foremen and his men."

And according to the safety manager the presentation of a safety program can spell success or failure in business.

"Hard hats and boots have a masculine appeal to the worker and as a result you hardly ever see a workman without them — he wants to wear them," explained Mr. Farley.

But on the other hand employers have a hard time getting their employees to wear safety glasses. Mr. Farley attributes this to the fact that they are labelled safety "goggles."

'The word goggles is one of the most infantile terms we could use," he said, "and the word makes it less than masculine to wear them."

For Mr. Farley the job of the safety manager is to build attractions into his educational safety programs. Then once interest is stimulated the employees will be motivated to solve safety problems in industry.

"This is the only way we have any chance of wiping accidents out of our plants," he concluded. "We must work with the employees and eventually hope they become interested enough to do it themselves."

Zufelts Entertain Club

The AOTS Men of Bridge Street United Church were entertained by Rev. and Mrs. Vern Zufelt at their regular meeting on Wednesday evening.

A former member and soloist of Bridge Street, Mrs. Zufelt rendered two solos, accompanied by Alec Gordon. Mr. Zufelt, superintendent of Quin-Mo-Lac Camp, a United Church camp on Moira Lake serving the Bay of Quinte Conference, gave a talk on the history of Quin-Mo-Lac and some of the effects it has had on the development of young people. The speaker mentioned that family camps are increasing in popularity each year to the point that three separate family camps are planned for 1969.

Following his address, Mrs. Zufelt showed a collection of fine slides taken at Quin-Mo-Lac over the years. Her commentary made the pictures even more interesting.

Rev. and Mrs. Zufelt were introduced by T. K. Franklin and thanked by Ray Gunsolus.

Hydro Strike

Employees Picket in Belleville

More than 5,400 workers went on strike today against Ontario Hydro and 1,200 of them walked out in the Eastern Region with head office in Belleville.

Norman Manning, public relations officer for the region, said that the gaps left by the Eastern Region employees are being filled by 200 supervisory staff members.

Pickets have formed around the Belleville regional office as approximately 130 Ontario Hydro employees walked out of the office this morning. The strikers are mainly clerical workers and draftsmen.

Today's rotating strike in Ontario was the largest since 9,740 members of the union started the slowdown on Feb. 3.

The five regions affected today were Niagara, the eastern section from Port Hope to the Quebec border, western from Woodstock to Windsor, central Toronto to Bowmanville and northwestern from Sault Ste. Marie to the Quebec border.

A hydro spokesman said the commission will buy 550,000 kilowatts of power today from Michigan and Quebec.

It will also interrupt special industrial contracts today to industries that get favorable power rates by allowing the commission to reduce power when the need arises.

Mr. Manning said that the picket line in front of the Belleville regional office consisted of 12 people.

"It says on their placards we'll keep your power going. They haven't done a thing," Mr. Manning said.

Wilfred Hickey, eastern division chairman of the union said that crews would be available if there is a power break. "The strikers would be called in temporarily to assist if such a break should occur."

Coulter Named President

STAFF — In accepting acclamation to repeat as president of the Belleville Minor Sports Association, Cy Coulson promised the Association's annual general meeting last night he would strive for improved communications with the United Community Services organization.

There was some concern expressed from the floor about the delay. in receiving the Association's grant from the UCS, which alots a percentage of its United Appeal canvass to the sports group.

But Andrew Robb chairman of the UCS budget committee assured last night's meeting that a caucus of the BMSA and UCS executives could iron out "minor details' holding up the funds.

Also returned to office last night was Tom Cavanagh. as first vice-president.

Cliff "Sonny" Belch — last year's BMSA treasurer — was acclaimed to the newly-created post of second vice-president.

Elected secretary, also by acclamation, was Mrs. Wilma Summers, replacing Ken Carr-Braint, who declined nomination.

New Association treasurer will be Bill O'Sullivan.

Impressive Candlelight Ceremony Highlights B and P Club Meet

The Business and Professional Women of Belleville held their Feb. meeting recently. Business reports were short due to a long program. Nomination committee formed for coming election of officers included Colombe Both, Hazel Grills and Mary Gleeson. The treasurer's books will be audited by Nettie Brown and Olive Jones.

A fashion show is in the process of being organized for some time in May. Time and place will be decided at a later date.

A candlelight ceremony symbolic of world membership was performed. This is International Week of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women. Each candle was lit as the name of the country was read out by Lois Brown, and represented the aspirations and endeavors of the dedicated women in many lands.

In the warmth of its tolerant light business and professional women of many nations meet with common objectives, namely: to organize business and professional women for the use of their combined abilities and strength in all parts of the world; to work for high standards of service; to encourage the participation of trained women in the community and in the business of government; to present the views of business and professional women to world organizations and to promote friendly relations and understanding among business and professional women of all countries.

Today, the International Federation is a powerful organization of world importance. Public opinion and legislation in many countries have been influenced by its work. As spokesman at the United Nations Organization, it presents to that world body information and opinions obtained from National Federations and Associate Clubs. It enjoys consultative status with the United Nations Economic and Social Council; with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization; with the Board of the United Nations Children's Emergency Fund. It works with the Commission on Human Rights and the Commission on the Status of Women, and with the International Labor Organization. It has helped the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Program for Refugees in the Middle East by financing the education and training of many young women.

One of the club's members Mrs. Irene Roluf was the speaker of the evening who gave an illustrated talk on Mexico with the assistance of her husband, Mr. Carl Roluf.

Rev. L. Woods Speaker At Auxiliary Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD—"Young people of today are sensitive, concerned and aware in facing the magnitude of contemporary society", Rev. Lance Woods of St. John's United Church, told members of the Hospital Auxiliary, at their monthly meeting.

"Young people with frankness, openness and personal directness are trying to break through and understand the established ritual of today. People trained to think independently, will later turn on the institution which trained them," Mr. Woods continued.

Mr. Woods was introduced to the gathering by Mrs. A. Burgis and thanked by Mrs. D. Bennett.

Mrs. W. F. Scott, president of the Auxiliary paid tribute to the late Miss V. Eidt, who was, for a number of years, supervisor of nurses in the Campbellford Hospital.

Mrs. E. Abernethy, who has been in charge of discarded material, reported that in the last ten years, more than $800 had been realized from sales of this material that is no longer of use to the hospital.

Mrs. S. Carr, administrator of the hospital, will be the speaker at the next meeting.

A large addition is being added to the original hospital building, which will have as a new section, a solarium, in which the Auxiliary is financially interested.

VOW Says NATO Obsolete

OTTAWA (CP) — The Voice of Women said today Canada should get out of NATO, terminate the NORAD agreement and adopt a non-aligned foreign policy.

The organization also called in a brief presented by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp for immediate recognition of Communist China and Canadian support for Peking's admission to the United Nations.

The VoW told Mr. Sharp that NATO is obsolete, increases cold war tensions, and limits the freedom of action of its smaller members.

NORAD, it said, makes no contribution to Canadian or continental security. It was costly, wasteful and detrimental to Canadian economic development.

It seriously impaired Canada's territorial and political integrity. It hampered and obstructed Canada's ability to pursue its basic foreign policy objectives.

"A non-aligned foreign policy based on disarmament and directed towards the promotion of equal human rights for all people is the only alternative to ultimate disaster," said VoW brief.

The VoW brief was made available to the press in advance.

Church Groups

(CHRIST CHURCH A.C.W.)

The business meeting of Christ Church A.C.W. Evening Branch was held recently in the parish hall, when the president, Mrs. J. Kilburn opened the meeting.

The minutes were read and roll call taken by the secretary, Mrs. E. Mossman. The treasurer, Mrs. P. Burton gave her report, and membership dues and pledges were paid. Miss Frances Reid, Sunshine Fund secretary, said that two get-well cards had been sent to members, and a thank-you note was read from Mrs. M. Beggs.

Plans were discussed for a euchre and bridge party to be held after Lent sometime in April. Miss Frances Reid a member has been appointed to the Vestry Council.

Earlier in the evening, before the business meeting, a successful rummage sale was held in the parish hall.

Mrs. Kilburn thanked everyone who had helped with the rummage sale, and after a special prayer, the meeting was adjourned.

Lunch was served by Mrs. A. Bongard.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

MARRIAGE NOTICE

McKEE — DOWNEY — Mr. and Mrs. Jack Downey of Sudbury announce the marriage of their daughter, Colleen Dorothy to Wayne Arthur McKee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McKee of Belleville.

The wedding took place in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, Sudbury on Feb. 8, 1969 at 7 p.m.

• • •

Previous to her marriage Mrs. Roger Flower (nee Betty Pearson) was entertained at miscellaneous showers held at the home of Mrs. Phil Edwards, Consecon RR 2, and one at the home of Mrs. Paul Kennedy when the bride's co-workers at City Hall attended. Following the rehearsal the wedding party and guests were entertained by the bridegroom's parents at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Wallbridge.

MR. AND MRS. G. ROGER FLOWER

Flower — Pearson

Rev. Roy Vessey officiated at the double-ring ceremony in College Hill United Church, on Feb. 15, when Betty Irene Pearson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Pearson, Belleville was united in marriage to George Roger Flower, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Flower, Belleville R.R. 7. Mrs. L. Blakely presided at the organ and rendered traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line gown of re-embroidered lace over peau de charme featuring a round neckline, three-quarter length sleeves and a bow trimmed Empire waistline. The back of the dress was highlighted with a flowing train of matching lace extending from the shoulders. Her headdress was a cluster of tulle roses encrusted with seed pearls and rhinestones and caught to a two-tier illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and ivy centred with a white orchid.

Mrs. Barbara Martinson of Toronto as matron of honor wore a floor-length A-line gown featuring a green velvet bodice and a lime green skirt extending from a trimmed Empire waistline. Her hair was intertwined with the same trim as waistline and she carried a nosegay of white and yellow 'mums.

Mrs. Sylvia Edwards of Consecon, sister of the bride and Mrs. Beverley Wallbridge, Belleville, sister of the bridegroom were dressed identically to the matron of honor and carried similar nosegays. Miss Kelly Ann Schamerhorn, Belleville, niece of the bride was dressed similarly to the other attendants and carried a tiny basket of white, green and yellow 'mums.

William Pearson, brother of the bride was groomsman, while the ushers were James Wallbridge and Robert Pearson, brother of the bride, all of Belleville. Master Robbie Schamerhorn, nephew of the bride was ring-bearer.

Receiving guests at the reception in the church social hall, the bride's mother wore an Italian knit dress in shades of pastel pink, yellow and lime green, pink and black accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and white 'mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a crimp knit beige and aqua dress with matching jacket highlighted with silver metallic thread, beige and black accessories and a corsage of white roses with 'mums tinted to match her dress.

For the wedding trip to Florida, the bride chose a surf blue crimp knit A-line dress with black and white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Flower will reside at Belleville R. R. 7.

Horticultural Society Meets

STIRLING — Mrs. Ray Rose was hostess for the monthly meeting of Stirling Horticultural Society with 34 in attendance. Mrs. Floyd Armstrong opened the meeting and reports were given by Mrs. Harold West and Mrs. Grant Hubble.

The president has made arrangments with a local greenhouse to furnish plants for premiums, and these will be available late in May to all paid members.

A committee was appointed to arrange for display tables at the agricultural arena at cost of approximately $100. It is hoped to have a volunteer delegate to attend the convention in June. The revised prize list for the flower show on Wednesday, June 11, was read.

Mrs. Archie Bailey introduced the guest of the afternoon, Mrs. Harold Milne of Burnbrae.

She demonstrated a large array of wreaths, sprays and candles, and other house decorations, fashioned from greenery and flowers.

The convener expressed thanks for the message of interest. The next meeting will be held on March 17, at the home of Mrs. W. Brooks, Stockdale.

Mrs. Warren Haggerty donated a large number of amateur gardening booklets, and these were distributed to those in attendance. The conveners conducted a floral contest and Mrs. Harold Milne won the prize.

Mrs. M. Clancy and Mrs. M. Ward provided the refreshments. At the close of the social hour, Mrs. Percy MacMullen voiced thanks to all who had contributed to the success of the afternoon.

Becky: "My mother keeps saying she wants to understand me. All that talk about the generation gap worries her. But she really doesn't listen to me and she doesn't approve of anything I say."

Mother: "I'm reading this book Becky brought home. Maybe it will help me understand how she feels about things. At least, it might help me ask some intelligent questions and will give me a new viewpoint."

CITY OF BELLEVILLE

PROCLAMATION

"ONTARIO HEART FOUNDATION WEEK"

FEBRUARY 23RD TO 28TH, 1969

This is "Heart Foundation Week". During the week of February 23rd to 28th, 1969, the Belleville Chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation will launch an appeal for funds.

Heart disease can affect each of us. The disease can be, and is being, controlled, but this is only possible through medical research and an informed public.

The rate of progress towards the elimination of heart attacks and strokes depends on the funds available to underwrite the qualified and dedicated people who undertake this work in our university hospitals. In Ontario, your Heart Foundation has been asked to support over a million and a quarter dollars in grants-in-aid-and fellowships.

Had it not been for the concerted drive in heart research over the past few years, life expectancy in Canada would not be as high as it is today. Many thousands of Canadians owe their lives to the doctors and scientists who have devoted their time and talents towards a better understanding of diseases of the heart and circulatory systems.

Good Health Sense in Staying Lean

By DORIS CLARK

If you are just the right size, shape and weight, it's hard to think of overweight as affecting you. But if you, or someone for whom you are responsible, are eating too much, then overweight—Canada's number one health problem — affects you directly.

You think all this reducing business is nonsense? That a person is fat or thin because that is their nature? And that a little extra fat is good? Let's look at the facts:

A study of 50,000 policyholders of one insurance company who were moderately to markedly overweight indicates that the mortality rate was 50 percent higher than that of standard insurance risks. Persons only 14 percent overweight have a mortality rate that is 22 percent higher than those of normal weight.

Doris Clark

Obese people store up trouble for themselves by eating too much. They tend to develop such diseases as diabetes, gall bladder trouble, heart disease and high blood pressure earlier, and are apt to die younger, than are slim folks.

Aside from the attractive appearance of a slim figure there is good health sense to keeping yourself "lean as a goat."

• • •

Dear Doris: I have wondered what this schizophrenia you mention is like, as I have had to leave my husband after over 40 years of marriage.

My husband was always difficult to live with. Since he has advanced in years he has been hiding articles around the house, chipping the ornaments, running water down the drain till our bill was twice the price it should have been. This kind of thing has gone on for years. I couldn't understand why I was always having to look for things and he could always find them. The ornaments were always the ones I took most pride in.

He kept this up till at last I woke up; so I watched and laid a trap for him. He would stand and defy me and lie and was so clever at crawling out.

He seemed to delight in getting hold of a child or a pup or cat and tormenting them. And there were many queer actions.

My own health started to fail and I'm very thin. Since I have been away I feel very good and have gained some weight. — Worried.

Dear Worried: I couldn't print all of your long letter, which suggested to me that your husband's mental illness started away back. Treatment then might have arrested it; and would certainly have helped your understanding. I wonder you have kept your sanity for 40 tough years.

Only a psychiatrist is qualified to identify and treat such illness. Could you be the means of getting him to one, even now?

• • •

Confidential to I was A Smokestack: Nice going in your personal war against the habit. You appear to be winning.

We have evidence now that life expectancy among heavy cigarette smokers (more than two packs a day) is reduced by an average of eight years, and among light smokers (less than a half-pack daily) is reduced by four years.

• • •

Is it a point of etiquette that is troubling you? Doris can tell you how it's done in Canada.

Ann Landers

Pre-med Student Doubts Ann's Word

DEA RANN LANDERS: I am a pre-med student who would like to straighten you out. I refer to your answer to the distraught college kid who wrote to you, all untight, about taking LSD because he had heard it might cause his unborn children to be deformed.

ANN LANDERS

Since you reached for Nobel Prize winner Dr. Joshua Lederberg to help you answer, one would think you got the straight goods but between the two of you, you goofed.

A simple, inexpensive chromosome test can be performed by blood sample in the genetic counseling department of any large hospital, preferably a teaching-medical centre. A gross test, one which will reveal any breakage or mutants, can be done at almost anywhere a high-powered microscope is available. Tell it like it is, Ann. — PRE-MED STUDENT.

DEAR PRE-MED: I turned your letter over to Dr. John P. Merrill, Associate Professor of Harvard Medical School. He replied: "The pre-med student is wrong. The chromosome test requires something more than a high-powered microscope. The cells taken from a blood sample must be grown in culture, usually stimulated to divide, so one can see the chromosomes break up. Under these circumstances one might be able to tell something about the effects of LSD. There are, of course, other drugs which could produce this effect but in any case, something more is required than simply looking at cells under a microscope.

I'll pass on your apologies to Dr. Lederberg, Son.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since almost everyone reads your column, I know of no better way to get the word to countless inconsiderate, selfish, scheming sons and daughters who leave their aged parents to the mercy of neighbors. I am so sick of shouldering responsibilities that are not mine I could scream.

When Papa dies, Mama is urged to sell the big house and move into an apartment. But the kids make sure the apartment is as far from them as possible. They insist she wants to be "independent." The truth is, they don't want to be bothered with her. So Mama bothers the neighbors.

I work downtown and come home at night exhausted. Before I sit down to supper the phone rings. Will I run over to the drug store and get some medicine? The delivery boy is sick and she hates to call her son Jake because he lives on the other side of town. Ten minutes later, another call. Would I mind getting a "get well" card and a curtain rod during my lunch hour? At midnight, I get another call from Mr. J. (age 88.) He fell in the bathroom and thinks he broke something. He can't remember his doctor's telephone number. Will I call mine? He doesn't want to call his daughter because he doesn't want to bother her. (It's all right to bother me, however.)

It's hard to say no to these old people, but I resent being in this spot. Any suggestions? — MRS. SOFTIE.

DEAR MRS.: It has been said that "Service is the rent we pay for our place on earth." Consider these small kindnesses "rent" and kwitcherbeafin."

Requests for Shrimp Casserole

By MARY MOORE

Four years ago in this column I gave Katie's Shrimp Casserole. It calls for two lbs. fresh frozen shrimp. I thought because of its cost it would have a limited reception. But Canadians do indeed seem to be affluent or extravagant food spenders for we have received uncounted requests for copies of it. Now Padre Alex Wakeling at Work Point Barracks in Esquimalt has requested a recipe for a shrimp casserole so I will repeat it now.

KATIE'S SHRIMP CASSEROLE

((for a guest meal for 4 or 6 — may be partially prepared in advance)

2 lbs. fresh frozen shrimp
1 tbsp. lemon juice
3 tbsps. salad oil
¾ cup long-grain rice
2 tbsps. butter
¼ cup minced green pepper
¼ cup minced onion
2½ tsps. salt — divided
⅛ tsp. pepper
⅛ tsp. mace
Generous shake of cayenne (optional but recommended)
1 can undiluted tomato soup
1 cup 32 per cent cream
½ cup cooking sherry
½ cup whole blanched almonds

In the morning of the day of your guest dinner put fresh frozen shrimp in a saucepan, pour boiling water over to barely cover, add 1 tsp. salt and bring to boil; reduce heat, cover and simmer 5 min. Drain. Turn into large casserole, sprinkle with the lemon juice and oil and refrigerate. Cook the rice in 1½ cups boiling water and ½ tsp. salt, covered, for ½ hr. Cool and refrigerate. One and one-half hours before meal is to be served, gently saute green pepper and onion in butter for 5 min. Add to shrimp in casserole. With fork spread rice over that evenly, sprinkle with the remaining salt and all remaining ingredients except ¼ cup of the almonds, which are halved and strewn over top at last. Bake uncovered at 350 deg. Fahr. for 55 to 60 min. This casserole is not hurt if kept in low oven a few minutes longer.

Women's Institutes

QUEENSBORO WI

The February meeting of the Queensboro Women's Institute was held in the WI hall with Mrs. William Lynn as hostess. Mrs. Harry Declair, president, was in charge of the meeting.

It was decided to send Mrs. Declair as a delegate to the Officers Conference in Guelph on April 29, 30, and May 1.

Miss Hazel Thompson commented on the Summary Day for "vegetables with a flair," held recently in Stirling. A centrepiece of vegetables made for summary day by Mrs. Allan Thompson was on display. A poem composed by Mrs. Arthur Holmes was read by Mrs. John Thompson.

It was decided to let the Girls' Club use the WI Hall for their meetings.

Mrs. Declair introduced guest speaker, Mrs. Bicknell, who gave a brief outline on the work done by the County and Public Health nurses. A question and answer discussion was also conducted.

Mrs. Declair thanked the speaker and presented her with a gift. Lunch was served and a social hour spent.

Plan Insurance

By KEN WEERES

A most difficult question to answer is "How much and what type of insurance should I buy?" Unfortunately, there is no easy answer or formula for each family has different circumstances to consider.

Probably the most important first step you can take is to select a reliable agent and company. Most persons do not have to look for an agent; they will come to you. Select the agent who you think has interest in your welfare, who is knowledgeable and willing to explain everything to you. Most of the better agents have the letters "C.L.U." after their names, which means they have passed the Chartered Life Underwriters' examination.

In Canada, all insurance companies are closely regulated by the Department of Insurance, Ottawa, which in turn is under the Minister of Finance.

The next step in planning your insurance is to determine your needs and objectives.

Should you die you may want your insurance to cover any or all of the following: burial expenses, cleanup of small bills, any large outstanding debts such as a house mortgage, family maintenance, education for your children and retirement for yourself. To get an accurate estimate in each area may require discussion with your family, your creditors, insurance agent and so on. Moreover, it requires you to look into the future. What do you want your financial position to be in 20 or 40 years? This will be determined by the financial decisions you make now.

Once you have listed your needs find out how much this coverage would cost. If you can afford this much insurance, fine. If not, go back over the list, rank your priorities and reduce the amount where you can. Decide which are necessary now and which can be postponed until your income is higher.

Most experts agree that most of the insurance should be on the breadwinner. Should he die his dependents will be cared for. But it is also recommended that some insurance be carried on the housewife. Should she die there may be the extra costs of a maid, housekeeper or cook, over and above funeral expenses.

Good insurance planning requires a lot of thought and common sense. Determine where the needs will be the greatest should the breadwinner die; provide for your retirement whether it be by life insurance or other forms of investment and plan for the years ahead. Consider whether term, permanent life or endowment insurance is best for you. And select the options that are best for your circumstances.

After you have taken out insurance be certain your beneficiary and lawyer know where you keep the policy. To obtain benefits, your beneficiary must turn the policy over to the company or provide proof of loss.

Always keep your insurance agent notified of a change of address. You may be receiving dividend payments, premium reminders or other documents from them.

It is most important that you review your insurance program periodically, at least every five years. What was applicable when you were 20 may be absurd when you are 60. Every new child or other change in family circumstances is reason to adjust your insurance.

Should you have questions about insurance write to an insurance company. They will be able to give you complete information. Or go to the Public Library to read on the subject. Your dollars will give your dependents better protection when you buy insurance designed to suit your family.

Alkenbrack Indignant

Change in Estate Tax 'Socialistic Nonsense'

OTTAWA (CP) — The tradition of farm sons working for little pay in expectation of inheriting the family farm was cited in the Commons Wednesday as debate continued on proposed changes in estate taxes.

Robert Thompson, former Social Credit leader and now Conservative member for Red Deer, said many farmers' sons work for less than minimum wages, rewarded by the prospect of inheriting part of the farm.

He appealed, as many other opposition members have, for special exemptions in passing a farm from one generation to another.

Wednesday was the sixth day of debate on the government's estate tax measure and speeches had a repetitive tone as one Conservative after another hammered on the plight of the family farm and small business.

Douglas Alkenbrack PC — Frontenac-Lennox and Addington was one of the most outspoken Tory critics of the bill. He complained of the Liberal government's "socialistic nonsense" and of Finance Minister Edgar Benson's "smash-and-grab" tactics.

Under the measure, estates of less than $50,000 will not be taxed on everything above $20,000, rather than $40,000 as at present.

Mr. Alkenbrack suggested that a business or farm be entirely exempt when passed within the family to someone who would run the business. Only such things as cash, bonds and stock should be taxed.

He said the government measure would destroy thousands of estates and would "stagnate and stultify the founding of potential new estates."

Canada is largely undeveloped and "there are too few estates in this young country to have an estate tax," he said.

Opposition members say they are surprised by the volume of spontaneous mail that has come in on the estate tax issue, and several apparently felt they should put their views on record.

Some hints of future legislative plans emerged in the question period as Justice Minister John Turner was questioned on further changes in the Criminal Code.

Although the government's omnibus bill on the Criminal Code still has not been passed, Mr. Turner said he plans another "not-so-omnibus" bill covering such things as bail and wire-tapping.

Mr. Turner also said provincial attorneys-general are being consulted on possible legislation dealing with off-track betting, in the wake of Supreme Court decision not to hear an appeal against an acquittal in this area.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, in reply to a question from a Liberal backbencher, read a statement saying Canada strongly condemns the latest violent incident growing out of Middle East antagonisms.

He said the government is "deeply shocked and concerned" over the Tuesday's machine-gun attack by Arab commandos on an Israeli jetliner in Zurich, Switzerland.

In the estate tax debate, which continues today, seven of eight speakers were Conservatives.

The other was NDP member Les Benjamin (Regina-Lake Centre) who said he is surprised that Conservatives have raised "so much fuss" about estate taxes when the Conservative party had set the present tax in the late 50s.

He said he wished the government and the Conservatives would be as concerned about the "thousands of millions of dollars of under-taxed and untaxed incomes" in Canada as they were with the low and middle-income brackets.

Canadian Exporters in Trouble

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A bleak picture of Canada's export trade was painted Wednesday night by J. M. McAvity of Montreal, president of the Canadian Export Association.

He told the London branch of the Canadian Manufacturers Association that "all but a few of Canada's exporting industries seem to be experiencing difficulty in holding export sales."

Non-tariff barriers in other countries, continuing international instability in financing, poor performances by Canada's seaports and higher costs of producing in Canada are making it difficult for some and impossible for others to hold or expand into international markets, he said.

Gamble Pays Off

Habs Miss Chance To Overtake Bruins

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Goaltender Joe Daley of Pittsburgh Penguins received exactly what he wanted for his birthday, his first National Hockey League shutout.

The Bruins presented the shutout reluctantly to Daley, who make 41 saves — 15 in the first period and 14 in the second. It was the first shutout of the season for Pittsburgh, which has employed veteran netminder Les Binkley in most games.

Despite the loss, the Bruins remained deadlocked with Montreal Canadiens for first place in the Eastern Division. The Canadiens were trounced 5-1 by Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night.

Meanwhile, Oakland Seals downed Chicago Black Hawks 5-2, Minnesota North Stars outlasted Los Angeles Kings 7-4 and Detroit Red Wings held New York Rangers to a 1-1 tie.

Daley's task was made easier by the absence of centre Phil Esposito from the Boston lineup. Esposito, the NHL's leading scorer, sat out the first game of a two-game suspension given for pushing and hitting referee Bob Slaon during a game earlier this month.

Gamble made 40 saves in what he described as his best game this season. Starting goaltender Gump Worsley of Montreal was taken to hospital for observation after suffering a head injury in the first period.

Worsley fell heavily after Montreal defenceman Jacques Laperriere checked team-mate Serge Savard and Toronto forward Bob Pulford into the goal area. Rogatien Vachon replaced Worsley and gave up all the Toronto goals.

Scoring for the Maple Leafs were Norm Ullman, Dave Keon, Bill Sutherland, Ron Ellis and Paul Henderson. Bobby Rousseau scored for Montreal at 11:42 of the final period to ruin Gamble's shut out.

NORM ULLMAN
Scores 28th

Rookies Brian Perry and Norm Ferguson paced the Seals to their victory before 10,009 at Oakland. Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita replied for Chicago.

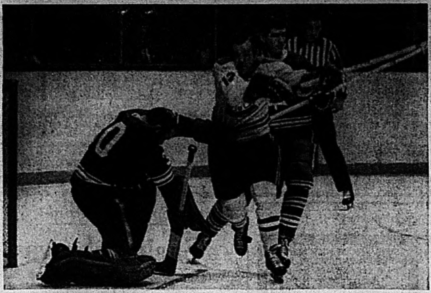
The victory was the fourth this season for Oakland in five games against the Hawks. It also was their 13th against Eastern Division opposition.

Perry scored once in each period while Ferguson tallied in the first and third.

Ab McDonald scored two goals and assisted on another to guide St. Louis to its win and clinch a playoff spot for the Blues in the Western Division. First-place St. Louis holds a 23-point lead over runner-up Oakland.

Jim Roberts had the other St. Louis goal and Andre Lacroix tallied for Philadelphia before a St. Louis gathering of 15,072.

Phil Goyette of New York and Dean Prentice of Detroit exchanged second-period goals as the third-place Rangers stayed one point ahead of Detroit in the Eastern Division.



Gamble Using His Noggin

Toronto Maple Leaf goalie Bruce Gamble is not ducking his head because he is afraid of getting brained by those high sticks held by Yvan Cournoyer (12) of Montreal Canadiens and Pat Quinn of Leafs, but is keeping a close eye on that puck on the toe of Cournoyer's right skate. The action took place in the first period of an NHL contest in Toronto Wednesday night, won 5-1 by the Leafs. (CP Photo)

Gordie Howe's HOCKEY

What goes first when a player starts to fade in the National Hockey League? His legs?

In my case it was my hair, which isn't quite as plentiful up front as it once was.

To be serious, yes, it is the legs a player worries about. As a player grows older, naturally he will lost some of his speed. But even when he has "lost his legs," as the saying goes, he will still be able to skate at some speed.

Most people, when they hear a player has "lost his legs," immediately think he can no longer skate. This, of course, is incorrect.

It's more a loss of strength. A player no longer has that snap when he skates. He can no longer get up and really dangle when he must. In some games you may not have to really tramp on it more than a couple of times. An example when you must cut loose is when a player gets away from you coming out of his end and you, as a wingman, must come back fast to help out the defence.

Remember Red Kelly's last few seasons with the Toronto Maple Leafs? Red had not lost his legs by any means, but he had the talent of slowing the play down to his tempa. I've heard people say they could walk as fast of Kelly was skating. Red could, when he needed to, really turn it on. But he could set the tempo by fading with you.

Doug Harvey does this on defence for the St. Louis Blues. He plays with his head and falls back on all those years of hockey experience. He'll fade with you and he is as foxy as they come.

He recalled when he was with the Montreal Canadiens he played 58½ minutes of a game and was annoyed at Coach Toe Blake for taking him off for those 90 seconds.

A few seasons back I would play 35 and 45 minutes a game, but afterward I didn't feel so young.

Hockey's Big Names Set to Swing in July

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League Players' Association announced Wednesday it will hold a $12,000, 54-hole golf tournament at the Board of Trade course at Woodbridge, Ont., next July.

The $12,000 will be divided among the top finishers in the 48-man field, four players from each NHL team chosen on the basis of their box-office draw and hockey talent.

The tournament will be sponsored by the association and an airline. Proceeds, a minimum of $5,000 guaranteed by the airline, will go to charity chosen by the association.

"We haven't sought approval from the Professional Golfers' Association," said association counsel Alan Eagleson of Toronto. "We're not likely to invite the golf professionals in hockey to play."

The tournament poses no problem to players who also are golf pros, but amateurs may lose their amateur standing as golfers by playing.

"We have no objection to a pro teeing up in an open tournament against anyone, pro or amateur," said Bill Hamilton, executive director of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association.

But Jim Gaquin said that playing for money would result in amateurs losing their amateur status.

The tournament will be a four-day affair with each hockey player paired with three businessmen amateurs in a best-ball, 18-hole team match July 10.

The next 54 holes (July 11-13) will be separate tournaments with the amateurs competing for prizes and the hockey players for money (or prizes) on a best-ball basis in teams of two with handicaps to count.

Norm Ullman of Toronto Maple Leafs was the first entry to be announced. Eagleson said Ullman can take money or a prize if he wins.

Stars to Tour?

TORONTO (CP) — Alan Eagleson, legal adviser to the National Hockey League Players' Association, says he will leave for Stockholm, Sweden, within a month to arrange a tournament, involving NHL players, for early September.

He said the details for the tournament are not yet firm but that Russia, Canada, Sweden and Czechoslovakia will probably be involved.

"The NHL owners say it is impossible but I'll leave it up to them if I'm able to put the tournament together," Eagleson says.

Basically, Eagleson will discuss a 10-day round-robin tournament in early September. About 20 players from the NHL would play the European countries.

He said part of any agreement with NHL owners would specify that the tournament will be completed in time for the players to return to North America for their teams' training camps.

Signing of 'Name' Players Puts Baseball Boycott to Test

NEW YORK (AP) — The major league baseball players' boycott of spring training show some signs of cracking, but not enough to keep their representatives from rejecting another pension offer from club owners.

Name players such as Pat Jarvis, Tom Seaver, Jerry Grote and George Scott said Wednesday they would report to spring training.

"The real test of the players hasn't come yet," Dale said in Cincinnati. "I can tell you there are a lot of players signed and lot more ready to. We really haven't tested Marvin Miller's control of his men."

That brought a response from Miller, executive director of the Major League Players' Association.

"This proves it is all a stalling tactic to try to break the association wide open," Miller said in New York.

Earlier in the day player representatives had overwhelmingly turned down the latest proposal by owners to increase the pension $1,200,000 to $5,300,000.

The players had rejected a previous $1,000,000 increase and Dick Moss, counsel for the association, said player representatives did not think the new offer significant enough to submit to the membership.

The Association is asking for a $6,500,000 pension package.

Moss also said a few players were expected to report to spring training, but reaffirmed the association belief that the majority of players would not sign contracts or report until the dispute is settled.

But among those who were signed today was Jarvis, Atlanta Braves' top pitcher last season with a 16-12 record.

Seaver, an all-star with New York Mets last year, said he had not signed and would not report today at St. Petersburg, Fla.

"I will play this season whether the dispute is settled or not," he added, however.

Grote, the Mets' all-star catcher, and team-mates Nolan Ryan and Danny Frisella, both pitchers, also said they would report.

Scott, Boston Red Sox' infielder, was quoted in a copyrighted story in the Boston Traveler as saying he planned to report on schedule next Wednesday.

John Bateman and Ron Brand, catchers with Montreal Expos, and team-mate Bob Bailey reported Wednesday.

Ken Harrelson, Boston slugger who led the American League in runs batted in last season, earlier announced his intention to report, having signed a contract last summer. And veteran catcher Russ Nixon and veteran pitcher Dan Osinski reported earlier to the Chiago White Sox camp at Sarasota, Fla.

Saskatchewan Schoolboys Lying Shot

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — Bob Miller of Shellbrook won two close games Wednesday, when opposing skips failed to make their last shots, enabling Saskatchewan to take undisputed possession of first-place in the Canadian schoolboy championship.

The Saskatchewan rink, with a 5-1 record in the 11-rink round robin tournament, topped Prince Edward Island in a fifth-round game and stole three points in the 10th end to nip Alberta in the sixth round.

Tied for second place after six rounds were Ontario skip George Cox of Renfrew and Terry Norman of Moncton, N.B. with 4-2 records. John Anderson of Sedgewick, Alta., is 3-2 and Bill Henry of Winnipeg, Manitoba's entry, holds fifth place with a 3-3 record.

Behind the top five rinks were Ron Lehotovaara of Fort William, representing Northern Ontario, Newfoundland skip Doug Ryan of St. John's, Robert Stewart of Charlottetown, and British Columbia's entry, Grant MacDonald of Whitehorse, all with 2-3 records.

In the seventh round today, it was Manitoba against Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island against Northern Ontario, Alberta against Quebec, Saskatchewan against Nova Scotia and British Columbia against New Brunswick. Ontario had the bye.

In the fifth round, Ontario defeated British Columbia 9-6, Quebec edged New Brunswick 11-9, Saskatchewan nipped Prince Edward Island 7-6, Alberta beat Nova Scotia 8-5 and Manitoba downed Northern Ontario 14-10. Newfoundland had the bye.

Sixth-round action saw Saskatchewan adge Alberta 11-9, New Brunswick top Northern Ontario 9-4, British Columbia beat Manitoba 7-6 in an extra end, Newfoundland upset Ontario 8-5 and Prince Edward Island whip Quebec 13-4. The bye went to Nova Scotia.

A partisan Saskatchewan crowd watched Miller beat Stewart in the first round when the Prince Edward Island skip attempted to come around a guard with his last shot. But Stewart was wide and Miller stole a single point for the win.

Alberta appeared easy winners in the sixth round when they counted four points in the first end, with the help of Saskatchewan misses, and picked up another point in the second for a 5-0 margin.

Strike-breakers Suggested

Proposition Put to Campbell

COBALT, Ont. (CP) — If a strike of National Hockey League players ever takes place, Harold Ribson knows what to do — staff the NHL with girls' teams.

At least, that's the suggestion Ribson, acting commissioner of the Ontario Provincial Women's Hockey Association, made Wednesday night in a telegram to NHL president Clarence Campbell.

"After learning of a possible players strike, I offer you sufficient teams to operate the NHL", the telegram said.

"It must be understood that I retain control of said teams and suggest your scouts check the potential of the large number of women hockey players of top-flight calibre."

Ribson also tossed in a boost for his home town, 50 miles southeast of Kirkland Lake, one of the founding members of the NHL in the early 1900s.

"As plans are going ahead for the restoration of Cobalt to its early importance, I suggest you consider moving your office back to Cobalt, where fans are friendly and players less demanding.

Vancouver Predicament

No Solution in Combines Act

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver hockey fans are in for a disappointment if they expect that the federal Combines Investigation Act will force an early National Hockey League franchise here, a Vancouver economic consultant says.

"For the last three years, action under the Combines Investigation Act has been held out as a possible means of getting the NHL to expand into Vancouver," Dr. James A. Sherbaniuk wrote in a recent article.

The act, in its present form, does not apply to professional sport, he said. "And even if it were to be amended appropriately the results would not improve Vancouver's NHL prospects for some time."

Ron Basford, consumer affairs minister, mentioned the possibility of eventually using the act against the NHL in Parliament earlier this session. In February, 1966, he had introduced a private member's bill to amend the act to include professional sport, but it died after first reading.

And last May he suggested that a parliamentary committee be established to investigate the NHL and organized hockey in general.

As the act now is worded, the restrictive activities prohibited relate, with certain exceptions, to the production and distribution of articles or commodities, with the emphasis on goods rather than services.

Dr. Sherbaniuk says only a few services—storage, transportation and rental of goods and the price of insurance on property or persons—are specifically outlined in the act.

"Restrictive arrangements among members of a profession which call for the performance of services alone have been considered to be beyond the prohibitions of the legislation. The above category . . . would include hockey."

In the article, Dr. Sherbaniuk said Mr. Basford has indicated that any amendments in the act will have to wait until the Economic Council of Canada completes its study—begun in 1967—into combines problems.

Its report, which could possibly recommend including sport under the combines act, is not expected until May or June. But this would be only "the first step in a very time-consuming procedure," Dr. Sherbaniuk predicts.

"It is unlikely, however, that this move alone . . . will scare the NHL into loosening its grip on new franchises."

"If they should still refuse any overtures for expansion, it might prove necessary for the combines branch to conduct an inquiry and to lay a formal charge against the NHL based on the new amendments.

Saints Score Upset Over Junior Trojans

STAFF — Coach Gord Smith of the Moira junior Trojans basketball squad must be shaking his head today after his undefeated team suffered a 50-40 upset at the Quinte Secondary School gym last night, and must face the distinct possibility of a playoff with the defending Central Ontario champion BCI squad which his team has narrowly beaten twice this year.

Moira, with a record of ten wins and a loss, and BCI, with eight wins and two losses will meet in a two game, home and home. total points playoff if Moira defeats fifth place Trenton Wednesday in their final game of the season, and BCI gets by sixth place Picton and last place Napanee in their final two games of the 12 game schedule.

Last night's encounter with the junior Saints, who have won eight games and lost three, and are currently tied for second spot with BCI, was the last major test for the Trojans who started the season with ten straight wins.

Quinte was not to be denied last night, and rebounded from two previous losses to Moira to take an 8-6 first quarter lead, before running up a 24-11 half-time margin, and a 35-23 third quarter lead.

Quinte played a tight 2-1-2 zone defence, and overguarded potent Trojan centre Paul Hayes, as 6'5" Quinte centre Steve "Stretch" Ogden rebounded extremely well.

Moira pressed in the second half, and might well have won the game with a better performance from the foul line. but the Trojans made good on only three of 13 foul shots in the final quarter while the Saints hit on 11 of 13 fourth quarter foul shots.

Tom Churchill's 11 points and seven points each by Steve Ogden, Steve Nash and Barry Culkin sparked the Saints to victory, while Paul Hayes threw in 18 points for Moira and Martin Warmald contributed ten.

The junior win highlighted a three game sweep by Quinte hoopsters, with the senior Saints winning 49-42 and the midgets 75-53.

Defensive rebounds by Steve McKeown and John Mywaart sparked the second place senior Saints' successful fast break and were the decisive factor in another wise defensive game.

John Mywaart with 12 points, Wayne Casselman with 11, Eric Emerson with eight and Steve McKeown and Leo Baker with seven points each, accounted for the bulk of the Quinte scoring, while nine points by Rob Rolston and eight by Ed Cox topped the Moira scoring list.

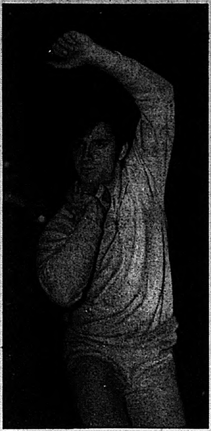
OSD Looks for World-beaters

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter



Wayne Wilson With Shot

The vast OSD gym is lighting up regularly at night these days as a dozen or so students at the Ontario School for the Deaf train to prepare themselves for the opportunity of a lifetime.

The athletes are currently engaging in indoor track and field practice almost daily, with the hope of representing Canada in the 11th World Games for the Deaf at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 9 16.

The OSD athletes are on the last leg of preparation for the Canadian Track and Field Final Trails at McMaster University, Saturday, May 3, 1969. It is at McMaster that the Belleville students will have to prove themselves and emerge from a field of 40 hopefuls in order to earn a berth on the Canadian Track and Field Team.

"I expect the Belleville students to make a good showing at McMaster," says Hyalie Bryant, the Supervisor of Physical Education at the OSD and the Chairman and coach of the Canadian Track and Field Team.

"We're strong in the 100, 200 and 400 metre dashes and the girls' high jump," commented Coach Bryant, "and I'm hoping that five or six Belleville students will make the Canadian Track and Field Team.

The World Games are held every four years the year following the regular Olympic Games,. and are recognized by the International Olympic Committee and the Canadian Federation of the Silent Sports, who are affiliated with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, and encourage athletics through both national and international competitions.

Canada was first represented at the World Games for the Deaf in 1965 at Washington, D.C., where 32 Canadian athletes captured four gold and four bronze medals in four events: swimming, track and field, cycling and basketball.

The Belgrade Games will see Canada participate in six events, track and field, swimming, table tennis, cycling, volleyball and basketball, and it is hoped that this year's enlarged 55 member team can bring home a similarly increased proportion of medals.

The Canadian Federation of the Silent Sports is currently conducting a nationwide fund-raising campaign in an attempt to raise the $100,000 needed to select and send a team to Yugoslavia.

The School for the Deaf will be conducting a local canvass to raise expense money for Belleville students who will represent Canada in the Belgrade World Games.

BCI Collegians Keep Rolling

STAFF — BCI hoopsters continued to roll up the wins last night, sweeping three games from Centennial and running the combined season's record of the three teams to 25 wins and five losses.

The seniors and midgets maintained their league leadership, while the defending Central Ontario championship junior squad downed fourth-place Centennial 48-34 to move within striking range of the league-leading Moira juniors, who lost their first game of the season last night.

Forward Dave Wright's 14 points sparked the junior win, while Brent Gallupe netted ten points and Mike Scarlett and Simmons contributed six each for the winners. Frank Johnston with 12 points, and John Lanning and Mike Thompson with six apiece were tops for the Chargers.

The senior Collegians extended their record to nine wins and a loss with an 34-35 win over the Chargers, while the midgets' 45-31 win left their league-leading record at eight wins and two losses.

The five BCI senior starters had a points feast as Brian Harder hit for 18 points, Ted Shaw and Bob Wright netted 16 apiece, Bill Mindenhall got 15 and Ken Richardson 14.

Five Hurt in Riot at Berkeley

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twenty sheriff's deputies arriving to supervise a picket line at the University of California campus at Barkeley were met by a barage of rocks, bottles, fruit and stinkbombs from a crowd of 500 militant protesters.

Police charged the crowd Wednesday and the ensuing violence, described as the worst to hit the campus during a month-long demonstration for more minority studies, resulted in five injuries and 25 arests. There were 35 windows broken.

During the day university officials announced the dismissal of one student in the first disciplinary action resulting from the current disorders. Sixty others are on interim suspension and face hearings.

Elsewhere there was relative calm in the wave of student unrest on campuses in the United States.

There were these developments:

Madison, Wis.—The University of Wisconsin faculty recommended a change in a long-standing policy against admitting students expelled or suspended from other state schools.

But on a 524-to-518 vote the faculty upheld the administration's denial of admission in the case of three Negroes suspended from the state university of Oshkosh after a demonstration last fall.

Chapel Hill, N.C.—The University of North Carolina warned students they will be criminally prosecuted if they attempt to seize a building on any of the school's four campuses.

Leaders of a Negro student movement seeking a black studies program at the Chapel Hill campus have said they will turn from "reform to revolution" if their demands are not met by Friday.

Canton, N.Y.—Students at St. Lawrence University no longer are demonstrating about the exodus of good faculty members—they're trying to do something about it by raising money. So far they've collected $10,000.

Montreal Court Busy

Bail Granted Most Accused

MONTREAL (CP) — Applications for bail from 34 of 89 persons charged in last week's $2,000,000 rampage at Sir George Williams University were to be heard today.

The applications included one from Joseph Cheddi Jagan, son of Cheddi Jagan, Opposition leader in Guyana.

Also scheduled today was the preliminary hearing of one of the accused, Kennedy J. Fredericks, 29, of Grenada, West Indies.

In applications processed Wednesday:

—Three students were denied bail;

—Twenty-five were granted bail and released from detention;

—Twenty-six others granted bail failed to come up with deposits before court offices closed and spent their eighth night in cells.

At one point in the proceedings, Municipal Court Judge Emmett J. McManamy had to eject from the courtroom Rev. A. Kendall Smith, a Harlem civil rights leader who was distributing pamphlets calling for immediate release of the students.

The three denied bail were Mark Medicoff, 21, a white Montrealer, and two students from Trinidad, Jose Amoroso, 24, and Ian Belgrave, 23. They will remain in jail pending preliminary hearings Feb. 26.

Originally, 90 adults and seven juveniles under 18 were arrested on charges of conspiracy to commit arson and to destroy property after a two-week sit-in at the university's computer centre culiminated in a destruction spree nine days ago.

Occupation of the ninth-floor computer centre was to protest the makeup of a university committee investigating charges of racism laid against an assistant biology professor by six West Indian students.

One of the 90 accused—James Lodge, 19, of Montreal—was freed Wednesday by Judge McManamy after charges against him were dropped by the university. Police investigation revealed that Lodge was arrested outside the university and "was not involved in the incidents inside."

Another Montrealer, Joan Florence Katz, 18, was granted bail in Superior Court last Friday because she had recently undergone an operation.

Of the 89 adults accused, 41 are Negroes. Twenty-four come from Caribbean-area countries.

In other developments, conspiracy charges against six white juveniles were withdrawn in preliminary hearings in social welfare court and were replaced by a single charge of public mischief. The six were released in custody of their parents.

The 51 granted bail Wednesday were told to refrain from taking part in public demonstrations. They were not to "set foot" on university property until the outcome of the cases, with preliminary hearing also set for Feb. 26.

Bails ranged between $1,000 and $5,000.

Bail for the West Indian students was posted by their governments.

Representing Jamaica in court was R. F. Dunkley, acting high commissioner in Ottawa, and representing Barbados was Owen Rowe, a counsellor to the Barbados high commission in Ottawa.

Five of those granted bail were Trinidadian students.

Bail was set at $2,000 for Glenda Edwards and Edmund Michael, both 22, and at $5,000 for Andrew Rennie, 22, Hugo Ford, 24, and Robert Ranjitsing, 26.

Non-Canadians granted bail were asked to leave their passports with police.

Bail for Montrealers attending Sir George Williams was between $1,000 and $2,000.

Others were ordered to post the following:

Jean-Luc Arenne, 20 and Jean Decarie, 18, two University of Montreal students, $2,500 bail;

Mary Ellen McQuay, 21, of Whitby, Ont., and Connie Lang, 18, of Lancaster, Ont., $3,000 bail each.

Denise Simpson, 19, and Lucille Whilby, 22, both of Kingston, Jamaica, $3,000 each.

Hartley Marshall, 22, of Barbados was granted bail of $4,000, a higher amount Judge McManamy said, because she is in Canada under the Commonwealth Caribbean Assistance Program and had signed a document promising not to take part in any political activity.

McGill Students Unhappy

MONTREAL (CP) — Student representatives on the McGill University senate said Wednesday they will ask the student society to vote on whether they should resign from the university's governing body.

Robert Hajaly, student society president, said after a senate meeting that the 62-member body had refused to discuss "vital issues concerning education in Quebec."

"It has become painfully apparent that we are regarded as no more than second-class citizens on the senate. Many of the issues which we consider of prime importance have been on the agenda since last October."

The seven student representatives objected to the senate's decision to spend most of Wednesday's meeting approving Principal H. Rocke Robertson's decision to press charges against a political science lecturer, Stanley Gray.

At the bridge table you must plan the play of a hand seeing only two of the hands, and this is understandingly difficult. However, some hands are difficult to manage even when all four hands are exposed, and are classified as double-dummy problems. Try to make seven spades on today's hand before reading on.

Opening lead K clubs

After receiving the King of clubs as the opening lead, it is extremely easy to go wrong by winning the Ace of clubs and discarding one of the losing hearts. However, if you do this, you find yourself locked in dummy after drawing trumps, no matter how hard you try, and end up either having to lead a club to West, or having one of your high diamonds trumped.

However, observe what happens if you study the entire hand carefully before playing to the first trick, as you should, and spot the fact that the Ace and King of diamonds are a liability, and must be gotten rid of somehow. So, you throw a diamond on the Ace of clubs, saving both the small hearts to reduce the length of trumps in dummy. Then, a trump to the Ace, Ace of hearts pitching the King of diamonds from dummy, ruff a heart in dummy, a trump back to your hand for a second heart ruff in dummy. At this stage you note that dummy now has one less trump than your own hand, and so you continue drawing two more rounds of trump, throwing away the Ace of diamonds on the last trump lead from your hand. The rest of the tricks are yours with the good diamonds in your own hand.

Sale of Oil Leases Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, in his third action of the week aimed at preventing another "Santa Barbara tragedy," today called off the sale of offshore oil and gas leases.

The sale of 27 Gulf Coast tracts that could have brought the government millions of dollars, was scheduled for next Tuesday and was the only such sale of federal offshore leases imminent.

More Freedom Cures Revolt

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

The trouble with advice is that you don't know whose to take; and if you know whose to take, you don't need advice.

• • •

I read a motto the other day that went: "Shallow men believe in luck; strong men believe in cause and effect." It should have added that wise men know that luck often intervenes between cause and effect.

• • •

A good chairman of a meeting is one who has the ability to let each person speak his piece without letting the meeting to to pieces.

• • •

The kind of "love" that separates lovers from the world is only a form of infatuation; the only love capable of being permanent and productive is that which joins the lovers to the world, and radiates its influence rather than reciprocating it between only two.

• • •

The way to cure the symptoms of revolt in this country, or in any country, is by more freedom, not less; as C. Stanley Lowell points out: "Revolution in a free country is a contradiction in terms — freedom exists for the purpose of making revolution unnecessary."

• • •

In evaluating vandalism against schools, it's worth considering whether it's committed by children who aren't worthy of the schools or against schools that aren't worthy of the children.

• • •

One reason that modern rock music doesn't get through to adults is that we were conditioned to listen only to the tune, and the lyrics were irrelevant or hopelessly banal; but in modern tunes, the words are crucial to any appreciation of what the song is trying to say.

The medical diagnosis is not "cause" of death — the medical diagnosis may be "congestive heart failure," but the cause of death may be alcoholism; or the medical diagnosis may be "natural causes," but the true cause of death may be melancholia and loss of self-esteem.

• • •

The fact that we are so preoccupied with the idea of "conforming" is the best evidence that we are not conforming too much — for a genuinely conforming culture is unaware of what it is doing, and assumes that the conventional is the natural.

• • •

We have studied the way men behave under stress in jungles, in deserts, marooned on islands, underwater in submarines, and even encapsulated in outer space — but the way millions are forced to behave under the permanent stress of the asphalt jungle in urban slums has not been studied sufficiently to evoke the widespread sympathy that would be necessary to abolish this distorted environment.

What are we spending for "military research" — and how much for that almost unknown phrase, "peace research?"

Iraq Liquidates Spies

No Jews Among 7 Executed

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Iraq executed seven young men as spies for Israel today, but there were no Jews among them and the bodies were not put on display until after the executions.

Israel was expected to issue a denial of any complicity, but it appeared unlikely that there would be a repetition of the storm of foreign protests which followed the public execution last month of nine Iraqi Jews and five Moslems as spies for the Jewish nation.

Baghdad radio cancelled regular programs this morning and broadcast repeated announcements of the executions in what appeared to be an invitation to crowds to go to the capital's Liberation Square, where the bodies were hanging.

The seven Iraqi Moslems, all between 19 and 24 years of age, were condemned after a three-week trial before Iraq's revolutionary court. The government radio said two were soldiers, and they were shot by firing squads, while five civilians were hanged at Baghdad's central prison.

A third soldier also was sentenced to death, the broadcast said, but his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by President Ahmed Hassan al Bakr because he "helped authorities uncover the detailed activities of the ring."

The court said the eight men had collected information about Iraq's air force bases and radar screens and communicated them to Israel through a non-commissioned officer who is still at large. He was said to have headed the group.

Those executed were identified as army Ptes. Mohammed Ismail and Mohammed Ghafour, civilian workers Abdulla Dawood and Abdulla Jasin Jubouri, students Imad Hannoun and Tayeb Janabi, and blacksmith Abbas Salloun.

The radio blared out news of the executions to the accompaniment of martial music and patriotic songs, interspersed by the reading of cables of support from public organizations demanding that the government "liquidate every spy on Iraqi soil."

It said the ring was uncovered when the soldier who was later reprieved was caught red-handed in Jordan, where he was stationed.

Today's executions "closed the second chapter in the long story of spying in Iraq," the radio said.

Another group of Iraqis, including four noted merchants, is reported to have gone on trial before the court two weeks ago on charges of spying for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. But there has been no information on the progress of their secret trial.

Million Facing Starvation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without dramatically increased relief efforts, more than 1,000,000 Biafrans soon will starve in "an indirect form of genocide," Senator Charles E. Goodell (Rep. N.Y.) said Wednesday.

Goodell, who recently returned from a fact-finding trip to the African secessionist state, called for a much more active effort by the United Nations in bringing about a ceasefire in the Biafra-Nigeria civil war.

"A conflict which . . . is already responsible for well over 2,000,000 dead cannot be shrugged off as an internal matter lacking in international concern," he said.

Sing Out Group

Teenagers Entertain in Germany

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

One hundred and five members of the CFB Trenton Centennial Singout went to Lahr, Germany, last week, and three of them stopped long enough to talk about it.

The vivacious young people first got together in September, 1967, and have been singing out ever since.

Their inspiration came from an American group called Up With People — a similar grouping of young vocal talent.

The young adults set about organizing a Canadian counterpart of what they had seen, an appropriate Centennial project that just kept going and growing.

The bulk of the members are from Trenton, with about a dozen from the Belleville area, and a few from other districts such as Bayside and Frankford.

Singout concerts are usually given every month or two, and have always met tremendous public response.

"It's a kind of crusade," is the way Tim Smith explained it. He cited the other Air Force Bases the cast had performed at — Gimili, Bagotville, and Edmonton.

In each of these place, a singout group has since been formed. It's the type of thing that goes on and on, almost like a chain reaction.

This chain reaction even spilled over into Lahr, Germany, and there is some doubt as to whether or not it will ever stop.

The average Canadian teenager, because he is just that, average, doesn't very often have the chance to go to Europe.

Give an average Canadian teenager that chance, and don't be surprised if there is an over-reaction or even varying degrees of hysteria. And that's the way it really was.

"Everyone was really excited, jumping up and down," laughed Sheila. "But coming back we were all so tired — almost dead beat," she added.

The eleven-hour trip over was great or rough. The way Liz put it, "it was great if you are the kind that doesn't get air sick".

The biggest difficulty they encountered coming back was the time change — which they termed "just awful."

"We got a wonderful reception when we arrived in Lahr ,it was good to see so many of the kids out," remembered Sheila.

The young people there impressed the group as very friendly — making them feel right at home.

"We were always on the go, and on a really tight schedule" said Sheila. "Everything we did was planned out, so that we had very little free time," added Liz.

"Because of the inflexible schedule," explained Sheila, "we hardly had any real time to gain a true impression of what the German young people were like. They appeared to be friendly, though, at least the ones I met."

Lahr, as an Air Base, is not concentrated like Trenton. It is scattered throughout the city — with the personnel married quarters in one section, and Air Force personnel living in different parts of the area.

Each show that was done was "open" — for both children and adults.

They even did one concert for the Lord Mayor of Lahr, who presented them with a plaque showing the crest of the city.

Audiences were composed of equal numbers of children and adults — always enthusiastic about the show, and filling the halls to capacity.

"The most disappointing thing about the trip," said Liz, "was that we were caught in the middle of one of the worst snow storms of the year, which we weren't prepared for, naturally.

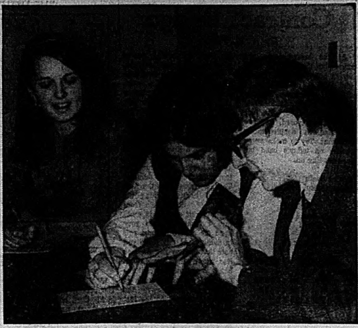
Joining the swelling ranks of the singout group does not require any special qualifications. Only the ability to sing, and the desire to work with loyalty and dedication for the betterment of the group.

The key here is motivation. The whole idea of singout is to create a unified world, using the singout creed of love, honesty, purity and unselfishness.

"Singout is a kind of positive demonstration. We are tired of the negative, and the 'down with everything' attitude," Sheila emphasized.

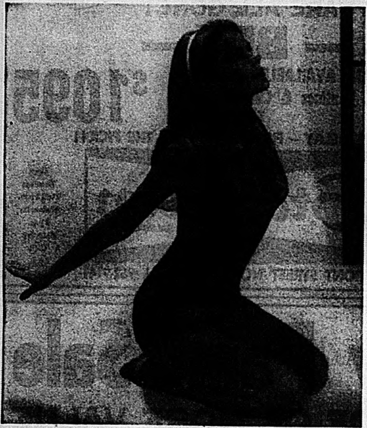
"That spirit of happiness and involvement the public sees on stage is not put-on. When you become a part of Singout, it changes you, you get a really good feeling doing these songs, and giving people enjoyment," she said.

Their next concert will be Feb. 28 and March 1st, when they will combine forces with the Air Force Association and the Air Cadets, with all profits going towards the Trenton Memorial Fund.



They Came Back...

Liz Bellstedt (left), Sheila Jourard (centre) and Tim Smith are members of CFB Trenton's Centennial Singout group. The cast recently returned from a singing visit to Lahr, Germany, with all 105 members participating. They left Canada Feb. 7, and returned Feb. 13.



Fitness means the same all over the world, but each country has its own way of achieving the same result. Karen Huston demonstrates the Japanese approach.

International Exercises

By
REBA AND BONNIE
CHURCHILL

Fitness is international. Here are a trio of exercises representing three different countries. From London, where the mini-skirt was born, girls naturally are interested in trim-firm limbs. English gym classes frequently include this workout designed to keep legs, especially the thighs, in shapely condition. Sit on floor, feet apart. Bend knees and grasp ankles. Body will tilt back as you extend legs to a full stretch. Repeat four times. As balance improves and muscles strengthen, hold extended pose three seconds before returning to original position. Like the mini skirt, this routine should be performed by the young or those athletically inclined who enjoy vigorous exercise.

From Rio comes this conditioning bit of calisthenics. Benefits to arms and legs are obvious. However, repeat its reach and stretch action four times and its effect on abdominal muscles becomes evident. As actress Karen Huston, featured in the 20th film "Justine" illustrates, sit on floor with knees bent. Lean back so that right arm supports upper torso. Now, raise left leg and extend left arm as far down elevated limb as possible. Can you touch the knee and then the calf? With practice agility increases and you may be able to grasp the ankle or foot. Alternate sides. South American athletes repeat exercise with right leg fully extended for maximum stretch.

The next stop on our global gymnastics tour is Tokyo, where grace, relaxation and breath control are emphasized. Japanese girls often include "the flying bird" — as this routine is called — in their classes. Kneel on floor, buttocks lightly resting on heels. Inhale through the nose as you lift chest and head, then swing arms back. Exhale through the mouth as you return arms to sides. After three rehearsals, the same action is repeated an additional time. As arms are extended, torso is gently lifted, so derriere is at least four inches from feet. Then relax. Keep pace slow, movements graceful, and breathing rhythmic.

Centennial Produces Only School Weekly

By ALEX DUNN

Brenda Henderson, editor of the Centurian and a grade 11 student at Centennial Secondary School, last week told why Centennial prints the only weekly school newspaper in Belleville.

"It is due," Miss Henderson said, "to the participation and support of the students of Centennial and the support of the staff."

About 30 students put the paper out after writing, editing and rewriting it. These students are amateur journalists, sports writers, cartoonists and typists. The staff advisors, Mrs. H. Harvie, Mr. D. Anderson and Miss Laundry are members of the English and commercial departments.

The Centurian, usually eight pages in length, carries student opinions, news, sports, school gossip and, of course, jokes.

Each week, 200 copies are printed, about 50 for subscribers and the remaining ones for sale at five cents a copy.

Centennial will be, in the future, the foremost secondary school in Belleville unless there is some competition from other schools. This is a challenge. Any takers?

Youth Parade

BCI to Present Kampus Kapers

By LYNN ELLIOTT

This week at Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School saw long hours of rehearsing for the annual variety show, Kampus Kapers.

This year, under the direction of Mr. MacMillan, the show includes singing acts, dancing acts, comedy routines dramatics and gymnastics. The format, however, is different and the audience will be surprised.

The Charivaris will be back this year and the new acts are slaving long hours in the auditorium. The cast will give one performance for public schools Thursday afternoon and regular performances are scheduled for Friday and Saturday nights at 50 cents for students and 75 cents for adults.

Last week was Keyette week at BCI and the Keyette Club never once let the pace slow down. They shined shoes for slave-driving teachers at noon hours, sold candy hearts to mark St. Valentine's day and staged an assembly on Wednesday morning. The assembly was a spoof on school in general and since so few students here take the time or energy to give this kind of entertainment, it was greatly enjoyed by the audience. Valentines were given out to deserving teachers and the public speaking finalists gave their winning speeches.

The Keyette Valentine Dance featuring J. Taylor and the Climax, was held Friday evening.

Nicholson Wins

By JUDY SCHRIEDER

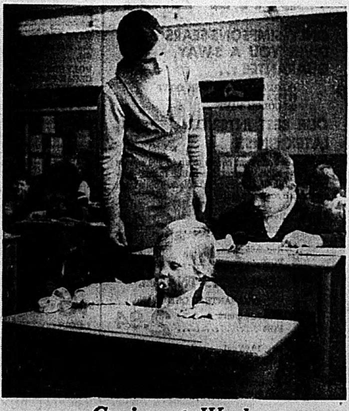
When Queen Victoria, in speaking to A. J. Balfour, said "We are not interested in the possibilities of defeat," she was not speaking of the hoped-for victory of a basketball team.

But her words seem to express appropriately, the feelings of the Nicholson Catholic College coaches and their teams. With a triple victory over Madoc Monday night the bantams and juniors now hold the Bay of Quinte title, and the seniors are tied for the honor.

The athletes of Nicholson were not the only ones who succeeded in bringing laurels to the school within the past week.

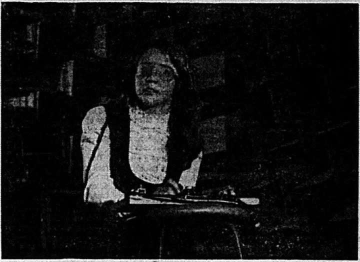
Having captured the senior public speaking award at Nicholson, anet Bonn went on to win the city finals and will represent Belleville in the zone competition.

Another Nicholson student, Sandra Nolan, came out in first place after the delivery of her impromptu speech. Within the school, Debbie Anderson won the junior public speaking contest.



Genius at Work

Larisa Eluchok isn't really a 15-month-old genius. Slippery roads at London, Ont., kept her schoolteacher mother from getting her to the baby sitter, so Larisa got a front-row seat for her pre-school school career.



Hearing With the Eyes

A young student in a soundproof room lined with wedges of foam plastic wears a pair of goggles to vary the intensity of light while listening through headphones to a machine that emits a series of noises pitched at different levels. She is part of a team investigating the theory that the sight and sound sensory systems "leak" information to each other.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

NAPANEE — Camden East Cub pack and Scout troop joined the Third Napanee Cubs and Scouts for the annual parade to Trinity Church last Sunday morning, to mark the Baden Powell week. Mrs. Jennie Morgan is the Cub leader in Camden East.

Leader of the Third Napanee Scouts is Robert Leclair, and leaders of the Cubs are Mrs. Eleanor Tack and Mrs. Clifford Gibson. Both the Napanee Cub leaders wore the new gray uniforms for the first time for the church parade.

Color bearers for the Scouts were Stewart Turriff and Karl Johnston, and for the Cubs, Robert MacDonald. There was an excellent attendance of boys and all leaders were present.

The theme of the service was brotherhood of all men and the sermon delivered by the minister, Rev. E. Irvine Johnston emphasized the theme, as he expanded his subject, "God made of one blood all nations".

Thursday has been set as the date for the Scout and Cub father-son banquet of the Third Napanee Scouts and Cubs to be held in Trinity Church banquet hall.

Friday at 2.30 p.m., CKWS TV Almanac will present two Napanee Cubs, Douglas Johnston and Peter Clark and their Akela, Mrs. Eleanor Tack, in a tribute to Baden Powell.

OFTEN RECORDED

Two records which have been recorded between 800 and 900 times in the United States alone are St. Louis Blues and Stardust.

Sports Awards Show Appeals to TV Fans

NEW YORK (AP) — The awards program of the Academy of Professional Sports Wednesday night on NBC held for the average viewer the same appeal as the movie and TV awards shows—a chance to see the stars in action.

It was amusing to note that most of the acceptance speeches of basketball, football and hockey stars sounded exactly like those of the movie and TV stars—they thanked their teams, without whom they never would have made it.

Jockey Johnny Longden, accepting the horse racing award for absent winner Angel Cordero, drew one of the evening's biggest laughs when he thanked the horses, without whom the jockey could not have made it.

Perry Como was the easy-mannered host. The program started out at a leisurely pace. At one point, Jack Benny and Sam Snead were involved in a long golf story. In fact it went along so casually that most of the final 20 minutes moved at a gallop in order to leave time for the final commercial and get off the air on time.

The fact that the show was live made it pretty uneven, but it still should have pointed the way to some improvements in the over-long and often confused Emmy and Oscar shows.

For one thing, there was a non-nonsense method used in which the names of the nominees were announced followed by brief film or tape clips showing each in action and then, with no further ado and fussing with envelops, announcing the winner.

Denny McLain of baseball's Detroit Tigers was elected professional Athlete of the Year as well as top player in the American League.

Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals won the National League nod. In football, it was Joe Namath of New York Jets for the AFL and Earl Morrall of Baltimore Colts for the NFL. Billy Casper was picked for golf; Wes Unseld of Baltimore Bullets for basketball and Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks for hockey.

The winners were elected by their colleagues and competitors except for the athlete of the year, who was voted by sports writers.

First Stage Approval For Three Year Term

Belleville's request for a three-year term of office for city council and members of the public utilities commission has been approved by the Provincial private bills committee.

City Solicitor Guss Porter presented the request in Toronto yesterday and with approval of the committee will now go to the Ontario Legislature.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said approval by the Legislature was expected to be automatic.

Belleville ratepayers at the last municipal election gave their sanction to the three year term of office for council and utilities members to be elected this fall.

The proposed three year term of office was to bring the municipal election in line with that of the county school board which last December was elected for a two year term.

In 1972 council and utility commission members would be elected for two year terms with municipal and school board elections again co-inciding.

WON MOST OSCARS

Walter (Walt) Elias Disney has won more Oscars, awards of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, than any other person.

SURPRISE! THE BIRDIE IS WATCHING YOU

What was the world really like in the early centuries? We have to depend upon the artists of long ago for pictures of what life in general and people were like. The first cameras became popular in the 19th century, and people have been saying "Cheese" by the millions ever since.

If someone just gifted you with a new camera, don't throw your old one in the closet. — Someone is reading The Intelligencer Want Ads today with a good used camera in mind. Help him and you.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Some Folk Worry Too Much About Cholesterol Level

Are you a cholesterolophobe? Before you stumple over the word "cholesterolophobe" let's break it down. It's simpler than it sounds or looks. By this time most people have heard of cholesterol — and how it is somehow tied in with atherosclerosis and heart attacks, strokes kidney disease and other major menaces to health.

As for "phobe" it is equally evident that it means fear. So a cholesterolophobe is one who lives in daily apprehension that he may be producing (or taking in his diet) too much cholesterol. For example:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I believe in prevention. I believe in keeping my husband around as long as possible. But I think he has gone overboard on a cholesterol kick. A friend of his died recently of a coronary attack. My husband knew that this man had had a higher - than - normal cholesterol. Therefore, he has become a bug on everything he eats. He is, in other words, a feeding problem.

Mind you, I wouldn't care about being careful about what I fed him if there was a reason for it. But our doctor has looked him over carefully. He says he sees no reason for excessive precautions at this time.

My husband is only 38. His blood cholesterol is even lower than average. The doctor says his electrocardiograms, X-rays, lab tests and all other exams show him to be a perfectly healthy specimen. Still, he's afraid to eat a steak or a bit of butter, or cheese, or anything else which is supposed to contain saturated fats.

I'd appreciate your opinion. If you think as our doctor does, perhaps my husband will change his mind if he reads it in your column. — Mrs. J.

Comment: I've said it here before, and it bears repetition, that the person with a poor family history, who himself has a high blood cholesterol (especially if he has diabetes or high blood pressure), and has changes in his electrocardiogram — should definitely beware of eating too many saturated fats (cheeses, ice cream, butter, fatty meats, etc.). As there seems to be some connection between abnormally high cholesterol and heart attacks, why not play it safe?

However, I agree with the commonsense advice of your family doctor. In your husband's case, I think he has become a cholesterolophobe. He is too frightened for no reason. Like the man who refuses to cross the street because a friend was killed doing so.

I would tell such a patient to begin living, and not just existing in fear. Let him have a normal diet. In fact, I'm not being facetious when I say, invite him out to the corner drugstore for a banana split tonight.

If today's column has any impact on him at all, he'll accept. Otherwise, you still have a problem on your hands.

* * *

For Mr. U.: If you definitely have angina (although your ECG tracings don't show too much change), and your cholesterol reading is as high as you say, I'm definitely in favor of your restricting the saturated fats in your diet.

* * *

For Mrs. O.: I'm not in favor of prescribing daily laxatives. The bowel becomes too lazy, begins to depend upon them, and constipation becomes worse. However, if you insist on taking them, my choice would be milk of magnesia rather than the mineral oil you take every night. Mineral oil tends to interfere with absorption of necessary vitamins.

Best of all for cure is establishing a daily stool habit. Taking the time for elimination, and letting nothing interfere (phone calls, appointments, etc.)

Young Practise Brotherhood

The younger citizens of Belleville are observing the significance of Brotherhood Week.

In order to promote the week ,the Belleville Jaycees, with the help of the separate and public school boards, sponsored a poster contest.

The contest was open to all public and separate schools in Belleville and the result was approximately 400 entrants.

The object of the project was to have the young children give their impression of Brotherhood and what it means to them. Prizes were awarded on the theme rather than on artistic ability.

Prize money was donated by the Jaycees. First prize was $10, secoend prize was $5 and 10 third prizes of $2 were awarded.

Susan Bowler, 8, and John Taylor, 9, both of Prince of Wales Public School, took first and second prizes respectively.

Windsor Students for Rebels But Vote Against Striking

The students, in one question, were asked if they favored equal representation of students on decision-making bodies; open policy meetings; reinstatement of theologian Dr. William Kelly —his release sparked the demonstration—if he so wishes and amnesty for the dissenters.

The question was favored 1,333 to 1,005 in a campus vote.

The second question, asking students to support a strike if the protest fails to achieve changes, was defeated 1,579 to 847.

A student spokesman said the turnout, involving about half the 4,000 students on campus, was "the biggest in years."

Jim Kehoe, vice-president of the Students Administrative Council and one of the occupiers who are holding the theology and classics departments and part of the psychology department, said he thought the dissident students had succeeded in the referendum.

He said he thought the vote in favor of the demands would have been higher if there had not been confusion between the demands of the occupiers and the occupation issue itself, and if there had not been "inflammatory comment" just prior to the vote.

Churchill Key Constituency In Four Manitoba Byelections

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's rambling Churchill constituency is ranked as the cliffhanger among four key provincial byelections today.

"Every vote cast will be under a microscope," says observers who explain that all parties indicate they expect a close race among the four candidates in the riding.

As a result, voting lists and other election procedures are under close scrutiny and agents for the candidates have been boning up on the technicalities that could aid in requests for recounts.

The constituency is the largest in the province and, of the four vacant, has shown the most significant increase in the number of eligible voters since the 1966 general election. There are 12,249 eligible today compared with 8,699 in 1966. More than half are in the fast-growing mining town of Thompson.

In the four ridings, there are 35,681 voters eligible to cast ballots before polls close at 8 p.m. CST. There are 13 candidates—an independent joined Conservative, New Democratic and Liberal aspirants in Churchill—contesting the byelections.

In addition to Churchill, Birtle-Russell, Wolseley and Morris are vacant and the outcome could sway the balance of power in the legislature. With the four vacant, the standings in the 57-seat house were 28 Conservatives, 13 Liberals, 11 New Democrats and one Social Credit.

The Progressive Conservative administration of Premier Walter Weir held three of the vacant constituencies and the Liberals had the other.

Conservatives must win at least two seats to retain over-all majority without the Speaker's vote. The NDP, with nothing to lose, could supplant the Liberals as the official opposition with three wins.

Three constituencies became vacant through resignations: Former premier Duff Roblin resigned Wolseley and Rod Clement gave up Birtle-Russell—the seat held by the Liberals—as both contested last year's federal election, and Gordon Beard resigned Churchill because he said he could do more for the north outside the legislature. Morris became vacant on the death of Harry Shewman.

Your birthday today: Get ready to explore new meanings of life. All your preconceived ideas are likely to be upset this year; the things people do provide a living classroom. Prepare to add your contribution to your community. Educational and romantic interests are encouraged all year. Today's natives tend to be versatile, diplomatic, good hosts, with here and there among them startling ability for original thought.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Doing is preferable to talking; too many opinions build up your tensions and impatience. Just don't mix theory with business early in the day. The evening is better for discussion of intellectual issues.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Concentration on the necessary factors is your province today. Nearly everyone else seems more interested in round-table discussions rather than actual accomplishment.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The morning is a bit out of focus, so gear your day for the the day allow your affairs to manage themselves quite well, provided you do not fuss.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Your friends prove to be your best allies. Economy is difficult but worthy of your greatest self-tonight.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Review your wardrobe and wear your brightest colors. Faultfinding stirs up constant quibbling back and forth. Instead, put the energy into some sustained effort at self-improvement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Think in terms of assets and figures today. Check your facts impersonally, without emotional judgments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Partnership affairs improve greatly. Review all matters relating to savings, resources, financial security. Meditate this evening, conserve energy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Give yourself every possible break to take it easy; family discussions are favored, particularly if low-key. Go along with group decisions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Friends, and oddly enough, pets occupy your mind today. Your friends are inclined to waste money, while the pets put themselves out to create emotional turmoil. (A gentle hand is a calming influence.)

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You can have smooth sailing if you will remember not to take the morning's news literally. There are a dozen things to do around your home and work area for tidying up. All the energy you have will find a good target.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Home and family affairs present the easiest and most constructive channel for your drive at this time. An aura of uncertainty leads toward misunderstanding in business and commercial estimates.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You mislay papers and say entirely too much about things that are not your affair. If you can get past these two minor hindrances, a great deal of happiness can be earned today.

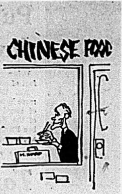
Sharp Sees NATO Role as Essential

China Responds



OTTAWA (CP) — The Chinese government has responded to preliminary Canadian initiatives for diplomatic recognition, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Thursday.

"I expect the negotiations or discussions will proceed normally," he told John Diefenbaker, former Conservative leader.

Mr. Sharp had asked the Canadian embassy in Stockholm 2½ weeks ago to make preliminary contact through the Chinese embassy there regarding negotiations.

Outside the Commons Mr. Sharp told reporters he was surprised how quickly the Chinese government responded to the Canadian overtures.

Now it must be decided whether the talks on recognition should be held, Mr. Sharp said.

Real Question Is How to Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has given the firmest indication yet that in his view there is no credible alternative to continued Canadian membership in NATO.

Answering questions Thursday night following an address he gave at Carleton University, Mr. Sharp left the impression that the important point is not whether Canada should remain in NATO but the role it should play in the Atlantic defence system.

At one stage he said: "What we should be asking ourselves is, how can we best fit into collective defence?"

At another point he said there are "still many open questions" as to what role Canada should play if it remains in NATO. "I believe this is the area that is open to study."

Mr. Sharp declined to state categorically that the government does not intend to pull Canada out of NATO.

However, the burden of proof was on the opponents of NATO to show that withdrawal would better serve Canadian interests than membership in the alliance.

In his prepared address, winding up a series sponsored by Carleton on the role of middle powers in a changing world, Mr. Sharp said the problems of a divided Europe will not disappear if Canada opts out of NATO.

"In or out of NATO, Canada cannot isolate herself from the consequences of failure to establish a stable order in Europe."

Noting that policy towards NATO is currently under review he said: "I have yet to hear any convincing argument that, if Canada wants to play a part in ensuring her own security, in the resolution of the security problems of Europe that directly affect our own fate, and in mitigating the confrontation between the super-powers, we could do so as effectively as within some such collective effort as NATO."

U.S. Should Prevail

OTTAWA (CP) — After hearing a series of suggestions that Canada sever her military alliances, the Commons defence and foreign affairs committee Thursday heard a sharply contrasting view — that the opinions of the United States be given prime priority in Canadian defence planning.

David A. Golden, former deputy minister of defence production and now president of Air Industries Association of Canada, said American opinions should, on occasion, be allowed to override Canadian judgments.

"In other words, Canada should play a role in defensive measures considered important by the U.S., even if our assessment of the necessity of such measures should be at variance with that made by the U.S."

This is not to say, he added, that Canada should surrender her right to make objective judgments — "and there are many occasions when it would be unthinkable of Canada to yield." But Canada should give high consideration to the onerous responsibility borne by the United States.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Sunny conditions are forecast for most of Ontario today with cloud beginning to edge into the western Great Lakes region. Saturday is expected to be mainly cloudy and mild with some rain likely in the southwest and occasional snow near Lake Superior.

Orbital Bombs Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. defence officials say they think the Soviet Union has decided to deploy a system of bombs which could be rocketed into space and fired before completing their first orbit.

They indicate that accumulating evidence, presumably gathered from Soviet tests monitored by the United States, points toward the Kremlin's intentions to mount the program, called a Fractional Orbital Bombardment System.

An FOBS would be boosted into a low orbit, generally about 100 miles above earth, and would be fired by remote control at ground targets before completing its first circuit.

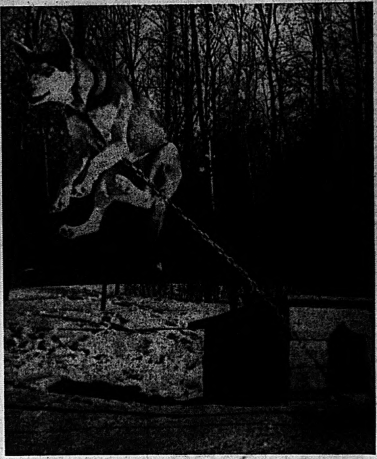
Officials refuse to discuss intelligence, but it is known that the Russians have conducted at least 13 FOBS tests. The first seven reported flopped, but the next six were said to have worked.

The Soviet Union's experiments with an orbital bomb were disclosed by Defence Secretary Robert McNamara Nov. 3, 1967.

Despite the surprise potential of an orbital bomb, the United States has been developing radar that can "see" over the horizon, giving the alarm shortly after such a warhead is launched.

Another possible defence could come from the Sentinel missile defence system.



Crossbred!

President of Pakistan Will Quit at Year-end

KARACHI (CP) — President Mohammad Ayub Khan, bowing before four months of massive opposition pressure, announced today he is quitting at the end of this year. He has been president since 1958.

In a nationwide broadcast, Ayub said he will not stand for re-election when his term ends in January.

"My decision is final and irrevocable," he said.

The anti-government movement gained momentum following Bhutto's arrest last Nov. 13 on charges of inciting the Pakistani masses to violence.

Trudeau Will Visit Nixon

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will visit Washington March 24-25 for two days of talks with President Nixon.

Mr. Trudeau made the announcement today at the opening of the Commons.

The visit will take place shortly after the President's return from his European tour, which begins this Sunday.

Mr. Trudeau said the visit will permit him to share the impressions gained by the president on his European tour.

Mr. Trudeau told the House he is looking forward to the opportunity to discuss with the president a wide range of questions of mutual interest to Canada and the U.S.

Leaders of the opposition parties all welcomed the announcement.

Everybody Unhappy

QUEBEC (CP) — Cultural Affairs Minister Jean-Noel Tremblay said Thursday a government bill designed to protect English - language rights in the province apparently has failed to satisfy partisans of either side.

Mr. Tremblay, a member of the national assemby's education committee which is hearing briefs on the bill, remarked that it is clear the bill "satisfies neither English - nor French - speaking people."

This was taken by some observers as an indication that the government may drop the bill.

The minister, considered a Quebec nationalist in the Union Nationale government, said he still foresees a place for French as the language of common usage in Quebec — but with respect for the province's second language.

The bill, besides guaranteeing the right of English-speaking Quebecers to obtain English school instruction for their children, would require high school graduates in the province to pass an examination in oral and written French before getting diplomas.

Nixon Plans Parley

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Nixon intends to tell European leaders next week of hopes for a series of step-by-step contacts with Russia which might lead to a summit conference within a year, diplomats said today.

There were growing indications that American ideas for a new approach to East-West relations would dominate Nixon's talks with Allied governments during a five-nation European tour starting Sunday.

Russia Planning Manoeuvres

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia and East Germany will hold joint military manoeuvres apparently timed to coincide with West German electoral college presidential election in West Berlin March 5.

The Soviet news agency Tass said early today the manoeuvres—supervised by Soviet Marshal Ivan Yakubovsky, commander-in-chief of the Warsaw pact—would take place in central and western areas of East Germany.

Observers believed the exercises could be used as a pretext to delay land traffic to West Berlin for the elections—bitterly opposed by Moscow and East Germany.

Soviet opposition is based on the contention that West Berlin is an independent political entity under Allied jurisdiction and is not West German territory.

Protection of Law Urged for Smokers Who Can't Kick Habit

OTTAWA (CP) — About one-third of cigarette smokers may never be able to kick the habit and deserve legislative steps to protect them, Dr. G. W. Moss, Toronto's deputy medical health officer, said Thursday night.

Dr. Moss, technical director of the Smoking Withdrawal Study Centre, recommended that tobacco be brought under the Food and Drug Act so that tar and nicotine content could be regulated along with advertising, packaging, labelling and the addition of additives.

"The point has been reached when some steps have to be taken through regulation to protect the consumer of cigarettes," Dr. Moss told the Commons anti-smoking inquiry.

After nearly two years experience with Toronto's smoking withdrawal centre, it was apparent that about one-third of smokers can break the cigarette habit, another third can modify it and the remaining third fail no matter how strongly they want to quit.

Dr. Moss urged continued education against smoking to steer people away from cigarettes and help those who can help themselves to give them up.

Dr. Moss disagreed with Ottawa psychologist Dr. F. Robert Wake who told the committee earlier in the day that he thinks it quite possible teen-agers will have a sudden change of fad and not smoking will become the 'in' thing.

Dr. Wake reported on a number of studies by a research team at St. Patrick's College here aimed at smoking and the young.

He supported a ban on broadcasting of cigarette commercials before 10 p.m., as "at least a step in the right direction."

He maintained that these commercials, though aimed at adults, may in fact be far more attractive to the young because of the strong teen-age motivation to become adult as quickly as possible.

Studies of the effect of parents' smoking on children indicate that "the crucial factor is not that the parents smoke but rather how much the parents care that their children do not smoke."

Where parents smoke, try to quit and fail, but explain the situation to the child and make plain their concern for the child, "it is more probable the child will not smoke."

The studies also show that parents with children find it easier to quit than single persons or married people with no children.

Heaters Are Proposed For Belleville Arena

Renovations and improvements to the Belleville arena costing an estimated $30,000 have been recommended by an arena sub committee of the Belleville recreation-arena committee.

The recommendations, including installation of close to 1,000 seats and 80 electric infra-red heaters, were submitted yesterday to the recreation committee by sub committee chairman Joseph Cox.

Included among the recommendations were extensive painting and repairs of the service areas, washrooms and canteen dressing rooms, additional office space for the arena manager and a new public address system.

A total of 973 wooden tip-up seats are recommended for installation in the first three rows on the sides and in the end sections at a cost of $9,730.

The 80 electric heating units would cost $72 each with a total estimated cost, including wiring and services, of $7,460.

Additional ice surface lighting and a new boiler for heating of service areas, or suitable alternate heating were recommended but not included in the estimates.

The committee said that while many other repairs and renovations were needed at the arena, the adoption of the above recommendation would provide a clean, comfortable building for both spectators and participants.

It was held, however, that the seats and heatings were a first consideration.

Arena manager Robert Burrows said that many of the committee's recommendations were also included in his own proposals.

The recommendations of both Mr. Burrows and those of the committee were referred to the recreation arena committee budget meeting.

The arena sub committee composed of Mr. Cox, Mrs. J. Guthrie and Clifford Belch, was also named to go into plans for the installation of kitchen facilities at the new recreational building at the fairgrounds.

The recreation-arena committee voted to leave the ice in the arena until April 12 to accommodate a sports program to be hosted by the Canadian National Railways Rideau Area. The program will involve several hundred people in hockey, bowling, curling and social events.

Committee Member

New Ice Pads Opposed

At least one member of the Belleville recreation - arena committee can't see the value of artificial ice pads such as is proposed for the local fairgrounds.

She is Mrs. Joan Guthrie, who yesterday submitted a proposal to her committee calling for a new arena to be built next year at an approximate cost of $250,000.

Her recommendation was that city council be asked to provide $100,000 in the 1969 current budget to be put into a trust fund for construction of the arena next year.

City council has already directed that budget consideration be given for an amount of $95,000 to provide an open air ice pad at the fairgrounds.

No action was taken by the committee on Mrs. Guthrie's recommendation.

Mrs. Guthrie told the committee that following investigation of open air ice pads in Kingston, Scarborough and North York she had learned open air ice pads were not entirely satisfactory.

Reasons for this were that the skating season is shortened by two months as compared with indoor rinks, the program is stopped by rain, snow, strong sun and freezing rain, ice cannot be held at temperatures of more than 45 degrees and larger compressors must be used than for the same size covered rink.

Mrs. Guthrie said that in the three municipalities mentioned open air rinks were being covered to protect them from the elements.

In the event of council failing to approve her recommendation for construction of the $250,000 covered rink, Mrs. Guthrie suggested the proposed fairgrounds ice pad be built and enclosed in two stages.

Committee member Ald. Kenneth Soden pointed out that plans for the proposed fairgrounds ice pad already included provisions for adding the arena complex at some future date.

"But we can't wait for the complex, we need the additional ice facility now," returned Mrs. Guthrie.

Planning Board Discusses Development in Sidney

Sparks that once flew readily flickered again briefly around a meeting of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night.

Up for comment once again problem and would "do any- — a potential development of 590 homes in Sidney township.

The scheme was fanned into controversy before the board late last year with warnings against the effects of uncontrolled urban expansion.

And last night, some board members still pondered an issue in the old controversy — the lifting of a provincial government restriction on the subdivision by the registrar general.

The issue was raised by Dr. John Stock, who queried if Sidney township residents were happy with the development.

Reeve Bush said the issue had "pros and cons."'

"The big question," he added at one point, "is how the restriction was lifted."

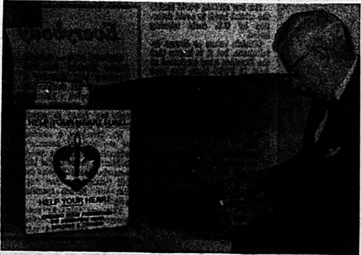
Ald. Arnold Orr recalled he had never discovered "the answer to that question a lot of us are asking: Why that restriction was lifted."

The Alderman wondered if the board should pass a motion recommending Sidney council place the entire township under planning control bylaw.

While not wishing to demonstrate the board was "interfering" in township affairs, Ald. Orr felt Sidney council should know the board was "vitally interested" in the was the Montrose subdivision thing to help."

Board member Zdenek Kvarda said a formal motion would appear the board was "pushing" the issue.

He suggested the board should verbally back the township council "and wait for the results."



Archie Lewis, president of the Belleville Branch of the Heart Foundation, prepares for next week's campaign starting Sunday.

Heart Campaign Starts

This Sunday, Feb. 23, the Heart Fund campaign, in Belleville gets off to a start and it will be the third campaign for the organization.

According to Archie Lewis, president of the Belleville Branch of the Heart Foundation, there are in access of 600 canvassers this year who will be knocking on doors for a week trying to attain the heart fund goal of $6,000.

Although the money will not specifically be seen by Bellevillians, the funds raised will be to their good, he said.

Last year in Ontario $1,000,000 was spent on heart research and this year that figure could climb to $1,250,000. The local branch sends all its money to be used for research.

Mr. Lewis, president of the Belleville branch for three years, first became active in the heart fund after an attack of his own.

"Some 50 per cent of people who die have perished because of some kind of heart disease," he said. "That's fact not fiction".

"The money is for research to prolong life. We've made some great strides in it. Open-heart operations have been very successful."

Mr. Lewis spoke of people who in the present day can carry on an almost normal life after a heart attack, due to technological method improvements — a result of research.

"Most people can carry on," he said, adding that this was not only applicable to people with "white-collar jobs", but to people with occupations demanding more physical labor.

Mr. Lewis explained that many people do not become involved in the work of the foundation until they become aware of the seriousness of heart ailments.

The Belleville branch of the foundation has existed since 1960. In the earliest years of its creation, funds were raised by donations, correspondence and other forms of fund-raising programs.

"We've never had a blitz. Maybe in a couple of years we'll try it," Mr. Lewis said.

At any rate, canvassers will be knocking on doors for one week to raise a portion of $6,000 for research.

Accountants Hear M. J. Stotesbury

M. J. Stotesbury, chartered accountant, told the regular monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial Accountants recently that a system of financial control should be set up in order that periodic results may be compared to forecasts of budgets.

He said that this allows management to assess what the final results will be and decide what action should be instituted to offset any undesirable results.

Mr. Stotesbury said that if a company is short of working capital, management should investigate outstanding accounts receivable and whether excessive inventories are being carried.

If further working capital is required it should be decided whether short-term financing by means of bank notes will suffice.

He mentioned that two common sources of government financial assistance are the Ontario Development Corporation and the Industrial Development Bank.

If a company can qualify for loans from these sources, they should. Of course, he said, private sources of financing are available.

Public Should Get Involved: Planners

But the public should be more involved in the problems of sound planning, members of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board agreed at a meeting last night.

* * *

more ¾¼ ¼ ¾

"This is a problem right across the whole country," Zdenek Kvarda told his fellow board members last night. "... Everyone is quite concerned that the public should get involved."

"The public need more education on planning," agreed chairman Horace Knight.

To tackle the problem the board appointed Mr. Kvarda, Sidney reeve Jack Bush and Thurlow representative Douglas McLean to form a public relations and education committee.

Town Houses Possible

Stepped-up development of town houses may be in the offing for Belleville.

Last night Belleville and Suburban Planning Board called a public hearing for its next meeting on a developer's application to build 38 town-housing units in the city's east end.

The applicant is Mapleview Realty and the development is planned for Janlyn Crescent.

City planning director Bert Kenny says there probably will be similar applications before the board in the near future.

Only eight town-house units now are extant in the city, built about three years ago.

The board now has on file applications for 175 similar units in other areas of the city.

Youth Must Have Voice in Power Structure Says Y Speaker

By BARRY GRILLS
(Staff Reporter)

"There have always been differences between generations. But never has this gap been expressed as vehemently and in such a universal way."

This was the concern put forward by John J. Carson, president of the Canadian YMCA, speaking at the annual meeting of the Belleville Family "Y" last night.

"It seems to be international in scope," he said. "It seems to be not merely a conflict between generations, but an outright attack on society. And this attack strikes at the heart of society's present values."

Mr. Carson explained that "the radicals" in Canada form only about two per cent of the student population and "among the other 98 per cent there are some vigorous opponents of the New Left."

"There is some validity in some of their grievances," he said.

"There can be no doubt that some young men and women of 18 are better informed than many of their elders. Nevertheless, we still insist that they are legally not mature until they reach the age of 21."

"We have educated them to be adults, yet we do not allow them to have full participation in the adult world until they are 25 or 30 years old," Mr. Carson said.

"I, for one, believe that we have to stop trying to shut them out of the power structure."

Mr. Carson explained that young people, both activitis and moderates, seem to see a society where human values come first.

"They have been brought up in an age of rapid scientific and technological advances. Yet they seem to fear that we are paying too much attention to technological changes and too little to human needs."

"The young look around them and see many injustices: continuing wars, poor nations and rich nations, poverty amidst affluence, and discrimination still abounding," he said.

"It is this apparent apathy, or inability, on the part of their elders that gives credence to the radicals' claims."

Mr. Carson explained that the activists are outraged with our present democratic processes, believing that it is unduly influenced by business, trade union and other special interest groups, with the result that elected representatives have little power.

"These young people believe that we must return to government by small groups where every citizen can have a voice. In other words, they say, we want true participatory democracy.

"The activists claim that the institutions we have created to serve us now ask for certain actions and obedience which have become ends in themselves.

"It may come as a surprise to you," he said, "that most activists, and certainly the more moderate young people, are not rebelling against those values of their parents which reflect the best of Western civilization.

"They are merely trying to put these values into effect. For to them, the failure to put one's stated values into use is hypocrisy."

Mr. Carson explained that he agreed with youth that we must change our society. "I agree with them too, that there is a danger of dehumanization because of the advances of a technological society."

"If the activists wish to infiltrate the system instead of trying to smash it from without, I heartily invite them to do so. In fact, I challenge them to grapple with particulars instead of generalities, using their tactical skills, their intelligence and their idealism."

"We must run them hard and run them fast. We must keep them involved. We must not lose their exuberance — their belief that human fulfillment is important."

For our part we must show patience and imagination and, perhaps even more important, courage, for the results may not be what we envision."

"We ourselves must be willing to accept and work for change. We must reassess our organizations and our purposes."

"The problem lies not so much with the system but with the value we place on maintaining it intact."

Y Organization Undergoes Change

Appropriately, with 1969 being the 75th anniversary of the Belleville Family YMCA, Harry Fast, president of the association, spoke of constitutional changes and examinations in the purpose of the organization at last night's annual meeting.

Mr. Fast said that the theme "the relevancy of YMCA in the community it serves" was discussed at a local conference and at a national conference at York University in Toronto.

Action was taken to adjust the composition of the board.

"Since the Belleville association has a family-orientated membership, the board now includes nine women instead of four and five directors below the age of 30.

In his general secretary's report, Bert Messacar, urged the local "Y" to "get a policy and stand for it.

"We have been loathe to do this in the past," he said.

He described the year of 1968 as a year of examination resulting in a number of objectives.

"Our members feel that they and others in our community want to be involved in life in a meaningful and satisfying way and through the "Y" they want to develop successful methods and attitudes of bringing this about."

The treasurer's report showed a deficit for the year 1968 of $2,146. Total revenue amounted to $73,151 and expenses totalled $75,297.

The association elected its new executive and directors at last night's meeting. Harry Fast will continue as president for another year. John Hayman will be vice pesident, Mrs. Donald Lockyer will be secretary, and Jack Mosley will continue as treasurer.

Directors will be Mrs. R. Hughes, Dr. C. C. Brant, Miss Jane MacPherson, Douglas Wonnacott, Mrs. J. L. Acton, Harry Fast, Mrs. P. Harris, Gordon Hamilton, W. A. Holway, Louis Maraskas, Mrs. B. Moynes, J. Ralph, R. B. Walker and K. H. Woodley.

The members also witnessed the receipt of two Leaders Fellowship Awards last night.

Mrs. Sandra Rushlow and Bill Holway received the awards. Mrs. Rushlow has been a club advisor for a group of girls for years.

Mr. Holway has been a member of the Y's Men's Club and has served as president of the association.

The Whistling Dixies, four top-hatted young men, strut their stuff in a rehearsal for Kampus Kapers, coming to the stage of Belleville Collegiate and Vocational Institute tonight and Saturday evening. Dancing the Dixies' routine are Randy Rosatte, Brian Montgomery, Greg Yarmola and Steven Ross.

Members Urged To Get Involved

John J. Carson, national president of the YMCA, last night informed members of the Belleville Family "Y" that the organization was going to have to get more involved in society.

"We shall be taking risks and getting into trouble, but one can't make an omelette (or rebuild a society) without breaking a few eggs," he said.

Mr. Carson outlined aspects of the growth of the YMCA organization in Canada.

"Twenty years ago we had 80,000 members — today we have 210,000. Twenty years ago we had 84 associations — today we have 125."

Mr. Carson explained that other things have grown too. In the last 20 years the annual operating deficit of all the YMCA's in Canada has grown from $115,000 to $3,000,000.

"Deficits and mortgages make problems for YMCAs. The preoccupation of the board and leadership in these associations is eternally that of finance."

"All too often the quality of program and the adequacy of staff are the first items to suffer."

"We have done a splendid job of providing better facilities for the young people of Canada but we have not shown nearly the same amount of devotion to upgrading the quality and quantity of the leadership we provide."

"We at National Council are determined that the "Y" will involve more young people, more women, more people from different racial, religious and cultural groups in its decision - making bodies than it has ever done before."

Mr. Carson explained that the YMCA was redesigning its programs in such a way that it would appeal to a wider range of people.

"We have embarked on a new emphasis in personnel to recruit and select the best prospects that can be found and to give them the best training that is available."

"We are beefing up administrative services to associations to give them more useful guidance on matters of financial administration and organization."

"Hopefully, out of one of these innovative attempts will be born some new ideas that will help set the Canadian Association on fire with fresh approaches to serving human needs and fulfilling human aspirations."

'If we cannot re-connect with the youth of our country we will become irrelevant — and like the dinosaur — ready for extinction."

JOHN J. CARSON

Winner Only One of Five

A Belleville - area boy was the recipient of a gold medallion — a Heroic Service Award — at last night's annual meeting of the YMCA.

Last August Robert saved the life of a Tweed woman, Mrs. Hedi Stroempl, when she she almost drowned in the Moira River.

"We consider him to be a fine representative of the thousands of boys who have been trained by the "Y" or are now progressing through the "Y" aquatic instruction program," Mr. Carson said.

There have been only four other gold medallions presented since the award was istituted in 1926.

Ranch Renovation to Be Theme Of Tweed Seminar Next Week

Pasture land weed control and practical programs of reseeding will be the topics under discussion at a ranchers' conference to be held in Tweed next week.

All ranch owners in Hungerford and Tyendinaga townships are invited to an all day conference to be held Feb. 27 at the Hungerford township Hall.

Theme of the conference will be ranch renovation.

The Tweed conference is the outcome of a ranch land survey, conducted last summer, which revealed there was approximately 8,500 acres of sprayable ranchland in the two townships and owned by 72 different ranchers.

Good quality pasture and ranchland is at a premium in the two townships and is getting in short supply each year as brush and weeds take over.

Conclusions reached at meetings subsequent to the survey indicated the primary program should be in weed control of the best lands with lands requiring brush control being given second consideration. In both cases seeding and fertilizing would be included where needed and practical.

John Cassidy of Stoco and Joseph Hanley of Shannonville along with a county agricultural representative are heading up the ranch committee in plans for the Tweed conference.

Taking part in conference discussions will be W. E. Hurst, soils and crops specialist, Grover Smith, Eastern Ontario weed specialist, Dr. Jack Winch, roughland pasture specialist from OAC Guelph and R. T. McMahon, rural development officer, ARDA branch, from Kingston.

Post Office to Open Soon

NAPANEE — At 1 p.m. Saturday, February 22, the old brown stone Post Office in Napanee will close its wickets for the last time. At 8 a.m. Monday, February 24 the wickets will open in the new post office in the new Federal building on Centre St. on the Market Square.

The lock box lobby has been open 24 hours a day seven days a week since Feb. 1 instead of remaining closed nights and Sundays. Postmaster H. J. O'Connor states that more and more people are coming to unlock their boxes during the night, and he believes that many are people who come off a shift at midnight.

Because of the five-day week which came into effect February 17, the wickets will now close each Saturday at 1.00 p.m.

The Napanee Centre of Canada Manpower moved into its new quarters in the Federal building the weekend of January 18-20. The customs office, quartered in the Post Office building, has not yet made any statement regarding the date of moving.

Last week a delegation went to Ottawa to investigate the possibility of acquiring the building for the town and learned that the decision rests with Crown Assets. Any plan which the province might have for using the building would be taken into consideration first. Otherwise, it may be possible for the town to acquire it.

Teen Centre

Belleville teenagers are to have a drop-in centre, run by Kin-20, a teen group formed about a year ago, and with supervisory assistance provided by members of the Kinsmen club.

The centre should go some way toward enlivening the Belleville scene for the young people — but only some way, for there are several thousand in the school age category and obviously such a club cannot cater to all of them.

And just as the club (which will operate on a membership basis) will cater to only a fraction of the student populace, so too will it provide only some of the answers to teenage needs and problems. If it is to be no more than a "drop-in" centre for potential "dropouts" seeking a place other than the street to hang around, then it is not going to work. The fact there is to be adult supervision, and the fact Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, while supporting the project, anticipates problems, are reminders that while the majority of teenagers are responsible people there are many who are not.

Chief Crosbie, however, is confident such problems may be overcome. Ideally, the centre should be regarded not as a problem area but a fresh project for channeling the natural spiritedness of the young.

The fact it will operate on a membership basis should help to place the project on a sound footing. The centre will be a place for discussion, and mention has been made, too, of various forms of entertainment. Perhaps someone could provide a table-tennis table, not just to pat the ball back and forth, ping-pong fashion, but to enable boys and girls to learn the game properly; and a billiard table. Or have them learn bridge.

Young people want to communicate . . . well it is surprising how much communication can be engendered by competing against others in activities such as these. To repeat, this centre should not be just a place to hang around; rather, the emphasis should be on positive ideas and action.

Fire Losses

In a recent editorial on fire protection for the rural townships we stressed the need for preventive measures. Heating systems and wiring, for example, should be checked regularly.

Some idea of the danger in this regard is afforded by the annual report of the North Waterloo Farmers Mutual Insurance Company. Defective wiring claims numbered approximately 45,000.

"If you suspect any fault in your hydro installation," the report says, "it is your responsibility to call an electrician and have all defects corrected."

One problem over which rural residents have little control is lightning. Losses due to lightning (including farm property as well as livestock) increased by some $32,000 to more than $126,000.

Total losses by fire amounted to $782,925.

Change—But Not Decay

Dr. Alan Thomas, executive director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education, said recently he supports courses on how to alter the processes of society. "We should be teaching people how to lead marches and carry placards. It's uncomfortable, but today things are being done through pressure brought on by demonstrations. Farmers got what they were after only when their tractors rolled into Ottawa. . ." Dr. Thomas is right — but only up to a point. Demonstrations can get out of hand, as modern society knows to its cost. "The mob," as Irish author St. John Ervine once put it so aptly, "is a weak and brainless thing." Society must change, yes, and we must move with the times, but let us do it in an orderly manner.

They Get Around

People get around with considerable ease these days. And no more so than the members of the nursing profession. That is why amid Canada's growing cosmopolitanism, the most international of our institutions frequently is the hospital. And not only the nurses, for technical and other staff members also come from many parts of the world. For instance, a Globe and Mail article on Toronto hospitals points out that 100 of the 145 employees of the dietary department of Wellesley hospital are from overseas. They include many newcomers from the West Indies and Greece. Nursing staff include women from Australia, the Philippines, Norway and the Ukraine. One young head nurse, Valerie Dubrovski, was born in Latvia but grew up in Toronto.

Liberal Party's Mother Figure

Acid Wit of Britain's Lady Asquith Spared Few

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The death at 81 of Baroness Asquith, high priestess and matriarch of Britain's dwindling Liberal party, breaks one of the last major links with the glittering galaxy of political life before the First World War.

Lady Asquith, who as a child of six met the great Victorian leader William Ewart Gladstone, was the daughter of Herbert Asquith, the Liberal prime minister who led Britain into war in 1914. She counted among her friends the most brilliant figures of the pre-war Edwardian era, many of whom were to die in the conflict.

She recounted in a much-praised 1965 biography of Winston Churchill how the up-and-coming young politician came to dinner at her father's house and she was struck by his drive and magnetism.

"We are all worms," Churchill told her over the dinner table. "But I do believe that I am a glow-worm."

A lifelong, passionate believer in women's rights and all forms of civil liberties, Lady Violet in her youth was ranked in the same league of brilliant intellect and wit as her brother Raymond Asquith, whose shining future was extinguished on the Somme in 1916.

She retained a reputation for flashing, sometimes acid wit all her life, coining such barbed epithets on her political opponents as this on Labor's astringent post-war treasury chief, Sir Stafford Cripps: "He has a brilliant mind—until he makes it up."

Her father, Herbert Henry Asquith, was the last old-style Liberal patrician to hold power in Britain. The Liberal party collapsed as a political force after the First World War and gradually dwindled to a parliamentary fringe.

Lady Violet Bonham Carter—her married name before the Labor government gave her a peerage in 1964—literally became the mother figure of the post-war Liberals. Her son-in-law Jo Grimond led the Liberal party from 1956 to 1967 and her son Mark Bonham Carter, a publisher who now heads the race relations board, is a former Liberal MP.

Lady Violet waged a lifelong battle against those who attacked her father's leadership in the First World War and on one notable occasion she crossed swords with Lord Beaverbrook.

The Canadian-born press baron had suggested that Asquith was playing bridge at his country house during a momentous crisis in the war. Asquith's daughter riposted by comparing Beaverbrook with a cuttle-fish and alluding sardonically to the "puritan austerities" of his own country house.

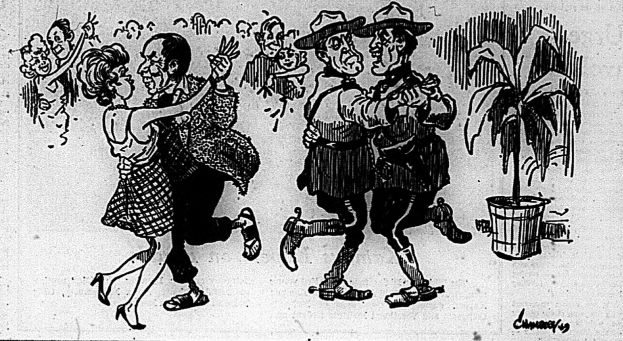
In 1967, she stunned French television viewers by lashing into President de Gaulle for his attitude towards Britain joining the European Common Market.

She said in a studio discussion that when France was under Nazi occupation in 1940, Churchill did not stop to ask de Gaulle, the Free French leader: "And how is your franc? Is it in good health? And how are your reserves?" She said de Gaulle was "a ruler who in his old age has lost wisdom."

While the TV producer frantically told his superiors, "I cannot control an old woman," Lady Asquith went on to drive her point home:

"What de Gaulle cannot forgive the Anglo-Saxons is all that he owes them."

"I'm no happier about this than you are, constable, but our orders are to blend into the surroundings and stick close to the PM at all times."



TODAY IN HISTORY

Robert Southwell, an English poet, was hanged 374 years ago today—in 1595—the day after his trial for treason. He had been imprisoned and tortured for three years for the crime of being a Roman Catholic priest. Law forbade any Englishman in the Roman priesthood to stay more than 40 days in England and Southwell, trained in Paris, volunteered to defy the ban as a missionary. He was beatified in 1929.

1941—Sir Frederick Banting, co-discoverer of insulin, and two others were killed in a bomber crash in Newfoundland.

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—British and United States warships turned guns on German forces south of Rome where Allies won back the initiative; Tokyo announced a drastic shake-up in the Japanese High Command, involving the shelving of high army and navy chiefs following admission of losses at Truk; United States bombers attacked Brunswick, Germany.

Constitutional Issue

Slow Progress for P.M.

Toronto Star (Independent Liberal): The last federal election gave Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau a mandate to lead Canada to unity. . . . While it is still too early to expect decisive success, and too early to say that he has failed, the federal-provincial constitutional conference has offered the most significant test to date of his leadership for a united Canada. . . . He seemed to prefer the illusion of modest progress—referral to committees—to the risk of failing an attempt at inspiration leadership. . . . In fact he has been stalled, possibly for years to come, on a chosen line of advance. That does not mean the game is lost but it's likely that Mr. Trudeau will have to start again, at a humbler, more humdrum level, in his efforts to harmonize the country.

Canada and the Caribbean

Ottawa Journal

The Governor-General on his state visit to Commonwealth Caribbean countries followed a course that the ships of Canada have followed for nearly 200 years.

The tall ships the Maritimers built went down to the "Sugar Islands" with salt cod, flour and manufactured goods and came back with rum and sugar; in years when the Americans were hostile, as in 1812, they stood well out to sea.

In quieter times Canada subsidized a West Indies ocean service which eventually led to the service manned by the five famous "Lady" boats which not only maintained the contact with Canada but were the principal means of communication between the islands of the British West Indies.

The Second World War and the development of air services ended the "Lady" service but Canadian trade with the West Indies has been growing at a moderate pace and Canadian investments in the island are large.

A 1966 conference in Ottawa was attended by representatives of Antigua, the Bahamas, Barbados, Dominica, Grenada, Guyana, Jamaica, Montserrat, St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Trinidad and Tobago and British Honduras.

Canada then promised to strengthen its aid efforts in the countries of the Commonwealth Caribbean and stated these would reach a total of at least $75,000,000 during a five-year period. Such assistance is not confined to the Commonwealth Caribbean; Canadian aid planning now includes the French - speaking islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique.

In the sunlit bays the old-timers talk of the Canadian ships and sailors they have known. But there is up-to-date talk too. Canada has a personal interest in helping all these islands. Britain's influence is waning there, and American interest is suspect. We know what happened in Cuba, as does Russia. The best way to avoid that being repeated is to be alertly and genuinely friendly, with dollars as well as sentiment.

Letter to the Editor

Rangers Provide Evening of Song and Youthful Verve For Nursing Home Residents

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

On a recent visit to a west side nursing home I met with a most delightful scene.

The night was cold and blustery, the parking lot was empty except for a small light panel truck, indicating few visitors would be here tonight.

On entering the building I was surprised and thrilled to hear a group of Rangers singing lustily and joyfully, old songs the patients sang years ago, in the meantime, passing out small boxes of candy.

The sweet youthful voices, the smiling pretty faces and the chit - chat and laughter that only such a group could create made for a wonderful evening for the shut-ins.

Should any of the girls read this letter, please accept the elderly folks' grateful thanks and appreciation for taking the time and trouble in coming out on such a bad winter's night. These were the comments after the girls left.

And my comment: When teenagers take the time to remember and serve like this, without fanfare or publicity, the future of the country is in pretty safe hands.

Jogging May Be 'in' Here, But in Germany It Is the Spa

German Travel News

Judging from the image projected by mass communications media, practically everybody seems to be a "swinger" in a thoroughly healthy and carefree society concerned foremostly with periodically improved deodorants, gasolines, mouthwashes, detergents and the like, comments Helmut Benecke, Director for Canada of the German National Tourist Office.

Physicians and scientists, he claims, know a rather different side of life in the outgoing Sixties, however. They emphatically warn of the effects of occupational strain, of increasing noise and many another irritant beyond individual control.

"Prophylactic health care will go a long way toward maintaining physical and spiritual strength and the essential feeling of well-being," Benecke says. "That's why West Germany's long-established, modern and efficient mineral and thermal spas, climato-therapeutical and seaside health resorts continue to be so popular with German and foreign guests."

Between April and September of 1968, the 192 health resorts reporting to the German Federal Bureau of Statistics registered 36.46 million overnights with foreign visitors accounting for 1,156,000. Average length of stay was 11.8 days, in the case of foreign tourists 3.3 days. The 80 seaside resorts added another 17.37 million overnights (average sojourn 11.8 days) with a foreign-visitor share of 184,440 (average stay four days).

They came, Benecke states, because they know spa treatment to be neither hoax nor folly and because they had decided to do as much for themselves as they do to keep their cars operational.

Says Dr. Erich Ruetten, President of the German Spa Association: "while clinical medicine treats persons already ill, spa therapy treats them while healthy or only slightly ill, thus preventing the need for extended hospital treatment. Spa treatment is also frequently prescribed for patients recovering from serious illnesses for rest and controlled recovery. Prevention, rehabilitation and treatment of chronic diseases are the most important functions of spa-therapy. Treatments are guided by modern scientific principles."

Naturally, one does not have to be ill at all in order to enjoy the scenic beauty, the relaxing atmosphere and the diversified spas. Regardless of the health aspect, they are all vacation resorts par excellence providing the change of place and pace beneficial holidays are made of.

The 272 health resorts mentioned here offer about 343,800 beds in hotels and other commercial accommodation establishments. Private quarters add another 249,600 beds for a grand total of 593,400 as per April 1, 1968, the last date of official accounting. In all of 1967, there were 98.1 million overnights, with 2,814,900 of those by foreign guests.

Four Examples Given

Business Fleeing Quebec Over Language Crisis Says Broker

QUEBEC (CP) — A Montreal insurance broker Thursday compared the atmosphere in Quebec with Nazi Germany and said fear of persecution is driving out English capital.

George J. Archer, a 40-year-old Westmount resident, made the claim in a personal brief to the national assembly's education committee.

The committee is holding public hearings on the Union Nationale government's language bill which would protect education rights of Quebec's English-speaking minority.

The bill was introduced as the government's solution to the school crisis in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard where French-language unilingualism is being applied in primary schools.

Mr. Archer, manager of the life, group and pensions department of Dale and Co. Ltd., insurance brokers and consultants, told the committee:

"As a direct result of the St. Leonard crisis, it is evident to anyone involved in the business community itself that future development is in a state of limbo.

"Business decisions have been held in abeyance. Capital is moving at an ever-increasing rate to 'safer' areas."

Mr. Archer said "a positive way to allay fear of persecution" is to guarantee rights of Quebec's English-speaking minority.

Unable to speak in French despite a "crash course," the insurance executive said both French and English should be taught to Quebecers starting in primary schools.

As "a small sampling of what is being repeated daily" Mr. Archer gave the following four cases as examples of investment loss:

—A company interested in consolidating its operations in Montreal will instead consolidate at Toronto because "key men living in Toronto adamantly refuse to move out of fear of the educational situation."

—A real-estate consultant representing $20,000,000 in United States capital "has been forced to curtail his plans" for urban development in Montreal and has moved to Toronto.

—Nine investors who planned a recreational area near Sutton in the Eastern Townships changed plans "following the St. Leonard situation" and have purchased land in northern Vermont.

—A retail chain employing 1,000 people "has curtailed any future developments in the province," planning expansion in Ontario and New Brunswick. As leases in Quebec expire "many of these will not be renewed."

"All of these are clients of mine. Every time they move out, I lose a client, Quebec loses a taxpayer and people lose jobs."

Auto Pact Benefits Everybody Except Canadian Motorist: UAW

OTTAWA (CP) — Almost everybody involved has gained from the automobile free-trade pact between Canada and the United States except the Canadian motorist, United Auto Workers told the government Thursday.

A union submission reminded the government that the 1965 pact was designed in part to bring about roughly-equivalent prices for Canadian and American cars, but Canadians still pay substantially more.

"The Canadian government improved its balance-of-trade situation, the automotive industry increased its business almost five-fold . . . but the customer still has to face price increases," said the union brief.

The submission, presented by union leaders in a meeting with the trade, labor and manpower ministers, also calls for improvements in benefits paid laid-off auto workers, says companies should be forced to give adequate advance notice of layoffs and insists union as well as management should be consulted about developments connected with the pact.

In particular, the union berated Ford Motor Co. of Canada for "inconsiderate and irresponsible action" in the way 817 Windsor, Ont., workers are being laid off.

Leading the UAW delegation representing about 110,000 workers were Dennis McDermott, the international union's Canadian director, and Ed Bruce, president of the UAW council. Ministers Jean-Luc Pepin for trade and industry, Bryce Mackasey for labor and Allan MacEachen for manpower conferred with the delegation.

Mr. McDermott said afterwards that the delegation had received a "very sympathetic" response from the ministers. He felt the government reaction, especially from Mr. Mackasey, was better than that of previous Liberal administrations.

The union leaders said price increases initiated by Ford, Chrysler and General Motors for this year could not be justified by either additional safety features or higher wages. Increased wages were paid for by higher productivity, the union said.

Further, reduction of warranty commitments was an additional hidden price increase, the union said. The commitment was reduced for 1968 models to replacement of parts for two years or 25,000 miles.

The five-year warranty for power components and two years for other parts should be restored, the UAW said.

The union argued that the present government program of supplementary assistance for workers laid off because of reorganization of industry under the auto pact is virtually useless.

A union spokesman said only a pittance out of the $5,000,000 earmarked for the transitional assistance benefits, also known as T.A.B., has been used because conditions attached to payment are rarely met.

Raymond Denis Denied Appeal Must Start Penitentiary Term

OTTAWA (CP) — Hopeful to the end, Raymond Denis heard the crushing news in a county jail cell Thursday that his last legal chance had failed to lift the burden of guilt that descended on him over the notorious Lucien Rivard affair.

A three-judge panel of the Supreme Court of Canda slammed the last door with these word:

"In Raymond Denis versus Her Majesty the Queen:

"The application for leave to appeal from the unanimous judgment of the Court of Appeal for Ontario which dismissed the appeal of the applicant against his conviction is dismissed."

For the slender, 36-year-old lawyer in the cell at Carleton county jail, it meant two years in penitentiary for attempting to obstruct justice.

Behind him lay months of political turmoil that nearly toppled the Pearson government and a long legal battle that began in August, 1964, when Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne complained to the RCMP that Denis offered him $20,000 to help spring Rivard on bail.

Denis at the time was executive assistant to the federal immigration minister and shortly before that, as an aide to the justice minister, recommended Mr. Lamontagne, a former schoolmate, as a federal narcotics prosecutor.

In the Rivard case, Mr. Lamontagne was lawyer for the United States government which was trying to extradite Rivard on narcotics trafficking charges.

For Denis it was a much longer road.

Forced to act by a united opposition in the Commons, the minority government established a royal commission that spent months in 1964 and 1965 hearing witnesses ranging from cabinet ministers to petty thieves before recommending prosecution.

His first trial ended with an abrupt declaration of a mistrial by Judge Frank Costello. At his second in December, 1967, Judge Bruce Macdonald sentenced him to two years after a jury found him guilty.

The Ontario Court of Appeal unanimously upheld the conviction last month. His application to carry it to the Supreme Court of Canada was argued earlier this week.

Denis' hopes were raised when the Supreme Court panel of Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux, Wilfred Judson and R. A. Ritchie reserved decision Tuesday.

But shortly before the county jail warders brought prisoners their noon-day meal, the three justices turned him down.

Denis will next be transferred to a maximum security prison where a classification board will decide whether his term is to be served in maximum, medium or minimum security.

Liquor Store Signatures Not Needed

TORONTO (CP) — The customer's signature will no longer be required on purchase orders in Ontario liquor, beer and wine outlets beginning next Monday the liquor control board announced Thursday.

On the same date the first of three self-service liquor stores planned for Metropolitan Toronto will open in the Borough of York.

"Customers in LCBO, Brewers' Retail and winery stores will not longer be required to sign their names or enter their place of residence on customer purchase slips," the board said in a statement.

A new design to purchase order slips will be retained to allow "customers to select their purchases at leisure and thus avoid delays at cash registers that would be created by customers' queries if the forms were not in use," the statement said.

Removal of the signature requirement with its attestation that the customer is of drinking age "will in no way remove control of sales to minors."

Couple Observe 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron (Mac) MacDonald were honored on Sunday, Feb. 9 at their home, 167 Bridge St. West by friends, relatives, and neighbors, who called to greet them on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The couple were married on Feb. 5, 1919 in Belleville by the Rev. F. J. Anderson and have always lived in the city. They have two children, a daughter, Mrs. Thomas (Dorothy) Walker of Picton and a son Douglas who lives at Foxboro. There are six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Miss Helen Sulman received the guests at the door and was in charge of the guest book. Mrs. Carman Massey and Mrs. George Moore invited the guests to the tea room where the table was nicely decorated with a linen cut-work cloth and a beautifully decorated three-tier wedding cake.

Pouring tea were Mrs. Dora Powell of Peterborough and Mrs. Hilda Walkom and Miss Jean Gazley of Belleville.

Those who served the delicious refreshments prepared by Mrs. Thomas Walker and Mrs. Douglas MacDonald were Mrs. Eileen Darling, and granddaughters, Miss Mary Walker, Ottawa; Miss Sybil Walker, Toronto; Miss Ann MacDonald, Foxboro and Mrs. John Walker, Picton.

The bride and bridegroom of 50 years received many beautiful gifts and cards, also several beautiful floral arrangements. Messages received included letters from local M.P. Lee Grills, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and a plaque was presented from John Robarts, Ontario Premier by Dr. R. T. Potter M.P.P.

Guests were present from Ottawa, Toronto, Streetsville and Peterborough.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Stuart Howell (nee Patricia Scrymgeour) was entertained at several showers. A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. James Matthews with Miss Patricia Matthews as co-hostess. A china shower was held at the home of Mrs. Wes May; and a shower was given at the home of Mrs. R. T. Potter, with Mrs. C. Rendell as co-hostess. The bride-elect received presentation from her co-workers, of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

MR. AND MRS. STUART ROBERT HOWELL

Howell – Scrymgeour

St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, was the scene of the February 15 wedding, when Archdeacon A. S. McConnell officiated as Patricia Ann Scrymgeour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Scrymgeour, Belleville became the bride of Stuart Robert Howell, son of Mrs. Stuart Howell of Belleville and the late Mr. Howell. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was organist Donald Davenport.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white silk velvet, featuring a mandarin collar and cummerbund of white sateen. Her headdress was a high crown of white maribou with a floor length veil of tulle. She carried a cascade of white glamellias and stephanotis.

Maid of honor, Miss Patricia Matthews, was attired in a floor length gown of silk velvet, in chocolate brown, with a mandarin collar. Her wedding ring headdress was in matching velvet with a tulle veil. Her flowers were a bouquet of shasta 'mums.

Bridesmaids were Miss Margaret-Jane Howell and Miss Nancy Howell, both sisters of the bridegroom. They were attired identically to the maid of honor.

Leonard Steele attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were George Partridge and Richard Bedford.

For the wedding reception held at the Belleville Shrine Club, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a gold crepe and Venice lace dress, with three-quarter length sleeves. A matching hat and veil, and gold accessories complemented her attire. Her corsage was white gardenias and stephanotis.

Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom was attired in a deep purple worsted silk ensemble of a sheath dress and matching coat, with jewelled trim at the neckline and sleeves. Matching accessories and a mauve flowered hat, and a corsage of mauve orchids completed her ensemble.

For the wedding trip to the Bahamas, the bride donned a two-piece winter suit of beige mohair, and a matching fur-trimmed hat. Brown accessories and a corsage of orange delight roses added the finishing touch to her apparel.

TORONTO (CP) — A Welsh lass who is more than just a beauty contest winner will be touring Canada in the next few weeks to interest Canadians in visiting her native land for the July 1 investiture of Prince Charles as Prince of Wales.

Stella Mair Owen, 22, chosen in a national competition in Wales for both her appearance and her knowledge of the Welsh language and countryside, arrives in Vancouver Feb. 23 to start her cross-country tour.

Miss Owen comes to Canada to tell about "Croeso '69"—croeso is the Welsh word for welcome—a special three-months program of more than a thousand events throughout Wales starting in May. The July 1 proclamation ceremony of the Prince of Wales at 700-year-old Caernarvon Castle is the highlight of the festival.

Born in Llanelly, a coast town in South Wales, Miss Owen teaches physical education, dancing and skin-diving. She speaks fluent Welsh and has made a hobby of studying the history, traditions and customs of her country.

On her tour of Canada, Miss Owen will wear the distinctive Welsh national costume which is still worn on special occasions in Wales. She will bring official greetings to the mayors of Canadian cities to show them a model of the coronet which will be worn by the prince in the ceremony.

Miss Owen will also tell about the investiture on July 1 when Prince Charles, surrounded by pageantry which will exceed anything seen since the coronation of Queen Elizabeth in 1953, will accept his responsibilities as heir to the throne at Caernarvon Castle.

This royal ceremony will be a high point in the three-month celebrations with poetry, music and dance festivals, bonfires, street dances, sports events, singing and other performing-arts competitions and regattas.

"Croeso '69" opens May 28 at Aberystwyth, the university town, with a festival (eisteddfod) of music and dance. June will be filled with music festivals, car rallies and celebration carnivals, some with medieval features such as street ox-roasts.

Visitors to Wales who cannot see the actual investiture of the Prince of Wales will have other chances to see the prince during the four days following the ceremony. Prince Charles is "making a progress" through the country—north Wales first, through the Conway Valley and mountain areas; then to the west, the coast, and south Wales.

Missionary Tells of Life in India

DESERONTO — Women of Church of the Redeemer met at the home of Mrs. Samuel Geddes last Thursday to combine the work of the Women's Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid, with the president, Miss Gladys Pearas in the chair. Two guests joined the regular members.

Mrs. Charles Griffiths, Mrs. Kay Hood, and Mrs. Blake Moore assisted with the devotional period for the WMS section of the meeting. The main feature was an address by Mrs. Eric Quirk who told of some of her experiences in India when she and her late husband were missionaries there.

Turning then to the business meeting, the work of the Ladies Aid, the group agreed on the date of the pie social, setting it for March 14. This is one of the main annual projects of this group, and is popular with the towns people, since it includes a program. The location has not yet been decided on.

Since orders for their famous Easter eggs are coming in rapidly, the women decided to begin their manufacture right away, and the first lot was turned out Tuesday evening at the usual place, the home of Mrs. Donald McMillan, who says, jokingly, that her home is "The Hatchery". This project, begun experimentally a few years ago for towns people, now attracts many customers from out of town. Last year the orders could not be filled, although the handful of workers made close to 500. Materials, they find, are much more expensive this year.

Mrs. Geddes again invited the group to met with her in March. She enjoys having them during the winter, since she is a comparative shut-in.

At the close of the meeting, there was a happy social hour with members enjoying refreshments at a table beautifully decorated in the Valentine theme. The refreshments included a birthday cake for Mrs. Dorothy McCullough. It was Mrs. McCullough's day, as she was seated on the lucky chair and so won the prize.

Church Groups

(St. James C.W.L.)

STIRLING —The February meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held at the home of Miss Alice O'Donnell on Feb. 13.

Father McGarvey opend the meeting with prayer. A letter of thanks was read for donations to the Good Thief also included letters from the Diocesan president, Mrs. H. Brown, and Diocesan director Rev. Father Boyle, encouraging members to continue their work for Christ, especially to those in need.

The C.W.L. convention will be held in Kingston on May 24 and 25. A donation will be forwarded to the Sacred Heart program. A copy of the national annual report was made available for members. Members were also invited to participate in the World Day of Prayer to be held in St. Paul's United Church on March 7.

Final plans were made for catering to the Livestock Sale on Feb. 17.

Mrs. LaChappelle read an article and the meeting closed.

Refreshments were served by Miss Alice O'Donnell and Mrs. J. Doran.

Lloyd's of London Accepts Women

Lloyd's, the internationally-known insurance underwriters, announced Thursday it will accept women as members next year.

But candidates must be British, able to show assets of £75,000 $195,000 and put down a deposit of £15,000 $39,000.

They will be admitted as members who do not personally transact business in the Lloyd's market, but underwrite through an agent.

PM's Date Marries TV Director

OTTAWA (CP) — Jennifer Rae, who has been an occasional date of Prime Minister Trudeau, was married quietly here Thursday to television director Chris Braden.

Mrs. Braden, 25-year-old daughter of Saul Rae, Canada's ambassador to Mexico, is a television co-ordinator with CJOH—TV in Ottawa.

PC Women Plan to Attend Meet in Ottawa

The regular monthly meeting of the Progressive Conservative Women's Association of Belleville was held in the Kiwanis Centre recently.

Mrs. Joyce Rendell, president welcomed the members and minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. Jean Ellis, secretary. Reports of the standing committees were also read.

Mrs. Lillian Mulholland membership secretary, has distributed membership cards for 1969 to chairladies and members are asked to purchase their membership for 1969 as soon as possible. Postal rates have been raised and it is important that members pay their dues to assist in the circulation of the bulletin.

The Progressive Conservative annual meeting in Ottawa will be held in the Chateau Laurier on March 10, 11 and 12. The president was asked to contact the riding president for a bus to be chartered for members wishing to attend for Ladies' Day.

A discussion was held with reference to the Federal Provincial Conference. The members expressed pleasure with the position that the Premier of Ontario, John Robarts, had taken in regard to Ontario participation in Medicare.

The March meeting will be in the form of a St. Patrick's pot luck supper on Monday, March 18. Members and friends will have the pleasure of having Dr. Joan Bronskill as guest to take the members on a travelogue through Russia and Eastern Europe.

A most enjoyable social hour was conducted by Mrs. Harry Yorke and Mrs. M. Little, who convened refreshments with the assistance of the Ward 5 members.

Ward 4 group will convene at the March 18 St. Patrick's Supper.

Thinking Day to Be Observed

Girl Guides, Rangers and Brownies in Belleville will join with thousands of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts around the world on Saturday, Feb. 22 to celebrate "Thinking Day". Chosen because the date marks the birthdays of the founder of Scouting and Guiding, the late Lord Baden Powell, and the World Chief Guide, Olave, Lady Baden Powell. "Thinking Day" is the occasion of special ceremonies stressing the— Guide ideal of international friendship. Girls the world over give "Thinking Day" Pennies to the World Thinking Day Fund, which is used to promote Guiding throughout the world.

Pennies collected by Belleville companies and packs will help send trainers to countries where Guide programs are being established and will send aid to Guide organizations in time of disasters such as in floods and earthquakes.

The Girl Guides of Canada support the World Thinking Day Fund through their own Canadian World Friendship Fund. The Chief Commissioner for Canada, Mrs. K. B. Clysdale of St. Mary's, Ontario, reminds everyone that "as members of an international organization it is their duty to help the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts to bring Guiding Girl Scouting within reach of every girl who wants it." "The Canadian World Friendship Fund directs their share of pennies into the World Thinking Day Fund.

A small part of the Canadian World Friendship Fund goes to each of the four World centres (Chalet in Switzerland, Cabana in Mexico, Sangam in India and Olave House in London, England). Canadian Guides visit these centres for adventure in international friendship.

The major part of the Canadian World Friendship Fund is used to assist in the expenses of International travelling for Canadian Girl Guides, making it possible for them to participate in International Camps, International Trainings, and International Conference events each year.

Another portion of the fund is used for 'In Travel Projects' which makes it possible for Canadian Guides to invite Guides from other countries to special events in Canada.

Census Data Study Completed

OTTAWA (CP) — A study released Wednesday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics concludes that the low-income status characterizing families headed by women may be chronic.

The study in incomes of Canadians, written by Jenny R. Poduluk, co-ordinator of consumer finance research for the bureau, is one of a series based on 1961 census data and other statistical material.

The data showed that women heads of families generally are older, less well educated and more dependent on welfare than their male counterparts.

"These characteristics suggest that where women have to undertake the responsibility for keeping a family together, serious income problems may exist and that the low-income status may be chronic rather than temporary," the author says.

Women heads of families received incomes that averaged only 38 per cent of the incomes of male family heads.

In these families, then, other family members made greater contributions to overall family income than did the family head. Such families were more likely to be primarily dependent upon the incomes of children and other relatives of the head than upon the head."

On almost every characteristic available for study, such families had patterns opposite from families with male heads.

Almost 90 per cent of male family heads were in the current labor force. Less than 40 per cent of female family heads worked.

Teen-agers Accept Extraordinary Situation

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Father has a 17-year-old illegitimate daughter. My sister and I are both teen-agers and we have known about Olivia for a long time but we've never met her.

Yesterday Dad received a telegram from Olivia saying her mother has kicked her out of the house. She is now living with neighbors but cannot stay there. Olivia wants to come and live with us.

Mom has said O.K. — on one condition. Olivia must be introduced as a niece, not a daughter. No one outside our immediate family knows the real relationship and my mother says she just couldn't take the gossip.

My sister and I realize Olivia's presence might cause problems but she has had a terrible life and maybe we can help her. We've tried to change mom's mind but she is adamant. What should be done? — S.A.T.

DEAR S.A.T.: Accept your mother's terms, but make it clear that Olivia understands the terms and that she is agreeable. Ordinarily I would not condone duplicity, but this is an extraordinary situation. Helping the girl should be the principal consideration and if this is the only way it can be done, then do it. (P.S. You kids sound like a couple of terrific teenagers to me. My hat is off to you.)

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughters are 13 and 15 years old. They will both be enrolled in a new school next month. The school requires the girls to take gang showers after gym. They both feel this would be very embarrassing an I agree. Do you think girls should be forced to take showers in the presence of others? — MODEST MOTHER.

DEAR MODEST: Girls who have a healthy attitude about their bodies pay little attention to each other during gang showers. Special circumstances, such as a deformity or if a girl is too fat or under-developed, could alter the situation, however. These girls should be allowed to shower alone.

It goes without saying that all showering should be supervised by a teacher. If a girl shows undue interest in her classmates' nakedness, she should shower separately.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a teen-ager who is writing about my grandparents who are not so grand. Last Sunday Dad left the house at 5:30 in the morning to help Grandma and Grandpa with things they should have hired a plumber and a painter for. Dad came home at 11:00 at night, so tired he fell into bed without even taking off his clothes.

Mom was very annoyed. This happens a lot. She says Dad owes his Sundays to his family. Dad says he has to be a good son or he will not be happy. What do you say? — CINCINNATI.

DEAR CIN: Your dad is still a little boy who is trying to win the love of his parents by knocking himself out for them. Your mother cannot change him, so I hope she will lay off even though she is right.

Matching Up Wardrobe Proves Worthwhile

By DORIS CLARK

Ladies: Are you tired of all your clothes? Wish you could turn them all in on a bang-up new spring outfit?

Before rushing out to the nearest dress sale, pause for thought. A new dress, anything different to put on, is good. But what's better is something that will go with what you've got — with last year's coat, or some of your accessories; something that will go with this season's special trends too.

Not many of us can afford to scrap all we've got in favor of a whole new wardrobe, but we can study the styles and apply the go-with-what-I've got thinking of all clothes purchases. What color would be ideal for you? What kind of fabric?

Let's imagine that last spring you bought a navy blue coat. A good cleaning and pressing will make it like new. A new blue dress, any shade of blue, or a spring print with blue in it, could be the key to this spring's ensemble; rather than a pale green dress, or a rose print, or some other color, however pretty it might be on its own.

Once you've made your plan stick with it, even if you have to hurt a bit to find what you want.

Dear Doris: I know it sounds dumb for a 14-year-old girl to really like a 16-year-old boy but I do. I can't even do my school work any more; I think of Mike too much.

Then the boy I liked before asked me to go steady but I said "No"', and I said "Sorry but I like another boy too and it would not be fair to go steady with a boy whom I do not like the best."

For a while he was still real nice to me but then he found out who his competition was and started rumors about me and called me such terrible names and told things to Mike and embarrassed me terribly. Mike says "hi" to me and smiles but I know what he thinks about me.

So, Doris, what do you recommend? — Lovelorn

Dear Lovelorn: Now is the time to show what you are made of: spunk and self-confidence, I hope, as well as sugar and spice.

You know now that you should have kept mum about the new crush, don't you? Keep your cool, keep your feelings to yourself and keep away from that going-steady business.

Let the boys do the coming.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Reader Sends Recipe for Never-fail Doughnuts

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: I always read your column and I have a quick way to do doughnuts. You know how fiddly it is to cut the centre out. I had a girl one year when I had a young baby and she had come from western Canada and had been with a threshing gang where they made doughnuts by the hundreds. She cut the dough with a glass tumbler and then took her thumb and finger and made the hole. She could do it so quickly so I have always done that since seeing her. Here is a never fail recipe. Unsigned.

ANSWER: Although you did not sign your letter or give method I was so impressed with your idea I made the doughnuts. (Readers: Please sign your letters and give address on stamped envelope and 10 cents with requests.) I call the doughnuts —

THUMB - A - DOUGHNUT (26)

- 5 tablespoons melted lard or shortening
- 1 cup buttermilk or soured milk (see below)
- 3½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup sugar

I used electric frypan in which to fry the doughnuts so I melted my shortening in it first. I had no buttermilk so measured 2 tablespoons lemon juice (you could use vinegar) into measuring cup and filled it to the one-cup line with sweet milk and let it stand.

Sift sifted flour with the salt baking powder, soda and nutmeg. Into beater bowl break eggs and add sugar and beat to mix well. Then add buttermilk or soured milk and the melted shortening. Add flour mixture and beat 5 seconds on low or, if by hand, until just mixed. Roll out on well floured board to ⅜" thickness. Cut out with tumbler as unsigned" suggested or use top of baking powder can (or regular doughnut cutter) that is 2½" to 2¾" in diameter.

I used electric fry pan because it has a temperature setting on handle which means you do not have to use a fat thermometer to maintain temperature of 380 deg. Fahr. Melt shortening or heat oil to 380 deg. Fahr. Fat should be at least ½" deep. Push your thumb right through centre of doughnut and fold back the little flap and drop into preheated fat—adding not more than five at a time. With slotted spoon turn doughnuts over when rich gold on bottom. Have ready on a tray double-thick paper towels sprinkled generously with granulated sugar. Skim doughnuts onto it from fat as soon as done. Repeat until all are fried. Turn them over in the sugar and sprinkle more on. Transfer to cake rack to cool. Thank you Unsigned for a streamlined idea to help cooks on budgets, short of time, long on numbers to feed.

Lawyer Gives Talk on Wills at WHA Meeting

A Voice from the Grave was the thought-provoking title when Robert B. McCulloch, Q.C., spoke to the Women's Hospital Auxiliary on Tues., Feb. 18.

In his opening remarks, Mr McCulloch, who was introduced by Mrs. D. G. Burr, told the meeting that the subject of wills and estates presupposes three fundamental propositions: — "(a) the human frame is mortal; (2) persons have the right to own property, and (3) the State may dictate what we may do with our property and even take it away from us."

"The State taxes after death, with the Estate Tax act and the Succession Duty act. We cannot even give away our property, stated Mr. McCulloch, without feeling the bite of the gift tax. There are certain essential factors in the Wills Act, which must be carried out. One main point in a will favoring a widow and children is that children cannot give a valid release to the executor until they attain the age of 21. A means of protecting children under 21 is to set up a trust for them.

Careful consideration should be given in the drafting of a will in naming the executor or executors. In larger estates, particularly, the impact of taxation is a definite factor. If a person dies without making a will, his property is distributed according to the Devolution of Estates Act. At the time the will is made, the mind of the testator must be capable of knowing what he is doing. If a person is a witness to a will or the husband or wife of a witness to the will, that person cannot take as a beneficiary under the will."

Appreciation for a most informative address was expressed by Mrs. Angus Duffy.

There was an excellent attendance at the first regular meeting for 1969 held in Education Hall. The president, Mrs. B. E. Burley, welcomed new members and several returning members. On Valentine's Day, bookmarks, made by some of the Girl Guides, were placed on each hospital patient's tray.

In her report as a member of the committee at the Opportunity Shop, Mrs. F. A. Beeby reminded everyone to be a booster for the Shop. Donations, always urgently needed, may be taken to the Opportunity Shop any week day morning from 9:30 to 11:30.

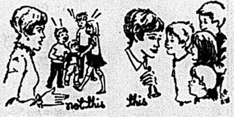
Mrs. C. D. Ashley, chairman of the puppet committee, told the meeting that 84 puppets had been made to be given to Paediatrics, as they are required.

In the absence of Mrs. S. Bechnek, Mrs. R. Moorman gave the report for the Hospital Volunteers. This department is busy preparing for the expansion into the new hospital. the Hospital Auxiliary has added to the beauty of the new hospital by having planters placed in the day rooms and waiting rooms. A committee, under the leadership of Mrs. Fred. H. Deacon, has been formed to care for these planters. The official opening is to be Feb. 23 when tours and a tea will take place.

Everyone is looking forward with much anticipation to the "Strip Tea" which is to be the highlight of the March meeting. Each member is to bring a donation to the Opportunity Shop, for the March meeting.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: (shouting): "Children, for goodness sake, stop that noise and pay attention to me. Can't you hear me talking? Why do I always have to shout before you will listen?"

Mother: "When I ring this little bell, it means everybody is supposed to stop and listen. I'll ring it when I have something important to tell you."

It's pretty hard to outshout a group of exuberant youngsters. Kindergarten teachers have long used the trick of attracting the children's attention first, then saying what they have to say in calm, quiet tones.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

(Quinte W.I.)

The February meeting of Quinte Women's Institute was held in the W. I. Memorial Hall, with president, Mrs. Clifford Reid opening the meeting and welcoming the members and guests.

There was a discussion of the different short courses available after which the nominating committee members Mrs. R. Atkins, Mrs. J. Parrott and Mrs. K. Vivian were appointed to present a slate of officers for 1969-70.

Conveners for the meeting "international" were Mrs. E. Fleming and Mrs. Jack Parrott.

The Motto was given by Mrs Clifford Reid. She stressed that working together is an influence and an achievement in our daily family living.

Mrs. Fleming gave an educational on "international".

True internationalism means knowledge of other people, their ways of life, tradition, culture and civilization. As women and homemakers, there must be an awareness of the tremendous possibilities and power we hold in our hands.

"The dream of the A.C.W.W. both past and present is to raise the standard of living in the rural homes, create opportunities and open new avenues of service," she said.

Mr. Fleming showed slides of their trip to Europe and England, also of Expo. Everyone present enjoyed them very much and were very grateful to Mr. Fleming.

The meeting was then closed and a social half hour enjoyed.

Peewee Schedule Changed

Due to the planned early ice removal at the Belleville Arena, the Belleville Minor Hockey Association has been notified that it cannot count on any ice being available after March 29th.

This recent announcement has forced the peewee division to terminate its house league schedule as of last Saturday, and start its playoffs Saturday morning at the Belleville Arena.

The first round of the playoffs will involve 12 teams, and will consist of a two-game total goals to count series, with Saturday's playoff schedule listed in tonight's Sports Calendar for your convenience.

Ask Uncle Ed

DEAR UNCLE ED:

I'd like to take an objective view of this world. How do you think scientists would look at these soft people we call women?

Yours truly,
Intellectual Isaac

DEAR I.I.:

According to my Funk and Wagnall's dictionary women are described as follows . . . .

PHYSICAL PROPERTIES
Generally round in form,
Boils at nothing,
And may freeze at anytime,
Very bitter if not used well.

CHEMICAL PROPERTIES
Possesses affinity for gold, silver, jewels, etc.
Violent when left alone,
Turns slightly green when placed beside a better looking speciman.
Caution . . . Slightly explosive in inexperienced hands.

Yours tenderly,
UNCLE ED

City's Last Delivery Horse Dies

'Old Joe' the Milk Horse Dies After 18 Years

"Old Joe" the sole remaining milk delivery horse in Belleville, and friend of all West Hill children, is dead.

The big 18-year-old white Percheron who had faithfully hauled the Reid's Dairy delivery wagon for the past eight years, died last night of a still undetermined illness.

Dairy manager Armand Quickert said this morning that "Joe" had been sick for nearly a month.

The faithful delivery horse was a familiar sight in the West Hill area of the city and knew his route equally as well as his driver Clifford Fox. He knew all the stops and didn't require any reins to follow the route.

All area children were his friends. One West Hill woman last fall even knitted him a toque to wear on mornings when the temperature was low.

But in this day of mechanized transportation, "Joe" could have the distinction of being the last delivery horse in the city.

"We haven't decided whether or not to get another horse," said Mr. Quickert.

Nails Are Causing Problem

The police were called yesterday to investigate a complaint that the nails were causing a problem for workers entering the plant.

The union at Proctor Silex has been on strike since July 17.

Plant officials claim the nails have been scattered by picketers but the striking workers deny the allegation.

George Pettingill, assistant manager at Proctor Silex said yesterday he picked up about six pounds of nails outside the entrance to the plant.

"The public is endangered by this sort of thing," he said.

Mr. Pettingill says he is concerned because an accident could be caused through tire damage.

'See How They Run' Draws Raves From Opening Night Audience in City

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville Theatre Guild last night romped into the home stretch of its current season aboard a supercharged comedy vehicle.

Latest venture produced by the most active year yet on Guild records is See How They Run, a rollicking farce now before the footlights for the rest of the week at Centennial Secondary School.

Farce, for all its airness, still is among the most trying of theatrical challenges. The Guild production, guided by its resident professional director Richard Howard, takes the challenge easily in stride.

See How They Run has all the ingredients of brilliant farce — a perfectly straightforward situation unexpectedly complicated, becoming more uproariously complex by vain attempts to solve it, all the while involving its characters in a mounting crescendo of comic frustration.

Its setting and characters, normal and eccentric are obvious targets for a sendup.

Charging in and around an English country vicarage are clergymen, an escaped state prisoner, a corporal's guard, an actress, an actor and various other contributors to the general uproar.

Pace is the essential ingredient and here once again Mr. Howard is the dominating, if unseen, presence of the production.

His direction unfolds events at a growing pace, building to the final frantic moments of the play.

The smoothness of movement disguises the skilled preciseness which the production demanded of its cast —a demand they matched on opening night.

Characterizations are taken on with verve and sparkle by the players, both well-known Guild players and newcomers.

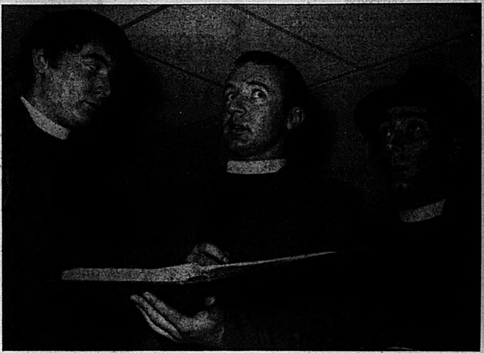
June Lawton, as a Cockney maid of dramatic imagination, and Margery Midlane as a spinster who touches "alcohol for the first time" are prominent character contributions, along with Peter Kitcher as a sedate bishop, Robert Lawton as an innocent cleric, victimized by the whole uproar, Bill Butcher as an army sergeant and Keith McLeod in the role of a sinister intruder.

Audience reaction was predictable — the play drew the happy response which a skilled production merited.

See How They Run is the third major program of the current Guild season. Next scheduled production is a play which directly contrasts with the current production in mood and theme — The Diary of Anne Frank.



These gents may not be everyone's idea of clergymen. But then they're not clerics. Helping add to uproarious confusion of Belleville Theatre Guild's See How They Run are Keith McLeod, Jack Archer and Robert Lawton. The farce, latest Guild production, opened at Centennial Secondary School last night.

The work period is nearly over on the most crucial public project in the Quinte district.

The new building is due for a ceremonial opening Sunday when Ontario Health Minister Matthew B. Dymond visits Belleville for the occasion.

Hydro People Still Out

Members of the employees union continued to step up their series of rotating strikes against Ontario Hydro today, calling off 300 workers to bring the total now on strike to more than 5,800.

Norman Manning, public relations' officer for the Eastern Region of the commission, said this morning that there are approximately 1,100 union members out in this region today.

He said that there were still about 130 staff members of the regional office here in Belleville out on strike for the second day in a row. There is a small picket line outside the building.

Hydro officials said they plan to meet the strike test by buying 250,000 kilowatts of power from Quebec Hydro and opening an extra generator at Toronto's Lakeview plant, which supplies 25 per cent of all the power used in Ontario.

Two extra regions have been affected by the strike today — the Northwestern and Georgian Bay Regions.

The company said Thursday's strike taxed its generating capacity to the limit and forced the import of 550,000 kilowatts of power from Quebec and Michigan at a cost of $90,000.

Hydro Workers Support Union

PICTON (Staff) — Workers at the Picton branch of Ontario Hydro went on strike yesterday in support of their union's demands.

This involved about 30 employees in the area — a total of 5,500 in the whole province.

The men didn't know themselves that they were going to be on strike until the night before.

Came across an ideal postscript to our little bull sessions about "amateurism", the definition of which word, incidentally, should be altered to read: "a state of financial grace in which no-one is presently known to exist."

My find comes in the form of a history essay by a grade 9 pupil of one of this city's schools, and, taking the liberty of eradicating the occasional slip of the nib, it is here offered as prima facie support for that old "out-of-the-mouths-of-babes" saw.

WHAT I WOULD CHANGE IN CANADA'S GOVERNMENT

"If I had the chance, I would change the government's attitude towards our athletes in Canada, I would like to start out by talking about our skaters.

"It costs about $20,000 to train a skater for the Olympics or other purposes. This I feel is way too expensive — people just can't afford it. The ones that can afford this become trained and then become professional to make a living in contests. Take the Russians. Their top skaters are in their thirties before retirement.

"Many skiers are not trained because there are not enough ski schools with the proper competitive ski slopes.

"Our gymnasts are not trained very well because track facilities are limited and until you get to university the equipment is not available to the younger person.

"The schools are not open in the evening to a great number of our young athletes

"I take swimmers especially for poor training because there are only two Olympic-size pools in Canada so unless you are in the area where they exist you can not get the proper training.

"Our top hockey players turn pro at an early age so we do not have the best of our players representing our country.

"If scholarships were given we would keep our best players in our own country to play for our national team much longer.

"In conclusion, I feel if government supported the athlete through scholarships and grants for better facilities then our medal-winning in the Olympics would not be as low and dismal."

• • •

Equally as interesting to me as the 15-year-old's simple but sound opinions on the topic were the comments pencilled at the end of the essay by his teacher.

"You have a well-thought-out argument and you back it up with facts. I wonder if developing award-winning athletes is really the job of our government and, if it is, wouldn't they, because of the assistance, be classed as professionals?"

I sincerely hope the comment was made purely in the Socratic spirit of teaching through questions, or came from an innocent young tutoress more acclimatized to leafing through Chatelaine than Sports Illustrated.

Hopefully, ideas similar to those expressed by our young student friend will continue to flourish in a world of Bunny Ahearnes, Clarence Campbells, and AAU's.

Cookie Crumbles For Slope Hopeful

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judy Crawford, Canadian national ski team member, was flat on her back with her left leg in traction in hospital Thursday, out of ski competition for the rest of the season.

Miss Crawford, named by Nancy Greene as Canada's hope as her successor, dislocated her hip while practising Wednesday for the Canadian ski championships which started Thursday at Whistler Mountain 53 miles north of Vancouver.

Miss Crawford, 17, of Toronto, says it doesn't really matter that she's out of competition as she was 23rd in standings with six points toward the World Cup.

Revamped National Team to Draw Young Pros

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government and big business joined forces Thursday night to organize Hockey Canada, a non-profit corporation that will take over the country's national team next year and try to regain the world title from the Russians.

Health Minister John Munro indicated that, to achieve this goal, which has eluded Canada since 1961, the national team will become:

—A quasi-professional outfit, staffed with the best players that can be obtained from the Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs organizations, and any other sources.

—A charity, in the legal sense, so that citizens and business firms can donate money to Hockey Canada and deduct it from their income tax.

Ian Sinclair, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is chairman of the finance committee and will head a fund-raising drive this fall.

The general feeling of the meeting is reported to have been that Canada must, at all costs, be represented by a superior team next year, when the world championship will be held in this country for the first time. Half of the double round-robin tournament will be played in Winnipeg, the other half in Montreal.

Mr. Munro told reporters later he is confident a team can be put together next year that will face the Russians on equal terms.

He admitted that the seven-hour meeting reached no conclusions, however, as to where talent will be found superior to that available to the national team since its inception in 1964.

This difficult problem will be tackled again when Hockey Canada holds its next meeting March 7 in Toronto.

The Montreal and Toronto NHL clubs have pledged their co-operation, but it has not been decided what concrete help they will be able to provide.

In speaking to reporters after the meeting, neither Mr. Munro nor Mr. Bell seemed to think the International Ice Hockey Federation will or can prevent Canada from using players who are professional or affiliated with professional clubs.

"The whole area of amateur and professional hockey is very murky when it comes to world competition," Mr. Munro said. "What the standings will be, Hockey Canada will have to determine."

Mr. Bill said: "Our rules about amateurs and professionals are our own."

He didn't think the International Ice Hockey Federation would care what Canadians play for the Canadian team, any more than it cares what Russians play for the Soviet team.

"Why should they care?" he asked. He didn't think the IIHF leader J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne "has taken a very hard line with the Russian quasi-professionals."

"It rests with us finally, not with him."

Leaf Split Edges Habs Into First

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It didn't take Frank Mahovlich long to set a team record with Detroit Red Wings.

Playing his first full season with the National Hockey League team, Mahovlich established a record Thursday night for the most goals by a Detroit left winger in one season.

Mahovlich scored his 37th goal of the season as the Red Wings blanked Pittsburgh Penguins 3-0 to move into third place in the Eastern Division, one point ahead of New York Rangers.

BOBBY HULL

The goal broke the record of 36 set by left winger Carl Liscombe during the 1943-44 season.

Meanwhile, Montreal Canadiens shaded Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1 and gained first place in the Eastern Division. Chicago Black Hawks downed Los Angeles Kings 6-2.

Mahovlich also holds the record for most goals in one season by a Toronto player—48 in 1960-61. He went to Detroit last year in a seven-player trade.

Gordie Howe, with his 34th of the season, and Paul Popiel had the other Red Wing goals. Netminder Roy Edwards collected his fourth shutout of the season.

A crowd of 12,331 at Detroit saw Pittsburgh goaltender Marv Edwards making his NHL debut at the age of 33. He was called up Tuesday from Amarillo of the Central League.

Left winger Dick Duff scored the winning goal on a power play at 8:44 of the second period for the Canadiens in front of 18,093 at Montreal.

The victory pushed the Canadiens two points ahead of Boston Bruins, but the second-place Bruins have three ames in hand.

With 42 seconds remaining, Toronto coach Punch Imlach replaced goalie Bruce Gamble for an extra attacker, but the Maple Leafs were unable to beat goaltender Rogatien Vachon.

Walton's Walkout Draws Suspension

MONTREAL (CP) — A decision by Mike Walton to walk out on Toronto Maple Leafs has resulted in a suspension for the controversial 24-year-old forward.

Punch Imlach, fighting to get his club into the National Hockey League playoffs, suspended the speedy centre after he failed to show up for Thursday night's game against the Canadiens here. Montreal won 2-1.

Alan Eagleson, counsel for the NHL Players' Association, said in Ottawa that he and Walton met until 4 a.m. Thursday in an attempt to settle the dispute over the amount of ice time Imlach has ben giving the Toronto player.

"Mike wants to pursue his career in hockey, but he feels he isn't getting enough playing time," Eagleson said. He expects to take the dispute to NHL president Clarence Campbell.

Last season, Walton's first full season with the Leafs, he scored 30 goals and added 29 assists in 73 games. So far this year, he has been playing sporadically on the club's third line and on the powerplay.

Walton's brushes with Imlach started two years ago when he refused to report to training camp until he received assurance he would not be sent to the minors.

Mediator Warming Up For Player-owner Tilt

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball players were set to deliver a new pension pitch to club owners today while a federal mediator warmed up in the bullpen and commissioner Bowie Kuhn fidgeted in the dugout.

The Major League Players' Association, which rejected the owners' latest pension proposal by a 24-to-0 vote of club representatives, requested another bargaining session today to submit a counter offer.

At the players' request, federal mediator Frank Brown also scheduled a meeting with both parties Monday at his New York office.

Meanwhile, Kuhn expressed distress over the prolonged impasse and asked both sides to continue negotiations on a daily basis until a settlement is reached.

Most established major league players are boycotting spring training.

The owners proposed last weekend to add $200,000 to an original offer of a $1,000,000 increase in their pension contribution, bringing the total to $5,300,000. The players are asking for a $8,500,000 package, to include a slice of television and broadcasting revenue.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego Padres apparently have circumvented a strike threatened by the Major League Baseball Players' Association, a source close to the team's management said Thursday. Twenty-seven of the 35 players on the National League expansion team were reported to have signed contracts or have verbally agreed to terms.

* * *

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harry Ornest, a former director of British Columbia Lions, was held for no gain Thursday night in his bid to purchase the Western Football Conference team. Ornest, now living in Beverly Hills, Calif., had submitted a bid to purchase the community-owned team, but his proposal was not heard at the club's annual meeting. A directors' resolution stating that the club, its assets and undertakings are not for sale was passed by a vote of 161 to 80.

* * *

SUDBURY (CP) — Mayor Joe Fabbro said Thursday Sudbury has been invited to make a bid for the 1971 Canadian Winter Games. Mr. Fabbro said his city was one of a number in the province asked to consider a Games bid by Ontario John Robarts. The mayor said an applicant must provide adequate facilities for at least 16 winter sports, accommodation, transportation and medical facilities.

KINGSTON (CP) — A complaint that the only thing that most non-resident anglers leave behind in Ontario is their garbage was heard Thursday at the annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters. Ron Thorburn of Dryden, Ont., called for more rigid controls on the number of fish being taken out of the province. He said most non-resident anglers come to Ontario fully equipped with boats, motors, tents, campers, food and gasoline. "The only purchase he makes is his licence," Thorburn said. "He lives on fish while here, and takes back all the law allows. All he leaves behind is his garbage which the department of lands and forests has to pay to have cleaned up.

"There's no doubt about it," said Lehtovaara, skip of the Northern Ontario rink from Fort William.

Miller, who rallied for two victories Thursday, one a 10-8 triumph over John Brady of Bridgewater, N.S., with three points in the 10th end, improved his record to 7-1.

"We don't even hear the crowd," Miller said after a ninth-round 11-8 win over Quebec before an estimated 1,800 fans.

Billy Henry of Winnipeg, representing Manitoba, Ontario skip George Cox of Renfrew and Alberta entry John Anderson of Sedgewick were tied for second after nine rounds with 5-3 records.

One of the second-place rinks would have to win both games today and Saskatchewan lose twice to force a playoff.

Trenton Quartet In Six-way Tie

STRATFORD (CP) — Four curlers from Burlington, Ont., Thursday proved there is no substitute for experience.

The Burlington entry, which is an average at least 10 years older than its seven rival rinks, stands as the only undefeated rink after two rounds of the Ontario mixed curling championships.

Skipped by 49-year-old Ken Stewart, Burlington Thursday dumped Curly Lord of CFB Trenton 9-3 in the opening round and followed with a 9-5 win over Fred Hansen's rink from Toronto Royal Canadian.

Hansen also lost his opening match, 9-8 to Brantford's Terry Patton. The six other rinks in the seven-game round-robin series all have 1-1 records.

In other first-round play, Kitchener's John Cathers defeated 1968 runner-up Vince Lebano of Orillia 5-2, and Ottawa's Howie Britt doubled the score on Wally Heggum of Toronto Weston 6-3.

Heggum recovered with a 7-6 win over Cathers. Lord nipped Patton 5-4 and Lebano, whose rink finished second last year to Peter Connell of Arnprior, rebounded with a decisive 10-3 win over Britt in second round play.

Fuels Win First Round

Belleville Smith Fuels peewees defeated Trenton 4-1 in Trenton last night to capture the first round of the Ontario playdowns in two straight games, and advance into the second round of the playdowns in defence of their Ontario championship.

Steve Kirby, Ricky Culkin, Tim Whelan and Peter Crawford fired single goals for the winners, while Mike Crawford picked up a pair of assists.

Lacrosse Plans

The Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association will hold an organizational meeting Thursday, February 27, at the Recreation Centre to lay the groundwork for its forthcoming second season of operation.

Super Spoilers?

Morrisons Want Wins To Wrap Up Schedule

STAFF — The Belleville Morrisons will have a chance to play the role of super spoilers twice this weekend when they finish their 30-game Eastern Ontario Junior "B" Hockey League schedule with a pair of road games against two opponents, each in desperate need of a win in their last game of the season.

Friday night the Morrisons travel to Trenton to tangle with the Golden Hawks, who need a win over Belleville to climb into a fourth place tie with the Cobourg Cougars and force a sudden-death playoff game Saturday at the Trenton Community Gardens.

Sunday the Morrisons will be under the gun in Peterborough when they take on the powerful Don Byes, who are currently tied with Oshawa for first place, and need a win over Belleville to insure a first place tie with the Crushmen.

Morrisons coach Floyd Crawford has two set lines, rookie Brian Coughlin centring for wingers Dennis McCormick and Ron Fuller, and rookie John McConnell playing between wingers Ted Waite and Ray Summers, and four definite defencemen to date, Cliff Scott, Al Jones, Jerry Candler and Dalton Lambert, plus Gord Donaldson, who can play either left wing or defence.

"I'd like to dress a couple of players from the Belleville Minor Hockey System," commented coach Crawford.

"You can be sure that we'll be out to make it interesting, and that the boys want this one badly," Crawford added.

"We've had a five minute lapse in each of our last three games, and we blew two of them and tied the other one, so I took some steps in practice this week to rectify the situation," says "Red" Gravelle, the Golden Hawks' mentor.

"We can't afford a lapse in this one, and I'm expecting 150% from the boys Friday night," added coach Gravelle, who will bolster his squad with a few players from the Trenton minor hockey system.

Bottom Teams Upset Applecart

The bottom two teams of the Gas House League rose up and lashed out at top two teams last night as the cellar-dwelling Wings marred the previously unblemished record of first place Mulroney's Sunoco, by holding the Sunoco crew to a 4-4 draw, while Marysville clinched third place with their fourth win of the season, a 3-1 verdict over the second place Mustangs.

The night's action settled the final standing of the league, with one game remaining in the 15 game regular schedule.

Top Teams Stage Comebacks

STAFF—The Quinte Hockey League games last night featured a pair of comebacks by the two top teams, with first place Aluminum Stars edging third place Central Taxi 3-2, and second place Stinson's Construction outlasting Belvedere Hotel 6-4 to doom the Hotelmen to the cellar spot in the four team league.

The Stars trailed 2-1 at one time, but rebounded to win as Jim Muir potted a goal and an assist, Ron Pointer and Ron Post notched a goal apiece and Hugh Pointer collected a pair of assists.

Linemates Terry Casselman and Maurice Switzer contributed a goal each for the Taximen, with winger Ron Morgan picking up two assists.

Belvedere Hotel grabbed a 3-0 lead last night, but couldn't hold off the Construction crew, who rallied to outscore them 6-1 the rest of the way as Rick Denard scored two goals and picked up an assist, Don Forsythe got a goal and an assist and Dennis Ray, Garry Genereaux and Wayne Tuman added single goals.

With the 15 game regular schedule now completed, the Quinte Hockey League will begin playoffs next week with first place Central Taxi taking on Aluminum Stars in one semi-final series, and second place Stinson's meeting Belvedere Hotel in the other semi-final.

The best four out of seven semi-finals will begin next Friday at 8 p.m., and the two winners will tangle in a best four out of seven final series for the playoff championship of the Quinte Hockey League.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Boredom Drives People To Seek Out Bizarre Diets

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Sometimes I believe that the reason people seek out special and bizarre diets is for no other reason than boredom. Life becomes stale and they want to try something new. Instead of picking on psychedelic drugs for kicks, they try more moderate means of mood elevation. For example:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I wonder if you have ever heard of the . . . diet? A book that I recently purchased on the subject says that eating the . . . way will bring health, happiness and peace of mind. It even claims to be able to cure diseases like cancer.

I went on the diet and experienced fantastic results. Wow, did I feel great!

But I could not continue the diet because, understandably, it offended my mother who cooks normal American meals. But as soon as I came back to eating my family meals I once again feel slightly tired much of the time.

The book says that many people could be cured in 10 days of all physical ailments. I am very interested in your opinion. — Mr. W.

Comment: Dear Mr. W.: You will note that I haven't mentioned the name of your special, miracle diet for fear that other readers might be tempted to sample it. Frankly, and not facetiously or ironically, I advise you to stick to your mother's home cooking of old-fashioned baked bread and apple pie.

If you will think about it, I believe you will convince yourself that medicine knows of no special diet which will cure cancer. The whole thing bears the evident taint of quackery. Please don't fall for it.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have emphysema really bad. I have been smoking at least two packs a day for over 25 years. If I stop, will that cure it? — Mr. J.

Comment: There is no cure for emphysema. But it can be improved — just like heart disease, diabetes, pernicious anemia, gout and other chronic conditions that get better under suitable treatment.

My advice is quit. The fact that you are considering it, is already a step in the right direction. I think you will note improvement within weeks after you stop smoking. The degree of improvement, of course will depend upon how involved your lungs are right now.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What is the reason for a colostomy? The supervisor in our office just had one. There are all sorts of rumors going around that he has cancer. — Mrs. M.

Comment: My guess would only be another rumor as I do not have the facts. Cancer of the bowel is a possibility. Anything that completely obstructs the passage of material out through the rectum may be the reason for a colostomy. (This is an operation in which the healthy part of the colon is cut and brought out into an opening in the abdomen. Stool matter comes through this opening and into a special bag or container—instead of taking the normal route through the rectum.)

Sometimes the operation is a temporary colostomy, in treatment of ulcerative colitis — which gives the lower colon a chance to rest and heal. Whatever the reason, a colostomy is an essential operation to leave the way open for elimination of body waste.

Ontario Management Methods To Receive Thorough Review

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton disclosed plans Thursday for a thorough review of the civil service and management procedures in Ontario.

Mr. MacNaughton told the legislature that the project is designed to "ensure that the government's intensive efforts to develop new organizational and procedural concepts will be compatible with future needs in the field of public service."

The project, expected to take between 18 months and two years to complete, will deal with five basic areas: Machinery of government and organizational structure, personnel management, financial management, paperwork and systems and automatic data processing.

In other legislature business:

—Premier Robarts said he opposed the federal medical care plan because it is being used by Ottawa to create fiscal leverage to invade the constitutional rights of the provinces. He said that Ontario will be paying for something it will not be getting, and that the provinces will be left to bear the constantly-increasing costs of the program when the federal government pulls out of the program in five years.

—Rene Brunelle, lands and forests minister, said that plans to expropriate properties on Lake Erie for a public park are proceeding. He said that some of the property being expropriated is in Perth Township and that the park will be about 216 acres in size.

—Treasurer Charles MacNaughton introduced a bill to amend the Pensions Benefits Act of 1965. He said intent of the bill is to prohibit the withdrawal of contributions from a pension plan except for voluntary additional contributions or upon termination of either employment or the plan.

Big Trade Surplus Achieved

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 1968 trade surge piled up the country's biggest surplus in almost a quarter century and included the first favorable balance with the United States in three years.

The surplus in the value of merchandise exports over imports was $1,207,000,000, the first time since the unusual trading conditions during the Second World War that a surplus has topped the billion-dollar mark.

Sayings by A Famous Man

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What famous American figure attacked merchants for exacting an "exorbitant price" for goods during wartime, and warned against allowing them to "amass fortunes upon the public ruin"?

What famous American figure declared it to be a universal experience of mankind that no nation (including ours) "is to be trusted further than it is bound by its interest"?

What famous American figure wrote in a letter to a friend that the times afford "too many melancholy proofs of the decay of public virtue"?

What famous American figure complained that speculators and profiteers, for "the paltry consideration of a little dirty pelf," were tearing apart the fabric of the nation "for their own aggrandizement and to gratify their own avarice," and asked whether Americans will "at last become the victims of our own abominable lust for gain"?

What famous American figure cautioned us that "overgrown military establishments are under any form of government inauspicious to liberty, and are to be regarded as particularly hostile" to our form of government?

What famous American figure urged us, "as an object of primary importance,' to promote "institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge for, in proportion as the structure of a government gives force to public opinion, it is essential that public opinion be enlightened?

What famous American figure, when passion was still running high against our former enemy, said "The nation which indulges toward another an habitual hatred, or an habitual fondness, is in some degree a slave. It is a slave to its animosity or to its affection, either of which is sufficient to lead it astray from its duty and its interest?

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For February 22

Your birthday today: You may find this year gets out of hand, both for overexpanding your achievements and in complicating relationships with other people. It is probable that you will wind up doing the thinking for both sides. Avoid the temptation of letting your opponents know how well you understand their weaknesses, as they learn too readily from your attacking comments. Today's natives are often ready to give up, just when that is the least indicated course to follow.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your judgment about money-making schemes is not very exact now. Let well enough alone; particularly resist any effort to rush you into deals without full exploration.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Expect everybody to be stubborn today. Select and limit your social contacts to those you know fairly well rather than odd acquaintances. Your petitions are better presented later on.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Aside from an uncanny streak of awkward coincidence and a tendency to mix up figures, you can have lots of fun getting fine results with little effort.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Take care of yourself first, and you will be able to do something very important at just the right time for somebody else. Romantic indiscretion is almost certain to expand into an unconstructive situation.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Home, property, people under your protection become fretful. You, in turn, are oversensitive. Avoid unprescribed medications for the time being.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): At best this is a somewhat confusing day for all matters having to do with keeping facts and details clear. The big temptation is to believe flattering compliments and indulge in wishful thinking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Well meaning friends and relatives spoil all sorts of arrangements if you give them too much information or confuse them with ideas and knowledge beyond their needs or proper concerns.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your career has been developing normally, at least in your planning, now the personal side of your life needs cultivation. You won't be able to hold special information long.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Keep matters simple and open to inspection. If you stoop to gossip, nobody will believe you anyway, so no complaint can be brought to bear. Your own affairs are sufficiently important to merit your full attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 Jan. 19): You must be explicit in your discourse today, to avert dissension. There are people seeking enough leeway to re-interpret the situation into something they can enjoy easier.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. tual confusion is about par for the course. Public figures do err or have erroneous remarks attributed to them. Do not be misled. Nobody is apt to follow your suggestions, so save your breath now.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Take the weekend routines in stride without regard to comments arising on all sides. Don't permit yourself to be baited into discussions.

Goodwill and Tommy Douglas March Into House

The government cashed in by getting all-party agreement to have its contentious amendments to the Estate Tax Act cleared through to third and final reading.

The act, which does away with death taxes on estates passing from one spouse to another, but increases the bite on those of more than $50,000 left to other recipients, now goes to the Senate.

A NDP motion to kill the bill was defeated by a count of 159 to 26. Then followed another easy government win on second reading, clause-by-clause approval, and a voice vote giving the bill final Commons passage.

Today the Commons starts off with third-reading debate on two minor agricultural bills.

Mr. Douglas, defeated in the June federal election but an easy victor in a byelection in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, got a few laughs as he replied to welcoming speeches from other party leaders.

He was too long in politics not to take such orations with a grain of salt, he said but:

"As the devil said when he was sworn in as a member of the cabinet, it's nice to be home."

David Lewis, who now drops back as the NDP's second man in the Commons, described the improvements in the Estate Tax Act as "a miniscule crumb."

His party would continue to fight for "a really equitable tax structure." With the exception of the tax relief for spouses, the bill "accomplishes nothing in the way of fundamental justice for the people of Canada."

Government followers were spreading the story that estates under $50,000 were not subject to tax.

What they didn't add, said the former Conservative chief, was that estates of between $50,000 and $300,000 would be taxed more.

Meanwhile, estates in the millions now would get better treatment, he said.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) sought tax relief for unmarried couples and Finance Minister Edgar Benson admitted that "common-law relationships" presented a problem to his department.

He hoped the changes in the divorce laws would bring some relief. Meanwhile, the finance department was looking into the matter.

Spring Budget Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — A strong possibility that there will be a spring budget emerged Thursday as Liberal House Leader Donald S. Macdonald outlined proposed business for the remainder of the present Commons session.

Mr. Macdonald allowed six days for debate on a budget, should one be presented by Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

Until now Mr. Benson has given no firm indication that he intends to introduce a budget this spring. Several weeks ago he indicated that he probably would not.

The last federal budget was introduced in October.

Mr. Macdonald, in giving the House a rough outline of the government's legislative intentions, said a total of 44 bills now are on the order paper or will be put there.

He proposed that the Commons' Easter recess be set for April 2-14, and that the House aim for a June 27 summer adjournment.

Manitoba PCs Victors In Three Byelections

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Walter Weir chopped off rising opposition hopes Thursday as his Progressive Conservative administration handily won three of four byelections that could have upset the balance of power.

Crushed in the voting were the Liberals, official opposition in the legislature. New Democrats scored the upset on incomplete returns, stealing Churchill from the Tories in a squeaker with an independent.

Standings in the legislature are 31 Conservatives, 13 Liberals, 12 New Democrats and one Social Credit. It left the Conservatives in the position they earned in the 1966 provincial election for the opening of the legislature next Thursday.

Both Liberal Leader Gil Molgat and NDP Leader Russ Paulley said federal issues and Mr. Weir's strong showing at this month's federal-provincial constitutional conference were telling factors in the voting.

The thrashing taken by his party resulted in an announcement by Mr. Molgat that a meeting of party officials and caucus members will be held Sunday where his position "will be one of the topics."

His party had 10 seats when he became leader in 1961 and gains during the 42-year-old businessman's tenure have been marginal. He, like many observers, expected Conservative fortunes to nosedive.

Mr. Weir assumed the leadership of the party in 1967 after Duff Roblin gave it up. The four byelections were his first real test of voter support and came less than two weeks after he made a national impact at the constitutional conference in Ottawa.

In Wolseley and Morris, Conservative candidates won by healthy margins. The results in Morris, with 1966 figures for each party in brackets, were: Conservative Warner Jorgenson 2,146 (1,518); Liberal Ralph Rasmussen 841 (2,288) and New Democrat William Lofkus 276 (370).

In Wolseley, it was: Conservative Leonard Claydon 2,161 (3,132); Liberal Julius Koteles 1,530 (1,780); and New Democrat Archie Stone 944 (1,495).

With three polls outstanding, the result in Birtle-Russell was Conservative Harry Graham 1,963 (2,078); Liberal Ed Shust 1,383 (2,223) and New Democrat Don Kostesky 986 (446).

Joe Borowski, who was a burr under the provincial administration's saddle two years ago, pulled the Churchill upset. He had 2,563 votes compared with Dr. Blain Johnston, an independent, who polled 2,284 with 11 polls not reported. Liberal Gary Walsh had 1,487 and Michael Klewchuk, the Conservative, trailed with 925.

In the 1966 vote, it was 3,159 votes for the Conservatives and 2,192 for the New Democrats.

The byelection turnout was 50 per cent of the 35,681 eligible voters compared with 63 per cent in the same constituencies in the general election.

Three of the constituencies became vacant through resignations. Gordon Beard resigned Churchill for personal reasons, Mr. Roblin and Rod Clement gave up Wolseley and Birtle-Russell respectively to run in the federal election.

Sunday School Lesson

Concerning Pans and Hams

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

A new bride decided to bake a ham for her husband. So she got a knife and a saw and carefully cut a piece off each end of the ham before she put it into the oven to bake.

"Why did you cut a piece off each end of the ham?" her husband asked her. She replied, "I don't know. But mother always did."

When the bride's mother came over, the son-in-law asked her, "Do you always cut both ends off a ham before you bake it?" The mother replied, "Yes, I always do." "Why?" asked the son-in-law. She replied, "I don't know. But mother always did."

So when the bride's grandmother came over, the young husband asked her, "Is it true you always cut both ends off a ham before you bake it?" The grandmother replied, "O yes, I always do." "Why?" asked the young man. The answer came back, "I can't make it fit into my pan unless I do."

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 23: "When Religion Is Vital," Mark 7:1 through 8:26.

This is the way tradition often builds up. Someone does something to meet a need, or to fit a situation. Someone else repeats it because it was done that way before. Soon the tradition is established. If the questions were asked, "Why do you do it that way?" the answer would come back, "I don't know. But that's the way former generations did it."

This happens over and over in religion. One generation performs an act of cleanliness or reverence. Succeeding generations make a custom of it. Soon people are just going through the motions. The act has lost its original meaning, but it is repeated because it "has always been done that way."

This was true in Jesus' day. Certain acts were done to meet a specific need. They were repeated as an act of reverence and worship. After awhile, they became mandatory. People were not considered religious unless they did the same old acts in the same old way.

Tradition has its place. It forms a link with the past. It reminds people of important emphases that otherwise might get lost. It offers a channel for expressing faith. But when it becomes little more than a required custom, it loses its meaning, and becomes a sterile act.

Tradition can get in the way. It can prevent people from exploring new ways of doing things. It can make people slaves of the past. It can stifle the creative urge of youth. Often it makes religion seem out of date.

Religious leaders are discovering that the needs of the present world are so diverse and great, often they cannot be made to fit into old concepts and methods. New expressions of faith and service are called for that reflect the contemporary mood. Young people often prefer a guitar to an organ. The methods of former days do not seem to be enough to face a world of vast social change.

Jesus did not always require His disciples to perform traditional acts of piety. If religion puts its emphasis on externals — such as what foods should be eaten — Jesus put His emphasis on internals. It is the attitudes and thoughts of person, He insisted, that determine how religious he is.

Jesus knew that religion is vital when it is concerned with meeting the needs of people. It was more important to Jesus to feed hungry people (Mark 8:2-10) than to give people a sign from heaven (Mark 8:11). He wanted to demonstrate the love and power of God in acts of healing not just in traditional ways of performing ceremonial acts.

This does not mean He threw tradition overboard entirely. Some things persist because they have value. When certain people were healed, He sent them to the temple to express their gratitude to God in accordance with ancient precepts of Moses (Luke 5:14)

It is important to try to maintain a proper balance between tradition and a creative ministry. A mountain climber would be foolish to reject all the methods and equipment used by mountain climbers in the past. He would be just as foolish to close his eyes to new equipment devised by science to help him in his hazardous climb.

Much that the churches have done in the past is good, and needs to be continued. But situations change. Churches must devise new approaches for the changing situations of our day. This may call for experimentation, and the spirit of exploring as they seek to provide a fellowship and a concern large enough to match the problems of our day.

Bids for Bail Delay Hearing

MONTREAL (CP) — Preliminary hearing resumes today for the first of 89 persons charged with conspiracy to commit arson and destroy property at Sir George Williams University last week.

The hearing for Kennedy J. Fredericks, 29, of Grenada, West Indies, was postponed Wednesday when a battery of defence lawyers for the accused demanded consideration of bail applications.

Final applications were processed Thursday and 10 persons were denied bail. The 79 others were granted bails ranging from $1,000 to $8,000. Fifty-two of them managed to deposit money with court clerks and were released.

Except for Fredericks, who was denied bail, preliminary hearing for the accused has been set for next Wednesday.

Hospital Launches New Era in Service

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The biggest building along the Bay of Quinte shoreline comes into its own next week — with a task of matching dimensions.

Just seven days from now the seven floors of Belleville General Hospital's brand new extension will be totally involved with the most basic of community endeavors — caring for human life.

There will be more than 300 persons in constant need of care; there will be a steady stream of minor cases — victims of the unexpected demanding emergency treatment. All will absorb the attention of a highly sophisticated organization.

But, likely the urgency will never be apparent.

Gleaming white, a handsome asset to bay shore and city skyline, the new wing will be in full operation Feb. 28.

And to herald the occasion, after four years of work, a roster of distinguished personalities headed by Ontario Health Minister Matthew B. Dymond will assemble for a ceremonial opening occasion Sunday.

There won't be any patients in the new wing when the health minister cuts the traditional ribbon. They will be moved from existing quarters later in the week.

Nonetheless there will be an impressive public project to be viewed immediately afterwards by the visitors.

They will be carried from floor to floor on three spacious elevators and inspect a care centre with one of the most serene views anywhere.

Many of the new addition's 310 beds have a sweeping expanse of the Bay of Quinte for environment. In fact, the bay is a commanding aspect of the centre.

But there will be more basic things to appreciate.

For instance:

A majority of the beds will be private and semi-private (the ratio is 47 private, 148 semi, 115 standard ward beds) — filling a long-standing need. "We're desperately short of private and semi-private accommodation," says a hospital spokesman.

Installations include built-in oxygen supply; an intercom system linking nurses and individual patients.

A supply system that organizes regular pickup and delivery along with pushbutton technique, reducing routine demands on nurses. It is a scheme reserved to less than a half-dozen other Ontario hospitals.

A communications system that includes direct contact with key personnel anywhere in the building through pocket devices; a pneumatic tube network to speed the relentless flow of paper work vital to all hospital operations.

But most important of all will be the new direction in health services permitted by the spacious extension.

The major accomplishment is a psychiatric clinic, the first of its kind in the area, also filling a need of long-standing. A hospital official says it will house a 40-bed unit under the direction of city psychiatrist Dr. Bert Conn and will include such features as a common dining room.

Also available for the first time in the area is a dental clinic, equipped through an Atkinson Foundation grant and a boon to persons requiring anesthetics in dental surgery, says the official.

Much of the professional organization backing up the patient care role is located on the ground floor of the new building — the laboratory, x-ray, cardiology, pharmacy and radio-isotope departments.

On the same floor also is the hospital's new emergency facilities — at last housed in the expanded quarters that the BGH spokesman described as a "crying need."

It's facilities include six treatment rooms, a cast room and a minor operating room.

The new hospital wing also has six operating theatres.

Those for whom it was built — the patients — will begin to experience the new extension's luxuries next Thursday.

That's the day of the big move at BGH — a full-scale operation that has been rehearsed in detail.

Assisting the hospital staff will be a reinforcement from the hospital's women's auxiliary.

Belleville Hospital Almost Century Old

It was less than 100 years coming not much as history is measured.

Yet, a century ago Belleville didn't even have a hospital.

The first attempts at public health care apparenctly came from dire necessity—a cholera plague sometime around the 1830s. This resulted in erection of a public building in an area on what is now Church Street where the present-day St. Michael's Academy stands, reveal records at Hastings County Museum.

Its ending was as hazy as its beginnings, and so far, records of its community role are sketchy. The building was gone some time around the 1860s.

Quinte residents in need of hospital care had to content themselves with trekking to Kingston where the beginnings of a hospital were established in the mid-1800s. So much so, museum officials say, the man in charge of the Kingston institution wrote Hastings County Council for financial aid.

Impetus for a local hospital came in 1872 with a grinding train collision near Belleville. The dead and dying and injured were carted to the town and housed in church halls, freight sheds and private homes. Shortly after Mrs. J. R. Jacques, wife of the Albert College principal, enthused other public-minded women in the town into forming the Women's Christian Association.

Its aims were to aid the construction of a care centre for the sick.

Despite initial opposition from Bellevillians and local government, they stuck to their objectives and achieved their aims.

In 1886 they opened a home for the aged and a small hospital on the present BGH site.

More than 80 years later their pioneering social breakthrough is still recognized. A member of the WCA is still on the hospital's board of governors.

Dymond to Open Wing

Ontario Health Minister Matthew B. Dymond will preside over Sunday's opening ceremonies for the new BGH wing.

Events will start at 2 p.m. before an invited audience at the hospital's Education Hall.

Hospital authorities have found it necessary to have attendance by official invitation only — and for reason. The hall seats only 250.

After an address from Mr. Dymond, the assembly will move to the main entrance of the new building and participate in a ribbon-cutting ceremony.

Sunday night will see a banquet at the Sun Valley Motel. S. W. Martin, chairman of Ontario Hospital Services Commission will be the guest speaker.

New Extension Is Functional, Handsome

All that gleams is not necessarily efficient. Such is not the case with the new BGH extension — as functional within as its exterior is handsome.

The entire extension has been planned around a unique supply concept, originated by Gordon A. Friesen, a designer of international repute.

The Friesen plan applies proven industrial techniques to hospital operation — and in this case is epitomized in the wing's supply, processing and distribution department.

Basically, what officials term the SPD unit, incorporates push-button and quick pick-up routines to distribution of supplies through the new wing's seven floors, thus phases out much routine from nursing duties, freeing nurses for more patient care.

Most utilized implement is the nurserver—a pass-through metal cabinet outside each patient room. All supplies ordered by the nurse are delivered daily to the cabinet by a supply technician.

Similarly, soiled and used supplies are disposed into a second pass-through cabinet and later collected by a "decontamination technician."

Supplementing this is a system of trayveyors in which specifically-requested supplies are moved through the seven levels by push-button conveyor.

"What it all means is that the nurse spends that much time less in fetching and carrying," says a BGH spokesman.

Communication Crucial to Organization

Communication is crucial to efficient organization, vital when the operation deals with human life.

Known as a pocket pager, the little electronic package enables almost instant contact with key hospital personnel.

A transistorized receiving set, it is pocketed by staffers away from their posts. Activated from a central switchboard, each set emits a beep when its individual carrier is required at the nearest telephone.

The system has one immediately - obvious advantage.

It sharply reduces the number of calls broadcast throughout the hospital's public address system — a method efficient enough, but often annoying to patients.

The old days when a patient signalled a nurse by buzzer or flashing light are as antiquated as iron bedsteads in the new wing.

An audio-visual signal is installed at the station, identifying the source of each call.

The patient can relay requests and problems directly to the nurse, thus eliminating an unnecessary bedside trip — and speeding up service.

A third installation is updated version of a device which has seen long and hardy service in the communications field — the pneumatic tube.

Precise documentation is basic to any hospital operation. Added to this is the flood of departmental and personnel memoranda involved in any big organization and the result is an avalanche of paper work, necessitating personal pickup and delivery.

The pneumatic tube, linking all central points of the new wing, permits the paper flood to continue unabated, but speeds up servicing and eases demands on personnel.

Just A Beep Away

Key personnel at BGH's new wing are just a beep away with this handy transistor set. Known as the pocket pager it emits an electronic signal to summon staff members to nearest phone. One benefit is reduction of message flow over public address system.

First Stage Completed

The BGH wing is impressive — but that's only half the story.

Actually the now-completed project is only the initial phase of a two-part plan extending hospital facilities.

When the entire scheme is completed Belleville General Hospital will have 450 beds with administration, laundry and stores newly housed.

The new wing has a capacity for 310 patients—the majority of them in private or semi-private rooms. Some 32 beds will be kept open in the obstetrics section of the existing hospital quarters to raise the admission potential.

The existing west wing is being left intact and with renovations over the next two years will add another 140 beds.

The final phase calls for construction of a new administration building, stores and laundry area, at a currently estimated cost of $1,800,000.

It could take up to two years — however, its completion date may be indefinite. With tighter money markets, senior governments are clamping down on public expenditures. Already, the Edith Cavel School of Nursing at BGH has been deferred for these reasons.

French Plan Upset

LONDON (CP) — Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart said today Britain refused to trade its friendship with the United States for a European trade alliance with President de Gaulle of France.

Stewart's statement was the first by a British government official since Friday's disclosure—on the eve of President Nixon's trip to Europe—that de Gaulle had sought British help to form a new alliance that would scuttle the European Common Market and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Foreign Minister Michel Debre of France denied the report and criticized Britain for releasing it.

Stewart told a seminar of the Fabian Society, a socialist intellectual group: "We cannot accept what appears to be Gen. de Gaulle's thesis that friendship and alliance with America is necessarily the same as dependence on America."

Stewart defended the policy of Western European allies on maintaining close ties with the Americans.

"The United States alone among the super powers in the world is a democracy," he said.

"For example, people who disagree with the policy of the U.S. government on Vietnam can and do say so.

"This is one very powerful reason why we should want good British-American relations and it is one powerful reason behind the existence of NATO."

In the British version of the French proposal, de Gaulle was quoted as saying France alone of the Western European states had established a position of total independence from the United States. British sources quoted him as saying the pro-Americanism of France's European friends represents the main obstacles to a true European unity and independence.

Police Say Grenada Student Plotted Computer Destruction

MONTREAL (CP) — A police lieutenant Friday identified West Indian Kennedy J. Fredericks as one of the students who barricaded themselves in, and later set fire to, the $1,000,000 computer centre at Sir George William University.

Fredericks, 29, of Grenada, is one of 89 students arrested after the 10-hour spree of destruction Feb. 11 and is the first to face preliminary hearing on charges of conspiracy to commit arson and to destroy property.

His hearing continues Monday.

Lieut. Allan Forest of the Montreal police riot squad testified that he was the first policeman to reach the ninth-floor computer centre after the order had been given to evacuate students involved in a sit-in for two weeks.

When he reached the entrance to the centre " the doors were unlocked but a barricade prevented us from entering."

While his men were taking down the pile of chairs, tables and other furniture, he saw Fredericks inside.

"I saw him through an opening in the barricade. He was standing on a table about eight feet away from me and he was looking straight at me.

"I then saw a piece of burning paper floating up to the ceiling."

Lieut. Forest said flames reached a barricade and the heat became too intense.

Later the riot squad moved in, arrested, photographed and fingerprinted each person individually.

The students had moved in Jan. 29 to protest the makeup of a faculty committee appointed to hear charges of racism brought by six West Indian students against a biography professor, Perry Anderson.

Ten of the 58 men and 30 women charged later were denied bail. Preliminary hearings for them have been set for next Wednesday in municipal court.

In earlier testimony Friday, an 18-year-old Negro from Montreal who took part in the sit-in told the court that during the occupation a "gentleman from a New York City newspaper" visited the students and urged them to "politicize" the issue.

Vaughn Dowie, a first-year art student at Sir George Williams, said the reporter was in Montreal gathering material to write a story on United States draft-dodgers in Canada.

Dowie said he could not recall the man's name or the name of the newspaper.

A handwriting expert also testified Friday that a document planning the destruction of computers at the university was written by Fredericks.

Dr. Roasrio Fontaine, a medico-legal expert who said he had been studying handwriting "for 45 years", said writing on documents found in a briefcase matched Fredericks' signature. At the time of his arrest Fredericks was asked to sign, in duplicate, police documents bearing his fingerprints.

The briefcase containing the documents exhibited in court have the initials K. J. F.

It was found on the university's 11th floor by two professors shortly before 8 p.m. Feb. 11 — a few hours after the occupiers had been arrested.

The handwriting expert said he was convinced that parts of other documents from the briefcase were also written by Fredericks, including one that contained this statement:

"We expect action on the 12th floor, therefore the computers are yours to handle — blacks inside, whites in the hallways."

Davis Warns Students To Act Like Adults

TORONTO (CP) — Violence and property damage by protesting students on university campuses in Ontario will not be tolerated by the provincial government, Education Minister William Davis told the legislature Friday.

Administrators, faculty and "the vast majority of students realize that they are being treated like adults — and have no right to violate or break the law," he said.

He said that so far there had been no student violence or property damage on Ontario campuses. He added that protesters who had seized the theology buildings at the University of Windsor had washed the floors of the buildings before leaving it Thursday.

More Changes: Kierans

MONTREAL (CP) — Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said Friday he hopes the post office can be reorganized and made more efficient so that it may be converted at some date into a Crown corporation.

He told a news conference during a visit to the main post office here that the idea of a Crown corporation has not yet been presented to the federal cabinet "although they know that I favor this as a possible solution."

Mr. Kierans said recent changes and further studies being conducted on post office operations are intended to increase productivity and efficiency.

Once the post office eliminates its deficit position it could be converted to a Crown corporation. It might be operating at a profit as early as September.

Recently introduced changes in mail handling and delivery and other changes planned for between now and September would facilitate the change-over to a Crown corporation.

Trudeau-Nixon Talks to Cover China, NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday he and President Nixon will confer in the American capital March 24-25 on "a wide range of questions which are of mutual concern to our two countries."

PIERRE TRUDEAU

It will be the first time the two have met. Mr. Trudeau has been in office 10 months, Mr. Nixon one month.

The president extended the invitation in a telephone call to the prime minister Thursday.

"The president very thoughtfully suggested I come to Washington shortly following the conclusion of his tour of Europe to permit him to share with me his impression of the current situation there," Mr. Trudeau said.

Mr. Nixon leaves on his European tour Sunday.

Sources speculated the agenda will include the post-Czechoslovakia European situation, the Middle East situation, Vietnam and China.

It is expected that Mr. Trudeau will brief the president on the progres of Canada's movetoward recognition of Communist China.

He will also presumably be in a position to indicate at least in broad outline Canada's intentions toward NATO.

This aspect of Canada's foreign review may not be entirely completed by that time but a cabinet committee has been meeting regularly on the question and the general contours of future Canadian policy should be plain.

Mr. Trudeau will probably convey Canada's strong convictions on the desirability of U.S.-Soviet talks on strategic arms limitation, the sources said.

The prime minister told reporters outside the Commons that bilateral problems of trade and defence probably will be discussed, with U.S. and Canadian officials present.

RICHARD NIXON

NATO Decision in March

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau disclosed Friday that the government has made plans to announce its decision on future Canadian membership in NATO around mid-march.

However, he told the Commons, this timetable may have to be revised to allow time for the House committee on defence and external affairs to present its report to Parliament before the decision is announced.

The committee has been conducting its own review of Canada's foreign policy as a corollary to that being carried out by the external affairs department.

"Our view was that we should make the announcement as soon as possible so that the NATO meetings in Washington would be fully informed of Canada's position," Mr. Trudeau told David Anderson (L—Esquimalt-Saanich).

The Washington meeting is scheduled for April 10.

Oswald's Wife Refutes Witness

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lee Harvey Oswald's Russian widow has contradicted the testimony of a key prosecution witness in Clay L. Shaw's trial for conspiracy to murder President John F. Kennedy.

Marina Oswald Porter denied in testimony Friday that Oswald was a bearded beatnik.

"Tell me if you ever saw Lee Harvey Oswald with more beard than he has here," said defence lawyer F. Irvin Dymond in criminal district court as he showed her a picture of Oswald with a stubble of beard after his arrest in Dallas.

"That is more beard than I ever saw on him," said Mrs. Porter, who has re-married since Oswald's death.

Perry Raymond Russo had described Oswald as unwashed, bearded beatnik who lived in New Orleans with David W. Ferrie, and had testified that he overheard Oswald, Ferrie and Shaw talk about the possibility of slaying Kennedy.

Shaw, 55, is charged with conspiring with Oswald and Ferrie to murder Kennedy. Shaw says he never saw the other two men, both now dead.

The Warren commission said Oswald, acting alone, shot Kennedy in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963, and it found no credible evidence of a conspiracy.

The Oswalds lived in New Orleans from May to late September, 1963. Marina and her children then left for Irving, Tex., a Dallas suburb, to live with Ruth Paine. Oswald then moved to Dallas.

Marina said Friday Oswald was home nearly every night by 5:30 p.m. during their stay in New Orleans.

"Did he ever stay away from home nights while you lived in New Orleans?" asked Dymond.

"Only once when he spent the night in jail," she replied.

By contrast payments in Prince Edward county showed a 15 per cent increase.

In terms of the number of persons receiving welfare assistance, the increase in Hastings over the 12 month period was 16.6 per cent with 1,118 persons, or 1.3 per cent of the total population of 87,516 receiving assistance.

In Prince Edward the percentage increase in persons receiving assistance was five per cent with 1.5 percent of the total population of 19,152 receiving welfare assistance.

Lieut.-Gov. W. Ross Macdonald (centre) and Trade Minister Stanley Randall stop at Belleville exhibit to sample well-known local product during Manufacturing Opportunities Show in Toronto this week. Toronto model Marjorie Kent was living display of another local product - - - jewelry.

City Exhibit at Industrial Show Draws Raves from Critics

The lights have gone out on the Manufacturing Opportunities Show — but Belleville boosters are still glowing at the results of their participation.

The city was its own promoter and its participation paid off — in promotional achievement.

Belleville's display — a cooperative effort between the city's industrial commission and local industries — and its successful drum-beating, drew credit, not all of it confined to private comment.

In the Ottawa Citizen, business editor Michael Blagg reminded Eastern Ontario readers that Belleville Industrial Commission was only one of three exhibitors from the region at the Ontario-government sponsored show.

"Belleville hit home its industrial promotion message by decking out a model with jewelry worth $2,000 and by presenting cheeses to Premier John Robarts and Trade Minister Stanley Randall," he writes.

The model's jewelry was supplied by Avon Jewellery, and the cheese by Black Diamond.

It meant contact with "many thousands of people involved in one way or another" with industry.

"For the expenditure — a very worthwhile return," he believes.

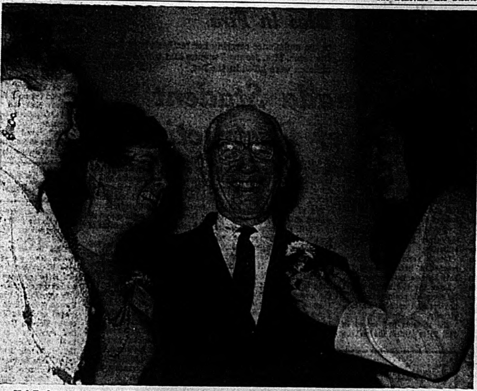
Frederic Ethier, Stewart-Warner general manager feels it's too early to evaluate the results for his company. But the city probably gained much in promotion and public relations.

"We're willing to participate again," he added.

International Cooperage manager Lowell Watson felt it was "a very good gesture" by the city to organize the display.

"I'm sure the city will benefit from attracting new industry," he said.

Only four other cities in Ontario had displays at the show but, Mr. Watson felt, the Belleville exhibit was "by far the best display of all the cities."



Hal Rodgers, founder of Kinsmen service clubs, had his own welcoming committee when he arrived to speak to Belleville club at Club Canara last night. Greeting the founder (from left) were Becky Williams, Sharon Chase, Susan Pearce.

Kinsmen Founder Visits City

Social needs may change but service clubs are as effectively operational as ever.

At 70 and the founder of the 50-year-old Kinsmen Club movement, Mr. Rodgers is a dean among Canadian service clubbers.

Last night he was in Belleville to distinguish a banquet of the city's Kinsmen at Club Canara.

And supporting Mr. Rodgers' claim for modern service club activity — the place was packed.

"So far as the Kinsmen clubs are concerned they're more active today than they've ever been — and I think that also is true of the other clubs."

However, in areas where service clubs are what ne appeal for younger people terms "knife-and-fork organizations" a generation gap is a factor, says Mr. Rodgers.

He points to the fact that the Belleville Kinsmen recently formed a youth service club — Kin-20 — and had "no trouble organizing it."

As for himself, if he were starting today, he would "absolutely" have no problem founding a service club movement, believes Mr. Rodgers.

He launched Kinsmen in Hamilton in 1919 when, as a 20-year-old salesman recently demobilized from World War I service, he found himself alone in a strange city.

The first club counted 11 members. Today there are 125,000 Kinsmen across Canada with 10,000 in its women's auxiliary — the Kinettes.

In 1945, his inspiration which had grown into a national movement, won him an OBE.

While the original concepts of the club haven't altered they're being constantly updated — a factor in its continued active life, says Mr. Rodgers.

There's also something more basic — hence the reason why service clubs should continue to thrive:

"I don't care who the man is," says the Kinsmen founder. "If he has an opportunity to help the other fellow, particularly in distress, he's very glad to do it."

This morning Mr. Rodgers was on hand at city hall to receive a key to the city from Mayor Russell Scott.

Businessmen Hear Advertising Man

Downtown promotion and redevelopment will be the topic of discussion Monday evening at the annual meeting of the Belleville Downtown Businessmen's Association.

Speaker for the meeting at the Hotel Quinte starting at 6.30 will be Donald J. Scott, of the Scott Advertising Service in Kitchener.

In addition to his role as advertising agency president, Mr. Scott is active on the public relations committee for the Kitchener Chamber of Commerce, is secretary for the Kitchener-Waterloo Sales and Ad Club, secretary of the Kitchener Downtown Businessmen's Association and manager of the Central Ontario Exhibition.

Following his talk on downtown redevelopment Mr. Scott will take part in a question and answer period.

Employment News

By JIM STAVELEY

The recent period of mild weather had little appreciable effect with regard to the local employment picture which displayed a relatively light demand for additional workers. An unusual trend for this area was the fact that the demand for female workers was much stronger than for men seeking work. The majority of the available female job vacancies were confined to the services field, such as waitresses, housekeepers and nursemaids.

It is reported that the community's contractors are anticipating an extremely active building year.

In view of this situation and since there is a considerable number of workers both male and female registered at the Canada Manpower Centre looking for permanent, part-time temporary work. It could well be the most opportune time to have any house repairs, renovations or decorations done before the spring and summer rush.

The Belleville and District employment campaign committee ask all to support and participate in the campaign to encourage increased winter employment by "Keeping People Working —Do It Now".

In the female division typists possessing at least two years of office typing experience are required by the Province of Ontario for work in various departments located in the city of Toronto. As yet unfilled is a position for an executive housekeeper for hotel work. Available also is a vacancy calling for a kitchen supervisor for a country club. There is an opening as a typist for someone who would be interested in regular part-time employment. In this case the working hours would be generally from 1 to 5 p.m. five days per week. A knowledge of shorthand is not essential. Other vacant positions call for nursemaids, short order cooks, waitresses, and a general office clerk.

In the male division the Canada Manpower Centre at Napanee has an excellent position for a machine shop foreman who has a good supervisory background. This position is required by the industrial firm whose Napanee plant is now under construction.

If interested in any of these positions, contact the Canada Manpower Centre at 324 Church Street, Belleville.

Land in Ameliasburg Selling at A Premium

AMELIASBURG — Township officials are looking for the sharpest increase in residential building in the municipality since the expansion in new home construction started 10 years ago.

The reflection of optimism is based on the steady transfer of land which began to change hands at a higher than normal rate last fall.

And lands sales, according to township clerk William Nightingale, quickened to an even brisker pace in the last week. "I've never seen property turn over like it has lately," Mr. Nightingale observed, noting the demand was township wide although the preference for waterfront lots prevails.

He estimates the municipalities total property worth will pass the $19,000,000 mark by 1970 which means the administration then can employ the additional revenue from taxes to maintain the mill rate if a careful spending policy continues.

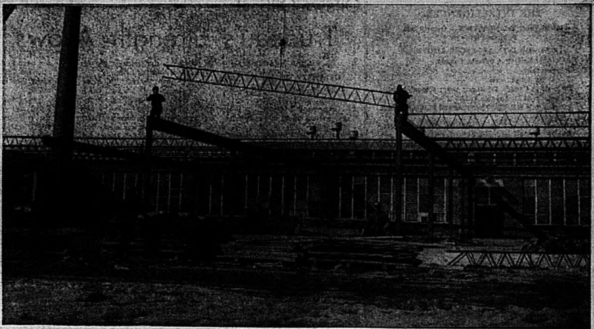
Land sales are ranging from the purchase of individual lots to tracts as large as 400 acres in size the records show.

The prices being paid for bay shore frontage along the Rossmore to Carrying Place road vary from $60 to $92 a foot frontage depending on nearness to employment and shopping facilities in the centres of Trenton and Belleville.

Summer cottage development became a healthy activity in the township a few years ago when zoning was adopted under an official plan Several sub-divisions for building summer homes were established as a result.

Lot sales in the planned areas moved well, particularly last year. A number of cottage starts are set for this spring and summer.

The bulk of the expansion, however, remains in the permanent home category. The construction cost of the designs, not smaller than 1,200 square feet floor space in the residential areas, begins at $20,000. Custom-built residences valued two and three times higher are not uncommon, however.



Erection of steelwork for the new one storey plant addition at American Optical on Sidney Street has now been completed and laying of masonry walls has commenced. General Contractor for the plant addition is Eastwood Construction of Peterborough.

Lampreys Provide Extra Income

TRENTON — The deadly enemy of the fresh water fishing industry has a year's reprieve from a joint U.S.-Canadian undertaking to destroy it.

The program designed to rid the Great Lakes waterways of the sea lamprey had to be set ahead a year because the financing being provided by the Americans was diverted to the war effort in Vietnam, Lloyd Thurston, a spokesman for the department of lands and forests in Napanee said this week.

In the meantime, however, catching and killing the vampire like species of eel has created a new source of income for fishermen in the Brighton area.

From August until October is the period when the sea lamprey attack fish seeking cooler water in depths near the bottom. It has no respect for size and in one instance one of them was observed fastened to a four inch rock bass which had to swim sideways to pull the parasite along.

The sea lamprey victims include game species pike, bass, pickerel in addition to whitefish, herring and lake trout—the latter, easier prey than others, has almost disappeared from Lake Ontario.

Commercial fishermen became interested in sea lamprey as a means of earning extra money when the government started paying $1 each for them for the Great Lakes Research Centre at Sault Ste. Marie.

A dozen fishermen based at the village of Gosport south of Brighton received more than $700 for the specimens they picked off fish caught in their nets and sent to the marine biologists in the fall.

The record for catching the most number of sea lampreys at one time in this area is held by Everett Semple of Gosport who netted a large carp with seven clinging to it.

Plant Employees Sign New Contract

Improved vacation and pension plans, company paid hospital and medical insurance together with wage increases varying between 12 and 23 cents were included in a new labor agreement signed between local 411 of the United Rubber, Cork Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, and the American Optical Company Ltd. of Belleville.

The two year agreement, signed following two months of negotiation, calls for wage adjustments in the second year of the contract with the total cost of the package amounting to approximately 42 cents per hour.

In addition to the benefits listed above the agreement calls for improved sick pay, severance pay awards and rotating shifts where possible.

The company announcement said the new agreement emphasizes the good relations between American Optical and the Union which have existed over the past 16 years.

Research Entomologist Hedley James Retires

Scientific research is its own chain reaction.

Mr. James has recently retired as an entomologist at the federal Research Institute in Belleville.

However, he still goes there. When he retired he was preparing a monograph on a mosquito predator and the institute's facilities are available to him as he concludes the project.

He's in familiar surroundings. A graduate of McMaster, he joined the institute staff in 1932 — only three years after the laboratory had been established.

While his early work was on crop pest control, he has specialized in the last 20 years on more nuisances to man — mosquitoes, black flies and deer flies.

His work has concentrated on biological control — seeking ways of reducing the pests without the use of insecticides liable to create pollution.

"His experience in this important field of knowledge will be very useful to his successors at the institute," noted an official. "They're fortunate he'll be continuing to work there unofficially after his retirement."

Mr. James also will pursue other interests in active retirement.

They include photography and music. At present he is a violinist in the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra, where he plays alongside his youngest son, Peter.

Mr. James met his wife, Lilian when they were both working at the laboratory. Married in 1938 they have three sons and two daughters.

David F. James, a specialist in fluid mechanics, teaches engineering at University of Toronto and H. Gordon James is a research physicist, working in France.

Regional Government

Regional government got a good airing in Belleville Wednesday night and while Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough performed a yeoman task answering the questions of a large audience the issue is still wide open.

Efficiency . . . lower taxes, or more bureaucracy, less efficiency and higher costs? And what about local autonomy? These, as The Intelligencer's report of the meeting pointed out, were the kind of questions to which the Club Canara audience sought answers.

Judging by Mr. McKeough's answers, the government itself is moving cautiously. The government's position as outlined by him, in turn raised other questions in people's minds. For instance, the minister, while not dismissing the possibility of a plebiscite, warned that the issue was too complex for a straight yes or no vote. Community "acceptability," he said, was the key word. "If it is not acceptable we will not push it."

Now there is a situation that should be watched. What exactly constitutes community acceptability? At what point would the government feel safe to pursue regionalism, say without the guidance of a plebiscite? Or will we wake up some day and find regional government a fait accompli?

That is why the kind of public interest manifested at Wednesday's meeting must be maintained. Consider the question of taxes. Mr. McKeough was ambiguous on this. "I won't say it will lower taxes," he told a questioner. "Taxes have already reached a level that should not be exceeded, but there are ever-increasing demands." The question that immediately presents itself, is, will the province increase taxes or not?

The answer undoubtedly is that it will, for Mr. McKeough went on to suggest that with regional government and greater efficiency taxes should not increase so fast. Yet, earlier, he said in effect they had reached saturation point.

That is the way it goes — unless people say to the government, "thus far and no further." Students demonstrate on matters much less trifling, but have taxpayers the determination to do something about government spending and the imposition of an ever-increasing tax burden?

One speaker suggested local planning boards should have more authority to deal with problems, and he mentioned the case of Belleville having to go before the Ontario Municipal Board for approval of a local shopping plaza. The OMB, of course, is an autonomous body with jurisdiction over all projects involving major spending. It acts almost in the manner of an ombudsman, arbitrating (as in this case) matters that are in dispute. In that sense, it performs a useful service while at the same time keeping a watchful eye on major spending.

Regional government then is not yet with us. It is a big issue, one which must come slowly, as it likely will in the long run. If it does it must be accomplished with an eye to maximum efficiency and economy, as well as to the needs of all in terms of the community situation, from village to big city.

Ulster Election

The CBC has a program called "The Way It Is." Would that the television network managed to live up to this claim to accuracy in its general programming.

Take the election in Northern Ireland. Voters go to the polls on Monday, in what undoubtedly will be the most momentous political occasion in the checkered history of this small area of the United Kingdom. Since partition in 1921 Ulster (as the area is often called — by its provincial title) has been ruled by the Unionist party. Today the party is split between followers of Prime Minister Terence O'Neill, who favors a better deal for the Catholic minority, and those of other political figures, including the fiery Rev. Ian Paisley, who wish to maintain the Protestant domination of Northern Ireland affairs and its membership of the United Kingdom.

Where the recent CBC series on Ulster, following the late night news, erred, was in showing areas of Belfast and the province at large which reflected only one side of life there — that of the poorest districts of the region. Granted that these are among the problem areas with which any government in Ulster must deal. They house many voters, both Protestant and Catholic, but they are no more representative of the entire Northern Ireland scene or its population than are the Watts district and Negro populace of Los Angeles representative of that city.

Perhaps as a follow-up to the election, the CBC might show other aspects of life in Northern Ireland, a region that since the last war has made dramatic progress socially, educationally, economically and industrially

Trudeau's Strength Allows Indulgence in Compromise

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It just possibly might be that Parliament is growing up.

Or perhaps it is just that the government would rather switch than fight.

But be it a newly-attained maturity of freshly-fashioned flexibility — compromise and co-operation are suddenly in style.

It used to be — just as recently as the days of former Prime Minister Pearson — that to give an inch was to "retreat."

That was the word they used, "retreat."

The Opposition, Conservatives, New Democrats, Creditistes, used it as a weapon in their war on the government. It was an accusation of weakness, almost an indictment of the crime of having second thoughts.

And the Government used the term "retreat" as a badge of shame, a confession of the offence of thinking twice.

"Another retreat!" former Conservative Opposition Leader Diefenbaker would roar in triumph each time — and there were many—the minority Pearson government was compelled, under the pain of threatened defeat, to backtrack on some of its legislation.

Downcast, Lester Pearson in petulant resentment would sulk or snarl that it was a retreat.

And those pull-backs did not come on just the little inconsequential things.

For some of the biggest issues were involved — as big as tax changes in two or three different budgets — and few things come any bigger than a government backup on taxation.

It was the same way in the last of the Diefenbaker years. "Retreat" was almost a dirty word.

Both Diefenbaker and Pearson were forced into the humiliation of "retreat" simply because they led minority governments.

Now, suddenly, in the new political age of Pierre Trudeau, the pull-back, the withdrawal, even "retreat" no longer is a sign of weakness or a signal of shame, but something of a Red Badge of Courage.

To "Potent Pierre," as the doting Liberals call him, the process of thinking twice, of changing the government's mind of giving ground to the Opposition is simply compromise.

He regards it as only common sense essentially a working part of what he keeps calling his particular brand of "participatory democracy."

Odd thing is that with his majority he could zap it to the Opposition, with his Liberal votes make the Conservatives, New Dems and Creditistes like it or lump it.

But he seems to think that even while the Opposition is a minority — and not a particularly strong one at that — it was elected and just might be speaking for and reflecting the opinion of its electors.

This, on the basis of government conduct of affairs in the Pearson-Diefenbaker years, is sheer heresy.

It could be that Trudeau with his majority 55 votes in the 264-member calculates he has power to spare.

Enough, at least, that he can afford to pull back, withdraw, and even—better wash out your mouth with soap for using the word — "retreat," even at the risk of making the Opposition look better than perhaps it is.

For each time the Government bows to opposition demands or objections and, with common sense, as the prime minister likes to regard it, compromises, the Conservatives, New Democrats and Creditistes grow in Parliamentary stature.

He makes them all look stronger than they really are. He prefers to pull back instead of going full steam ahead. He would rather lose face — in the meaning of "face" as Diefenbaker and Pearson understood it — than ignore that segment of public opinion represented by the Opposition.

So there was the backup on the new parliamentary rules, the giving of ground on the gift and estate taxes, the willingness to bend to at least some of the provincial pressures, the continuing flexibility in many a crunch.

Compromise and co-operation are so comfortable as to be habit-forming.

The catch is to avoid being hooked.

Rhodesian Apartheid

Rhodesia's proposed new constitution, heavily weighted with racism, leaves only a remote hope that the country's black majority will eventually achieve proportionate representation in Parliament.

Premier Ian Smith has described the document as 'a world beater.' Percy Mkudu, leader of the Opposition says it is "nothing but apartheid."

One of the major proposals is the segregation of the population into a white roll (which would include whites, mixed races and Asians) and a black roll. Parliament would consist of 50 members elected by the white roll and 16 Africans.

Letter to the Editor

Catholic School Finances

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

As a student of a Catholic high school I would like to state the importance of a Catholic education to me, personally. I want to be educated in a school where religion plays an important role. My parents want religious and Christian instruction to be a part of my schooling, just as it will be a part of my life. I feel that I receive this dual education at my school.

However, Catholic high schools will have to close if something isn't done soon to ease the financial burden.

In the Catholic high schools in Ontario, grades nine and ten receive only elementary level grants; grades eleven, twelve and thirteen receive no grants whatsoever. Thus Catholic high schools are denied approximately $45,000,000 annually, from the Ontario government.

How do Catholic high schools support themselves? Many students have to pay tuition as well as the purchasing of their own books. The rest of the money comes from donations and aid from the parishes. But Catholic high schools cannot go on unless they soon receive support from the Government!!

We are asking only for the taxes that our parents, as Catholics must pay to support public secondary schools. That is all we ask. Is this too much?

U.S. Not Unduly Upset

Recognition Could End Isolation of Peking Regime

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Despite the perfunctory state department expression of concern over Canada's bid for diplomatic relations with Communist China, there is a growing feeling that the Nixon administration is not too alarmed or even displeased by the Canadian initiative.

The move could unplug the log-jam that has pretty generally isolated the Peking regime, without Washington having lifted a finger to help it along. If nothing substantive in the way of a Washington-Peking relationship develops, then the Americans have no problem of face-saving since they had no role in the drama.

Although five other NATO allies have aroused the U.S. by recognizing China in the last 20 years, it is the timing of the Canadian decision that perhaps makes the Nixon administration more amenable to it.

As a new administration it can adopt a pose of open-mindedness, particularly in its first few months in office, that is denied a long-term administration tied to past policy.

Also, the shock effect of the Canadian announcement on American public opinion was softened somewhat by the earlier indication by the Italian government that it also might grant recognition to China. And Prime Minister Gandhi of India, a country which in the past has been directly menaced by China, said recently that she could detect "some signs" of possible moderation in Peking.

As the Washington Post put it, "it would be silly for Washington to be more worried and more military-minded about India's security than New Delhi."

Nixon, when he was only a presidential candidate last fall, talked of China being drawn into "the family of nations" but, of course, he set conditions that still seem far removed from reality.

Peking's surprise announcement Tuesday that it would not attend the scheduled meeting of U.S. and Chinese ambassadors in Warsaw Thursday—the only point of contact—was seen as a disappointing but temporary setback.

The immediate U.S. concern regarding Canada's recognition of China is that it would lead to a rupture of relations between Ottawa and Nationalist China despite Prime Minister Trudeau's statement that he would like to maintain relations with both Chinas.

It is the prospect of increasing diplomatic isolation for Taiwan that displeases Washington which has spent billions of dollars in propping up the Chiang Kai-shek regime.

"We hope Canada succeeds," Newsweek magazine suggests, however, that to some extent the state department's public disapproval of the Canadian action was simply for the record. The magazine adds:

"Though he has given scant sign of it publicly, President Nixon is, in fact, interested in exploring any avenues that might ease relations between Washington and Peking."

Recognition would strain Ottawa's relations with Nationalist China, The Post editorial agrees, but "that may not be an unacceptable price."

U.S. policymakers are not ready for some kind of "two-China" formula themselves but, fortunately, they see the advantages of having others break the ice, the newspaper adds.

Church's Attitude to Israel Has Undergone Subtle Change

NEW YORK (AP) — A subtle and gradual shift is taking place today in the attitude of some segments of Christian church leadership toward the state of Israel and its Arab foes.

The change has cast a shadow over Jewish-Christian relations in the United States and elsewhere.

"It's pretty clear there's been a shift in some church sentiment," says Dr. David M. Stowe, head of the overseas ministries division of the National Council of Churches.

"What has changed is the recognition that there are two sides to the question, and the way by which Israel's future can be realized is by coming to terms with her Arab neighbors."

There also has been a growing amount of material circulated among churches, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox, presenting Arab positions.

Some international church agencies, including an arm of the World Coucil of Churches, also have been revamped to include representatives of Arab viewpoints.

The change has drawn anguished reactions from American Jewish leaders.

It threatens to "undermine much of the progress that has been made in Jewish-Christian relations," says Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, director of inter-religious affairs of the American Jewish Committee.

"There's a widening gap," Dr. Alford Carleton, head of the United Church of Christ Board for World Ministries, said here in an interview. "In the present state of emotions, there's likely to be some damage done."

Rev. Edward H. Flannery, executive of the U.S. Roman Catholic Bishops' Secretariat for Jewish-Christian Relations, said much Christian indifference to Israel's fate reflects "shades of anti-Semitism."

"There's dynamite in this thing," Dr. Stowe commented. He said the churches would continue to "cry out against anti-Semitism," while at the same time seeking a "middle ground" for averting war in the Middle East.

Dr. Carleton, a one-time missionary in that area, said the United States and Russia have been involving themselves in a "fearful international situation" there in which both could "become victims of their own clients."

Much of the church criticism of Israel surfaced after the Beirut airport incident, in which Israel troops wrecked 13 planes in retaliation for the Athens airport shooting up of an Israeli plane, killing a Jewish passenger.

Pope Paul's expression of regrets to the Lebanese government for the incident brought Jewish outcries of partisanship.

Newfoundlanders Move, And Take Church Along

MARYSTOWN, Nfld. (CP) — When you're being resettled on the other side of a harbor and there's no Anglican church in your new area, the simplest thing is not to build another, but to take the original church across the harbor with you.

At least, that's what happened to St. Mary's Anglican Church.

Among the problems the enterprising movers dealt with was weighting down a swing bridge with heavy salt sacks to allow the bridge to be held back so the barge bearing the church could pass.

They had originally hoped to have the church in Marystown in time for Christmas, but the weather arranged otherwise, and the congregation bided their time until the tiny church could become the first public building to be transported under the resettlement program on the Burin Peninsula.

Employer Discrimination Ended Against Working Women

TORONTO (CP) — Working women in Ontario who feel they are discriminated against in wages and hours of work no longer have to make a signed complaint. The equal pay provision in the Ontario department of labor has been moved from the human rights section to the employment standards section of the department.

Mrs. L. R. Betcherman, director of the Women's Bureau, said under the old section "the employer knew and often fired her," if a woman signed the complaint.

"A woman now just has to telephone and say she thinks she is receiving less money than men for the same work in the same firm, and the matter will be investigated," she said.

Another result of the equal pay provision is that a violation may be discovered in a routine visit without anyone having to complain.

The law strengthens the position of women who work in their homes on a contract basis. "Most of them work for the garment industry and must receive the minimum rate, $1.30 an hour, and vacations with pay," Mrs. Betcherman said.

Nurses, dieticians and most paramedical workers have been moved into a category, covered by a law requiring an employer to supply transportation for women going to or leaving work between midnight and 6 a.m. Women under 18 are not allowed to work those hours.

Although the law stipulates one week's vacation pay after one year's work, it does not provide for sick leave or maternity leave.

Frankford Couple Celebrate Ruby Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brooks, Frankford, were at home on Sunday, Feb. 16 to about 160 friends, neighbors and relatives on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks were married at the home of the bride's late parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Elmy in Consecon, Feb. 6, 1929, by the late Rev. Cook. They spent the first 18 years of their married life on their farm at Johnstown, when they sold and bought a larger farm at Tabernacle, 7th Murray, where they lived for 21 years after which Mr. Brooks sold and moved to Frankford.

Their two daughters, Mrs. Delbert McComb (Jean) RR 5, Belleville and Mrs. Morley Perry (Shirley), Frankford, received the guests at the door. Their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ronald Brooks looked after the guest book. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks also have two sons, Ronald, Frankford, and Allan at home and six grandsons and one granddaughter.

The home was beautifully decorated with flowers and potted 'mums. The tea table was especially attractive with a beautiful gold nylon net cloth centred with a three-tiered anniversary cake, topped with a wine glass and red roses, flanked with silver candelabra and ruby candles.

Pouring tea in the afternoon were Mrs. Ernest Elmy and Mrs. Vernon Elmy, Consecon; and Mrs. Clayton Curtis and Mrs. Frank Sandercock of Trenton and in the evening Mrs. Arthur Rogers and Mrs. Edna Perry, Frankford and Mrs. Basil Brooks and Mrs. Helen Patrick, Trenton.

A number of others also served.

The honored couple were the recipients of many beautiful gifts, telegrams, cards and a phone call from Mrs. Brooks' brother Arnold Elmy, Detroit, Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks' family entertained their parents to dinner Sunday noon, February 8 at Sun Luck Gardens, Belleville. Returning to the home of their daughter Mrs. Delbert McComb and Mr. McComb, R. R. 5, Belleville, and presented them with a ruby glass bowl filled with red roses and white 'mums and a prettily decorated anniversary cake.

WEDDING

PHILLIPS — BOWERS

College Hill United Church was the setting for the recent marriage of Lynn Elizabeth Bowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bowers, to George Robert Phillips, son of Mrs. Bill Pepper of Toronto. Rev. Roy Vessey officiated at the ceremony and traditional wedding music was rendered by an uncle of the bride, Clifford Bowers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a "portrait" gown of white nylon over taffeta in A-line style with scattered appliques of daisies and featuring short sleeves, round neckline and flowing train at back. A shoulder-length veil was caught to a floral headdress encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink baby carnations.

Miss Anne Bowers, sister of the bride as maid of honor wore a floor-length gown consisting of a burgundy velvet bodice and pink rayon silk skirts accented at the waist with a row of flowers. She carried a bouquet of mauve poms. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Joyce Bowers and Miss Cheryl Thornton were dressed identically to the maid of honor, but in dresses featuring violet shade velvet bodices and mauve skirts. Each carried a bouquet of pink poms. All attendants wore floral headdresses with veiling to match the skirts of their dresses.

Arthur Bowers was groomsman, while the ushers were Daniel Bowers and Wayne Bowers, brothers of the bride.

The reception was held at the Hillcrest Community Centre where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a light blue boucle fitted dress with black lace full-length jacket, white and blue accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Assisting, the mother of the bride wore a royal blue two-piece wool dress, cerise colored pillbox hat, black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

The couple will reside at 152 Charles Street, Belleville.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

SIDNEY SOUTH

Mrs. R. Lough was hostess for the Feb. meeting of the Sidney South Women's Institute. Mrs. R. Nobes, president, welcomed 18 members and two visitors.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. J. Ray, convener of citizenship and education, who introduced the guest speaker for the evening Constable Willis of the Ontario Provincial Safety Division. Constable Willis chose for his topic "Safety education for better citizenship and better living." He stressed the need for parents to talk to their children about good citizenship and what it means. "It is every parent's responsibility to be a good citizen and to teach children good citizenship within the framework of society," he said. He also dealt with the criminal code, explaining many aspects of it and also "riots" which seem to be so prevalent in society today.

Mrs. W. Shortt thanked the guest speaker and presented him with a gift for a most informative talk.

Mrs. R. Nobes again chaired the meeting and dealt with various items of business.

Mrs. E. Couperus gave a brief summary of the Consumers' Report stating that one must observe all rules of safety when operating a snowmobile.

While lunch was being prepared by the hostess and her assistants a contest was conducted by Mrs. J. Ray on 'streets in Belleville' with the winners being Mrs. D. Reid and Mrs. D. McComb.

MATH AND MAGIC

"- - - in my heart I believe that the best things are those that are fragile and temporary - - -" — Bertrand Russell.

* * *

This morning, I found my young mother, now in her mid-eighties, pouring over mathematical problems dealing with multiplication and long division (old style.)

"But, isn't it a bit dull and difficult?" we asked, forever avoiding all maths wherever and whenever possible, and she answered:

"I know of nothing that gives a greater sense of achievement, more pleasure and passes the time more beautifully . . ." and her remark seemed most co-incidental, for it summoned the words of a gentleman in his mid-nineties who in his autobiography recalls his early youth in England and how ". . .mathematics saved me from complete despondency," since his elders frowned upon his serious thoughts and after his age of 14 declares, "I found living at home only endurable at the cost of complete silence about everything that interested me," . . . only to find he was popularly accepted at Cambridge for his brilliant ideas. He became in time famous as a mathematician and philosopher, whom the world knows today as Lord Russell, and whose private papers are being housed at McMaster University.

"This truly remarkable collection is undoubtedly one of the most significant of the 20th century," says President Thode who made public that the cost was approximately $520,000 in Canadian funds — the money donated by the alumni and friends of the university plus an initial grant of $150,000 from the Canada Council, a $225,000 gift from the Atkinson Charitable Foundation and money from the Laidlaw Foundation.

"Collections like this, the products of a great mind's work over many years are rare and becoming rarer," comments an editorial from the Hamilton Spectator, "Competition to get them is usually severe," and is "truly, an occasion for congratulation."

In a prologue to his two volume autobiography, Lord Russell writes in part: "Three passions, simple and overwhelmingly strong, have governed my life: the longing for love, the search for knowledge and unbearable pity for the suffering of mankind. These passions like great winds, have blown me hither and thither, in a wayward course, over a deep ocean of anguish, reaching to the very verge of despair.

"I have sought love, first, because it brings ecstasy. . . relieves loneliness. . .because in the union of love I have seen . . . the prefiguring vision of the heaven that saints and poets have imagined. . .This. . . .is what, at last, I have found.

"With equal passion I have sought knowledge. I have wished to understand the hearts of men. . .I have tried to apprehend the Pythagorean power. . .A little of this, but not much, I have achieved.

"Love and knowledge, so far as they were possible, led upward toward the heavens. But always pity brought me back to earth. . .the whole world of loneliness, poverty and pain make a mockery of what human life should be. I long to alleviate the evil, but I cannot and I too suffer.

"This has been my life. I have found it worth living, and would gladly live it again if the chance were offered me."

We read this autobiography upon a return from a motor trip. Often such a motor trip through vast silences of Canadian pine-clad northlands sheds civilization for the moment — only to reveal forgotten realizations of the latter's true worth; such as the magic of the written word, whereby renowned persons share treasures of their private worlds, thus enriching our own.

Again for anyone interested the volumes are entitled, "Bertrand Russell" published by McClelland and Stewart, (based on letters that form part of the Bertrand Russell collection acquired by McMaster University) and may be obtained from The Corby Library, Belleville.

Legion Sponsors Contest

TYENDINAGA — Earl J. Brant, Zone Commander of Zone F3 of the Royal Canadian Legion, presided during the preliminary contest in public speaking sponsored by the Legion, and held in the Guild Hall on the Tyendinaga Reserve.

Pupils from the Quinte Mohawk School, and from the public schools in Deseronto and Tyendinaga Township completed, numbering 23 in all.

Maureen Cassidy carried off the junior honors, and went on the following day to win in Stirling in the second step of the contest. She is a Deseronto grade six pupil. Brenda Lawlor, grade four, also of Deseronto, placed second.

Both winners in the senior division were also from the Deseronto school. Mary Anne O'Brien, a grade seven pupil and Georgina Bruce, grade eight.

Judges were Rev. William Handry of Deseronto; and Joseph Maloney and William McConnell, teachers in Centennial School in Belleville.

Battle Against Cystic Fibrosis Unending

TORONTO (CP) — Having your back, sides and chest pummeled for 20 minutes, three times a day, for the rest of your life, doesn't sound appealing—but it's vital to a child with cystic fibrosis.

One child in every thousand may have cystic fibrosis, and many of them are not identified by diagnosis. Those who are diagnosed have an excellent chance of living a relatively normal life.

Not long ago, the CF child was confined to the home, where special drugs and equipment were within easy reach. Now, because a Toronto couple decided to treat their child at their summer cottage with portable equipment, a whole new world of outdoor vacations opens up for CF children.

"It seemed grim to think that kids with cystic fibrosis couldn't have summer fun at the cottage, so we decided to try it," says Jane Kiely. "It worked, and the kids had a marvellous time."

Jane and her husband, Mark, have an adopted daughter, Lorna, a CF child who now is eight. Mrs. Kiely, a registered nurse, once supervised play therapy at the Ontario Crippled Children's Centre and was asked to take Diana, a seven-year-old CF child, to their cottage for the summer.

Here's how Lorna and Diana are kept alive and active: Three times a day, they stretch out on a "posture board" inclined with head towards the floor and legs hooked at the knees over the top, and undergo brisk slaps—"clapping," it's called—five minutes each on the chest, two sides and back. This loosens mucus in the lungs and it can be expelled normally with the breath.

Enzyme capsules are taken daily. Lorna takes 40 a day, but some children need 100 a day to provide the necessary juices normally supplied by the pancreas to aid digestion.

Antibiotics are taken to help ward off infection. CF children are prey to bronchitis, pneumonia and other lung ailments.

The child must sleep in a plastic bed tent which is supplied with specially moistened air by a compressor motor and piping.

Cystic fibrosis, says W. Mac McKenzie, national executive director of the Canadian Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, is the most common and serious chronic disease of infancy and childhood. Thick mucus clogs the lungs and prevents the flow of digestive juices from the pancreas into the small intestine.

"It's not easy to diagnose," Mr. McKenzie says. "The symptoms can confuse even the best doctor. The coughing and wheezing, failure to gain weight—these things could indicate asthma, bronchitis or an allergy. However, the CF child usually has salty perspiration and a 'sweat test' recently devised has proved a fairly reliable pointer to the disease."

The CCFF has 27 chapters across Canada, originally formed by the parents of afflicted children banding together to ease the physical, mental and financial burdens which cystic fibrosis placed upon them.

Mr. McKenzie says no Canadian child with cystic fibrosis need be deprived of any equipment or drug which will help him or her live relatively normal lives. Government grants are available and the foundation advises on procedures for securing such financial assistance. The foundation also is aided by Union Carbide, Ltd., which manufactures the equipment.

Ann Landers

Woman Self Conscious About Small Family

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother and his wife have been married twelve years. They have two children. Kay is self-conscious about not having a larger family. Her sisters each have five children.

ANN LANDERS

Whenever Kay is asked how many children she has, she says, "We have two. We lost three."

Kay has had three miscarriages — all within the first two months of pregnancy. She didn't go to the hospital with any of them. Would you consider these children? — BIG Q.

DEAR Q: I do not consider miscarriages children, but if your sister-in-law wants to, it doesn't bother me. And it shouldn't bother you, either.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You people in the United States are not the only ones who are deeply concerned about the wide-spread use of drugs among young people. We Canadians are struggling with the problem also.

As a high school teacher who has worked in the Toronto system for 20 years, I would like to pass on some useful information to other teachers who need guidance. You published information several months ago to help parents detect whether or not children were "on something." A pamphlet put out by the American Pharmaceutical Association is designed to help teachers. Here are some useful clues:

Change in school attendance; change in quality of home-work; deterioration in appearance; wearing of sunglasses in class; wearing of long-sleeved garments in hot weather (to hide needle marks); stealing of small items; finding the student in unseemly places such as closets, storerooms, etc.; falling asleep in class.

And now, Ann, some parents as well as teachers need to know how to recognize a marijuana cigarette. Will you publish the description? Thank you. — TORONTO STAR READER.

DEAR READER: Thank you for your contribution. And now here is the description you requested:

Marijuana cigarettes are usually rolled in a double thickness of light brown or off-white paper. They are somewhat smaller than regular cigarettes with the paper twisted or tucked in at both ends. Marijuana is green in color rather than brown like ordinary tobacco. The odor of burning marijuana is similar to burning rope or weeds, somewhat sweeter than tobacco.

Users call marijuana by odd names. If you hear someone refer to grass, pot, hemp, tea, sticks, roaches, joints, hay or Mary Jane, he is talking about marijuana.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Delightfully Different Dessert

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Your column always seems to come up with the right recipe someone needs, so I am confident you can meet my request. I am looking for a rhubarb pie recipe — one both sweet and tart. Rhubarb pie used to be my best, now it is my worst since I lost my recipe. — Mrs. R.B.B.

No 1:

TRADITIONAL TWO-CRUST RHUBARB PIE

Pastry:
- 2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- two-thirds cup shortening
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup cold water

Filling:
- 4 cups washed, trimmed and cut-up rhubarb (or frozen)
- 1 to 1¼ cups sugar
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 1 tablespoon butter (to dot top)

To make pastry cut the shortening and butter into the flour and salt until size of peas. Drizzle in water, tossing with fork until all is dampened. Press into ball. Roll out half on floured board and line 9" deep pie plate and trim edges. Roll out second half to fit top, gash at centre and leave on board while you mix Filling: Stir sugar and flour into rhubarb and turn into pastry-lined pie plate. Dot with butter. Seal on top crust, crimping edges attractively. Glaze top with mixture of 1 tablespoon each milk and sugar. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 50 min. or until juice bubbles through gashes and rhubarb is tender: NOTE: You may want to reduce temperature a little during last 15 minutes.

No. 2:

OPEN OR TWO-CRUST (WITH CREAM) RHUBARB PIE

Pastry: Same as No. 1 but if you plan to make it open, make only half the amount of pastry.

Filling:
- 4 cups washed, trimmed and cut-up rhubarb (or frozen)
- 1 cup sugar
- one-third cup flour
- shake of salt
- two-thirds cup 18 percent cream

Mix together filling ingredients and let stand while you make pastry and line 9" deep pie plate. Turn in prepared rhubarb filling. If you are making a one-crust pie sprinkle top with 2 tablespoons granulated sugar and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes longer or until rhubarb is tender. This open pie should be served cold to give filling time to set. Delicious. If you are making a two-crust pie with this rhubarb-cream filling, cover with gashed top crust, seal and crimp edges. Brush top with mixture of 1 tablespoon each milk and sugar and bake at 450 deg. F. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for another 30 to 35 min. or until juice bubbles through gashes.

No. 3:

RHUBARB CUTARD PIE

Pastry: Same as above in No. 1 but make only half the amount and line deep 9" pie plate with it.

Filling:
- 4½ cups washed, trimmed and cut-up rhubarb (or frozen)
- 1¼ cups sugar
- 3 tablespoons flour
- grated rind of 1 orange
- 1 tablespoon soft butter
- 3 beaten eggs

Mix well. Pour into pastry-lined pie plate and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. F. for another 20 or 25 min. or until rhubarb is tender, custard is set, and top is golden.

YOUR ANTIQUES

'Berkshire' Popular Pattern Of '1847 Rogers Bros.'

When the Meriden Britannia Company opened a plant in Hamilton, Ontario, in 1870, it was noted that James R. Watts had been the Canadian agent for the West Meriden Connecticut parent firm since 1862. In that year Rogers Brothers were moved to Meriden and their trademark was added to the Meriden Britannia line.

In 1847, Asa Rogers, with his brothers William and Simeon, produced and distributed electroplated spoons from a plant in Hartford. In 1862, Meriden Britannia bought out the tools and dies and hired William to continue to make "1847 Rogers Bros".

James R. Watts may have initially been Asa's Canadian agent. He maintained a connection and in 1880, on behalf of Meriden Britannia, made application to register the "1847 Rogers Bros." trademark in Canada. Through an oversight this trademark lapsed for some years before 1906, and in that interval a rival "m. A. Rogers" Company was organized in the United States.

Prior to this in 1865, William Rogers, and William Jr., organized the "William Rogers Manufacturing Company" and the Canadian Meriden firm obtained a licence to manufacture their patterns. By 1911 the Canadian firm's production exceeded the licensing limit and an application was made for an Ontario charter.

The application was opposed by the Wm. A. Rogers Company who maintained an office in Canada. About 1920 Wm. A. Rogers Company bought out the Toronto Silverplate Company and in 1929 all assets, including 1881 Rogers Bros. and Simeon L. and George H. Rogers were taken over by Oneida at Niagara Falls.

The charter dispute was settled in favor of Wm. Rogers Mfg. Co., the Meriden trademark. A trademark was issued for "Canadian Wm. A. Rogers Limited" eventually passing to Oneida. Both lines were manufactured at Niagara Falls by rival firms.

As might be expected "Rogers" in any number of combinations is likely to turn up on electroplate in Canada. In addition there is a famous firm, Joseph Rodgers & Son" whose cutlery was sold far and wide in Canada. Their trademark of an asterisk and maltese cross was obtained [illegible] William Birks in 1682, progenitor of a famous Canadian firm.

The pattern illustrated, "Berkshire" was one of the most popular "1847 Rogers Bros." patterns issued in Canada. It came out in 1895 and sold widely. It was mainly available in spoons, forks and serving pieces. Although it was not uncommon to match knives to the pattern, they were usually sold separately with bone, celluloid, French ivory, ebony, rosewood or plain solid metal handles. Some butter knives have tablespoon handles. Separate knives cost 10 cents to 40 cents each, matching knives cost up to $1.50 each and it was not until about 1910 that matching knives were available at about 50 cents each in electroplate.

Not all pieces in this pattern are the same. Sizes vary for the same type of spoon and fork indicating that several sets of dies were used. "XS" or "A" may appear with the 1847 trademark. The majority of Canadian pieces are microscopically overstamped with the Meriden trademark.

Bay of Quinte UCW Plan Conference

"Know Your Neighbor" will be the theme of the annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference UCW to be held in King St. United Church, Trenton on March 3.

Rev. and Mrs. E. Bruce Copland, who lived as missionaries in China, from 1931-48, and later in Taiwan from 1957-65, will be the speakers at this meeting. Mrs. Copland will speak at the luncheon which begins at 12.15, and Mr. Copland will address the afternoon session

The mission study for this year is "Towards Understanding China and the Chinese People," and it is of particular interest to people at this time when the government of Canada is considering establishing diplomatic relations with China. Both, Mr. and Mrs. Copland helped in the illustration and writing of the "China Pac," — the study packet for the UCW for 1968-69.

Registration for the day's meeting will commence at 10 a m. Miss Vina Neal, president of the Conference UCW will conduct the sessions, which are open, not only to official presbyterial delegates, but to anyone who is interested in hearing about China and the Chinese people.

Successful Living

Psychological Deafness Is Real

By DORIS CLARK

Did you know there is such a thing as psychological deafness?

When Mr. Brown's wife died he was lonely, but he preferred to keep his sadness to himself. Stayed away from his friends. Then when he began seeing people again, he found he wasn't hearing very well.

The doctor examined him, then said, "Your hearing is perfect, Joe. But I expect you need to tune yourself in a little better."

Joe was stunned. The doctor reminded him that after his wife's death he hadn't felt very sociable; and had, so to speak, turned off his hearing. Actually didn't hear the doorbell, nor the neighbors when they called to him over the back fence.

A child who is yelled at a good deal may turn off his hearing and honestly not hear the offending voice when it calls again. And perhaps you have heard someone say, "I never hear the TV commercials."

If you live near a railway line or on a noisy street, you simply have to tune out the noises to get any sleep.

Psychological deafness is o.k. in its place, but when a child or an older person begins to use this device (more or less unconsciously) to isolate himself from others, it's time for someone to see what is happening and do something about it.

Dear Doris: I have been invited to a bridal shower, and on the card it said that it was to be a "cash" shower.

My husband will not let me go, as he says that it is in very poor taste and that the meaning of a shower is lost. I am inclined to believe him.

We know the bride's family very well and all they seem to live for is money. It is mentioned in every conversation we have ever had with them. I once heard the mother say that when her daughter got married she was not going to get any junk. — Wondering.

Dear Wondering: It would be a bit of a jar — but it has its good points. Have you not been at a shower where the bride received two sets of cannisters or four pickle forks — or similar useless duplicates?

Money does make it easy for a bride to round out her household supplies without the headache of exchanges and tactful apologies on all sides!

Some fine European customs have come to us in Canada recently. The guests at a Polish wedding may give gifts of cash which they place in a container on the bride's table, at the reception.

We have to be ready for new ideas and changing customs.

• • •

Dear Doris: I am 24 and not married. I had an accident a year ago and my face looks awful. They tell me my nose and scars could be fixed.

Dear Miserable: Plastic surgeons are working miracles every day, for victims of accident or illness. A young lad with a malformed, underslung jaw gets a reshaping; a girl with protruding teeth gets a new look through a cooperating dentist and doctor.

The skilled specialists are to be found in larger centres, and your own doctor can steer you. With enough money, and courage, and help, I'm betting you'll make it.

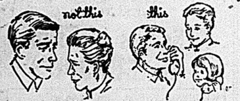
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Father: "Jane fell down the basement steps and broke her leg. Little Janie tried to call me at the office, but she couldn't remember the number, so Jane just lay there for two hours until I got home."

Father: "Janie and I are playing a "telephone game." She's going to dial my office number on my toy phone and talk to me. If she can't get me, she will dial zero and the nice lady will help her."

Even a 4-year-old should know how to summon help in the quickest way in an emergency. Small children can learn to use a phone in the right way as easy as they learn their own names and addresses.

Vancouver Hovercraft Service First in North America

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hovercraft Service, billed as the first scheduled service in North America, starts Sunday across the partly-sheltered Strait of Georgia between Vancouver and Nanaimo, on Vancouver Island.

Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. will start the service with a $420,000, 35-passenger Hovercraft which travels on a four-foot cushion of air created by a jet turbine engine.

Vice-president Byng Heeney said the company, which has two similar Hovercraft on order for April, will start the 34-mile Vancouver-Nanaimo service with two return trips daily. The craft will leave Vancouver at 8 a.m. and 2:50 p.m. and Nanaimo at 9:10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The firm will inaguruate another service, between here and Victoria, with one of the two SRN-6 Hovercraft on order. The other craft will be for charters and other duties.

Mr. Heeney said passengers will be seated in aircraft style, with three seats on one side of the 48-foot craft and two on the other. He said the passengers will find the ride similar to a bus ride. There are no food facilities on board.

The trip will cost $7 one way and $14 return, compared with $2.95 one way and $5 return on large ferries operated on the route by the B.C. government.

Mr. Heeney said the new service will cut two hours travelling time between Vancouver and Vancouver Island. The Hovercraft will cover the 34 miles in about 45 minutes, cruising at 60 miles an hour.

Government ferries make the trip in one hour and 50 minutes, but there is additional travelling time to out-of-town terminals.

Mr. Heeney said the Hovercraft will operate in almost all weather. It is equipped with radar and test runs show it can handle waves up to eight and 10 feet high.

"We were surprised. We had estimated six-foot waves as our limit but now we can go out in practically any weather."

Pacific Hovercraft has ordered from England a much larger craft, the SRN-4, which holds 280 passengers and 20 cars.

B.C. government ferries are licensed to carry 1,000 passengers and 110 cars.

Wall Street Stock Plunge Has Echoes on Canadian Market

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A steep plunge originating on Wall Street knocked almost three per cent off the market value of Canadian stocks this week, and the decline showed no signs of slowing on Friday.

The Toronto industrial index lost 5.67 points to 187.37, its biggest drop since early January when North American markets went through a brief slump. The index closed at its lowest level since Jan. 13.

The composite index on the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, following the same trend, fell 5.19 to 182.38.

There was no specific news to account for the plunge, and brokers said the market "will have to tell its own story."

The current trend towards tighter bank credit and higher interest rates, also originating in the United States, took most of the blame, although no further increases were announced this week.

There was speculation that the U.S. Federal Reserve Board and the commercial banks may take further steps soon to raise the cost of bank loans and make them harder to obtain.

The New York market, as measured by the Dow Jones industrial index, fell by about 3½ per cent in the last four trading days. The market was closed Friday, the holiday commemorating George Washington's birthday.

At Toronto and Montreal, the weakest groups were western oils, retailers, steels, food processors, mines, banks, pipelines and utilities.

Only golds and communications ended the week with a net gain.

J. H. Crang and Co.'s stock index of 79 junior industrials, which includes real estate issues, dropped 11.3 points to 219.3, after touching a record the previous week.

The Crang index charts the performance of smaller industrial companies, which posted the most spectacular gains of 1968. The index has moved up from a base line of 100 since April last year.

Despite the sharp slump, Canadian stocks still are trading at higher levels than U.S. stocks. The Toronto industrial index touched a record early Monday before the Wall Street plunge spread to Canada.

Oil Policy High on Trudeau-Nixon Agenda

OTTAWA (CP) — The future pattern of oil marketing in North America is likely to be a bargaining issue when Prime Minister Trudeau meets President Nixon in Washington next month.

Mr. Trudeau can be expected to urge the president at their March 24-25 meeting to keep Western Canada's needs for expanded oil outlets in mind as Mr. Nixon directs the development of a new petroleum import policy for the United States.

The U.S. might require Canada to pay a price for co-operation in oil policy perhaps in the form of continued Canadian co-operation in NATO and the North American Air Defence Command and other areas of international interest.

Mr. Nixon announced Thursday he is taking personal charge of a study which he said should produce a new oil policy in the near future. He assigned aide Robert Ellsworth to conduct the study.

Canadian government officials also are engaged in preliminary work on revising this country's national oil policy, which defines import, export, and distribution patterns and is tied closely to the U.S. policy.

Some discussions have already taken place between U.S. and Canadian officials.

Lately, western Canadian producers have been concerned by signs of a squeeze developing from discoveries of oil in Alaska last summer and a series of recent announcements that refinery capacity in Eastern Canada, notably in Quebec, will be greatly expanded.

Indications that the increasing Alaskan production will be seeking markets down the Pacific coast while increased refinery capacity in the east could cause pressure in central North American mar[illegible] have prompted the western producers to press for an expanded market in the U.S. or elsewhere.

Even as the threat to the western producers appears to grow, Canadian production is expected to expand from development of arctic petroleum resources, especially in the area of the Mackenzie River delta.

Among other things the Canadian producers were hopeful that a pipeline might be built along the Mackenzie River basin to channel both Alaskan and Canadian arctic oil into existing pipelines east of the Rockies.

Another possible issue is Canada's assertion of oil exploration rights in the deep arctic, neighboring both Canadian and Alaskan territory.

U.S. authorities are understood to have questioned Canada's right to lease the areas for exploration purposes to Pan-Arctic Oil, in which the Canadian government has a large interest.

Student Liberals to Engage in Frank Debate

An estimated 250 delegates from across Canada were to hold open discussions on the two themes of the conference — "Canada as nigger" and "student as nigger."

The term "nigger" denotes in these instances someone or something living in a ghetto, cut off from other areas of society. It is borrowed from the University of California's Berkeley campus newspaper, but is also an insight into the delegates probing of their own role as students and Canada's role in world affairs.

A Liberal informant made it clear before the conference opened Friday that delegates are independent in their thinking. "They make up their own minds," he said.

He said a large element in the 5,800-member federation feels that Canada is merely a satellite of the United States

"Many student members of all political parties feel the same way," he said. "They'd like to change this."

Student determination to have more voice in university decision-making was emphasized Friday night in remarks by on-the-floor delegates and a keynote speech by Dave Sheard, former students' union president at the University of Saskatchewan in Regina

Mr. Sheard received a thunderous ovation when he finished his plea for sharing of university decision-making by students, faculty and the general public.

And, he added, the term "general public" does not include "retired party hacks or presidents of corporations "

"I mean the public — the farmers and the laborers "

Mr. Sheard said " a disproportionate" amount of money used to run universities comes through taxes from lower-income families earning $5,000 or less.

Since this bracket pays so heavily, it should have a voice with educationists and "those being educated."

Eaton as Mediator?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic party Senator Stephen Young said Friday President Nixon should send Cyrus Eaton to Cuba to enter into negotiations aimed at discouraging the hijacking of United States airliners to Cuba.

Eaton, a Canadian-born industrialist who lives in Cleveland, visited Cuba recently as a guest of Premier Fidel Castro.

Young said he hopes Eaton "will be asked by our president and secretary of state to proceed to Havana immediately as chairman of a presidential mission . . . to seek an agreement with Cuban authorities."

Nip and Tuck

The naked eye sometimes tells lies, so two rinks in the regular Men's Thursday night draw at the Bay of Quinte Curling Club used a measuring device to accurately gauge the distance of two rocks from the button. Pete Acton used the device which revealed that the white rock (on the right) was actually closer to the button than the red rock, and thus counted one.

Baseball Owners Take Hard Line

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The super stars were still twiddling their thumbs, but some more cracks were developing in the baseball players' boycott as the holdout headed into its second week today.

Saying he could stay out "only so long," Steve Blass, Pittsburgh's leading pitcher last season, junked a one-day holdout and turned up at the Pirates' camp.

Meanwhile, four top pitchers—Ron Reed, Phil Niekro, George Stone and reliever Claude Raymond, a Canadian from St. Jean, Que.—reported to Atlanta Braves, veteran hurler Don Cardwell showed up at the New York Mets' camp and Boston said pitchers Juan Pizarro and Jerry Stephenson were expected to turn out at the Red Sox' opening training session today.

And there was speculation that other front-liners, faced with the owners' latest firm stand in the pension dispute, would defy the boycott at various camps this weekend.

The owners rejected a $5,900,000 compromise proposed by the Major League Baseball Players' Association and demanded a poll of the entire membership on their $5,300,000 proposal.

That's expected to take two weeks—too long for a number of players who have simply been straddling the fence, hoping for a quick solution.

But Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' association, indicated one of his courses of action in the future will be an assault on the reserve clause.

"It is time for the players to turn toward more fruitful channels—the courts and the federal government," Miller said Friday night.

"We must challenge the reserve clause. It is clearly unconstitutional and, corny as it might sound, un-American."

Seals Snap Blues' Long Streak

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If they didn't break open some champagne in Oakland Seals' dressing room Friday night, they should have.

The Seals had every reason to celebrate after posting their first victory over St. Louis Blues since the teams entered the National Hockey League last season.

Oakland edged the Blues 3-2 to end a 15-game St. Louis unbeaten streak against the Seals.

Despite the Oakland victory, St. Louis still holds a commanding lead in the Western Division. The Blues lead the runner-up Seals by 21 points.

Centre Mike Laughton paced Oakland with two goals while Ted Hampson added one. Gary Sabourin and Barclay Plager connected for the Blues.

Oakland led 2-0 at the end of the first period and 3-0 at the end of the second. The Blues rallied for two final-period goals and removed goaltender Glenn Hall in the final seconds of the game in an unsuccessful attempt to tie the score.

A crowd of 5,665 at San Francisco watched a third-period brawl between Noel Picard of St. Louis and Doug Roberts of Oakland. Picard received a minor, major and misconduct and Roberts a major and misconduct.

In disputes off the ice, centre Mike Walton and manager-coach Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs apparently are far from a settlement of their differences.

Imlach said in an interview Friday that Walton, who deserted the team Wednesday and was suspended, will be traded "when the right offer is made."

Walton stayed behind Wednesday night when the Maple Leafs caught an overnight train to Montreal. He sent a telegram to assistant manager-coach King Clancy in which he complained of insufficient ice time.

Imlach was annoyed that Walton, a 15-goal scorer this season, left the team after an important victory, the 5-1 triumph against Montreal Canadiens Wednesday.

"Can you imagine anyone complaining of being benched after we win a big game?" asked Imlach. "Wouldn't you think a player, if he placed the team's interests first, would be a little pleased?"

Coach Keith Allen of Philadelphia Flyers has expressed an interest in Walton, and offered goaltender Doug Favell in exchange.

Allen is having trouble with a centre on his team, Forbes Kennedy. Kennedy was sent to Quebec of the American Hockey League Friday after being suspended by the Flyers, but he refused to report. General manager Bud Poile of Philadelphia said Kennedy would remain on the suspended list and he would sound out other NHL teams to see if they are interested in obtaining the stocky centre.

Montreal Canadiens announced Friday that goaltender Gump Worsley will be back in the lineup tonight when the Canadiens play host to Philadelphia.

Worsley suffered a head injury in Toronto Wednesday night and missed Thursday night's game against the Maple Leafs.

In other NHL games tonight, Chicago Black Hawks are at Toronto, Detroit Red Wings visit Pittsburgh Penguins and Los Angeles Kings welcome St. Louis.

Sunday, Minnesota North Stars play host to the Maple Leafs, New York Rangers welcome Boston Bruins, Philadelphia visits Detroit and Los Angeles is at Oakland.

Saskatchewan Schoolboys Win Canadian Title

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — Bob Miller, a Grade 12 student from Shellbrook, achieved his main goal Friday when he won the Canadian schoolboy curling championship.

But the Saskatchewan skip said his next goal "is to represent the province in the Canadian men's championship."

"I'm really proud that our rink won the schoolboy title," said Miller. "But now I would like to compete in the national men's final. Just to be there would be a thrill in itself."

Miller and his mates of vice-skip Roger Rask, second Lloyd Helm and lead Bill Aug finished with a 9-1 record in the 11-rink round-robin tournament, watched by more than 14,000 fans.

Manitoba skip Bill Henry of Winnipeg and Alberta entry John Anderson of Sedgewick shared second place with 7-3 records.

In fourth place was George Cox of Renfrew, skip of the Ontario rink, and Grant MacDonald of Whitehorse, who represented British Columbia, with 5-5 marks.

New Brunswick, skipped by Terry Norman of Moncton, Newfoundland's Doug Ryan of St. John's, Northern Ontario representative Ron Lehtovaara of Fort William and John Brady of Bridgewater, N.S., each [illegible] up with 4-6 records.

Quebec's Claude Brouillette of Pointe Claire was 3-7 and Robert Stewart of Charlottetown was 2-8.

Saskatchewan won two games Friday in easy fashion but the Shellbrook boys were hard-pressed in earlier play Wednesday and needed to steal victories to remain in contention.

In two other games, Miller had to rally in late ends to pick up victories.

It was the 10th national title for Saskatchewan since the tournament began in 1947 and the first time the province has captured the title in four tries while playing host to the schoolboys.

In 11th-round play, Saskatchewan tripped British Columbia 8-4, Nova Scotia whipped Newfoundland 17-1, Manitoba downed Prince Edward Island 10-6, Quebec nipped Northern Ontario 9-7 and Alberta defeated Ontario 9-5. New Brunswick had the bye.

In the 10th round, Saskatchewan beat Northern Ontario 13-6, Alberta trounced Newfoundland 15-3, Ontario topped Prince Edward Island 9-6, Manitoba surprised New Brunswick 10-7 and British Columbia nipped Nova Scotia 8-6. The bye went to Quebec.

The Combines, an intermediate A club, bolstered by four players from the Prescott Barons, represent Canada in the international tournament. The Czechs were leading 2-0 at the end of the first period and 3-2 at the end of the second. Combines' goaltender, Bobby Carknen, stopped 48 shots.

DENVER (AP) — The University of Denver scored four goals in the first two periods and defeated the Canadian Nationals 5-3 Friday night in an exhibition hockey game. Goals by Tom Miller, Tom Gilmore and Don Thessen carried the Pioneers to an early lead before the Canadians came back. Gerry Pinder and Chuck Lefly brought the Nationals to within striking distance in the third period but Denver had too much of a lead. Sophomore George Morrison scored his 33rd goal of the year for Denver late in the second period.

Aces Lose in Overtime

Senior Favorites Fare Well

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pre-series favorites Barrie Flyers and Orillia Terriers were the winners Friday night as quarter-final playoffs got under way in the Ontario Hockey Association senior series.

But while the Flyers romped to an easy 8-3 win over Collingwood Kings, the Terriers had to go into overtime to beat Kingston Aces 6-5.

Both best-of-seven series resume Sunday in Collingwood and Kingston.

At Barrie, the Flyers were down 2-0 to the Kings before applying pressure and coasting to their victory before 2,065 fans.

Corby Adams, league scoring champion, paced Flyers with three goals. Pete Panagabko adding two. Wayne Weller, John Weeks and Mike Dubeau fired the other Barrie goals.

At Orillia, 1,100 fans saw the Terriers win a tense battle on Grant Moore's goal at 8:43 of overtime after the Aces had scored two goals in the third period to force the extra session.

It was Moore's second goal of the game. Gary Milroy, Don Fuller, George Vail and Carl Hymers were the other Orillia scorers.

Scoring for the Aces were Syl Apps Jr., with two, Bob Collins, Charlie Convery and Bob Olajos.

Unknowns Gain Downhill Wins In Canadian Sr. Alpine Skiing

GARIBALDI, B.C. (CP) — Previous injuries and unlucky spills on high speed sections of a tricky course Friday gave two relative unknowns victories in the men's and women's downhill events of the Canadian senior alpine ski championships.

"I still can't believe it," said Laurie Kreiner, 20, of Timmins, Ont., who won the 14,000-foot women's race in 2:40.9.

Her previous best downhill was a fifth in the Roche Cup races last weekend at Aspen, Colo.

Named at Christmas to Les Espoirs, Canada's junior national ski team, she handled herself like a veteran throughout the run, which dropped 2,400 feet.

Keith Shepherd of Waskesiu, Sask. won the men's 16,000-foot run in 2:52.58.

Shepherd's task was made easier when favored Gerry Rinaldi, of Kimberley, B.C., fell on a high speed flat area of the course when he caught an edge of his ski on a mogul.

"It's nice to win," said Shepherd, "but, you know, if Rinaldi had finished, I think he would have beaten me. He usually does on tough courses like this.

"The course was quite bumpy in spots and to keep up speed, you had to pre-jump a bump and then ride over it.'

Second in the men's downhill was Peter Duncan of Mont Tremblant, Que., in 2:54.62 while Dan Irwin of Fort William, Ont., was third in 2:55.06.

Sue Graves of Ottawa was runner-up in the women's downhill with a time of 2:43.23 and Judi Leinweber of Kimberley, B.C., was third in 2:44.00.

Today's schedule includes the giant slalom with 45 gates in the men's and women's run, both 6,000-feet long, with a vertical drop of 1,200 feet.

Promises Improvement

Senators Name Williams Manager

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ted Williams has returned to baseball as a manager to try to spin a miracle with Washington Senators.

"I never wanted a job as much as I wanted this one," says Williams.

The Senators named Williams as part-owner of the last-place American League club Friday and gave him a lavish five-year contract as the highest paid manager in baseball history.

Williams promised no immediate pennants — just improvement. He will plunge into spring training Monday at Pompano Beach, Fla.

Williams, remembered for his feuds with fans an sports writers, was warm and candid at his first news conference Friday night.

"I hope I have matured a little more," he said.

Asked if Ted Williams, as manager, would tolerate a player with a temper like Ted Williams had in his youth, he shot back: "If he can hit like Ted Williams, yes."

In two decades with the Red Sox, Williams led the American League in hitting six times and wound up with a lifetime average of .344. He hammered 521 home runs and is the last man ever to bat more than .400, eclipsing the mark with .406 in 1941.

The Senators are starved for that kind of hitting. For 22 straight years they have been bogged down in the American League's second division and have not won a pennant since 1933.

Williams, 50, who will be vice-president of the Senators, is getting an option to buy 10 per cent of club stock worth $940,000. Estimates on his annual salary ranged from $50,000 to $100,000.

Golden Hawks' Win Forces Playoff Tonight With Cobourg

STAFF — The Trenton Golden Hawks had their eyes on the fourth and last playoff spot in the six team Eastern Ontario Junior "B" Hockey League last night, and a determined effort by the Belleville Morrisons wasn't enough to keep the Hawks from winning their most important game of the year.

Trenton's 7-3 home ice win moved the Golden Hawks into a tie with the Cobourg Cougars for the fourth and last playoff spot, and necessitates a sudden-death playoff game tonight at 8 p.m. at the Trenton Community Gardens, between the Golden Hawks and the Cougars.

The winner of tonight's game will take on the league champions, either Peterborough or Oshawa, in one of the league's playoff semi-finals, while Kingston will meet the second place club in the other semi-final.

The Morrisons, who have been eliminated from the playoffs started strongly last night and took a 2-1 first period lead on goals by Ted Waite and team captain Ray Summers, while netminder Paul Hopkins, the team's most valuable player this year, allowed only a shot by Jim Steenburg to elude him.

Wayne Gillette tied the count at 2-2 for Trenton at 3.08 of the middle period, but the Morrisons came back and took the lead on Dennis McCormack's unassisted goal at 8.35.

Jerry Candler of Belleville was off for tripping at 10.44 when Wayne Gillette notched his second goal of the night and tied the score for the third time in the game.

Don Potts scored what proved to be the winning goal at 13.40 of the middle stanza, and Trenton held a 4-3 lead after two periods of play.

Sensing victory, the Golden Hawks picked up the pace and added an insurance goal by Doug Campbell at 1.45 of the final period.

The final pair of Trenton goals came in the last minute and 35 second of the game from the sticks of defenceman Carey Webb and forward Pete Utman, and were just more icing on the cake.

Trenton will meet Cobourg tonight in that playoff game, while the Morrisons travel to Peterborough Sunday for a 7 p.m. contest with the Don Ryes, which will conclude their 30 game schedule.

Ottawa Has Playoff Hopes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The rampaging Ottawa 67s remained in the thick of the battle for a playoff berth in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Friday night, scoring an upset 6-2 triumph over Niagara Falls Flyers.

The win, before 2,400 fans at Niagara Falls, moved the 67s into a tie with Oshawa Generals for the eighth and final playoff spot. Both have 40 points.

It was Ottawa's fifth win in a row and the 67s will face another major test tonight when they meet the Generals in Oshawa.

Meanwhile, Montreal Junior Canadiens took over sole possession of first place in the 10-team league with a narrow 5-4 win over Peterborough Petes and Toronto Marlboros trimmed the last-place Kitchener Rangers 4-1.

At Niagara Falls, the 67s, who haven't lost a game since Feb. 6 when Peterborough beat them 5-3, scored four goals in the second period in their rout of the Flyers.

At Kitchener, Toronto marksmen were Doug Acomb, Frank Hamill, Fred Barrett and Glen Siddall. Kitchener's goal went to Bob Whitlock.

Coughlan Snaps Record

Miss Coughlan was timed in nine minutes, 34 seconds at the opening of the three-day Ontario senior swimming championships at York University.

Her time topped the record of nine minutes and 56 seconds set last year by Jeanne Warran, 15, of Vancouver.

Angela, Merrily Stratten, Sarah Cole and Janet Nash, all members of the University Settlement Aquatic Club of Toronto, later teamed up to set an 800-metre relay Canadian record of nine minutes and 34.5 seconds, 23 seconds better than a time posted by another Toronto team last year.

George Gross, Jr., also of the Toronto club set an Ontario record of 18:13.7 in the men's 1,500-metre freestyle event, shaving nearly 10 seconds off

Gross, along with team-members John Wragg, Charlie Cole and Ross Armstrong, also set an Ontario record of 8:53 for an 800-metre relay event.

Canada Has Potential

Coach Predicts Future Skiing Triumphs

GARIBALDI, B.C. (CP) — Al Raine, head coach of Canada's national ski team based at Nelson, B.C., isn't taking bets but remains convinced that at least six skiers on the squad could finish in the top 10 in World Cup standings next year.

The punch seemed to go out of the team last year after Nancy Greene's capture of her second straight World Cup and her retirement six months later.

But, as nine-year team veteran Peter Duncan of Mont Tremblant, Que., showed last week with his over - all first place in the Roche Cup races at Aspen, Colo., the team still has potential.

The Roche Cup win was the first for a Canadian since 1948.

Raine said in an interview Friday during the Canadian senior alpine ski championships here that Keith Shepherd of Waskesiu, Sask., who won the men's downhill, is another skier who "could do the trick.

"Shepherd could easily end up tops in the world ski championships at Val Gardena, Italy, next year, Raine said.

"At the time trials there last week, he was 10th. He really improved this year and is getting better all the time.

Shepherd, 20, also finished in the top 10 at three World Cup races in Europe this winter.

Raine said that Shepherd's seventh place and Rod Hebron's fifth at Megeve, France "where they have the fastest, hairiest downhill, was the best Canadian performance ever.

On the women's team, Raine said Judy Crawford, 18, of Toronto and Betsy Clifford, 15, of Ottawa, both out of competition recently because of injuries, "have a lot of potential.

"The biggest sensation in the last three weeks was Laurie Kriener of Timmins, Ont. She's really going well. She finished fifth over-all at Aspen — one second behind Ann Black of Seattle in fourth, — the best women's downhiller at the European races.

Raine, fiance of Miss Greene, said the main problem of the team, as in the past, is money.

"If fund-raising doesn't pick up soon, we'll have to cut back on the number of skiers going to future meets.

Western Canada Curlers Expected To Dominate Women's Championships

She was undefeated then, and she's riding on another undefeated string going into the 1969 championship which starts Monday.

Miss McKee, who has 11 consecutive victories in provincial playoffs, is a five-time winner of divisional honors. Her first championship was as a 21-year-old skip in 1954.

But on paper at least, there appears to be just as strong a contender in the Pat Brunsdon foursome from Manitoba.

Although Mrs. Brunsdon has yet to play in a national final, the other three members of the team took home all the marbles in 1967 when Betty Duguid was their skip.

Miss McKee has three newcomers to national competition in third Vera Pezer, second Lee Morrison and lead Jen Falk.

The national title has left Western Canada only once since the championship started in 1961, on that occasion Mabel Deware of Moncton, N.B., was the best in the land.

Last year, the Hazel Jamison family foursome from Edmonton won it for the second time. Mrs. Jamison won it her first time in 1966.

Alberta is represented this year by Simonne Flynn of Medicine Hat, who has been in the southern Alberta final seven successive years.

Representing British Columbia, which went to a playoff game last year, is Mae Shaw of Kimberley.

Mrs. Shaw is no stranger to the Canadian final, playing lead for Ina Hanson in 1962 and 1964 when that rink won the championship.

June Shaw of Ontario, no relation to the B.C. skip, is another familiar name to national competition playing in the nationals in 1966 and 1967.

Quebec skip Leona MacKinney and her foursome from Lachute represent 45 years of curling experience although it is the team's first appearance in the national event.

Vi Pike, now living in Grand Falls, Nfld., has skipped five previous provincial champions and competed with her husband in mixed finals in 1967.

Pott Tops at Tucson; Knudson 8 Strokes Back

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The $100,000 Tucson Open today told a story of two golfers named Johnny — one leading the field and the other, a star of more than a quarter century ago, who helped him do it.

Johnny Pott, 33, held a one-stroke lead at nine-under-par 135 going into third-round play today in quest of the $20,000 first prize.

George Knudson of Toronto, leading Canadian, shot a 70 Friday for a 143 total. He was followed by Bob Cox of Vancouver, 72-71-144.

Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver had a 74-71-145 while Al Balding of Toronto was at 72-74-146. Ken Fulton of Trail, B.C., and Montreal, followed at 73-79-152.

Pott hasn't won since the Bing Crosby tournament which opened the 1968 tour.

He wound up earning $40,335, the majority of that at the Crosby.

"It was my poorest year on the tour," he said. "I've been working on my game with Johnny Revolta."

Post didn't reveal the advice but he did post a second-round score of 65 on the 7,305-yard Tucson National Country Club course Friday.

That was enough to give him the edge over Dale Douglass, who added a 69 to his opening 67 for 136.

U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino and first-round leader Miller Barber were tied at 137 following rounds of 70 and 77

Geese Best Bet for Future

KINGSTON (CP) — Ontario's future in waterfowl hunting is with geese, not ducks, a department of lands and forests official told the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters Friday.

Blair Dawson, the department's supervisor of waterfowl management, told 300 delegates attending the federation's 41st convention that geese are more important, especially to southern Ontario hunters, because they are more manageable.

Mr. Dawson said southern Ontario is in the Atlantic flyway along which more than 600,000 geese fly at 5,000 feet.

"All we have to do is plant some corn and clover and build some sanctuaries and wetlands. Then they'll come down and set their wheels for a while."

Mr. Dawson added that the department is working on all possibilities and said that within 10 years hunters in southern Ontario should be able to bag their limits in geese.

Another lands and forests official, Chris Armstrong, supervisor of sports, fisheries and hatcheries, outlined the department's work in the Great Lakes.

This work includes various experiments with different types of fish, including an exotic Japanese fish called the masu.

He said the Japanese species could be planted in Lake Ontario.

FOUND ANY TREASURE LATELY?

The most notorious treasure collector of them all, Captain Kidd, sailed from New York in pursuit of pirates and instead became one himself. He captured great riches but made the mistake of sailing back to New York where he was caught and hanged in 1701.

People are still looking for Captain Kidd's treasure. Find another type of treasure by selling the family's no longer used things with an Intelligencer Want Ad. It's as easy as dialing 962-9171 matey!

Sirhan Trial Continues

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan confided to an acquaintance last April that he planned to shoot Senator Robert F. Kennedy and he was observed on the scene 48 hours before the assassination, a witness testified Friday at Sirhan's first-degree murder trial.

The prosecution, developing its theme of premeditated murder, has called 46 witnesses and appears likely to rest its case next week. The trial was in recess until Monday.

Alvin Clark testified Friday that Sirhan told him two months before the assassination: "I'm planning on shooting him."

Clark, who collects trash at the Sirhan home in Pasadena, said they became friendly, with Sirhan providing coffee and sandwiches. Shortly after the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr., Clark said Sirhan, a 24-year-old Jordanian, "asked me who I was going to vote for."

"I told him Senator Kennedy."

"What do you want to vote for that son-of-a-b for, because Im planning on shooting him," Clark quoted Sirhan as saying.

On cross-examination, Clark was asked if he told the FBI after Kennedy's death that "you wouldn't want to take the oath because you hated Sirhan so much you would do anything to see him convicted?"

"Yes," replied Clark.

The defence contends that Sirhan was in a trance and incapable of premeditated murder—for which the possible penalty is death—when he shot the 42-year-old Kennedy last June 5 just after the senator proclaimed victory in California's Democratic presidential primary.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

German Measles Remains Real Threat in Pregnancy

For Mrs. A.: Until a rubella (German measles) vaccine has been thoroughly tested and is readily available, young women should observe routine precautions.

They should avoid becoming pregnant during a rubella epidemic. Or, if someone in their own household, or in a neighbor's, is down with the infection. Some even say that conception should be avoided for a month or two after symptoms clear up, because the effects of the virus may still persist and linger on.

What to do if already attacked by rubella — especially during the first few months of pregnancy? In most cases, according to some authorities, termination of pregnancy by therapeutic abortion seems advisable. But the decision, of course, will be up to the parents. Much will depend upon the age of the parents, how many children they already have, their moral and religious views, and upon their emotional reactions.

Mainly, I want to stress that it is a problem to be faced and not overlooked. Rubella remains a threat to infant and parents.

• • •

For Mrs. D.: A special silver nitrate cream appears to be quite helpful in the treatment of burns.

• • •

For Mrs. L.: There is still a difference of opinion, but most doctors believe that once the diagnosis of stones in the gall bladder has been made, it's better to have the gall bladder out than gamble on leaving them sit around in the gall bladder, and suddenly one day jump up and make trouble.

Surgeons prefer to remove the stones and gall bladder while the patient's health is generally good. Complications like gangrene of the gall bladder which requires operation under less favorable circumstances are sometimes a threat to life.

• • •

For Mr. Y.: Unfortunately, over a million and a half Americans do not even suspect that they have diabetes mellitus. How important it is to know is the fact that one estimate is that at least 10 per cent of all blindness in the USA is due to diabetes.

Early care would save many. Not only are eyes threatened, but all the arteries in the body — especially the coronaries, the brain and kidney arteries. To remove any doubt, see your doctor so he can take blood sugar and other necessary tests.

• • •

For Mrs. B.: Your gas, bloating, burning and "general indigestion" are common complaints of people who suffer with hiatal hernia. I suggest you follow your doctor's conservative remedies before even considering surgery.

Take six small meals daily; don't eat a heavy dinner; sleep "high" — on at least three pillows. Take the pills he has prescribed and don't worry too much about your condition. In most cases, hiatal hernia symptoms respond to relatively simple treatment.

• • •

For Miss D.: I have observed excellent results in the treatment of facial scarring due to acne with use of either dermabrasion (shaving down the skin with a special instrument), or by choice of "skin peel" (application of chemicals to the skin). Leave the choice of method up to your dermatologist or plastic surgeon.

Bureaucratic Decree

Opposition Assails Farm Bills

OTTAWA (CP) — A stiff but unavailing fight against what the opposition describes as arbitrary features of a series of farm compensation and control bills continued Friday in the Commons.

Conservatives and New Democrats have assailed the powers the bills give government inspectors and the provisions for appeal.

Also criticized have been the provision for use of Exchequer Court justices as "assessors' in deciding compensation where the presence of chemicals or disease require the destruction of livestock or crops.

T. C. Douglas, back as NDP leader after a byelection victory in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, and Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West), a Conservative front-bencher, lashed out at what they called a trend towards government by bureaucratic decree.

They spoke on a three-clause bill to amend the Animal Contagious D' eases Act. The bill, which received third reading under opposition protest, will allow the government to determine the amounts to be paid where farmers are forced to slaughter cattle because of diseases. Previously, the act provided for statutory maximums.

The bill also provides for an "assessor," a government-appointed judge, to hear appeals.

However, he would not be allowed to award more than the maximum compensation set by the government.

Agriculture Minister Olson said the maximums when the bills come into force Sept. 26 will be $200 for a pure-bred cow, up from $140 now, and $120 for a "grade" or mixed-breed animal, up from $70 now.

Debate began on third reading of a similar bill to regulate chemical products used by farmers to control pests "and the organic functions of plants and animals."

This bill provides for registration of products, their inspection and seizure if necessary, and appeals, again through an "assessor" judge.

Ontario farmer Harold Danforth (PC—Essex-Kent) said the bill with respect to labelling, ers than an RCMP officer enjoys.

"The fact that an inspector is government-employed and shows his identification gives him the right to go into any building or property and require every person to assist him in his inspection," Mr. Danforth said.

"It grants him the right to demand all books and papers he may deem necessary.

"He can require companies to cease the manufacture of a chemical. He can stop the transportation of it.

"He can stop the utilization of it.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For February 23

Your birthday today: Your daily life tends to include subtle new pleasures. You notice more and get more satisfaction from co-incidence. The chances for symbolic, if not actual, travel are better than usual but erratic. Sentimental ventures succeed in surges of activity. Today's natives seldom seek the centre of attention or put in the hard sacrifice to become renown but are comfortable friends to the famous.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Do your share of the community ceremonies this morning. Plan to keep your day within bounds, as you face temptations may be hard to a chieve this of overindulgence. Meditation evening, but worthwhile.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your plans have to be near perfect for you to get anything but opposition today. Have the wisdom to see this is merely a passing phase, which should not be hardened into personal habits by overreaction.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Emotion gets in the way of your plans. Go ahead with the important obligations quietly and bypass irrational behavior. An evening of solitude could be helpful.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Attend church, then seek privacy early in the afternoon and think out your recent experiences. Almost everything you attempt socially is likely to go awry.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Public, community affairs are important, but should not be allowed to overshadow personal interests. Take time to be home and see what goes on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Religious and occult studies are very rewarding today. Others lack understanding or are not much in the mood for social amenities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Continue precautions about financial arrangements which are replete with misinformation. Keep your social activities within narrow bounds among well-known associates.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Go out of your way to cooperate even where you may not understand the full details of the venture. You will learn something of importance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Any indiscreet remark will rebound immediately. Likewise any disregard of a safety rule may be regretted. If there are obligations at hand, attend to them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The temptation is idle pleasures and overindulgence. If you can keep your appetites within bounds, you can achieve a great deal. Think about younger people, and see their peeds as differing from your own.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Go to church, attend matters of expression of your faith, but abstain from anything of business or commercial nature. Agreement on anything controversial is improbable, so find neutral ground.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Minor crisis would be typical of the influences at work. A lower level of manifestation would be accidents involving spilled or flammable liquids; avoid such activities.

For Feb. 24th,

Your birthday today: Life holds a new assignment of use of your skills and original talents. Whatever you have done by yourself, or for yourself, you can now show others how to do. Subtle adjustments will be needed to accept help and to give help in new directions. Emotional ties are of aid now. Today's natives generally have high efficiency but not the most tact.

ARIES)March 21—April 19): This week begins with everybody's imaginative schemes to obtain loans. Check every story and put off loans for a few days. New contacts are potentially profitable.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Reconciliation is the key word. Be a peacemaker, the first to apologize even though at fault. Institutions are amendable to negotiations, arrangements. Visit friends this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Relax and express yourself freely today. Some confusion is normal; let other people help you straighten it out. Pursue romantic interests.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Shared funds can be fantastically misunderstood today. Wait until some better agreement develops before you agree to changes. Pursue your own business diligently.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Expect all sorts of compliments but stick to the hard facts. For once the only place where your virtues are credited is in romantic interests — declare yourself clearly, if you really care.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Today you are the troubleshooter helping put joint or group financing matters right. Mere meandering will not do it — you have to have your facts in communicable form, and use them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct 22): For once everybody is beyond your ease. Allow people a little breathing space; wait for better timing. Legal rulings are favored today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Indulgence in trivia is unproductive. Take care not to harbor ill will, as malice corrupts those who feel it. Make every effort to get along with all, despite surface rudeness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Creative work is favored today. Accept temporary advantages from mistakes of competitors or rivals. Follow up friendly invitations to share the enjoyment of social activities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 —Jan. 19): A conservative approach and a full day's steady work along regular lines will bring you out a long way ahead. The evening should be spent quietly, with extra rest.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Look to original aspects of your work. Get some humor going as well; it will make the job go faster, easier. Do nice things for your loved ones this evening. Surprise relatives. Then quit early to avoid a long day.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Avoid unnecessary introductions today; doing only the minimum. Be a bit skeptical of anything you hear — wait for the full story later.

Election Monday

Parade Suggests Militant Paisley No Match for O'Neill

BELFAST (CP) — The much-anticipated official climax to the Belfast campaign of boisterous Rev. Ian Paisley has turned out to be much less than a massive display of election strength.

Police estimated that between 200 and 500 Paisley supporters, a number of them teen-agers chanting and dancing to ceremonial flutes and drums, braved Friday night's cold winds in a procession which took Paisley through two city constituencies being contested in Monday's Northern Ireland general election.

Beaming and waving, the big clergyman rode in the parade's place of honor - high up on a large yellow truck. With him on the vehicle were two candidates of his Protestant Unionist party in the Belfast ridings of Victoria and Bloomfield.

Ahead of him marched his enthusiastic backers clutching Union Jacks and a few of them sporting orange sashes as traditional tokens of militant Ulster Protestantism.

As the Paisley procession coursed through Belfast, other Northern Ireland politicians were making late election appeals in ridings across the six counties. They resume campaigning today and some are expected to continue Sunday. But Paisley and strict Protestants generally say they will adhere to traditional practice and abstain from such work on the sabbath.

The campaign as a whole has been relatively free of violence and police said there were no incidents during the Paisley parade Friday night.

Loudspeakers boomed out slogans denouncing Prime Minister Terence O'Neill as — among other things — a man intent on "selling out" Northern Ireland to the Roman Catholic Church.

But the refrain generally was less violent, except when customers ran out from pubs along the several-mile parade route to shout "no surrender." This is the perennial Protestant shout of defiance, originating in the period of 17-century religious conflict which surrounded the birth of modern Ulster.

Tonight, Paisley will hold what is billed as a big rally in Bannside, the constituency northwest of Belfast, which he is contesting against O'Neill.

O'Neill called the election suddenly this month when a strong section of his Protestant following in the legislature rebelled at his policy of reconciliation with Ulster's minority Roman Catholics.

The election has developed into a confused mish-mash as seats are contested by pro-O'Neill and anti-O'Neill candidates of the governing Unionist party, members of the Nationalists Catholic and splinter groups such as Paisley's newly-created organization with only five candidates.

Opinion polls give O'Neill a good chance of strengthening his hand but cutting the number of dissident House members in his party, which will unquestionably get a majority of the 52 seats in the Ulster Parliament.

At dissolution, the standing was: Unionists 37, Nationalists 9, Northern Ireland Labor 2, Republican Labor 2, Liberals 1, others 1.

Fundamental Differences

UK Vetoes De Gaulle's Economic Feelers

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's basic objective will continue to be membership in the European Common Market because it thinks this is the best path toward the integration of Europe, informed sources said today.

The sources were commenting after their disclosure Friday of recent ideas suggested by French President de Gaulle to Britain which included a large European economic association eventually able to take the place of the six-member Common Market.

Britain rejected outright some of de Gaulle's ideas and reacted coolly toward the others. The suggestions were made to Christopher Soames, British ambassador to France, during a meeting with de Gaulle Feb. 4, the sources said.

The sources said that Britain also fundamentally disagreed with the attitude shown by de Gaulle on relations with the United States.

These sources said de Gaulle, in making the large European economic association suggestion, also said there should be a smaller inner council of an European political association consisting of France, Britain, West Germany and Italy.

The reported disclosures of de Gaulle's talks with Soames came just two days before President Nixon begins a Western European tour Sunday. The American leader is scheduled to arrive here Monday for talks with Prime Minister Wilson, and in Paris Feb. 28 for discussions with de Gaulle.

The British government completely disagrees with the concept of a four-power inner political council. British policy in trying to join the European community always has been to treat all the smaller states as equals and not to attempt to establish a big-power hegemony.

During the meeting with Soames, de Gaulle is reported to have said it is impossible to arrive at a European view because of the strong pro-American feeling of all countries in Europe, particularly Britain.

He said Europe should be an independent entity in which there would be no need for NATO as such with American dominance and command structure.

Britain, in a reply Feb. 12 to the president's suggestions, rejected his views on NATO and emphasized that there was no change in its position on wanting to enter the Common Market.

Builders 'Gagged by Rules'

TORONTO (CP) — Government regulations have made innovation in the building industry impossible, says Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

Mr. Hellyer said in a speech Friday to the Ontario Association of Architects that the building industry is "one of the world's most over-regulated industries."

"Can you imagine what would happen to the automobile industry if regulations governing wheelbase size and windshield colors varied from borough to borough.

"It would be utter chaos. Yet this has happened in the building industry. Restrictions have made innovation impossible."

In an interview later, Mr. Hellyer reacted to criticism that recommendations of his federal committee on housing did not take account of Canada's low-income families.

The criticism, by a 30-member study group sponsored by the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada, was that the committee's proposals to free the National Housing Act Mortgage lending rate would help only middle- and upper-income, and not low-income families.

Munro Says Man Terrifying Creature

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — The "dehumanizing effects" of big city life are turning modern man into a "rather terrifying creature," federal Health Minister John Munro said Friday.

Governments at all levels, all kinds of social groups and individuals must make it their job to counteract this, the minister said in a speech to the Canadian Mental Health Association branch here.

Mr. Munro asked why violence is becoming common in contemporary society.

"We had a classic illustration only last week at Sir George Williams University in Montreal. After two weeks of peaceful—and in fact meticulously well-disciplined—occupation of the computer centre, came the sudden rampage of destruction.

"The reason would appear to have been a rumor, a rumor which later proved untrue, but which was taken by the students as the final sellout, shattering their last hope that their charges, which they believed well founded, would receive a fair and impartial hearing.

"The story at Sir George did not begin last week. It began last spring. . . ."

Society must do something about the build-up of pressures like those which eventually exploded into violence at Sir George, the minister said.

Preventive public health was summed up in the statement that garbage collectors had saved more lives than doctors, Mr. Munro said.

"We have applied this lesson to the factors of physical environment which led to physical disease. We have yet to apply it to the factors of social environment that lead to emotional disease."

There was a sense of entrapment and hopelessness in those forced to live in slums, Mr. Munro said. It was no surprise that continuation of this kind of situation brought a high incidence of mental illness.

"We've got to care about other people as human beings, not economic or occupational units or 'roles.'"

A text of Mr. Munro's speech was released to the press in advance of delivery.

Nixon Makes Pledge

Real Consultation Promised NATO

Talks Planned With Russians

BRUSSELS (CP) — President Nixon said today the United States later will "enter into negotiations with the Soviet Union on a wide range of issues," and he promised to consult with his NATO partners both before and during the talks.

In a 10-minute address to the permanent council of NATO at its headquarters here, Nixon proclaimed his ideal as "genuine consultation, a new spirit of co-operation," with the 15-nation alliance adapting itself to the challenges of the present age.

"It must pool not only its arms but also its brains," he told the NATO ambassadors, including Ross Campbell of Canada, in the white-walled council chamber.

Setting the tone for his eight-day tour of five European nations, the president paid generous praise to the wisdom and experience of the old world.

"We need the benefit of that wisdom and experience," he said.

Nixon, who made Brussels the first stop of his European trip, did not hedge about prospects of eventual Soviet-American talks. He said there will be negoations "in due course, and with proper preparation."

The president made no direct reference to the current crisis over France's reported plans to reshape Europe's political, economic, and military institutions, leaving NATO to wither away.

But there was an implicit challenge to President de Gaulle's contemptuous view of NATO's role in the world in his praise of the alliance as "a bulkwark of peace, the architect of new means of partnership, and an invigorating forum for new ideas and new technologies to enrich the lieves of our peoples."

Nixon pledged that "the United States is determined to listen with new attentiveness o its NATO partners."

He said that because American-Soviet talks would directly affect the nations of Western Europe, the United States will approach Moscow "on the basis of full consultation and co-operation with our allies, because we recognize that the chances for successful negotiations depend on our unity.

"I realize that this course has not always been followed in the past. But I pledge to you today, that in any negotiations directly affecting the interest of the NATO nations, there will be full and genuine consultations before and during those negotiations."

Hospital Addition Seen By Thousands on Sunday

By ROGER WORTH
Staff Reporter

Thousands of Quinte area residents turned out yesterday to have a look at the new $9. million addition to Belleville General Hospital.

According to hospital administrator Philip Rickard an estimated 5,000 people viewed the addition. "The turn out far exceeded our expectations," he said. "We were only counting on a few hundred people."

The tour through the extension followed official opening ceremonies at education hall and the cutting of the traditional ribbon by health minister Matthew Dymond.

The 312 bed addition contains an intensive care unit, a radiology department, a laboratory, cafeteria, an emergency department, dental department and a psychiatric clinic — the first of its kind in the area. Six operating theatres are also included.

The new addition becomes fully operative later this week.

The extension spans seven floors and includes the most modern in communications and hospital equipment.

Those touring the addition saw the newest in hospital equipment.

Trudeau Warns Students

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau warned Sunday of the dangers of student extremism, a subject his audience earlier thrashed out at the annual conference of the Canadian University Liberal Federation.

Many student radicals are trying to destroy universities rather than change them, he said.

The prime minister said he had known many instances in which radicals "have used the tools of democracy to destroy freedom of information, freedom of debate and freedom of decision."

Delegates, in a freewheeling argument Saturday, debated student violence as a venue to achieving structural and academic changes in universities.

More than 20 of about 100 persons at a seminar opposed statements made by panelists Steve Langdon and Peter Warrian, students at the University of Toronto, who took a position in favor of student violence under certain conditions.

Mr. Trudeau appealed to the majority of students, "whatever their ideology," to "stand for the tools and the means of democracy and to fight for the right to dissent."

Christopher Soames

Envoy, Wilson Agree

LONDON (CP) — Informed sources say Christopher Soames, British ambassador to France, completely agrees with his government's decision to disclose to allies — including Canada— de Gaulle's proposal.

The sources said Soames, a former Conservative minister and son-in-law of the late Sir Winston Churchill, was at the centre of British strategy after de Gaulle made his Feb. 4 offer to Britain of two-way talks.

A London newspaper reported that Soames was furious with British disclosure of de Gaulle's confidential talks and that the ambassador was thinking of resigning.

French File Protest At Report on Talks

PARIS (Reuters) — The French government today protested to Britain over the disclosure of private talks between President de Gaulle and British Ambassador Christopher Soames on Feb. 4, official sources said.

Herve Alphand, secretary-general at the French foreign ministry, handed a protest note to Soames at the ministry this morning, the sources said.

The French government protested to Britain over the use, through diplomatic and press channels, of an account of the talks, the sources added.

The French note said the British account distorted the French president's words and received the approval neither of the Elysee Palace nor of the French foreign ministry, the sources said.

Britain claims Soames' account, and a version published in London last Friday, was an accurate account of a conversation in which de Gaulle revealed sweeping new plans for Europe.

Britain denies the account was distorted, and claims it received French approval.

French Premier Maurice Couve de Murville today said it was essential to set the record straight over the Anglo-French furore.

The minister, speaking in a radio interview, said: "What seems to me now useful and even essential is to explain to public opinion, through the precise texts what has happened and what has led to the incidents of the last few days."

But he declined precise comment on what the interviewer called the "London bombshell" — a report that de Gaulle proposed scrapping the Common Market and NATO for a looser, enlarged European Economic Community politically run by Britain, France, West Germany and Italy.

The French foreign ministry issued a statement denying that the British version of de Gaulle's plans for Europe had received official approval.

In answer to a question, Couve de Murville said he did not think the fracas over the British disclosures "in any way affects the essential object of president Nixon's visit."

Later today, French Foreign Minister Michel Debre will try to calm the fears of France's five Common Market partners at a meeting with the ambassadors of West Germany, Italy and the Benelux countries.

Reds Suggest Deal

WEST BERLIN (Reuters) — The West Berlin city government met in an urgent session today to discuss a Soviet suggestion that West Berliners might be granted passes to visit relatives in East Berlin if West Germany dropped plans to hold its presidential election here.

The government was expected to send an emissary across the wall to East Berlin to discuss the suggested deal, officials said.

Israeli Jets Attack Bases Of Arab Guerrillas in Syria

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Israeli jets today bombed, rocketed and strafed bases of the Arab Fatah commando organization near Damascus in the first large-scale Israeli strike against Syria since the June, 1967, war.

The Israeli and Syrian air forces engaged in a series of dogfights, with each claiming kills. The Israelis claimed they lost no planes, the Syrians admitted losing two.

Syrian officials in Damascus claimed 20 civilians were wounded in an attack on Maisaloun camp, including a Lebanese doctor and a girl driving from Beirut to Damascus.

An Israeli senior general staff officer said the half-hour air strike crippled the Maisaloun camp, an El Fatah training base 10 miles west of the Syrian capital and the El Hamme camp, about seven miles northwest of Damascus.

Seeking Protection From Fox, Duck Assumes Role of Sheepdog

BORING, Ore. (AP) — A Mallard duck, seeking protection from a marauding fox, has taken over leadership of 60 head of sheep in this Oregon farming community.

The duck arrived on Neil Pestes's farm last summer with a mate, but the mate was killed by a fox and Lizzie took up with the sheep.

Says Pestes: "He's probably the craziest looking sheepherder in agricultural history."

He says the duck apparently sought new companionship and protection from the fox when he became friendly with the family ram.

Pestes says soon after the ram and duck became friends, the duck took over leadership of the herd.

Lizzie eats, drinks and sleeps with the sheep. He quacks loudly at any who might wander away from the pasture and if they fail to pay attention the duck waddles quickly after them and quacks them back to the herd.

During the lambing season, Lizzie is a doting baby sitter, making sure the lambs stay close to their mothers and nipping them to make them behave.

The sheep, in turn, scare up grasshoppers as they chomp through the pasture and Lizzie eats luxuriously. Lizzie also gets protection from the fox, which won't attack a herd.

Britain May Sell Tanks To Israel

LONDON (AP) — Britain may sell Israel some of its newest and most powerful Chieftain tanks despite Arab threats of trading and political reprisals, government sources reported today.

No formal decision on the sale has been made, the sources said, pending further political and military considerations.

Informants said the British government will not approve the sale before ascertaining American views on the Middle East.

Four Injured in Reform Club Blast

Bertrand Flays 'Cowardly Half-wits' Who Set Montreal Bombs

Montreal Skyline 1969

MONTREAL (CP) — A dynamite bomb, the eighth in Montreal this year, exploded in a stairwell at the downtown Liberal party's social club Saturday night, injuring two persons inside and two outside, including a baby.

Less than 24 hours after the bombing, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand pledged that whoever is responsible for the recent wave of bombings will be caught and punished.

He told a Union Nationale party fund-raising dinner Sunday night attended by about 4,000 persons:

"Half-wits, as cowardly as they are criminal, at present are committing acts of terrorism aimed at spreading panic and discrediting Quebec.

"Under a cloak of anonymity they are threatening the lives of our fellow citizens and challenging society. . . .

"Whoever they may be, these anarchists will be sought out and punished. . . . And we will not rest until they have been arrested and brought to justice."

The Reform Club bombing came 10 days after a bomb exploded in the visitor's gallery of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, sending 27 persons to hospital for treatment.

Another bomb planted this year was de-activated Feb. 8 by the police bomb squad outside a Quebec government building on McGill Street.

Saturday's blast injured two women working in the checkroom of the club, located on Sherbrooke Street, and disrupted a wedding anniversary celebration attended by about 80 guests.

Mrs. Camille Jean, 58, and Mrs. Rolande Charbonneau, 43, were treated in hospital for cuts and shock.

Taxi driver Jean-Paul Brouillette was driving by the club at the time of the explosion and his cab was shaken by the impact. He was taken to hospital with severe head pains and shock.

Seven-month-old Dora Dorion, sleeping in her crib in a third-floor apartment across the street, was struck in the face by broken glass from a window.

The explosion ripped out portions of a side wall in the club, took out chunks of the ceiling and damaged a canopy leading from the street.

It also shattered windows in at least eight buildings on both sides of Sherbrooke Street.

Ten police cars and five ambulances were called to the scene and those at the celebration for Mr. and Mrs. Jean Lebroque were evacuated. The only political figure present was the mayor of suburban Outremont.

The Reform Club is a social meeting place for both provincial and federal Liberals.

3½-month Tour

Adjudication A Tough Grind

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

"The lot of a concert pianist is a hard one — but the life of an adjudicator is just slightly less hazardous."

That's the way London-born Ronald Smith tells it. His co-adjudicator Donald Francke, agrees with the degree of hazard, with a small exception — he's an opera singer.

The two men are in Belleville to adjudicate the three-day Rotary Music Festival, which gets underway today.

Both natives of London, England, the two were invited to act as adjudicators by the Canadian Federation of Music Festivals.

It is the custom of the federation to invite four adjudicators from England to participate in a judging capacity for a "tour" of concerts across Canada.

The four men chosen are in the following classifications: singing, piano, choral and general music.

Mr. Smith explained he was first invited to tour last fall. "Had I thought about it, I probably would have said no. But I immediately and impulsively said yes."

The team arrived in Canada in January for their first festival in Halifax. They have just come from Toronto — and a 15-day stint with the Kiwanis Festival.

This travelling tour will last 3½ months, and will go right to Victoria, B.C.

"We are just beginning to realize the size of the country, and the tremendous warmth of the people here," said Mr. Smith.

"I have been particularly impressed with the great organization and planning that is put into these festivals. In England, a lot of the time, we do things off the cuff. Most of the time things work out, but sometimes they come out disastrously," he laughed.

"I would not term myself a professional adjudicator," Mr. Smith emphasized, "there is hardly such a thing."

Asked to define what adjudication really is, Mr. Smith stated "it is an extension of teaching."

Mr. Smith and Mr. Francke are both involved in teaching —either singing or piano, so it isn't such a big step to adjudication.

"But you can't relax for a second. First you're finished marking the sheet for one contestant, and then immediately another has started."

What is the criterion an adjudicator uses to assess the talents of a young musician?

Using their own musical experience, an adjudicator assesses whether the performer knows the piece and can reproduce it? Questions they ask themselves are: Have they understood its meaning? Most important, can they project that meaning to an audience?

"When they are on that platform, they must be larger than life. What I look for is a moment of revelation . . . a certain spark, a coming to life," Mr. Smith explained.

Can they enjoy all this constant rigorous assessing of talent?

"I do enjoy it, yes," admitted Mr. Francke. "It fulfills the desire these children and young people have to perform. We are here to try to help, to strengthen and encourage."

Both men emphasized that prizes have no relevance. The important thing is these performers are given a start in life — to perform before a vast audience.

"When a contestant is up there," Mr. Francke said, "we want them to win, it hurts us when they go wrong —we're all for them."

"To me the whole thing is like giving a singing lesson, with the correction coming at the end," added Mr. Francke.

Planning Starts For 2nd Festival

Over 2,500 contestants will be participating in the Rotary Festival of Music this week in 340 separate entries.

"We're very happy about the whole thing," said one of the festival sub chairmen, Joseph DeMeza, principal of the Ontario School for the Deaf this morning.

"The response to the first festival is far greater than we ever expected."

The contestants will compete in various fields of music, including instrumental, solo vocal and choir vocal for $1,000 in scholarships and awards.

And of course it is expected that the number of spectators will far surpass the number of contestants.

For admission to all of the sessions, a $2 pass is needed although people can buy individual tickets for the nine sessions at 25c for children and 50c for adults.

The main attraction of the three day festival will come on Wednesday night at the "Festival of Stars".

Rather than a competition, the Wednesday evening performance at Centennial High School will be a concert of the chosen best performers from the preceding three days.

Prizes are doubled for the last performance.

Mr. Demeza said that all of the contestants are from Belleville and the outlying districts — even from as far north as Bancroft.

The general chairman of the Rotary sponsored festival is Linton Read, principal of Moira Secondary School.

And now with the fantastic reception to the project, it is almost assured that the festival will become an annual event, according to Mr. Demeza.

"With a first festival like this one there just about has to be a second," he finished.

Soames, Wilson Agree

untrue. Soames would continue as ambassador in Paris, despite indications that he no longer would be welcomed at de Gaulle's Elysee Palace and that he will face iceberg treatment in the French foreign office.

They said also that Soames has received high praise in the British foreign office for the part he played in the bomb-shell events which observers suggest may have sunk Anglo-French relations to a post-war low.

Whether disclosures of the de Gaulle-Soames talks has earned Britain new friends in Europe is questionable. The only major victory Britain could hope to gain from tipping allies about de Gaulle's ideas of ditching NATO and reorganizing the Common Market is to draw West Germany away from its close alliance with France.

The indications are, however, that German Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger is calmly watching the Anglo-French scrap with an almost cynical spectator's approach, without jumping to support the British position.

Britain maintains that on Feb. 4 de Gaulle proposed joint talks with Britain on the future of Europe, saying he had no particular faith in the six-country Common Market. He wanted a looser form of European free-trade area directed by an inner council composed of Britain, France, West Germany and Italy. He also wanted Europe freed of American influence including the dismantling of NATO because of its American command and control structure.

Britain tipped European allies and Canada and the United States after telling the French Feb. 12 it had to do so because European security was involved.

Britain was prepared to go ahead with talks providing de Gaulle was aware it could not agree with him on the demolition of NATO, and that allies would be kept informed on the talks.

British officials last Friday disclosed details of the Feb. 4 talks to the press because, they said, distorted French leaks had already come from Paris. On Saturday Foreign Secretary Stewart confirmed the press reports and Soames flew in from Paris after what was described as scorching exchange with French Foreign Minister Michel Debre.

Informants said that, while Debre's attitude was icy, he did not say that Soames was persona non grata and that for that reason Soames would be kept on in Paris.

Post Office Fate Again on Agenda

TRENTON — The fate of the town's old post office will be decided once and for all tonight.

The general government committee, under the chairmanship of councillor Stanley Ketcheson, has been meeting for the past month on the matter.

Although the people had voted to retain the building for municipal purposes, councillor Paul Trip requested the council study the matter in closed session for one final time.

Councillor Ketcheson would not disclose the contents of his report but said he will be coming up with several recommendations concerning the future of the old structure.

On Dec. 2 the citizens of Trenton voted to retain the building and renovate it at a cost of $250,000. Although this was contrary to Mayor James MacDonald's stand, he said "we will do the best we can to carry out the wishes of the people."

But council may have discovered that it could cost more than $250,000 to carry out these wishes and if this is true an alternative solution will be found this evening at the council meeting.

Long, Long Line Up in the Snow

The staff at Belleville General Hospital were overwhelmed with visitors yesterday when they opened the new seven storey addition. An estimated 5,000 people turned out to view the new facilities. Patients and equipment will be moved into the new section later this week.

Nursing School on Way

Construction of a new school of nursing at Belleville General Hospital is not going to be set aside — only deferred — Health Minister Matthew Dymond said here yesterday.

During a speech at the official opening of the $9 million addition to the present facilities, the health minister assured Quinte area residents that the nursing school residence would be built in the near future.

In January 1968 the hospital board of governors announced approval of plans to construct the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing. Then in January of this year the provincial government vetoed the decision in its austerity program.

The nursing school, which was slated to be in full operation by 1970 would have an objective of 135 nurses in its training program.

Health Minister Dymond said yesterday, "You'll have to make do for a while — we just haven't got the money.

"The federal government pulled the rug from under our feet and we feel the government has been in your pockets enough — at least for a little while."

The minister was referring to the federal government cutback on grants for hospital construction.

In his speech Mr. Dymond emphasized the cost of operating a hospital of the patient-to-bed ratio in the province of Ontario.

"We in Ontario have more beds per thousand population than anywhere else in North America," he claimed. "In 1958 we had only 30,000 beds and this will be increased to 48,000 beds this year."

But Mr. Dymond questioned whether this number of beds are really needed.

"Our per patient stay in hospital is two days longer than it is in B.C. It seems our people stay longer in the institution than they do in other areas," he said.

"The question has been asked as to whether we should include nursing homes under our hospital program. Well, it would cost about $100 million per year or $2.50 per month for a single man and $5 per month per family if we included the homes under the hospitalization program.

Health Minister Dymond commended Belleville and residents in the area on the development of hospital facilities. "I want to single out the auxiliary for its efforts in the community. No organization works as well as this group in the operation of the hospital.

"The $9 million of this addition is a large sum to be found but it is only the first cost. In about 2½ years the cost of operating the hospital will far outdistance this figure."

"In order to lower this cost the doctors, patients and relatives must become involved. A hospital is not a place to rest — someone else is waiting for the bed.

"You pay the insurance cost to stay as long as you need to — not as long as you want to," he told the audience at the opening ceremony.

Mr. Dymond said the new addition was only one of the evidences of growth and progress in the province. "We're the fastest growing jurisdiction on the North American continent," he said.

"Our hospitals are very costly institutions but they are essential facilities. One out of every seven people can expect to use the hospital every year."

In his opening remarks, hospital board chairman H. A. Hamilton told the audience in the crowded education hall that better facilities were long overdue. "We have constructed a $9 million addition and we're within one per cent of the estimated cost figure," he said.

He requested any donations of equipment and mentioned the deferment of the school of nursing. "Maybe you (Dr. Dymond) can do something about this for us," he said.

The invocation was given by Msgr. J. P sullivan.

Lee Grills, MP for Hastings commended board members for their long hours without pay. "They have to think of the comfort of patients and the restoration of good health, he said.

Chairman of the hospital services commisison, W. S. Martin, told the audience the board had a difficult problem fitting together the new addition with the older buildings. "There has been a great spirit of co-operation here," he said.

Hastings Reeve Donald Rodgers said the hospital was the one evident instance of regional government in the Quinte area. "We have all worked together on the construction of the addition," he said.

Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings, said he was hopeful the board would get a favorable answer from the government of the bidding for the second phase of construction.

Mayor Russell Scott of Belleville introduced Mr. Dymond and in his remarks noted that he and the speaker had attended Queen's University together. "We have a good hospital and an excellent staff" he told the audience. "Our people can be proud of the hospital with its new addition."

TV for Patients

Patients in the new wing of Belleville General Hospital will have all the comforts of home - - - including television. These miniature TV sets are included in a few of the rooms and will be used by patients on a rental basis.

Phase II Planning To Be Ready by April

Hospital administrator Phillip Rickard said this morning that preparations for phase two of the hospital extension are continuing and plans should be ready by April.

The new section would house administration offices, a medical records department, laundry and hospital library.

Announcement of the project, which would replace the 19th century south and east wing sections of the hospital was made in December of 1967. It was estimated the new wing would cost about $1,173,000.

Since that time the building of phase one of the hospital expansion has been held up and government austerity measures have deferred approval of money for a new school of nursing.

Construction of the new administration building was expected to start in 1968.

Mr. Rickard said today that renovations to existing wards have been included in phase one cost projections.

The administration offices will remain in their present location until approval for the second phase has been granted.

At that time the south and east wing sections would be demolished.

Mr. Rickard said the hospital would only be gaining a few extra beds through the addition of the phase one, seven storey addition which was opened yesterday.

Thousands See Hospital separate rooms for clean and soiled clothing. "Soiled supplies never come into contact with decontaminated items," Mr. Rickard said.

Communication is a major feature of the new section, and visitors saw the control stations and pocket pagers which will enable nurses, doctors and hospital staff to keep in close contact with administrative control centres at all times.

Inter-departmental messages will also get quick action. Pneumatic tubes have been provided to move messages throughout the building.

A new system of central dictating for doctors, as well as a unique charting system for patients will also be used.

The Friesen method of construction has been used in the seven storey addition. This concept makes it easier for the nurses and doctors to perform their duties.

During the tour visitors were moved through the building on one of three elevators included in the design. They were served coffee by members of the hospital staff and shown through the various departments in each section of the new wing.

On his visit to the addition Dr. Dymond noted the many donations which had helped in construction of the extension.

"You've really had a lot of help from the community — it's great to see such enthusiasm over a hospital," he told Mr. Rickard.

No Word On Housing

City officials are still awaiting word from the Ontario Housing Corporation regarding the successful tenderers for the construction of 96 additional family housing units and 45 senior citizens apartment units in the city.

The tender call for proposals closed Feb. 3 and are now under review by the OHC board of directors.

A letter received at city hall earlier this month from the OHC advised that two proposals were received for the housing construction project.

These were from Maurice H. Rollins of Belleville and Headway Corporation Ltd. of Toronto.

Export Opportunities

Markets for Canada's products are virtually limitless. It is just a matter of going out and finding them.

Often it is possible to miss the opportunities that lie close at hand — but not so in the case of the Ontario government's latest trade initiative. A Department of Trade and Development task force arrives in Philadelphia — Tuesday on a four-day mission to acquaint U.S. businessmen and industrialists with investment opportunities in the province, and with the services offered by the department to new industry.

Trade and Development Minister Stanley Randall will address a luncheon for Philadelphia businessmen on Wednesday. Visits such as these generally pay rich dividends, not only for the province as a whole but for communities such as our own for which new export opportunities may be afforded.

Heavy Schedule

Educationist Lloyd Dennis' near collapse while addressing a gathering in London, Ontario, last week is scarcely surprising in view of the heavy schedule he has been maintaining since the release of the Hall-Dennis report on education of which he is co-author.

In recent months Mr. Dennis has spoken on the report no fewer than 251 times. The previous week he spoke twice in Western Canada. And all this despite a warning by his doctors last October to slow down. In addition to his speaking tour, Mr. Dennis has been making weekend visits to Leeds and Grenville where he is director of education. Appointed recently to the Brockville-area board, he is scheduled to take up this position in July

The role of an educator today is an arduous one, but no task is so important that a man should jeopardize his health in its service. Mr. Dennis is only 44. The warning of his doctors last October must now be striking him more forcibly. At this time, Mr. Dennis' prime concern should be full restoration to health. We wish him well.

Teaching Aid

Modern electronic aids play a big role in education today. One now in use in Ottawa marks a first in North America.

A Bell Telephone news release tells how teachers can choose from 2000 films and videotapes provided by the school boards, then phone their request to a librarian. The latter selects the film which is then transmitted by cable back to the classroom. Students see the program on television monitors.

Four schools are linked with the library, making it possible to transmit programs on any one of twelve channels to each of the 130 classrooms involved in the experiment.

The system was developed by Northern Electric, and the Ottawa experiment marks the first time in North America that teachers have had on-demand access to audio visual aids from a remote library.

Youthful Courage

Quick thinking and self-reliance are excellent attributes. Young Robert Thompson of Tweed — he is just 11 — exhibited them when he saved a woman from drowning last August. The deed has won him the Heroic Service Award presented by the Canadian YMCA.

And in Toronto, a 19-year-old secretary, Susan O'Hara, did not flinch either when a youth attempted to grab her briefcase containing co-workers' cheques. Miss O'Hara punched the boy — he was about 14 — several times on the ear and he ran off down the street. The incident occurred last week.

In a society too often threatened by accidental death, through drownings, muggings or whatever, it is good to read of happy endings such as these.

Promoting Fitness

Young people need more incentive to improve their standard of physical fitness and it is satisfying to note government efforts to this end.

The youth and recreation branch of the Ontario Department of Education has established a new series of awards in the field of fitness and amateur sports.

The awards will apply to coaches, managers and organizers as well as outstanding participants. Provincial sports governing bodies will be asked to name candidates and nominations from the general public will also be considered.

The pace and responsibilities of modern living may militate against it, but physical fitness should be the goal of everyone. The government's plan will help to promote this ideal.

Lukewarm to Rockefeller Mission

Latin American Countries Concerned Over U.S. Inaction

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — It's an open secret here that the Latin American countries are becoming increasingly concerned over what they regard as scant attention so far from the Nixon administration.

The inflammatory issues of fishing rights and oil expropriation that have recently sparked friction with Peru's military dictatorship are samplings of much deeper conflicts built into the United States-Latin American relationship.

Galo Plaza, highly regarded secretary-general of the Organization of American States, is said to be using every opportunity to convey to the White House and state department the feeling of alarm building up over the administration's apparent luke-warm attitude.

Particularly disturbing is the fact that Nixon still has not appointed a new assistant state secretary for inter-American affairs—a post vacant for two months—although he said several weeks ago he thought he had found the right man for the job.

The upshot is that Latin American ambassadors are turning to the idea that Nixon either cannot find a qualified person for the assignment or that he has placed Latin American affairs near the bottom of his list of priorities.

Whatever the reason, Latin American policy remains in a sort of limbo and the problems pile up.

Most immediate of these is the deepening crisis with Peru which expropriated property of the American-owned International Petroleum Co. and, more recently, once again attacked U.S. tuna boats off the Peruvian coast.

The Peruvian navy's attack was the latest in a series of incidents arising from the claim by Peru and its coastal neighbors to exclusive control over adjacent waters extending 200 miles into the Pacific—a serious problem with broad international implications. Canada and the U.S., for instance, impose a 12-mile fishing limit.

These developments have raised the possibility of Washington imposing economic sanctions on Peru, including a possible freeze on aid, while in the background flocks of congressional hawks are calling for more stringent and immediate retaliation. Some profess to see the danger of closer ties with the Soviet Union by Latin American dictators.

But some others echo the appeal of Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield to both sides to let "reason prevail ove emotion" in handling both the fishing problem and that of adequate compensation to International Petroleum.

In this atmosphere, however, the Latin American ambassadors probably took little comfort from Nixon's announcement last week that New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will make a series of study missions to evaluate Latin American problems for the government.

The diplomats, in a private session recently to plan an April meeting of the Latin American Economic Co-ordination Commission, are reported to have made it known they are deeply disturbed by the Nixon administration's attitude so far toward their countries.

Still, they maintained the April meeting is not designed to build a common front against the U.S. Some are worried that U.S. investment may dry up because of the Peru expropriation.

Nevertheless, the meeting will come just a few days after threatened U.S. sanctions against Peru are scheduled to take effect. Unless the Nixon government somehow demonstrates a greater sensitivity toward Latin American problems before then, it seems likely the participants may in fact end up as anti-U.S. bloc, whether they plan it that way or not.

Letters to the Editor

Students Should Be Able To Share in Decisions

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

Perhaps one of the most unfortunate results of the recent debacle at Sir George William University is that the public will now tend to lump all forms of student protest under the general heading of "irresponsible behavior."

University students are members of a community and they must bear responsibility for what happens in that community. Although they contribute to support the university, they do not have proportional representation in its administration. Granted students' tuition and residence fees do not nearly cover the operating cost of a university; but does a taxpayer pay completely for the community services he uses? The difference is that the taxpayer is given a vote in the three levels of government that affect him. The student has no legitimate, effective means of expressing his opinion. Until steps are taken to include the student in the decision-making processes of his community, he must express his opinion by means of marches, sit-ins, and occupations. The current student occupation of the Department of Theology at the University of Windsor is a good example of how a demonstration can be both effective and non-violent. No thinking person could condone the wilful destruction of property.

We are constantly being reminded that the students of today are the citizens of tomorrow. Good citizens feel responsible to and for their society; they are aware of important issues and they make their opinions known. Is the purpose of a university to encourage the development of responsible citizens or to produce sheep?

A Teenager Speaks Up

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

Regarding the letter written in answer to Concerned Mother I have a few questions directed to the gentleman who wrote it.

(a) Do you have any children and if so how long has it been since they were teenagers? If they listened to the Metropolitan Opera on Saturday afternoon instead of the Top 50 Countdown it must have been many, many years ago.

(b) Have you visited any high schools after four o'clock lately? Apparently you haven't because if you had the sight you would see in all gyms would be many teenagers participating in a number of different athletic activities.

(c) As far as telling the public that the young people of today don't improve their minds, this is a complete myth. How many adults over a certain age can boast of a high school education and diploma.

(d) In this day of drugs and trips, aren't you afraid that some over - enthused youth might get high on the glue out of one of your time-consuming models?

(e) All the kids I know bring their friends home from school and if others don't whose fault is it, theirs or the parents?

In closing I would like to say that Concerned Mother was great and I hope that the people of Belleville will disregard the letter of disapproval and listen to what she and others like her have to say.

HELP WANTED

World Full of Problems

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

Take a look at the daily paper and what do you see? "Global Unrest" . . . Rome . . .Tokyo . . Montreal . . . Czechoslovakia, Vietnam, Nigeria, Ireland, . . "Soaring crime rates in the U.S.A." student rebellion, long-haired hippies roaming the streets aimlessly. A certain newspaper columnist hails pornographic literature as morally beneficial. Another columnist writes about "the aura of melancholy and doom that characterizes the countenances of people in the streets of our cities." And so it goes on. Then to top it all, there is a concern about population explosion and a nuclear war.

Some good has been achieved through scientific advancement but the basic troubles of mankind, sin, sickness, old age and death, have not been eliminated.

What is the solution? Is there any at all? Is there any cure for a morally and spiritually sick world?

No one dares to pretend to have the answer to all our problems, but there is hope for the individual.

Church history shows that there have been people in every age, individuals living in the midst of war in poverty and persecution who were not affected by the surrounding gloominess. They had the fullness of life and the inner joy of the soul which was not known to others. These people knew God. It was not so much a theological knowledge but rather the very presence of God in their lives.

Jean Marchand A Strong Influence in Trudeau Cabinet

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — The already-considerable influence of Jean Marchand in the Liberal government appears certain to increase as his new department develops.

The bill creating his department of regional economic expansion will give him extensive powers in economic affairs.

The 50-year-old cabinet minister will have wide latitude to say which geographical areas are eligible for special federal assistance.

Through loans, guarantees of loans and grants to private industry, he will be able to influence the economic life of these regions. Moreover, he can make development deals with provinces.

As the program develops through the years, he expects to spend considerably more than the government now is spending in these areas. His administrative powers to direct government action in his area of responsibility will be considerable.

It is acknowledged around the capital that Mr. Marchand, a longtime confidant of Prime Minister Trudeau, has a strong political voice in cabinet discussions.

Some say that he probably sees Mr. Trudeau more than any other cabinet minister. He is a frequent Trudeau guest at the prime minister's Ottawa residence.

Their close relationship from earlier days has obviously been carried over into government.

Combatting regional disparities is part of the whole Trudeau administration philosophy, tied in as it is with the preservation of national unity.

The theme has been that an essential part of the unifying process is the raising of more backward economic areas. It is up to Mr. Marchand's department to make good on the theory.

There is little doubt that Mr. Marchand is tough enough to push through with his mandate. He's part of a new breed of combative French-Canadian ministers who know how to survive in the federal political milieu.

Mr. Marchand is believed to have played a key role in many of the important decisions of the prime minister's political career. One of the most notable was his advocacy of the calling of last June's election.

There's no indication that the tandem arrangement is weakening. Rather, there are indications that the Marchand-Trudeau bond is in fact strengthening, with each playing his own role.

It will be interesting to note as time goes on whether Mr. Marchand's department rises in influence and prestige to challenge that of finance under Edgar Benson. Finance is traditionally the most powerful economic portfolio in government.

Carnival-time for Skaters

Gaily-clad skaters lead the way down the ice as judging parade begins at Zwick's Island costume skating party Saturday night. Chamber-of-Commerce sponsored event went on as planned, undeterred by fickle weather condition.

Huge Success

Hundreds Attend Skating Party

With an assist from the weather, Belleville went skating toward a winter-carnival goal Saturday night.

Scene of the show was Zwick's Island where the Chamber of Commerce staged a fancy-dress skating party — the first attempt at an organized winter event on the Bay of Quinte in years.

The success of the event, which drew hundreds of spectators and participants to the island park, had been bedevilled by poor weather conditions.

City parks crews kept the rinks scraped down and Saturday night the weather relented — temperatures dropped below freezing to harden the ice surface.

Adding a wintry touch, a cold wind swept the park area as skating got under way. However, spectators warmed themselves by the glare of a huge bonfire which signalled the opening of the event. In the bandshell, a brass band struck up bravely in the teeth of the draught to add a lively touch to the proceedings.

Youngsters and teenagers predominated among the costumed skaters — 2½ year-old Sandra Fardette won as a special prize as the youngest entrant.

Other winners were Sandra Burchill and Leona Johnson, most original couple; Maureen Walker, most original girl's costume; with consolation prizes going to Danny Manning, Sandra Fleming and Tammy Chartrand.

Farmers Get Aid On Records

The demand by lending agencies for more accurate farm records and also the fact that all farmers are required to file income tax reports, is increasing the trend for farm accounting in Hastings county.

Douglas Tipper, agricultural representative for Hastings county, reports that in recent years there has been a considerable number of farmers obtaining the services of accounting agencies to help them in keeping accurate records.

The main purposes of doing this is to file income tax returns, but Mr. Tipper cautions farmers to make certain they read the fine print on any contract produced by these agencies.

The Ontario Farm Account Book can be obtained from the Ontario department of agriculture and food at Stirling, and already this year 160 have been handed out. Last year 240 were distributed.

This service is provided by the extension branch of the Ontario department of agriculture and food in conjunction with the University of Guelph.

One of the most recent accomplishments in farm accounting is the new Can-Farm system being carried out on an experimental basis this year. This is a monthly mail-in system with an analysis done by computer.

A HOME OF YOUR OWN - by ROLLINS

FINISHING THE INTERIOR . . .

After Rollins had supplied the necessary materials, Charlie and Ethel were ready to go. They installed siding, insulation, dry wall and trim — finished the floors and painted the walls. Then they moved outside to do the landscaping . . . a cinch of a way to save money on a Self Help Home.

While working on their home, Charlie and Ethel met their neighbours Doug and Betty and their little girl Susan. They quickly found them to be real friends.

HELP FROM THE NEIGHBOURS . . .

The new neighbours pitched right in and helped Charlie and Ethel with their project. Doug and Betty had landscaped their own property and were a tremendous help in planting the right thing in the right place. It sure was nice to have a yard and Ethel was determined it would be nothing short of beautiful.

THIS IS LIVING . . .

Our own home, good neighbours, a beautiful yard — all the things that make living a pleasant experience. As they sat down to supper, Charlie thought, "More people like us should look into Rollins' Self Help Plan. It's a great feeling to have a home of your own and . . . Rollins makes it so easy!

Ameliasburg Couple Wed for 50 Years

AMELIASBURG — A well-known district couple celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary during the weekend playing host to many friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cook, Belleville RR 7, received the guests at an "Open House" honoring them both on Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

The sunny warm weather on Saturday was identical to the day they were married one half century ago in the village of Roblin north of Napanee.

The wedding ceremony took place in Roblin Methodist Church with Rev. Rufus Garrat conducting the service, assisted by Rev. E. Wilson.

The "bride," Lillie Bradshaw, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bradshaw who resided at Roslin was attended by her friend Miss Nellie Rikley as bridesmaid.

The "groom" Archie Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cook, (deceased) of Forest Mills, north of Napanee was attended by his brother, John Cook.

After the ceremony, the couple belonged to the United the train to Belleville and points west to spend their honeymoon. They lived in Oshawa for 10 years before making their permanent home in Prince Edward County. The couple belong to the United Church at Massassaga and now the Christian Missionary Church at Belleville. They sang in both church choirs; also took part in many other church activities.

Two children resulted from the union — a daughter Mrs. Ronald (Hessie) Giles of Ameliasburg and a son William G. Cook, 314 Bleecker Avenue in Belleville.

Visitors who travelled to the open house reception to offer congratulations along with their best wishes for continued good health and happiness numbered 220. All signed the guest book the Cooks are keeping to remind them of the eventful occasion.

Mr. Cook was a member of the staff of Walker Hardware in Belleville for 25 years previous to his retirement period.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cook cut the beautiful anniversary cake at the "Open House" reception held at their home on the Massassaga Rd., on Saturday and Sunday afternoons to mark the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Thoughtfulness May Be the Answer: Doris Advises Teen-age Stepdaughter

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am 16 and have a lovely mother but it is my stepfather who gets me down. Here are the reasons.

(1) He finds fault in everything.

(2) He keeps an eye on others all the time, to see what they are doing.

(3) He can never mind his own business. When Mom says anything to me he is always saying "What?" when he knows darn well she is talking to me.

(4) You can't start a conversation with him. He just flares up.

I would like you to please say what you think about this. — Fed Up.

Dear Fed Up: Believe it or not, being a stepfather isn't easy either. There are times when he actually feels like the interloper which you see him as.

Doris Clark

Has it ever occurred to you that Mom has a right to her companion — someone her own age to talk to and do things with, when you go off and leave her?

This new person thinks he has to exert fatherly authority over you and all he gets is resentment. Probably has plenty on his mind — finances? Difficulties on the job? Your mother's health?

For one day, try seeing his side of things. Do one thoughtful thing for him and see if you can change the atmosphere a bit.

• • •

Confidential to Rose of Sharon: You are right. Mom need not go near the kitchen. Make your party a cooperative affair, with one girl bringing sandwiches, another cookies, another a jelly dessert — and so on. Then there are decorations on the table — featuring green for St. Patrick, of course.

My leaflet has four good Irish games to play, several sandwich filling ideas, a cookie recipe, a jelly recipe and some general thoughts on hostessing. Top O' the Mornin' to You!

Dear Doris: What is snow blindness? I have consulted several encyclopedias but it is not listed. What causes it? — Grateful For Help.

Dear Grateful: Have you ever made the mistake of looking directly at the sun for a second or so? Then you look away and all you can see is a glare?

The same thing happens when a person is out on a bright snowy day. If the expanse is large, the sunlight reflected by the snow is positively dazzling. Can cause a person to "see red" for several days.

The Eskimos have learned to use bone sun shields that fit in front of the eyes like goggles. The wearer can see through a thin slit, but the glare is shut out.

Picture Fruit Salad-highlight for Any Meal

By MARY MOORE

One cook inspires another and we all profit by the experiences and travels of our friends.

I am the friend who is going to lift your sights to new heights in fruit salad composition. If ever there is a time of year when fruit in our meals needs a lift it is right now.

We were flying over a pure white Saskatchewan when the steward politely placed a fruit salad on my lap table. I glanced up and told him that it was plenty for my whole dinner. He twinkled. He knew perfectly well I could not resist any part of the dinner Air Canada is famous for providing.

After making mental notes of all of the fruits, I tasted a piece of nut-coated banana and fruit by fruit I cleaned up

PICTURE FRUIT SALAD
(serves 4)

pale lettuce leaves
1 large red apple
2 large oranges
2 large ripe bananas
4 canned pineapple rings
4 canned peach halves
12 steamed prunes
4 maraschino cherries
3-oz. white cream cheese
marzipan (optional — see below)
mayonnaise
about ½ cup finely chopped walnuts

First set out four of your prettiest tea plates and nearly cover them with choice pale lettuce leaves, lying fairly flat to be a background for the bright fruits. Next step is to open the cans of pineapple and peaches and drain four of each through a sieve. Pit and stuff the steamed prunes with white cream cheese or marzipan (store variety or, preferably, homemade). Space three near outer edge of salad plate. Cut two bananas crosswise into six pieces each, dip in a small bowlful of mayonnaise to coat and then roll in crushed or chopped nuts. Space them evenly between the prunes. At centre place one pineapple ring on each plate, top it with a peach half, hollow side up. Make one-inch balls of white cream cheese and roll these in chopped walnuts and fill each peach hollow with one. Perch a maraschino cherry firmly on top of each cheese ball. Wash, quarter and core the red apple and cut into 24 thin crescents with skin on. Place wedge edge down on either side of the prunes like wings. With sharp knife pare oranges right through to juicy pulp; cut into six slices each, cut slices in half moons, remove centre piths and tuck like wings on either side of the banana pieces.

Now you have your picture salad. You do not require any salad dressing with this — the mayonnaise on the bananas and the cheese balls give it sufficient zip.

When I served this to my family we had main-course Mulligatawny (see Tuesday) a separate course of breaded eggplant fingers and a beautiful fruit salad, a la Air Canada, with old Canadian Cheddar cheese and melba toast.

NOTE: If you want my recipe for homemade marzipan write, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ten cents.

UCW MEETINGS

WALLBRIDGE UCW

The Wallbridge UCW met on Wednesday, Feb. 5 in the church hall, with a potluck dinner served at noon, followed by the regular meeting in the afternoon.

The president, Mrs. Mary Clapp opened the meeting with a reading.

Mrs. Clapp was in charge of the worship service, assisted by Eunice Gaudaur and Peggy Evans who dealt with the topic based on "Duty".

Ann Landers

Former Student Lists Reasons for Complaint

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a few suggestions for the guys who complained about the shortage of females at Michigan Technological University, otherwise known as "Da Tech."

ANN LANDERS

I went there so I happen to know a little something about "the problem."

First: If you guys would wash your clothes once in a while it might help. You fellows who complain the loudest about "no dames up here" are the ones who wear the same T-shirts and jeans for a whole semester. I cannot promise instant results, boy, but I'm sure if you charming gentlemen were a shade neater the girls would be a whole lot friendlier.

Second: If you guys would stop calling the coeds "Water Buffalo" in the school paper they might be easier to get along with.

Third: I suggest you lads check the surrounding territory if you don't see anything you like in Houghton. My graduation class in Finlander (a small town nearby) had 14 girls and three boys. Every girl in the class was better than average looking. They could cook, sew, type term papers and iron shirts. Two of the girls had fathers on the Houghton police force. (This can be one heck of an asset.)

I hope you print this letter, Ann. Those creeps up there need to be wised up. — AN EX LOCAL MAKI.

DEAR EX: Thanks for the clue-in. I hope somebody at Da Tech tacks this column to the bulletin board in the main hall. It could change a few lives.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our only daughter is married and has two adorable children. They live on the other side of the state. It's a good seven hour drive from here.

Bertie Joe married a nice young man who has a college diploma. My husband can't stand him. I've tried to find out why he dislikes Herbert so much but all he will say is "That fellow's northern accent gets on my nerves." I think our son-in-law talks right nice. I have no trouble understanding him, but my husband insists Herbert puts on that Yankee talk because he knows it rubs some Southerners the wrong way.

Bertie Joe and Herbert come to visit us twice a year and stay for two days. I can't tell you how I look forward to seeing our adorable grandchildren. This last trip was the worst. In less than an hour, my husband said something rotten to Herbert and Bertie Jo and I were tensed up all day long for fear the men would come to blows. They left an hour ago and my husband didn't even say good-by. He spent the last six hours sitting in his car listening to the radio.

Please, Ann, tell me what to do about this awful situation. — TROUBLE IN TENNESSEE.

DEAR TROUBLE: Take a bus or a train or a plane and go visit Bertie Jo and her family at their home. You should not allow your husband's pigheaded slobbishness to ruin what ought to be your happiest moments. And make no apologies when you leave.

Hellyer States Provinces Agree Only on NHA Technicalities

TORONTO (CP) — Transport Minister Paul Hellyer said Saturday he got "substantial agreement" from Canada's 10 provinces only on "technical amendments" to the National Housing Act in a closed meeting which discussed recommendations of a federal task force on housing.

Although he found "no unanimity" on recommendation for a slow-down on large public housing developments and a postponement of urban renewal projects, he indicated at a news conference that he still believes both are necessary.

Position papers released by Ontario and Quebec delegates after the meeting indicated Mr. Hellyer was told the federal government should not expand much into the housing field—a provincial jurisdiction—beyond the present role of providing most of the public funds.

Ontario's paper was brusque in warning Mr. Hellyer against any attempts to establish direct relationships with municipalities.

"Few actions could do more damage to the working out of a more rational federal system in Canada than the inevitable confusion and upsetting of priorities which would occur if our federal system were short-circuited," the paper said.

All provinces except British Columbia sent delegations led by the cabinet minister responsible for housing.

Mr. Hellyer told the news conference the meeting was called "in a hurry" because he wanted to get provincial reaction to the task force report before "making recommendations for legislation at this session."

Delegates passed no motions but he had sought a consensus on major recommendations in the housing report and would "soon" be making his own recommendations to the federal cabinet.

There had been "no unanimity" on a proposal for a slowdown on large public housing projects until a sociological study has been undertaken, and "one or two major dissents" from a proposal to postpone all but the most urgent urban renewal projects so that more money could be invested in housing.

The question of money "doesn't seem to be a big problem," Mr. Hellyer said. And there was "substantial agreement" on technical amendments to housing legislation that falls within the federal jurisdiction.

Proposed elimination of the federal 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials was "strictly a budget matter to be resolved by the minister responsible for the budget."

His differences with the provincial ministers were made evident in the hostile reaction from Stanley Randall, Ontario's representative, to Mr. Hellyer's description of what public housing projects should be stopped or slowed down.

Mr. Hellyer said sociological problems which accompany big public housing projects are so important they must be solved before more housing developments are built.

By "big" he meant high-rise units equipped with elevators and row housing of 150 units or more and without adequate open space or private yards.

Mr. Randall, Ontario minister of trade and development, told a news conference the question of size "is an area of disagreement."

"It depends on the city and its population density needs, as well as its land costs," he said. Ontario intends to continue with its public housing program which includes one 600-unit high-rise development in the Toronto borough of North York.

The province also wants the federal government to release several projects requiring financial assistance which are being held up in Ottawa.

Positions taken by Ontario in its paper:

—No direct federal-municipal relationship;

—No valid reason for a new federal department of urban affairs and housing;

—Federal participation in research, financial assistance to individuals through National Housing Act Mortgages, and financial assistance to provinces without duplicating everything the provinces do;

—Continuation of discussions to give priorities to task force recommendations on urban development.

The Ontario paper said many of the task force recommendations have already been "considered or actually carried out" in Ontario, and action "in alternative ways" is being taken on other proposals with which the province agrees.

"Ontario makes one plea to the federal government. Effective solutions to urban problems will be severely hindered if projects which have been initiated continue to be subject to the holdups and delays in obtaining federal approval and assistance that has been characterized the last few months. . . .

The Quebec brief was the only other paper made available to reporters.

It said it would be "sheer utopia" to promote a single approach to housing problems in all provinces or to problems that "vary with the social strata and economic regions."

Powell, Castle Popular

LONDON (Reuters) — A public opinion poll says right-wing politician Enoch Powell is the man most Britons admire in the world and left-wing government minister Barbara Castle outranks the Queen as the most popular woman among the British public.

Mrs. Castle, minister of employment, received more votes as the most admired woman than Powell did as the leading man, says a poll conducted for the Conservative Daily Telegraph and published in a copyright article today.

Powell, a Conservative member of Parliament who advocates large-scale repatriation of colored immigrants in Britain, was selected by 10 per cent of those interviewed.

He received twice as many votes as Prime Minister Wilson.

Dog Sniffs Marijuana In Luggage

DETROIT (AP) — A 19-year-old San Francisco girl was sniffed out and arrested on a charge of possessing marijuana Saturday after debarking from her flight at Detroit Metro Airport.

A German shepherd dog named Bomber was giving a demonstration of his talent for sniffing out narcotics for four police officers.

Then Carol Beacham came along and the dog began excitedly sniffing her green leather bag. One of the officers approached the girl, identified himself, and asked what was in the bag.

She said "clothing," and when asked if there was anything else, said four packages. The policeman asked if the packages contained marijuana.

Miss Beacham replied: "You mean grass? Yes."

She was arrested, arraigned and freed on $20,000 bond pending examination on the narcotics charge Feb. 26.

Alcan Will Build Mill At Arvida

MONTREAL (CP) — Aluminum Co. of Canada Ltd. announced Sunday plans to build a $14,300,000 aluminum rolling mill at Arvida, 110 miles north of Quebec City.

Paul Leman, executive vice-president, said the mill is to be in production in 1971 and will provide re-roll stock for the company's sheet mill at Kingston, Ont.

"Production from the new mill will obviate the need to continue importing from a U.S. affiliate which produces re-roll stock from Canadian ingot," he said.

Arvida production will be shipped to Kingston where it will be rolled into sheet and coiled products.

Trudeau Joins Ballet Dancers

MONTREAL (CP) — A weary group of dancers was taken slightly aback Saturday night when Prime Minister Trudeau, a plate of cold cuts in one hand, sauntered over and plunked himself down on the floor in their midst back stage at Place des Arts.

Mr. Trudeau had just watched a performance at Montreal's cultural centre by Les Grands Ballets Canadiens and had gone backstage to congratulate the dancers.

The prime minister casually walked over to the cast members and sat down on the floor.

Silence fell almost immediately among the group until the Mr. Trudeau said:

"Ah, it's a great life, isn't it? No work—Dance all day."

A chorus of groans and laughter greeted the remark and broke the momentary tension.

Three Major Items Facing Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons will deal with three of the major items of the session this week as it buckles down to a tight timetable set by the government.

The omnibus Criminal Code bill, already debated five days in the House, will be back Tuesday and government House leader Donald S. Macdonald is hoping it will be given fast second reading and sent on to the justice committee.

The government's drug prices legislation, which has been in the legislative stream for more than a year along with the Criminal Code bill, is listed for report-stage consideration the same day.

Wednesday and Thursday are set aside for the government reorganization bill, establishing five new or revamped departments.

Today, the House will deal with two minor bills, one on the National Library and the other on co-operative credit associations, before taking its first look at the hazardous products bill, already passed by the Senate.

The bill, under the wing of Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford, would give the government much broader powers to ban or regulate hazardous products, from glue to power lawnmowers.

Mr. Macdonald Thursday sketched a legislative list of some 45 items for Commons handling in 56 days available for bills between now and the end of June.

The way we see it, it's pretty difficult to assess the value of anything without knowing how much it costs.

Sagging Bruins Suffer 4th in Row

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Even Phil Esposito couldn't have helped Boston Bruins Sunday night.

The Bruins, playing without the suspended Esposito, suffered their fourth consecutive loss—a 9-0 trouncing by New York Rangers.

Esposito, the National Hockey League's leading scorer with 92 points, last week was suspended for two games for pushing and hitting referee Bob Sloan in a game earlier this month.

Boston was outplayed and outfought Sunday by the Rangers who stretched their unbeaten home streak to 11 games.

Esposito resumes playing Wednesday night when the Bruins meet Los Angeles Kings at Los Angeles and attempt to gain ground on first-place Montreal Canadiens in the Eastern Division. The Canadiens lead Boston by four points, but the Bruins have three games in hand.

In other games Sunday, Detroit Red Wings walloped Philadelphia Flyers 9-1, Minnesota North Stars clobbered Toronto Maple Leafs 7-2 and Los Angeles nipped Oakland Seals 4-3.

Saturday, Montreal downed Philadelphia 4-1, Chicago Black Hawks took Toronto 4-2, Pittsburgh Penguins edged Detroit 3-2 and St. Louis Blues defeated Los Angeles 3-1.

There were three major brawls as the Rangers appeared unimpressed by reputation as the toughest team in the league. Defenceman Don Awrey of Boston was involved in two of the fights and received 20 of the 60 minutes in penalties given in the game.

A standing-room crowd of 14,361 at Detroit saw Frank Mahovlich score his 38th and 39th goals of the season for the Red Wings.

Peter Stemkowski and recently-acquired Wayne Connelly also scored two goals each for the Red Wings while single goals went to Bruce MacGregor, Alex Delvecchio and Nick Libbett. Jean-Guy Gendron replied for Philadelphia.

Three goals by Danny Grant highlighted Minnesota's triumph before 14,378 North Star fans.

Ray Cullen scored two goals for Minnesota and Jean-Paul Parise and Danny Lawson added one each. George Armstrong and Dave Keon connected for Toronto.

The win pulled Minnesota into a fourth-place tie with Philadelphia in the Western Division. Toronto is last in the Eastern Division, one point behind Chicago and five back of New York.

Right winger Ron Ellis of Toronto suffered a pulled chest muscle in the second period and will be lost to the team for an undetermined period.

A goal by Ted Irvine at 7:26 of the final period gave Los Angeles its victory, spoiling the evening for 5,485 at Oakland.

Eddie Joyal, Dale Rolfe and Bill Flett scored the other goals for Los Angeles, which snapped a five-game losing streak. Ted Hampson scored twice for Oakland and Carol Vadnais once.

The goal by Vadnais was his 14th and made him the NHL's top goal-scoring defenceman.

Saturday, before 17,304 at Montreal, the Canadiens spotted Philadelphia a 1-0 lead by Andre Lacroix who scored after 30 seconds of the first period.

Then the Canadiens roared back with four goals, two by John Ferguson and one each by Ted Harris and Yvan Cournoyer.

Speer scored at 5:31 of the final period with Garry Unger of Detroit in the penalty box.

Other Pittsburgh goals went to Paul Andrea and Keith McCreary while MacGregor and Gordie Howe replied for Detroit.

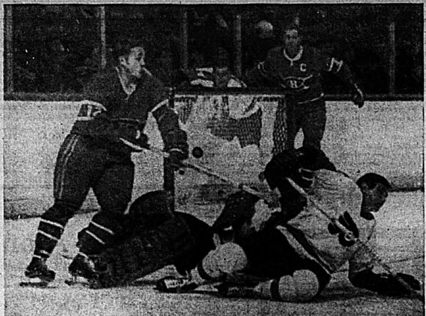
Howie Menard opened the scoring before 11,584 at Los Angeles Sunday, but St. Louis rallied for three consecutive goals.

Jim Roberts, Gary Sabourin and Red Berenson scored for the Blues, who lead runner-up Oakland by 23 points in the Western Division.



No Help Needed

Yvan Cournoyer (12) of Montreal Canadiens tries to deflect this shot from the point by Ted Harris' as Philadelphia Flyers' goalie Bernie Parent and defenceman Brit Selby try to block the shot. The shot did go in and Montreal went on to win 4-1 in the Saturday night National Hockey League game

Hornets Heavy Favorites...

But Somebody Forgot to Tell Oaks

Pennant-winning Galt Hornets are discovering that their impressive record during the regular season won't win them games in the playoffs.

The Hornets lost 3-1 to Oakville Oaks Sunday in the semi-finals of the Ontario Hockey Association senior series.

The defeat, before 1,780 fans at Oakville, came after the Hornets had won the opening game of the best-of-seven series 4-3 at Galt on Saturday. Oakville finished the season in fourth place, 22 points behind the Hornets.

The two teams return to Galt Saturday for the third game.

In other weekend playoff action, Kingston Aces trounced Orillia Terriers 10-4 to tie their best-of-seven quarter-final series 1-1, and Barrie Flyers took a 2-0 lead in a similar series with Collingwood by beating the Kings 4-1.

The Terriers will be at home to the Aces in the third game of their series Tuesday night, while Collingwood travels to Barrie Wednesday to resume their series.

At Galt Saturday, playing before 1,500 hometown fons, Bill Hway scored the winning goal at 11:51 of the third period.

In Saturday's game at Oakville, Marcel Labelle, Charlie Cipolla and Bob Bishop each notched a goal for the Oaks. Galt's goal came from Don Snider.

Moe Galand, Gary Milroy, Don Fuller and George Ford each scored once for the Terriers who beat Kingston 6-5 in the first game.

'Yaz' Hints He'll Break Ice By Wednesday

The 1969 baseball season apparently will be played despite the refusal of many major league players to sign contracts or report to spring training.

And there were some signs during the weekend that the dispute between players and owners over pension negotiation may end soon.

Saturday, Joe Cronin, American League president, said that AL play will begin, on schedule, April 7, "no matter what."

Sunday night, new commissioner Bowie Kuhn cut short his Florida visit and returned to New York for today's scheduled pension negotiations, saying he believes a settlement can be reached this week.

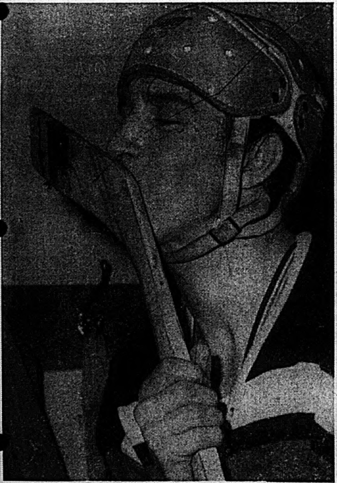
Carl Yastrzemski, Boston's three-time AL batting champion, hinted Sunday he might sign a Red Sox contract and be on hand Wednesday for the club's first full scale workout at Winter Haven, Fla.

Shortstop Luis Aparicio, who signed his 1969 pact last fall, reported to Chicago White Sox, Sarasota, Fla., training base and said he'd be in uniform for today's drill.

New York Yankees reported that 37 of the 43 players on their spring roster either have signed contracts or agreed to terms.

The players' negotiators said they would attend the meeting with Frank Brown, regional director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, anyway.



Some Love Affair!

Trenton Golden Hawk centreman Gary Lisle, 18, had good reason to plant a kiss on his hockey stick Saturday night. It had just delivered four goals for him, including the overtime winner, in Trenton's 5-4 sudden-death win over Cobourg Cougars for an Eastern Ontario Junior B playoff berth. (Story on Page 11.)

THE CAR BUYER'S PROBLEMS

Jim Patterson

WAITING FOR SPRING TO BUY YOUR NEW CAR?

Well, don't.

Not if you're expecting to get a better buy, or save on depreciation, or get more for your used car.

Why is Winter a buyer's market? Because there are traditionally fewer buyers and the market is hungry for new business. It's the law of the market.

Dealer's stocks of new cars mount in the Winter along with salesmen's frustrations. Car storage space becomes scarcer and the demand for used cars remains high. Finally, new car depreciation usually remain the same at the end of the year regardless of when you bought.

Heavy dealer stocks must be financed at high interest rates these days. Fretful salesmen and managers are not immune from the pressure to reach monthly quotas by offering more attractive net prices. And Winter has a way of bringing out the faults of buyer's present used cars, influencing them to trade up. The result is a strong demand for your used car.

This supply and demand logic has operated since the beginning of all commerce and will surely go on as long as we humans are affected by cold weather and habit and an all too human Winter lethargy.

If you're going to be a Winter buyer, take the precaution of buying from a dealer who believes in keeping your business through good service. That way, you'll not only get a bargain, but long term satisfaction as well.

Emms Blames Spotty Goaltending for Flyers' Tailspin

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers, last year's Memorial Cup champions, are in a tailspin and Hap Emms knows why.

Emms, the Flyers' general-manager, blames poor goaltending on the fact his team has been able to win only two of their last eight games in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

One of those defeats came Sunday night, an 8-3 lacing at the hands of Toronto Marlboros at Maple Leaf Gardens.

"We just don't have a goaltender who can stop a medicine ball," said Hap after the game. "We were lucky last year. We had (Phil) Myre. Without him we'd have been nowhere."

Farquhar was the victim Sunday of the Marlies who fired 41 shots at him, compared to the 23 shots Flyers had on the Toronto net.

The defeat left the Flyers in fifth place, four points behind fourth-place Hamilton, and five ahead of the Marlboros.

In other Sunday games, Montreal Junior Canadiens retained first place with a 9-2 shellacking of Oshawa Generals, St. Catharines Black Hawks crushed Kitchener Rangers 9-1 and Ottawa 67s continued their battle for a playoff spot with an 8-3 rout of Hamilton Red Wings.

Oshawa trimmed the 67s 8-2 in a game Saturday.

At Toronto, the Marlboros scored five unanswered goals in the second period, Tom Johnston, Gord Davies and Bill Harris each scoring twice in the game played before 6,732 fans.

For Niagara Falls, the marksmen were Jim Notman, Don Tannahill and Dan Makey.

At Montreal, 18,839 fans saw Rejean Houle spark the Habs with four goals, three in the first period. Marc Tardiff added two goals for the Junior Canadiens and Guy Charron, Richard Lemieux and Robert Lalonde completed the rout with a goal each.

At St. Catharines, rookie Marcel Dionne scored two goals and assisted on four others to lead the rout against Kitchener. Brian McKenzie, with two goals, Dennis Giannini, Rick Dudley, Al McDonough, Doug Rombough and Dick Redmond scored for the Black Hawks.

Bob Whitlock got Kitchener's goal.

At Oshawa, the Generals caught fire before 2,465 fans to crush the 67s on the three-goal performance of Pete Vipond.

Once Barred from Rinks . . .

'Take Me Along:' Curling Wives' Theme

HAMILTON (CP) — Women, barred from a number of curling clubs across the country 15 years ago, now are travelling with their rock-tossing husbands and holding pyjama parties.

And while the husbands fretted about the first round of the Canadian senior curling championships today, their wives toured the city by chartered bus and were entertained at a noon luncheon.

It's all part of the "in" thing in curling that started about 20 years ago when the wives moved into the last male stronghold.

"I guess I was the first woman who was ever allowed inside one Ontario curling club and that was only 14 years ago," says Mrs. Alfie Phillips Sr. of Toronto.

"It happened in 1956 when Alf won the Ontario championship that put him in the Brier. The Ontario playoffs were in Orillia and a couple of other gals went up to see the final games.

"A man met us at the door and asked us what we wanted. I told him I came to see my husband play. There was quite an uproar because they had never allowed a female inside the rink before.

"Anyway, they finally let me in, but I was told I'd have to stand by the window and that I couldn't buy a drink from the bar."

All that has been changed and now a number of wives have accompanied their husbands here for the 11-rink round-robin tournament which is closed to men under 55 years.

Phillips, who lost in his bid to win the Canadian championship in 1956, is the Ontario senior champion and rated among the four favorites to win the competition at Hamilton Thistle Club.

The other favorites are skipped by Jim Murphy of Saint John, who won the title in 1967 for New Brunswick, Gordon Moore of Victoria, and Gord Walker of Edmonton.

The sentimental favorite will be skipped by Dr. Wendell MacDonald of Charlottetown, who has represented Prince Edward Island every year since the seniors playoff was inaugurated in 1965.

The other rinks are skipped by John McCarthy of St. John's, Nfld., Merrill Rawding of Liverpool, N.S., Ron Wright of Hudson, Que., Stan Brooker of Noranda, representing Northern Ontario, Al Fahrner of Charleswood, Man., and Fred Cochrane of Lumsden, Sask.

Prince Edward Island drew the bye.

Western Women's Rinks Pick of National 'Spiel

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP) — The ladies set out today to decide the best curling rink of their kind in the country.

The first round of the 10-rink, round-robin Canadian women's curling championship got under way at 2:30 p.m. EST after official opening ceremonies at the Fort William Curling and Athletic Club.

Conversation among curling enthusiasts is heavy on the teams from Saskatchewan and Manitoba, mainly because of their records.

Pat Brunsdon of Winnipeg is carrying Manitoba's hopes, and while she never made a national appearance, the other members of her rink played for Betty Duguid when she finished the 1967 championship with an unblemished record.

The other Manitoba team members include lead Dot Rose, second Laurie Bradawaski and third Joan Ingram.

But the Manitoba foursome is going to get some stiff competition from Joyce McKee of Saskatoon, skip of the Saskatchewan entry.

Miss McKee doesn't have the experienced team-mates that Mrs. Brunsdon boasts, but the Saskatchewan skip is a big threat herself.

She now has her fifth provincial championship and skipped the winning rink in the 1961 final, the first year it was labelled a truly Canadian championship.

The other Saskatchewan rink personnel are lead Jen Falk, second Lee Morrison and third Vera Pezer. All are playing in their first championship.

In first-round action, Mae Shaw of Kimberley, B.C., met Alberta's Simonne Flynn of Medicine Hat; Mary Naddof of North Sydney, N.S. met Saskatchewan; Manitoba played June Shaw of Kenora, Ont.; Prince Edward Island's Mary Toole of Charlottetown met Phyllis Chapman of Moncton, N.B., and Violet Pike of Grand Falls, Nfld., played Keiba MaciKnnie of Lachute, Que.

The second round was to start at 8 p.m.

Two draws are on tap for Tuesday, three Wednesday and two Thursday, the final day of competition unless there's a playoff.

Female Breaks Into Winner's Circle

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va. (AP) — Barbara Jo Rubin rode favored Cohesian to victory in the feature at Charles Town race track Saturday night to become the first female to win a regular pari-mutuel flat race in the United States.

A record Charles Town night crowd of 9,359 cheered the 19-year-old brunette to victory as she urged Cohesian along the rail to beat Reely Beeg by a neck in the 6½ furlong test. She was timed in 1:20 1-5. Kathy Kiely was third.

Miss Rubin, who failed in her bid to ride at Florida's Tropical Park because of a jockey's boycott, was taken off Friary Court in the 10th race and replaced by Nick Shuk. No reason was given for the move.

Follows Up at Daytona

Yarbrough Wins in Rain That Kills Fellow Driver

DAYTONA BEACH, Florida (AP) — Lee Roy Yarbrough won the Permatex 300 here Saturday and crowned the achievement Sunday with a record-breaking victory in the Daytona 500 by a length of his 1966 Ford Talladega.

In the Daytona, Yarbrough put on a sudden burst of speed and charged past Charlie Glotzbach to win a close victory on a debris-strewn track.

Making his move with 100 miles to go, Yarbrough worked his way up to second and gradually closed ground on Glotzbach until, with three laps to go, only three seconds separated them.

On the backstretch heading for home, Yarbrough shot past Glotzbach's Dodge Charger, then held him off through the final turn in a stirring finish.

The 33-year-old Columbia, S.C., veteran, turned in an average speed of 157.950 miles per hour—the fastest 500-mile race ever run.

"It was the dream of a lifetime," Yarbrough exulted. "After winning yesterday in the Permatex 300, it was almost too much."

The speed was remarkable in view of the fact that debris spewed on the track by blown engines brought yellow caution flags out five times, causing dramatic drops in the pace.

Donnie Allison, who paced 87 of the 200 laps, finished third and A. J. Foyt fourth, giving Ford three of the first four places in its rivalry with Dodge.

The crowd, estimated at 101,000, was the largest in the history of the stock car classic.

Yarbrough's victory brought him approximately $50,000 out of a total purse of $208,000.

Yarbrough Saturday won $40,000 for his Permatex 300 victory after a stirring duel with Dewayne (Tiny) Lund of Cross, S.C., in a 1966 Dodge.

Torres Cops Flyweight Crown

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico, without a world boxing champion since the 1967 retirement of featherweight Vicentre Saldivar, rejoiced today in the victory of Efren (Alacran) Torres over world flyweight champion Chartchai Chionoi of Thailand.

Torres, in his second shot at the title, beat the Thai in his fifth defence of the crown on a technical knockout declared after the eighth-round bell Sunday night in the outdoor El Toreo bullring.

Canadian Skiers Near Breakthrough

GARIBALDI, B.C. (CP) — Several Canadian skiers are "on the verge" of breaking into the top 10 in World cup standings, a nine-year veteran of Canada's national ski team said Sunday after winning the men's combined title at the Canadian senior alpine ski championships.

Peter Duncan, 24, of Mont Tremblant, Que., won the slalom Sunday, skiing the twin 3,500-foot courses on Whistler Mountain in times of 58.46 and 58.41 seconds.

Friday, he placed second in the 16,000-foot downhill at 2:54.62, behind Keith Shepherd of Waskesiu, Sask., who won the exhausting race in 2:52.58. Combined standings were determined by results in the downhill and slalom only. Third in the downhill was Dan Irwin of Fort William, Ont., at 2:55.06.

Duncan said he "wouldn't be surprised" if Canadians started to place high in World Cup races by the end of the year or the beginning of 1970. He didn't name anyone but Friday, national team coach Al Raine said several junior skiers on the team have great potential.

Shepherd's seventh place and Rod Hebron's fifth at Megeve, France, "where they have the fastest, hairiest downhill" was the best Canadian performance ever in a World Cup race, Raine said.

Graham Hess of Toronto, Mike Culver of Montreal and Steve Becker of Banff, Alta., all members of the junior national team, "represent a great hope for Canada," he said.

Duncan said "There's a lot of chance involved but you definitely make your own breaks."

Shepherd was close behind Duncan in combined standings while Irwin was third. Judi Leinweber, 19, of Kimberley, B.C., a member of the national team only two years, won the women's combined title.

Second was a relative unknown, Laurie Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., a member of the national junior team only since Christmas. Sue Graves of Ottawa took third in the combined standings.

Bert Irwin finished second in the demanding men's slalom, in which the two runs dropped 740 feet and had 62 and 61 gates. His times were 59.91 and 58.34. Third in 59.62 and 59.22 was Shepherd.

Miss Leinweber skied to victory in the women's slalom in 1:04.5 and 1:03.68 while Stephanie Townsend of Banff, Alta., was runner-up with times of 1:04.4 and 1:04.7. Third in 1:06.81 and 1:03.46 was Diane Culver of Montreal.

Duncan was again winner in Saturday's tough 6,000 foot giant slalom in a total time for two runs of 2:44.63 as 33 of 63 starters were disqualified or failed to finish the steep, hard-packed course.

Cirry Chapman of Ottawa placed second in 2:45.28 and Bert Irwin, timed at 2:45.79, was third.

The single run in the women's giant slalom saw Miss Graves win in 1:55.09. Second was Miss Townsend at 1:58.63 and Miss Leinweber took third at 1:59.25.

Miss Leinweber also took third in the downhill in 2:44.47. Miss Kreiner won that event with a time of 2:40.9 and Miss Graves was second in 2:43.23.

Sparse Morrison Lineup Drops Finale

STAFF — A plucky, seven-man Belleville Morrisons' Junior "B" hockey team played even with the powerful Peterborough Don Byes for two periods Saturday night in Peterborough before tiring, and succumbing to the Don Byes by a score of 8-2.

Peterborough's win, coupled with Kingston's 4-3 home ice win over the Oshawa Crushmen, gave the Don Byes first place in the six team Eastern Ontario Junior "B" Hockey League final standings, with 44 points, two more than the second place Crushmen.

John McConnell, the Morrisons' leading scorer, gave Belleville leads of 1-0 and 2-1 with a pair of goals, the first at 1:50 of the opening period, and the second at 10:22 of the middle stanza.

Terry Cavanagh tied the score at 1-1 with a first period goal, and Joe Watters made it 2-2 with an unassisted goal at 17:05 of the middle period, just three seconds after Jerry Candler of Belleville and Peter Sullivan of Peterborough received five minute majors for fighting.

The short-handed Morrisons' crew simply ran out of gas in the final period, and Peterborough knocked in six goals to run away with the game and clinch first place, and the right to meet Trenton in the first round of the playoffs.

The Morrisons wound up the season statistically in the red, with a record of four wins, 24 losses and two ties in the league's 30 game schedule.

Team manager Jim Matthews said "We had a losing season and took a financial beating, but we've got a good young nucleus and we expect to be back again next year."

Trenton Overtime Win Assures Jr. Playoff Berth

STAFF — Centre Garry Lisle of the Trenton Golden Hawks' Junior "B" hockey team was nervous before Saturday's playoff game with the Cobourg Cougars to decide the fourth and final playoff spot in the six team Eastern Ontario Junior "B" Hockey League.

Afterwards Lisle was elated. The reason? Garry played his best game of the year, scoring four goals, including the winner in overtime, as Trenton nipped Cobourg 5-4 and earned the right to meet the league champion Peterborough Don Byes in the first round of the league playoffs.

Lisle scored the winning goal at 2:04 of the ten minute overtime period, when he took a pass from Dan Goheen, broke down the left side, fired a hard drive at Cobourg netminder Michael J. Caine, picked up his own rebound and banged the puck in the net.

Lisle scored the first of his goals at 14:50 of the opening period to nullify a goal by Cobourg defenceman Doug Campbell, and tie the score at 1-1.

A pair of second period goals by Lisle and a singleton by DeMille, gave Trenton a 4-2 lead over Cobourg, who got a second period goal from Mike Kelly.

Third period goals by Paul Gutteridge and Larry Thompson tied the count at 4-4, and sent the game into overtime where Lisle broke it up and sent the partisan fans home happy.

Trenton's semi-final series with Peterborough starts with an 8 p.m. game in Peterborough Wednesday, and resumes Saturday in Peterborough with a 2.15 p.m. game.

Same Old Story Under 'AA' Hoops

STAFF — The close of the Boys' Class "AA" high school basketball season is rapidly approaching, and the league standings show a familiar dominance by Belleville Collegiate.

With one game remaining in their schedule, the Collegians have clinched one divisional championship, lead a second division and hold down second spot, one game behind the leader in the third circuit.

Last Friday night the BCI seniors breezed past Napanee 91-44, and the win coupled with Trenton's 36-35 upset of Picton, clinched coach Wally Beevor's fourth consecutive Bay of Quinte senior championship.

The first place BCI midgets ran their winning streak to nine consecutive league games Friday night with a 75-23 trouncing of the Trenton club, and now must prepare to play second place Picton on the road in the final game of the season.

Other action saw the Trenton hoopsters win their fourth game of the year, this one by a 42-31 score over the Picton juniors, while the Picton midgets moved into a tie for second place with a 38-32 win over Trenton.

BCI seniors used a press in the second quarter to force frequent Napanee turnovers and spark a 30 point outburst as the Collegians had three 20 point scorers for the first time this season.

Ken Richardson was high with 22 points, while guards Brian Harder and Ted Shaw threw in 21 points apiece and forward Bob Wright rebounded well and netted 14 points.

Jim Stewart's 15 point effort, 11 points by Henry Dornekamp and eight by Dave Cunningham accounted for the bulk of the Napanee scoring.

A potent fast break and a man-to-man defence enabled BCI juniors to overwhelm Napanee as Dave Wright and Mike Scarlett threw in 16 points each, Brent Gallupe added 15 and Michael LeBaron contributed ten points.

Big Lift for Apollo Club

Walts Hoist Way to Titles

HAMILTON (Special) — Once again, Belleville's weightlifting Walt brothers have proven family rivalry produces results.

Competing in the Ontario teenage weightlifting championships here Saturday, 19-year-old Bob won the 148-pound title with a total lift of 705 pounds, which also qualified Bob for the Canadian title in his class.

The three-lift total also brought Bob the contest's best lifter award for the second consecutive year.

Meanwhile, "baby" brother Art, 17, was carrying Apollo Barbell Club colors in the 181-pound category, hoisting 710 pounds in three lifts to grab that Ontario teenage crown.

Apollo members added second-place finishes in the 98-pound (L. Willis), 114-pound (R. Harris), and 148-pound (P. Barrett) classes, and one third-place finish (J. Stapley) in the 114-pound group, to make it a one-two-three finish for Belleville lifters in that category.

In all, 33 teenage lifters from all over the province competed in seven weight classes.

Kinsmen Shutout Eliminates Trenton

STAFF — Belleville minor hockey teams showed great promise of making a good showing in the OMHA playoffs and OMHA playdowns with a convincing pair of weekend wins.

Towers Food City novices started their playoffs on the right foot with a 6-0 win over Kingston in the first game of the best two out of three series, while the Belleville Kinsmen bantams eliminated Trenton in two straight games in the first round of the Ontario playdowns by scoring a 3-0 win to go with their earlier 7-6 overtime victory.

Randy Hutchinson and Andy Lupenette potted two goals each for the Food City crew, while Paul Hayman and Bobby Crawford fired single goals, and netminder Bruce Hamilton registered the shutout.

Bruce Clarke recorded the shutout and Danny Lupenette, Robbie Foster and Mark Coates notched single goals for the Kinsmen who will play Lindsay in the second round of the Ontario playdowns. The best two out of three series starts Tuesday in Lindsay with an 8.30 p.m. game, and resumes here Sunday at 4.30 p.m.

Lindsay earned the right to meet Belleville's defending Ontario champions by eliminating Cobourg in two straight games, by scores of 6-2 and 7-3.

Saturday the Food City novices played to a 3-3 draw with the Kingston Nationals in an exhibition game, and Sunday Smith Fuels peewees trounced the peewee house league West Side Flyers 15-3 in another exhibition game, as local minor hockey teams had a light weekend schedule.

John Jianopoulos, Peter Coates and Tony Meagher tallied single goals for the Food City crew Saturday, while nine players notched goals for the Smith Fuels squad Sunday.

Martin Thistle paced the Smith Fuels' attack with four goals and three assists, Steve Kirby notched a hat trick, Peter Crawford picked up two goals and three assists, and single goals went to Mike Crawford, Roger Chapman, Barry Marta, Ricky Culkin, Bruce Sutherland and Eric Powell.

Tweed Srs. Best at Net

STAFF — An undefeated team emerged in both the junior and senior divisions Wednesday to capture the two championships at the annual Girls' Class "A" Volleyball Tournament held this year at the OSD.

Tweed captured the senior title in the round-robin five team field with a perfect record of three wins and no losses, while Nicholson Catholic College won the junior crown with four wins, one over each of the other teams, and no losses.

The winners and runner-ups in each division will represent the Bay of Quinte district in the COSSA tournament which will be held at the OSD gym, Saturday March the first.

Host OSD won the runner-up spot in the senior division by defeating Madoc in a playoff game after both teams had finished with a record of two wins and a loss.

The Cloyne juniors, in only their first year of volleyball competition, were a close second to Nicholson with a record of three wins and a loss.

FOUND ANY TREASURE
LATELY ?

The most notorious treasure collector of them all, Captain Kidd, sailed from New York in pursuit of pirates and instead became one himself. He captured great riches but made the mistake of sailing back to New York where he was caught and hanged in 1701.

People are still looking for Captain Kidd's treasure. Find another type of treasure by selling the family's no longer used things with an Intelligencer Want Ad. It's as easy as dialing 962-9171 matey!

Big Valley in Trouble

Stanwyck Show Means 4:30 a.m. Daily Start

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jack Benny is stingy, Dean Martin is steadily stoned, and Barbara Stanwyck adores work. These legends seem a permanent part of the Hollywood landscape; like all legends, they aren't necessarily so.

Benny donates his talent and money to symphony orchestras and other causes. Dino himself admits he couldn't do all the things he does if he were permanently plastered.

And now, another legend is shot to pieces as Stanwyck confesses:

"There are some mornings when I feel like saying to hell with it and going back to sleep. Work—who needs it?"

Miss Stanwyck's feelings can be understood when she explains that for most weekday mornings from May to February for the past four years, she has been required to arise at 4:30 a.m., sometimes earlier if location scenes are required. Such are the conditions under which she has labored for the television series, The Big Valley.

All that may or may not be over. After four seasons, The Big Valley, Miss Stanwyck admits, is in trouble.

"We've had a rough year," she said. "We had terrific competition and the ratings haven't been what they should be. There's talk that, if we are renewed, the show will be moved to an earlier time period.

"I hope so. History has proved that westerns do better in earlier time periods. The only exception to that was Gunsmoke. Then, when Gunsmoke seemed at an end and it was cancelled, the public protest was so great that it was revived and moved to an early evening time. And now it's as strong as it ever was."

Miss Stanwyck is hoping that The Big Valley will enjoy the same kind of rejuvenation.

"I'd like to see the show go five years," she remarked. "That's a nice, respectable length for a television show—in fact, it's getting to be rather rare. Naturally I like to be associated with a winner. I've had my experience with being a loser in television."

She smiled ruefully, recalling the Barbara Stanwyck Show of the 1960-61 season. It produced the remarkable record of providing her with an Emmy and a cancellation in the first season.

If the network should renew The Big Valley, it will mean a return to the monastic life for Barbara Stanwyck. Her weekdays and nights are absorbed by the series. If she doesn't shoot late on Friday, as is often the case, she allows herself a splurge; watching movies at the home of Nancy Sinatra Sr.

Most of the weekend is taken with learning her lines for the following week—"I'm one of those idiots who has to learn the whole script before shooting starts; I can't do it in bits and pieces."

There is a major compensation for all this labor:

"They pay me damn well for what I do. That just about makes it all worth it. But there are some mornings when . . . ."

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

DESERONTO SCOUTS

DESERONTO — The Scout-Cub movement has taken on a new impetus in Deseronto lately, so much so that the Cub pack has been divided with 30 young boys in each pack. The Sea Scouts now have about 20 members.

A noteworthy feature of the quality of leadership is the fact that all three members of the Deseronto Police Department play a leading part. Constable Stanley Bass and Constable Carl Beattie are the Akelas of the two Cub groups. Police Chief David Saunders lends a hand with some of the work with the Sea Scouts. This is a proud record, with 100 per cent of a police department active in a movement which will keep boys busy and interested, and learning skills and values which will show them how to become law abiding citizens.

Leader of the Sea Scouts is Brian Massey and assisting him is Jack Hamilton, in addition to Police Chief Saunders. Assisting the Cub leaders are Douglas Law, Richard Carter, and "Bud" O'Connor.

The strong group committee is headed by C. A. Sergeant, G. P. Dickensen is secretary and Peter Morris is treasurer. Other members are James Gaylord, James Marlowe, Chief of Police Saunders, and Rev. William Hendry.

Thursday evening the 'Father and Son' banquet was held in the United Church, where these boys will now hold their meetings. There was a good attendance, with close to 100 enjoying the turkey dinner. Entertainment was provided by Charles Richmond of Roblin, a Queen's Scout of the Second Napanee Scout troop, who attended the First Arctic Scout Jamboree last summer, and had some interesting stories to tell as he showed his slides.

Donald Huff, district manager of the Picton Co-Op, Ed Powers and Reeve George Vincent of Hallowell township cut the ribbon marking the installation of the new fertilizer blender. The machine will allow the plant to offer farmers precise proportions of fertilizer according to crop requirements.

Plant Produces Blended Fertilizer

PICTON (Staff) — The Picton area Co-op now offers farmers prescription blended fertilizer with the installation of a new blender

Hallowell Reeve, George Vincent cut the ribbon on the new machine Friday. According to Garth McGill, manager of operation, "it will give farmers a custom blend of plant food to meet crop requirements."

Mr. McGill said that the blender allows them to manufacture any particular fertilizer right in the plant, dispensing with the bulk fillers which are used in bagged fertilizer.

This means that the farmer doesn't have to pay freight on the filler. "He is paying for only the nutrients he needs," he said.

The manager described it as a "local, flexible, and high speed service, tailored to meet the needs of the farmer."

Association Members Visit Mentally Retarded Centre

NAPANEE — Most of the members of the executive of the Lennox and Addington County Association for the Mentally Retarded visited Belleville last week, to examine the ARC Industries Centre, and to learn as much about its operation as they could. This county is much in need of such a centre by Sept., since it now seems that four of the present pupils of the Happy Day School will have reached 18 before school reopens for next year, and so will no longer be eligible to attend this school.

They found that the present quarters occupied by the ARC Industries Centre are far from adequate, but that the 12 trainees who are occupied there are so eager to be kept busy that many of them are at the door long before the Centre opens. Also, there is a waiting list of 26. The director of the Centre, and the chairman of the workshop committee were most helpful and explained that in spite of the limited space, much is accomplished, mainly because both they and the trainees can adapt themselves. By resourcefulness, the director overcomes difficulties and comes up with answers to problems which arise.

Orders for simple routine jobs are obtained from various manufacturers. The day before the Napanee group visited there, the trainees had been packaging washers for the Northern Electric Co., with 100 going into a plastic bag. One trainee who could count only to 10 had been taught to do this 10 times to make up the total. The company checks the packages, and so far all have ben accurate. Once a trainee learns a routine, he does not forget it.

In addition to being kept occupied, the trainee is paid a small wage, and so learns to handle his own money. Also, he learns what is expected of him as an employee. He must be punctual, for one thing, and must not waste time.

Trainees must look after their own transportation. Each brings a lunch, and these are pooled, with one person responsible for preparing the lunch and another for cleaning up. The workshop, or centre, is not self-supporting. Last year it took in $4,000 but cost nearly three times that amount to operate.

The rental for the present building is $75 per month, the Napanee group was told. However, there is hope of a new building before long, as the Lions Club is planning to build one. President of the Lennox and Addington County Association, Fritz Juliussen, said that he understood that the lot had already been purchased.

The Happy Day School is far too small, and should the county board build a suitable school to replace this one, the local association is hoping to be able to use the present school as an Adult Rehabilitation Centre, or workshop.

Brief Snow Helps Boost Car Crashes

Winter took a brief return swipe at the Quinte district Sunday — leaving only two inches of snow but thousands of dollars damage in traffic accidents.

The afternoon snowfall overlaid roads and highways with a slippery slushy layer, touching off a rash of automobile mishaps.

Provincial police estimated the total damage in the Belleville - Picton - Madoc area at $12,000.

Warm temperatures rule out the possibility of any further fallout in depth — at least for the next two days.

The duty forecaster at Canadian Forces Base Trenton today predicted intermittent drizzle ending early this morning as temperatures rose to a high of 35 degrees with a low of 30 degrees tonight.

Bertrand Requests Convention To Select UN Party Leader

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand called Sunday night for a leadership convention to choose a permanent leader of the ruling Union Nationale party.

Mr. Bertrand, chosen interim leader of the party after the death last Sept. 26 of Daniel Johnson, said the party has no choice but to hold a leadership convention if it is to remain democratic.

"Democracy is a state of mind," the premier said. "A party which wants to be democratic does not prefabricate a chief at a national council meeting."

Mr. Bertrand, 52, was speaking at a $50-a-plate fund-raising banquet. About 4,000 party supporters attended.

The proposed alternative to holding a leadership convention is to choose a permanent leader at a meeting of the party's national council, made up of the national assembly caucus and three representatives of each riding association.

The question of calling a leadership convention was to be discussed next month at a meeting of the council.

Mr. Bertrand said the Union Nationale's position has always been that Quebec is the "home of the French-Canadian nation, freely associated with the destiny of a bi-national Canada.

"This has never meant a Quebec outside Canada," he said.

But Quebec was still being misunderstood and its patience was wearing thin.

"Certainly, we have behind us 200 years of patience and we will have to have more. But make no mistake about it: The youth of Quebec has less and less and wants to see action.

"We had better be listened to, once and for all, and there must be understanding of 'what does Quebec want'?"

Quebec wanted a clear and precise constitution in which the division of powers and responsibilities was spelled out.

"We have no right to leave it to other governments, however well-intentioned they may be, to solve our special problems."

Your Car

Cars Are Much Same So Buy One You Like

By RAY STAPLEY

"What is the best make of car to buy?"

While this has got to be one of my most common enquiries, there are so many variables when it comes to selecting the car of your choice that each individual must work out the answer for himself, and believe me it's no easy task. So much depends on what we can afford, how much passenger and cargo space we require, the design we prefer, — Two or four door? Hard top or convertible? Specialty sports model, to mention only a few. Will it be used for city or highway driving, or perhaps both? Will it be the basic standard model or loaded with all the tempting options offered?

To begin with, I do not place too much emphasis on any one particular make of car. Whether we select a high or low priced Canadian-made or imported vehicle, compact or luxury liner, depends mainly on our own individual preference. With the car manufacturers competing so desperately among themselves for the lion's share of the market, and since the car we select will be made of much the same materials and assembled in about the same manner as any competitive make in the same price bracket, we can expect about the same manner as any competitive make in the same bracket, we can expect about the same quality and performance regardless of maker. Granted, the automobile industry makes its share of mistakes, but to consistently mass-produce an inferior product would surely prove disastrous.

However, for various reasons most of us are attracted to a certain make of car and since we can expect the same value regardless of who produces it, don't make the mistake of buying a machine that does not appeal to your individual taste and requirements. Should troubles develop shortly after you've taken delivery, they are less aggravating with a car you really enjoy.

Choice of colors can be important. It's a well known fact that certain colors can prove depressing to some people. Remember you may be keeping the car for several years, so be sure to choose acceptable color combinations.

Some people, especially the self-employed in the higher income bracket, find that leasing, the cost of which can frequently be treated as 100 per cent business expense, is more economical. And since many leasing contracts include repair costs plus a loaned car when the leased vehicle is being serviced, the aggravation and expense of sudden repair bills can be avoided. Others in the moderate income bracket who drive very little find it much cheaper to rent a car for a day or a week as required and hire the odd cab. Few people are aware of the true costs of owning a car. Before making a deal it is wise to ask yourself: can I really afford to deal: would it provide extra pleasure or would the financial burden upset the budget to such a degree that it would end up in a round robin of worry and sleepless nights?

Taxes Hit Poor Hardest

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It says something for the changing climate of realism in the U.S. that so conservative a magazine as U.S. News and World Report recently published an economic survey blasting the whole mythology of taxation.

It has been widely believed, and disseminated by interested parties, that the tax structure in the United States takes it out of the hide of the rich, while favoring the less affluent. Not so, reports the magazine's Economic Unit — it is the poor, as usual, who get the dirty end of the stick.

When total taxes — federal, state, city, Social Security, sales, property, and all the hidden bites — are taken into consideration, it turns out that poverty-line families making $3,000 a year or less pay 34 percent of their total earnings.

Only slightly better off are the struggling families in the $5,000-$7,000 a year bracket, who pay 33 percent of income, or about $1,980 a year out of their meagre income.

Best off are the people in the $15,000 to $25,000 bracket, and those over $25,000 who pay only about 28 percent in total taxes, which still leaves them a goodly sum for other purposes.

Moreover, the more affluent are able to invest their money, to buy tax deductible municipal bonds, to take advantage of numerous devices for reducing their taxes and augmenting their income — none of which is available to the poor or even the average family.

In the past, there has been a lot of loose and self-serving talk about the poor rich man "in the 91 per cent tax bracket" — which is so much poppycock. Anyone making enough to be in that bracket is also in a position to cut that rate fully in half, through all sorts of fiscal and legal arrangements. Indeed, as we have lately learned, dozens of multimillionaires pay no Federal income taxes at all.

The present tax structure is inequitable toward the poor, not toward the rich, who have flourished in the last two decades as never before, while the average family is barely able to save a few hundred dollars a year, and would be wiped out by one medium-sized emergency.

In this most affluent of all societies, about 30 million Americans are still treading water, barely able to keep above the economic surface. When so staunch a spokesman for the Establishment as U.S. News and World Report deplores the heavy tax burden on the poor, we are moving into an atmosphere of intellectual honesty and out of the moral miasma that has suffocated public dialogue for so long in the past.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For Feb. 25th,

Your birthday today: This year finds you in your natural element — abstruse or abstract ideas. Other people pull back a bit and give you breathing space. The temptation is to spend too much time planning and not enough in production. Today's natives tend to changeable moods and are frequently rather unrealistic in their approach to financial arrangements.

ARIES (March 21 — April 19): There seem to be a million and one details to attend to today, shopping, inventory, mislaid objects, tools. Nobody appears to react as quickly as you do. Have patience and work out routines fully.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Avoid drastic financial or business actions; take advice from older people who are skilled in the business before making transactions. Keep your own counsel amongst outsiders. There will be a better time!

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your work scatters a bit; time is wasted with uneven pacing and unwanted chores, but there is nothing for it but to follow the latest requirements cheerfully. Family and friends are not apt to agree with anything you do or say anyway.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): You possibly hold back enough of the story to unintentionally mislead others. Give your associates the chance to see what you are seeing. All factors are active for facilitating your expression in creative and business affairs.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): New sparkle comes into your personal contacts along with interesting innovations. Put the resultant lift into a burst of energy on the job, and total up achievement for the record. Plans run smoothly, but avoid legal actions altogether.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Details get sidetracked. Figure them out without showing any visible dismay. The onlooker will not discriminate between revision and original action if your morale is sufficiently good.

LIBRA (Sept 23 — Oct. 22): Serious consultations are emphasized: long - range plans come to the fore. Family discussions as to which direction to take for permanent improvements are favored.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Map out the details of the coming season's activities. Line up budgets; seek added cash. This is a favorable day for closing out longstanding accounts, neglected obligations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): A good day for social activity, for refinancing obligations into a single, payment-deferred pool. Confer with old friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your work demands more than your regular stint. Give it, for this once, without hesitation but diplomatically take care that the temporary stress is not established as a permanent adjustment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your decisions and actions may dismay younger people, but this seems inevitable at this time. Compare opinions with professional consultants, research experts, etc.

PISCES (Feb 19 — Mar 20): Fortune smiles gently and if you can avoid pressing too hard you'll have a good day. Fine for research, seeking old records, checking long past facts. Have a genial evening.

Stubbern Nosebleed Should Be Checked

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: A fine friend and neighbor has for months bled profusely through the nose. He has had to have several transfusions. At first the doctor thought it was a weak vein that caused the bleeding. Finally, specialists were brought in. Repeated tests for leukemia and hemophilia proved negative. Not until later did they discover that the liver was the real culprit. Aren't nosebleeds too often downgraded? — Mrs. H.

Comment: In occasional, easily controlled nosebleeds the most likely cause is a broken vein in the nose. Ordinary pressure takes care of it. Sometimes, if stubborn, the nose specialist treats it.

However, as you say, nosebleeds may sometimes be due to serious illness. I recall one middle-aged man, a few years ago, who almost bled to death from a nosebleed. Study in the hospital discovered that the cause was faulty kidneys. The lab tests showed he was in uremia (poisonous end-products in the blood due to kidney disease).

As in your friend's case, liver illness may cause nosebleeds. So may severe blood involvements like anemias and leukemias. Sometimes bloodthinners cause nose bleeds.

The point to remember is that recurring nosebleeds in a child or grownup should not automatically be clsssified as being due to a weak vein in the nose. It is wiser to make sure there isn't a more serious reason.

• • •

For Mr. N. (Maryland): If it is true that your headaches are migrainus in nature, then the trick is in taking the drugs prescribed by your doctor early. Once the attack begins the medicine is not so effectual. Often a migraine headache can be aborted if you take your medicine soon after you get the warning symptoms that one is on the way.

• • •

For Mrs. L. (Massachusetts): Go to your doctor. Don't be influenced not to, because a friend found no relief for her premenstrual tension. It may be true that we have no treatment that will help every woman who is extremely nervous before her periods; but it is also true that many are relieved immeasureably by taking a combination of tranquilizers, hormones, and diuretics (excess fluid removers). Chances are you will be helped.

• • •

For Mrs. C. (Canada): Some of the finest heart surgery has been devised and practised by Canadian doctors. Therefore, I agree with your family doctor that there is no need to go traipsing all over the U.S.A. looking for a heart surgeon.

• • •

For Mr. K. (Pennsylvania): I go along with you that sometimes jogging can be overdone. If you're scared to do so after your recent heart attack, I think you should beg off. Fear and tension are worse for the heart than "studied" physical inactivity.

• • •

For Mrs. T. (Ohio): The most common reason for a 70-year-old man's insomnia due to four to five nightly trips to the bathroom is trouble with the prostate gland. See if you can get him to see a urologist.

Eisenhower Comfortable After 'High-risk' Intestinal Operation

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Former president Dwight D. Eisenhower rested comfortably today after a successful "high-risk" operation to relieve a painful intestinal blockage.

Doctors reported the 78-year-old general of the army, convalescing from four serious heart attacks last year, was "doing fine" after delicate surgery carried out by a team of army specialists.

The operation was pronounced successful after the former president Sunday night spent nearly 2½ hours in the operating room of Walter Reed Army Hospital here, where he has been under treatment for his heart condition for the last nine months.

Hospital authorities said Eisenhower's intestines were blocked by two large adhesions —tissues bound like rubber bands around waste-carrying-tubes—which developed gradually after an operation for ileitis, a severe intestinal block, 13 years ago.

However, doctors decided that his robust constitution, which enabled him to make an almost complete recovery after coming close to death last year, would help him withstand the strains of surgery.

Few details of the intestinal blockade were released, but medical experts said Eisenhower's symptoms, which began appearing Friday night, were of a kind which usually involved sharp paroxysms, cramps and vomiting.

Walter Reed officials said he suffered an acute obstruction, which means a blockage in the intestinal channel carrying waste matter to be expelled.

This is a condition frequently caused by adhesion of scar tissue left behind after previous operations, doctors said.

If such a blockade is serious enough to prevent passage of waste material, it can result in spreading waste throughout the system or can rupture the intestines and infect the entire abdomen.

While doctors said the obstruction was due to the presence of two separate adhesive bands remaining from Eisenhower's 1956 ileitis operation, they reported that the site of the original surgery was "found to be just as it was 13 years ago" and had remained symptom-free, showing no signs of aggravation.

Ulstermen Go to Polls in Fateful Election

BELFAST (CP) — Ulster voted today in a fateful election that could set the religion-torn north of Ireland on the path of political tolerance.

The voting will determine the future of Prime Minister Terence O'Neill, the quiet reformer who talks of compromise in his community long afflicted with bigotry.

Supporters in his Unionist party hail him as the man to wrench Ulster into the 20th century.

As Ulster went to the polls in a snap election he called in an attempt to squeeze out enemies of his policies within his own party, his chief enemy was the old sectarian spirit that for centuries has equated political and religious beliefs.

In this election the most outspoken representative of the old pattern is a burly master of traditional fire and brimstone, Rev. Ian Paisley.

It was the cause of Paisley, founder of the so-called Free Presbyterian Church, that the rhythmic thunder of drums, battle call for Ulster Protestants for centuries, shook the peaceful market community of Randalstown during the weekend.

This was his way of rousing the residents of Randalstown and surrounding areas of Bannside constituency into attending his final rally before the election, which decides the outcome of the Paisley fight to unseat O'Neill personally. About 3,000 men and women defied Saturday night's cold rain.

O'Neill, uncontested holder of Bannside since 1946, has publicly scorned Paisley's chances there and has waged a sedate campaign in the predominantly rural riding.

But Paisley cited the big weekend crowd as proof that Bannside will rally to his political party, the "Protestant Unionists," and thus repudiate what he calls O'Neill's appeasement of the Roman Catholic Church.

The rally, complete with a big parade, to the patriotic strains of flutes and drums, abounded in Union Jacks, some inscribed with the militant Protestant slogan "no surrender."

Six elderly women, chanting anti-Catholic refrains, held a high banner reading: "God bless Paisley, no popery."

Paisley charged that he and his family have suffered threats because of his fight for the Bannside seat.

"I'll deal with them," promised Paisley during a scathing reference to advocates of greater civil rights for Ulster's 500,000 minority Roman Catholics.

Meanwhile, O'Neill received some cheers and a few boos Saturday when he rode through Londonderry, centre of the civil rights struggle. Observers are predicting he may win some additional votes in Ulster's Catholic areas because he has gone farther than any previous Unionist leader towards satisfying Catholic pressure for equality.

As a result, there are some predictions that today's voting, first results of which should become known at about 6:30 p.m. EST, will increase his personal support in the 52-member Commons of this largely self-governing part of the United Kingdom.

Six pro-O'Neill Unionists and a Nationalist have been returned by acclamation.

At the last election in 1965, the then undivided Unionists won 37 seats as against 15 of the Nationalists and other groups representing mainly Catholic sentiment.

A total of 112 candidates are up for consideration by Ulster's 900,000 voters.

Government Workers Claim Rights Denied

OSHAWA (CP) — The United Government Workers of Ontario Sunday accused the provincial government of imposing "dictatorial, subversive and discriminatory" conditions on its employees.

The group, an affiliate of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, also passed a resolution stating that it will seek the support of all labor groups to change the attitude of the provincial government by organizing "public protests, work-to-rule programs and if necessary, provincewide work stoppages."

Delegates attending the first biennial convention of the 3,500-member group said the Ontario government denies workers the choice of bargaining agents and refuses to grant rights and privileges enjoyed by other workers in the province. The group was organized last July but is not recognized as a bargaining agent by the province.

MacNaughton 'Unaware' Of Any Rent Controls

EXETER, Ont. (CP) Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said in an interview Saturday he was unaware of any government plans to introduce rent controls in Ontario.

He was commenting on a speech and question-and-answer discussion he held with Clinton's industrial committee Friday night.

In reply to a question, Mr. MacNaughton said: "I was unaware of any probabilities the Ontario government would introduce rent controls."

Government spokesmen indicated Tuesday the province hopes to bring in new landlord-tenant legislation but it will likely fall short of direct rent controls.

An Ottawa request for rent-control power, contained in a private member's bill, would only affect Ottawa if the private bill were passed in the legislature, the provincial treasurer said.

It would provide "no basis for general legislation."

Agencies Barrier To Advance

KITCHENER (CP) — Social agencies are the biggest barrier to progressive changes in work with the aged, a Canadian Welfare Council official from Hull, Que., told a senior citizens' conference Saturday.

Maurice Miron, the council's executive secretary of the division dealing with the aged, said agencies are putting far too many people in homes for the aged when they could live on their own with a minimum of help.

Mr. Miron, president of the Quebec Corporation of Professional Social Workers, said "institutional placement" can involve a loss of freedom and affect the personalities of aged persons.

Don't Worry About Plaza

Be Positive, Help Yourself Downtown Businessmen Urged

By DONALD MACKENZIE
Staff Reporter

"Disgraceful!"

That's the word the secretary manager of the Kitchener Downtown Association used last night to describe membership in Belleville's downtown association.

Donald Scott, of Scott Advertising Service in Kitchener, was the guest speaker at last night's Downtown Businessmen's Association meeting.

"I'm not sure of the exact percentage of merchants that do belong to your organization but it certainly is not where it should be."

And according to Mr. Scott it should be 100 per cent.

Kitchener's membership is at the ninety per cent mark at this time.

First you have to have the membership, Mr. Scott told the Belleville downtown merchants last night, and then retailers have to change their "ways and attitudes."

"Everything revolves around change."

Using Kitchener as an example, Mr. Scott said association revenue jumped from $9,000 three years ago to $40,000 today.

"You can imagine what you can do to sell the downtown with revenue like that" he said.

The Downtown Association in Kitchener takes out full page advertisements, runs radio spots has put in malls and shrubbery in the downtown section, installed a sidewalk cafe — all to sell the downtown.

And Belleville is not the only place where dissension has risen out of the question of a plaza.

"Don't worry about what the plaza is doing," he told the group.

"Take a positive attitude — you've got to be doing something yourselves."

Mr. Scott told the group that for a while in Kitchener the downtown merchants weren't too happy about a 34-store mall that was built.

But no more — "now we're doing something ourselves."

"If it's in town — it's downtown."

Ben Corke was re-elected president of the Belleville Downtown Merchants' Association last night.

He said he planned to begin having monthly meetings of the directors of the association at which time members and directors could air their views.

Regional Job Insurance Office to Be Built Here

Annual Payroll Over $2 Million

By Harry Mulhall, Staff Reporter

OTTAWA — The federal government has approved Belleville as Ontario regional headquarters for the Unemployment Insurance Commission - - - a move which means a major economic breakthrough for the Quinte city.

UIC officials here today announced long-awaited government endorsement of the plan to transfer the big administration centre from Toronto to Belleville in coming months.

The economic dividends include:

A 360-member resident civil service work force, including about 50 new local job opportunities.

A new annual payroll totalling more than $2,000,000.

A demand boomlet for houses, apartments and all other forms of domestic accommodation.

The decision, ending a nervous months-long vigil for both official sponsors of the scheme and city government, was

Star Says Medicare Coming

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says Treasurer Charles MacNaughton is expected to announce in his budget speech next Tuesday that Ontario will join the federal medical care plan within a year.

The newspaper says the move will mean an additional $175,000,000 subsidy from the federal government and will probably reduce premiums that 97 per cent of Ontario residents now pay for medical insurance plans.

"Most of the informed speculation at Queen's Park is that Mr. MacNaughton will use about $75,000,000 of the federal subsidy to reduce existing premiums, saving the remaining $100,000,000 to help balance his budget," the Star says.

Nixon Supports Britain In Common Market Bid

LONDON (AP) — President Nixon pledged anew to Britain today that the United States backs the concept of an enlarged Common Market, including Britain, within a unified Europe.

His position was made known by his spokesman, Ronald L. Ziegler, at a news conference following the president's two-hour and 46-minute meeting with Prime Minister Wilson this morning.

In a discussion of European integration, Ziegler said, the president "indicated, as he has done before, support for Britain's entry" into the Common Market.

Nixon also affirmed the commitment of the United States to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and European security.

Trevor Lloyd Hughes, the British spokesman, reported Wilson expressed pleasure at Nixon's affirmation of support for the NATO alliance.

This appeared to place the U.S. administration in opposition to the policies attributed to President de Gaulle for recasting the institutions of allied Europe.

But the French president's quarrel with Wilson's government was not directly discussed, British and U.S. spokesmen said at the joint news conference.

The president's crowded 16-hour day was dominated by two working sessions at 10 Downing Street examining major world problems from Peking to Paris.

Also on Nixon's crowded schedule was a luncheon given by the Queen and Prince Philip at Buckingham Palace; and meetings with Conservative party leader Edward Heath; former prime minister Harold Macmillan, another Conservative; and Liberal party chief Jeremy Thorpe.

Among the chief topics Nixon and Wilson were tackling were:

—East-West relations; including the president's hopes to negotiate soon with the Soviet Union;

—The future of the North Atlantic Alliance; including President de Gaulle's attempts to do away with it;

—The Arab-Israeli conflict and the prospects of an American-Soviet agreement to promote peace;

—The Asian scene, with the focus on the Vietnam war.

—The factor of nuclear power; both in the civil and military sectors.

The president on his arrival from Brussels Monday night spoke of the "special relationship"—in language, law, ideals and democratic traditions—between Britain and the United States and then said:

"The peace we seek will be secured only if all nations enjoy the relationship of trust and confidence which unites us."

Wilson in his campaign to get Britain into the Common Market has been playing down the concept that his government has preferential bonds with the United States.

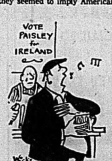
But British leaders were pleased at Nixon's words since they seemed to imply American support and sympathy for the British government in its new war of words with de Gaulle.

But spokesmen for Nixon and Wilson insisted the two leaders at their initial meeting Monday night did not delve into the rights or wrongs or even the substance of the British-French row.

Gun Found

LONDON (Reuters) — Police found a gun in a hotel room overlooking Heathrow Airport just hours before American President Nixon arrived there Monday, police said.

A spokesman for Scotland Yard would only describe the weapon as a "sporting gun," and would not say if it was loaded.



'...and watch the sun go down on Paisley Bay!'

O'Neill Won't Resign

BELFAST (CP) — Prime Minister Terence O'Neill, blocked in his attempt to gain unchallenged control of his badly split Unionist party, said today he is not seriously considering resignation as Ulster's leader.

The leadership question is "up to the party," O'Neill said at a news conference as Monday's election results indicated that Ulster faces a new political crisis. Results from most of the 52 ridings showed that the governing unionist party has been returned, but included were most of the dissidents who oppose O'Neill's moderate racial policies.

"I would not want to stay on in this job unless I can carry on with my policy of moderation and reform," O'Neill said.

O'Neill had called the snap election in the hope of routing opponents within his Unionist party which in the last Ulster House of Commons held 37 of the 52 seats. He had based his strategy on appealing to the minority Catholic vote to help him in the struggle against right-wing Protestant extremists. But most of the Catholics did not rally to him.

In his riding of Bannside, where he had been unchallgened for 23 years, O'Neill found that his right-wing rival, Rev. Ian Paisley, had won such heavy support that O'Neill was returned by only a narrow margin.

Lineup of Youthful Talent

Here are some of the winning soloists at the evening session of the Rotary Music Festival. From right to left, in order of award presentations are: Steve Levick, Lelsie Walcott, Bruce Pearce and Clyde Dawson. These young gentlemen were keen competitors during the musical event, which was held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and adjudicated by Donald [illegible]ancke. Although they look calm now, they all admitted the whole experience left them slightly unnerved. (For stories and pictures, see Front Page, Second Section.)

Trenton Plans to Light Three Town Crosswalks

TRENTON — Council last night approved all but one item in a traffic report which endorsed the lighting of crosswalks in Trenton along with other recommendations to make towns streets safer for pedestrian and motorist alike.

The report was presented by traffic committee chairman Paul Tripp, and it recommended that lighted pedestrian crosswalks be placed at three positions in town.

These were Dundas Street West at King Street, Front Street at Elgin Street, and Sidney Street at Wilson Crescent.

Other approved recommendations included certain areas in town to be designated as no parking zones along with the replacement of present street name signs with illuminated signs. This would begin with 25 signs in 1969.

Heavy truck restrictions were placed on various streets and Dixon Drive was declared a heavy truck route.

A recommendation concerning the reactivation of a traffic signal at Prince Charles School will be decided at next council meeting.

No cost was given for these improvements but will be declared at next meeting.

Study Date Established

TRENTON — Although last night's meeting was completed in near record time, Trenton town council managed to lay the groundwork for one future project which would have great effect.

This included the setting of a date to meet with consultant Eric Hardy concerning a proposed study of the town's administration.

The dates open for the meeting will be March 13 and 14 and it is then that the beginning step will be taken to revamp the municipal department of the town.

In a previous report by Mr. Hardy the town's administration came in for some harsh criticism when he labelled it "lacking in numbers and paper qualifications."

Clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry has labelled the survey as "something which should be done immediately because of its importance."

Mr. Hardy will plan the survey with council and mayor and then will begin to interview the senior paid members of the town administration. The first of these will be Mr. Larry.

Post Office Report Now Due Next Week

TRENTON — Trenton council was last night informed that delay in obtaining a report will rule out recommendations on the future of the old post office until next week.

A report was expected last night which would have contained recommendations on what to do with the old structure.

Councillor Stanley Ketcheson, chairman of the general government committee, informed council that the report was not ready and will not be officially in council's hands until next meeting.

"I had planned to have it all ready this evening but we want to study the matter more in detail," said the councillor.

The main hitch is the cost of $250,000 which was set as the limit price to renovate the building for municipal purposes.

Although the people voted to retain the building and renovate it at this cost, there is some argument the price could be higher.

Asked if he expected the cost of renovation to go beyond the set limit, councillor Ketcheson was unable to say.

"We want to look at this in every detail," he said. "All the facts will be released when the report is finished. I don't want to say anything now."

Advertising Executive Speaking at Meeting

Donald Scott, a Kitchener advertising man and secretary manager of the downtown association in Kitchener, spoke at last night's meeting of the Belleville downtown businessmen. Membership, revenue and a positive attitude towards selling the downtown area were the themes of his speech.

Job Insurance Centre Will Be Here

greeted jubilantly by Belleville public spokesmen.

Mayor Russell Scott dubbed it the "greatest news" and proclaimed Belleville as the "sub-capital of Canada" in government decentralization.

City industrial commissioner Ray Brown called it the "biggest economic impact" on the community in 20 years.

And industrial commission chairman Jerry Joyce foresaw the move as an added stimulus to new industrial prospects and job opportunities.

The UIC centre will be established in a new building in eastend Belleville, east of the present Belleville Shopping Plaza, between Dundas East and East Bridge Streets.

The actual greenlight to the project was signalled by approval of the location.

Hanging fire since Jan. 31 has been a Treasury Board decision on a tender chosen by the publio works department for leasing of an administration building in Belleville.

This morning a UIC official announced necessary authority had been given public works to enter a building leaseback agreement for the regional headquarters.

The site is about 1,000 feet by 326 and will house a building to be constructed by Toronto-area contractors— Olympia and York Construction Ltd.

The firm submitted a tender for an annual contract of $234,600 over 15 years or $225,000 for 20 years.

Terseness of today's announcement concealed the tenseness surrounding the development since late last year when the scheme first leaked into public knowledge.

For its originator, UIC regional director Lester Stevens, manoeuvring the project to today's conclusion has been a tour-de-force partly of tongue-in-cheek, partly cloak-and-dagger.

Inflating metropolitan administration and living costs were among basic reasons for the move.

Officially, Mr. Stevens could not reveal the federal scheme. Unofficially, however, he faced a major logistic and personnel problem. The move had to be accomplished as painlessly as possible. Not the least difficulty was the need for housing accommodation. Thus it was necessary to contemplate the project as a reality long before today's announcement, in order to gear local resources to a sudden population boost.

In recent months Mr. Stevens and key personnel have been moving in and out of Belleville, being forced to speak with forked tongues — one fork each for official and unofficial pronouncements.

Today's formal confirmation relaxes the atmosphere and in coming weeks Bellevillians should know full details on the project.

During the waiting period the city, however, gleaned some idea of added economic side benefits that will come with the UIC centre.

To orient personnel thinking to Belleville, Mr. Stevens switched several departmental training workshops and seminars to the Quinte city. Some of them drew up to 50 civil servants at a time — speading on accommodation, food and entertainment.

Such training projects will become a regular feature of the new UIC operation.

With the relocation now a fact, events will move swiftly, building to a peak in summer months — the period when families can be transferred with minimum strain on domestic arrangements.

The influx will be the biggest single economic accomplishment for the city since the late 1940s when Northern Electric opened its Belleville complex.

"It's the greatest news and item of progress in Belleville's history," enthused Mayor Scott when the announcement broke today.

"The availability of jobs for the area is the most important aspect from the point of view of our citizens," he added.

"I've stated Belleville would progress and go ahead if it deserved to go ahead. We've shown we've deserved new industry and business."

Industrial Commission chairman Joyce had a similar response:

"Job opportunities are very important to the community and the selection of Belleville by the UIC will provide many of these opportunities."

The decision to choose Belleville belonged to the UIC officials and "no one else," said Mr. Joyce.

"I feel we can attract other major employers to Belleville if we provide the proper local climate. We must deserve the investment."

Belleville's greatest asset, said the BIC chairman was "a great place" in which to live, work and raise families.

Delivery Changes

TRENTON — Since Saturday mail delivery has been curtailed some council members have been left in the dark.

Councillor Paul Tripp said at a meeting last night that he had not received his council agenda until Monday. He believed this was too late as council members need time to "bone up" on upcoming business.

When mail was delivered on Saturday members would receive the agenda in time to study it over the weekend.

"I believe they should either be delivered by hand on Friday or mailed earlier," said councillor Tripp.

Clerk-comptroller, O. W Larry, said he had discussed this with the mayor recently, but pointed out that earlier delivery would see many items left off the agenda.

"Much of the business would have to be put off for two weeks to the next meeting because it would come in too late to appear in the agenda," said Mr. Larry.

It was decided to have the agenda delivered to council members by hand on Friday.

Education Officials Assigned

Two department of education superintendents in Hastings County have been assigned to permanent positions as area superintendents with the Hastings County Board of Education.

Both men will continue to draw the same salaries they received as department of education employees and their new salaries as area superintendents will be negotiated as part of the current staff board salary negotiations.

Mr. Watson will continue to make his headquarters in Bancroft, where he has been employed for some time by the department. Mr. Tate will continue to work out of Tweed where his office was established under the department of education.

Space Needs In Hand

Accommodation needs of county school board administrators are well in hand for the next two years at least.

Last night the board authorized transportation and relocation of a portable classroom from Hillcrest School to the board headquarters at 208 Bridge St. East.

"We haven't projected our thinking beyond the next two years," director of education Eric Runacres admitted as he sought permission for the use of the portable room.

Also under consideration is the use of a second portable as a board room. At present a request is before the county clerk for use of the County Council chambers for board meetings.

All accounting, purchasing and payroll matters are being centralized at the Belleville offices. The offices of the former Trenton Board of Education in Trenton will continue to be used by superintendent E. T. Morris, who heads the south-west Hastings area of the board.

Unidentified Flying Objects may not be hobbyist's cup-o'-tea, but Trenton housewife Mrs. Wilfred Graystone avidly pursues the issue. Flying saucers are just her dish, and every UFO report goes into files here being perused by offspring Deborah and Derek.

Checking for UFOs Is Housewife's Pastime

TRENTON — A housewife here has a unique hobby — she's a flying saucer buff.

Mrs. Wilfred Graystone of 3 Edgewood Drive is collecting information on UFOs — unidentified flying objects.

Last week Mrs. Graystone advertised in The Intelligencer seeking information on an unusual light sighted north of Belleville about the time of a gas pipeline explosion near the city last December.

Although the housewife has not received any replies, she is not discouraged. "The failure of witnesses to come forward is positive evidence that aerial phenomenon exist."

Enthusiasts have learned to avoid ridicule and fun-poking from neighbors and fellow employees, she claims.

Mrs. Graystone exchanges information on the UFOs with the Canadian Aerial Phenomenon Research Organization in Winnipeg and the office of its United States counterpart in Arizona.

Her latest assignment involves the painstaking task of seeking out reports from the area that would confirm whether a meteor fell into Brighton Bay recently.

Strangely enough Mrs. Graystone has yet to see her first flying saucer.

How would you react if a saucer landed on your front lawn?" she was asked.

"I'd start running in the opposite direction without looking back," she answered, smiling.

Mrs. Graystone is married to a pilot at CFB Trenton.

Bid to Hire Vice-principals Must Await Budget Decision

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

An earlier vow made by director of education Eric Runacres to "put the money where the action is, in the classroom with the teachers", suffered a setback last night.

After lengthy debate, Hastings County Board of Education voted 9 to 5 to defer the appointment of second vice-principals to secondary schools in the county with enrolments of over 1,200.

Superintendents D. C. Stirling and L. F. Reid asked the board's approval to promote three teachers with vice-principal qualifications to second-vice principal positions at Trenton, Quinte and Centennial secondary schools. To replace them, three teachers would be required with appointments effective in September. Funds required for 1969 would be $18,000.

"I'm in favor of hiring the extra teachers if the money is there," said Donald Williams, Stirling. "But I feel we're spending money like crazy, and this should wait until the 1969 budget comes down."

"Wait for the budget," agreed F. John Follis, Bancroft. "We're going to get a shock when it comes in and there will have to be cutbacks."

"I'd be prepared to see this go ahead and make cutbacks somewhere else," countered John O'Fyinn, Belleville.

Mr. Runacres told the board that 61 per cent of composite schools in Ontario with over 1,200 enrolment now have second vice-principals.

"The ideal situation is a dean of student services working with the students, and a dean of curriculum working with the staff and a business administrator to free these men and the principal from paperwork," Mr. Runacres said.

"We are behind now in the supervisory staff in our schools: perhaps we can bring in business personnel later," he added.

"I would rather consider hiring business personnel first," commented Macdonald Smith, Belleville. "A paper shuffler is less expensive than a vice-principal."

"I would place the educational need before this," countered the director. "The greater need is for leadership in the schools, working with students and teachers in the classroom. The paper work will have to continue to be done by the principals after hours."

Trustee Everett Fairman, Belleville, confessed he was concerned about lack of supervision in the classroom.

"As a trustee I'm going to insist on program evaluation," he said. "I'm worried about the amount of evaluation and in-service training for teachers in our schools. A considerable amount of freedom now exists in the curriculum, and we must see whether the new programs are successful."

Mr. Runacres told the board the department of education would allow the county to hire five inspectors to carry the supervisory load. This would be in addition to the eight former Ontario department of education superintendents now on the county payroll.

"I hope we never hire them", he said. "I prefer putting people on the firing line, in the classroom where the action is, with the rider that we not increase the central staff at headquarters."

Trustee Ralph Weaver, Trenton asked the board to compare the cost of hiring up to five inspectors at about $18,000 each with the $45,000 for a full year " it would cost us to put three vice-principals on the spot."

"We are one of only a few boards in the province to reduce the number of superintendents since amalgamation," chairman James Clarke said. "Our intention is to put the inspection staff in the schools where they can work with teachers full time."

Until January, the department of education had 9.5 superintendents working in Hastings county. The county board now employs eight superintendents.

In reply to a question from Macdonald Smith, Mr. Runacres said he, Mr. Stirling and Mr. Reid found it impossible to personally supervise and train over 1,100 teachers in the county.

"It's the same old story," Mr. Smith complained. "You take the best qualified teachers out of the classroom and make them administrators."

"Would you take the worst qualified?" queried Mr. O'Flynn.

The question of appointing the second vice-principals and hiring teachers to replace them was deferred until budget time on a motion of Mr. Smith's.

Middle Students Get Fewest Trips

Are some students discriminated against in county secondary schools?

Some concern for the matter was expressed by two trustees at Hastings County board of education meeting last night.

Mrs. Miriam Graham, Belleville, said she felt some discrimination exists regarding student excursions and trips.

"The brightest students get the best trips," she said. "Excursions might benefit the second-best students more and stimulate them to take more part in school activities."

Milford Waller, Thurlow, feared discrimination exists on an economic basis.

"I'm concerned that some students can't afford to go on trips," he said. As an example, he cited a recent student excursion costing $30 for each participant.

Superintendent D. C. Stirling admitted the matter was of concern to administrators too.

"The students who produce the best marks, and those at the other end in special education courses get the most trips," he remarked. "The majority of those in the middle come out second best."

The board gave tentative approval to include $18,000 for consideration in the 1969 budget to finance student excursions. The sum is based on 50 cents for each student from kindergarten to grade 6, (60 cents in north Hastings) and $1. for each student in grades 7 to 13 (increased to $1.25 for north Hastings.

The tentative consideration was given despite misgiving on the part of several trustees about considering money matters before the budget is presented.

"The department of education promised to be early this year in announcing the grant structure, and as usual it's late," said Mrs. Miriam Graham, Belleville.

"They're broke," she added by way of explanation.

"Too many community colleges," replied Mrs. Jean Hutchinson, Trenton.

Ball Firm Gets Contract For Madoc Addition

The construction firm of Ball Brothers Ltd., Kingston, has been awarded the contract to build the addition to Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc.

Ball Brothers' tender of $1,940,000 was the lowest of nine, received by Hastings County board of education. Adjustments suggested by the architect, Boigon and Heinonen, and director of education Eric Runacres has lowered the contract price to $1,932,348.

Deletion of television equipment resulted in the largest saving — $4,712. Conduit and outlet boxes will be provided to permit television installation at a later date when board policy regarding TV has been formulated.

"The administration is considering a central video tape library system instead of an individual receiver in each school," chairman James Clarke told the board.

Miron-Wiggers Construction Ltd., Trenton was awarded the contract for an addition to College St. School in Trenton.

Their bid of $88,324 was the lowest of three submitted to board. Included in the contract price is $704 for acoustical treatment for the general purpose room in the addition.

Educational Aids

We are frequently told that students today are better educated than were their parents. The little red schoolhouse never knew such a wealth of teaching aids as are available today. The result is that youngsters today undoubtedly learn more and absorb it faster.

"A kid of 15 today knows as much as I did at 25," John Burke, a consultant with North York's social planning council, told a Belleville student audience last week. Certainly, the various electronic aids available today, including television and audio-visual equipment, have much to do with this. The knowledge needed by the young today is so much broader in scope than ever before Consider for example the revolution in mathematical knowledge, the kind needed to place satellites in orbit or send manned flights to the moon and back, and unmanned flights to Venus. Computers give instantaneous answers to complicated questions that would take the human brain weeks and even months to work out by conventional means. But the computers themselves need human guidance; they must be "fed" correctly, they must have the precise information — otherwise, in the final analysis, they will err. The computer systems consequently are a science in themselves, providing skilled employment for many in this extraordinary age of scientific achievement.

Speaking of this new explosion of knowledge afforded young people by audio-visual and other aids, it is interesting to note that programs used in Ontario schools took the top honors at a recent convention in Columbus, Ohio.

Yet, for all that, gaps remain in today's education. It is not so much that the young know more today, and have it communicated to them more swiftly, but rather that they have knowledge of disciplines unknown to former generations.

What about the basics . . . yes, even the three R's. It is surprising how many otherwise intelligent youngsters cannot spell properly and are ungrammatical in their speech and writing. Ask a youngster of 15 some questions involving general knowledge — history, geography, contemporary affairs and the like — and often the answer eludes him. It may elude many an adult as well, of 25 years or more, but that is his fault and not the fault of the educational system of a decade or more ago.

Music Festival

Belleville Rotary Club's inaugural music festival has received warm praise from adjudicators Donald Francke and Ronald Smith. The two Britons, who have come to Belleville from the Kiwanis festival in Toronto and go on to Winnipeg from here, said on opening day yesterday that the event was going smoothly.

Mr. Smith said they had anticipated "growing pains," on the organization side, and had come prepared to give advice, but he could not imagine any festival anywhere that had been launched "more meticulously."

As the adjudicators pointed out, music festivals are very much a part of the fabric of cultural life in Britain. They are popular in this country too, but for the Quinte area this is a first. Belleville and the Quinte area are fortunate to have this opportunity of encouraging young people who show musical talent.

There are other enterprises of a like nature that service clubs might undertake. For instance, what about a flower show? In Britain the big marquee filled with the scent and brilliance of flowers is one of the most attractive features of Spring agricultural shows.

On the Wane?

Could it be that hijackings to Cuba are on the wane? Recently it seemed as if planes were being diverted to Havana almost every other day. Now a week or more has past without the familiar announcement that some luckless pilot had a gunman among the passengers. Meanwhile, the International Civil Aviation Organization, with headquarters in Montreal, is working on a plan to protect civilian aircraft from unlawful acts. This will include measures to counter the kind of attacks that have been made by Arab terrorists on Israeli airliners at Athens and Zurich. We hope such a plan will prove effective.

Opposition Conned Into Farcical 'Savings Plan'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — While the government's intentions for the economy may be the best, its timing has to be the worst.

There are Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Finance Minister Ben Benson, Bank of Canada Governor Louis Rasminsky and the federal mandarins preaching what they call "restraint" with wage and salary levels, in the interests of halting inflation and stopping the climbing cost of living.

And there, in the next breath are the self-same people showing anything but "restraint"— or so it may look to the taxpayers — with the payroll for their own federal Establishment.

There they all were, telling everyone across the land including their own militant and strike-prone postal workers that pay and salary increases simply had to be held at an annual six to seven percent if inflation was not to get entirely out of hand.

And there, in the next minute, they are giving their mandarins, the deputy ministers, increases running between $6,500 and $9,000 — a hefty 30 to 33 percent — taking them to a $40,000 top.

Then awarding Governor Rasminsky a $25,000 raise elevating him from $50,000 to $75,000 — for a fine fat 50 percent.

The mandarins, insisted the prime minister who had approved it all, well "deserved" the increases. After all, he explained, weren't they executives and didn't occupants of the Executive Suite in business and industry make that much and more?

The bank governor, spoke up the finance minister, had not had a raise since 1963, and so that 50 percent really worked out to only a modest annual three salary percentage points. And didn't the chief central banker rate a salary more nearly matching those of the chartered banks?

The answer to both the prime minister's and the finance minister's questions is "yes, of course" . . . but.

The "but" involves the timing. And it scarcely could have been more atrocious.

Was the government's idea of "restraint" something between 30 and 50 percent, and where did this leave just about everyone else? stormed the New Democrats.

What did this do to the "credibility" of the prime minister, the finance minister, the Bank of Canada and even of the government itself in their collective cross-country hold-the-line lecturers? protested the Conservatives.

Increasing Parliament's reservations and suspicions has been the quiet, almost secretive way the government raised Rasminsky's pay — by Order-in-Council. Unannounced.

It leaked out only because an angry and resentful civil servant whispered to a newspaper friend.

So it made the government suspect of a guilt complex if not of a cover-up.

Now, suddenty, too late to do anything about it this year, the Opposition — Conservatives, New Democrats and Creditistes — has discovered it has been "had" by the government in a cover-up on a far grander scale.

Out has come the treasury board Estimates — the official government "blue book" of federal spending plans — without a single line about who-is-getting-how-much in the federal Establishment.

Ever since there has been the federal Estimates, until now, each top job and pay rate was listed.

For example, in external affairs, the deputy last year was rated at $31,000 (he has since been lofted to the top $40,000).

Similarly, assistant deputies were publicly pay-rated.

All down the line the jobs were catalogued by number and salary from the departmental boss to the $4,000 clerks.

Now, nothing — nothing but a total.

In external affairs, you know little more than that this year there are 3,222 employees getting a total $21,460,600 Last year there were 3,260 drawing $19,502,000.

(Fewer people, but almost $2,000,000 more pay.)

Last year, the Estimates listed all the departmental "chiefs" and "indians" by pay level. This year not a clue on who-gets-how-much — or, more important who-gets-how-much-more-than-last-year.

Impossible now to know whether the government preaching payroll "restraint" is practising it.

Treasury Board President Bud Drury smiles that the Opposition agreed to the changed form of the Estimates to save money through saving pages.

It saved 111 pages.

And moans, Ontario Conservative MP-Alfred Hales, chairman of the public accounts committee — the only committee headed by the Opposition — it could turn out to be the most expensive "saving of the year.

"We were conned, suckered," says Alf Hales, "and yes, okay, we boobed."

Too late now for crying. But there is always next year and the hope of some un-suckering and non-boobing.

Letter to the Editor

Society Must Cultivate A Responsible Attitude

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

Many of your readers, I think, will agree with the views expressed by your recent correspondent, Elizabeth Morton (February 19). Most taxpayers wish that the administration in our universities would take a stronger stand against militant students who commit unlawful acts. Sit-ins and seizures of public property are surely as unlawful for students as for the rest of us and merit the same prompt action by the authorities.

While recognizing the difficulties faced by university administrators when disruptive elements are composed of both faculty and students, I think that strong measures are over due. Most students and most faculty members wish to bring about change by peaceful means but their efforts are nullified by the actions of the irresponsible few.

However, let us not lose sight of the fact that resort to violence and a blind eye to provisions of the Criminal code are not a monopoly of students and university administrators. A cavalier attitude on the part of some members of the public towards infractions of the law leads to general disrespect for the law and creates a climate in which violent acts occur. I think that university administrators would find it easier to cope with dissident elements if we, the public, re-examined some of our own attitudes. Society as a whole has a duty to create a more salubrious climate than exists at present.

Discipline Essential

Letter to the
Brockville Recorder and Times

What kind of world is in the making without discipline? Study history. Learn what lack of discipline did for the great Roman Empire, along with other past civilizations.

There is a code of discipline that can be taught in our schools. It won't cost the taxpayer $30,000 per annum for its usage. This code of discipline can be found in a book that most households usually have. It shall not be necessary to read the whole book, stop at the Ten Commandments.

Those Bargains

Windsor Star

Consumers are perturbed by the prices they have to pay. They also may be more than somewhat confused by some pricing practices they encounter.

A citizen reports one such the other day. He was in a merchandising emporium to replenish his supply of shaving materials. He found the counter containing his favorite lotion. The price of $1.74 had been crossed out and replaced by $1.48. This implied he was getting a good buy.

As he picked up the package his eye just happened to fall upon the packet behind it. He noted, in almost unbelief, that it had been marked $1.25 but this was stricken out and replaced by $1.08. The lotion and its size were identical. Only the price differed.

It differed 40 cents from one low price to another, or by 66 cents from the high price on one packet to the low on the other. Not being entirely inane, he took the lowest priced one.

It made him wonder. And it made him wonder particularly about some of the causes of inflation.

B.C. Surface Mines Pose Threat to Virgin Ground

Vancouver Sun

The advent of large-scale surface mining in British Columbia will cause equally large but reasonably soluble problems of land reclamation and pollution control.

Experience in other mining areas shows that the only effective and fair way to minimize the damage is by rigorous enforcement of planned regulations. So far, there are none in B.C. The provincial government however, has promised to take power to do what must be done. The Kaiser company, forerunner in this major mining trend in the Kootenays, has given assurances of its eagerness to comply. Its performance may be regarded as either a pilot project or a test case.

But the stated enthusiasm of one company for conservation is beside the point. There are too many contrary interests that argue that conservation is uneconomic, that devastation in selected areas is either tolerable or negligible. It is seriously contended that this province contains so much unspoiled wilderness that it can afford to destroy any given amount, apparently progressively and in perpetuity. The outlook is reminiscent of that shown by the first settlers on the eastern seaboard of this continent who burned the hardwood forests to recover the ashes.

The central issue is what the provincial government will do to preserve the scenic grandeur of British Columbia from mutilation by gigantic machinery. Will the government be content to require a minimum cosmetic job in some instances while permitting virtually unlimited spoilation in districts not yet accessible to residents and visitors?

Green Blazers for Sheriff's Deputies

Watertoen Times

Eighteen sheriff's deputies in Riverside county California will be rather difficult to recognize in their "new look." They have been issued civilian-type outfits consisting of Kelly-green blazers, dark green trousers, light green dress shirts, ties and black shoes.

This experiment, which will continue at least six months, is designed to determine whether regulation police uniforms detract from the ability of law enforcement officers to "communicate" with citizens, according to the Riverside county sheriff.

We seem to be in the age of "communication." But it is questionable whether a flashy new uniform will "get through" to some rough customer intent on engaging in crime.

In addition, many citizens always respect not only the "authority" but also the air of helpfulness behind a regulation police uniform. Will these blazer-attired deputies be accorded similar recognition?

The department's crest will be on the breast pockets, and the men will continue to carry mace, handcuffs and service revolvers — concealed under blazers and in shirt pockets.

But at a distance will a citizen needing police assistance know whether the man is a patrolman or a meter reader or appliance repairman?

Israeli Planes Attack Guerrillas Inside Jordan

From AP-Reuters

Two Israeli warplanes skimmed low across the Jordan River today to attack a guerrilla pocket inside Jordan which the Israelis said fired on an army patrol.

The attack came only 24 hours after Israeli fighters bombed guerrilla bases in Syria, tangled with Syrian Air Force jets and claimed they shot down two Soviet-built MiG-17s.

An Israeli Army spokesman said the guerrillas in Jordan raked the patrol with machine-gun and bazooka fire, but there were no casualties.

The planes then bore down on the Jordanian village of Manshiyeh, south of the Sea of Galilee, now a guerrilla stronghold. Palls of smoke were seen rising from the area.

A Jordanian Army spokesman in Amman said Jordanian and Israeli forces exchanged shots across the river for 20 minutes late Monday.

He said the Israelis opened fire from the west bank on Jordanian troops in the Adasia and Baqourah areas of the northern Jordan Valley. Jordanian forces returned the fire, the spokesman said. No casualties were reported.

The raid into Syria was the first against Al Afatah Commandos in that country in four years, and reports reaching Israel indicated the bombing and strafing attack inflicted heavy damage on the two camps singled out for punishment.

The two, Maisalun and Al Hammah, have initiated 2 incidents against the Jewish state in a month, the Israelis said.

Egypt ordered a state of emergency for an indefinite period to cope with possible Israeli reprisals for the Arab Commando attacks. Defence and medical services were placed on standby alert.

There was growing apprehension that Egypt would be the next target of Israeli raids similar to the one on Syria.

Official sources in Damascus, the Syrian capital, said the death toll from Monday's raid rose to nine today with the death of three more wounded.

The sources ridiculed reports that 150 Syrians were killed.

The Israelis denied Syria's claim that its forces shot down three or four Israeli planes.

A few hours after the Israeli air attack in Syria, Arab guerrillas in Jordan hurled two rockets at Dengania Bet, a kibbutz on the shores of the Sea of Galilee.

The Israelis fired back. No damage or casualties were reported in Degania.

Along the Suez Canal, Arab snipers wounded two Israeli soldiers.

The Israeli press lauded the raid on Syria.

Lamerhav, which reflects official thinking, commented: "The action puts an end to the illusion that Soviet patronage toward the Damascus regime affords it immunity to Israeli retaliation."

In Cairo, the Egyptian press called the attack "a total failure" and said it proved the Palestinian guerrilla movement would continue to grow, no matter what Israel does.

Scouting activities

Speaking to boys and parents at last Sunday's service at Emmanuel Baptist Church, Chief of Police Douglas Crosbie urged greater participation on the part of parents and young people in carrying out duties as good citizens.

He also pointed out the little known fact that the founder of Scouts, Lord Baden Powell, was a one-time policeman in South Africa. Church services marked the final observances of scout week for many groups.

A father and son banquet was held Wednesday night at 9th Belleville (St. Margaret's). Lee Tripp was master of ceremonies and John Dodge brought greetings from the district council. Three films were shown to an audience of 100 boys and fathers.

Three local lads were chosen to attend the national venturer conference being held in Ottawa next June. They are Cameron Portt, 1st Melrose; Robert Allore, 3rd Belleville; and Gerald McConnell, 17th Belleville. These lads as well as others from surrounding communities attended a recent meet of venturers at CFB Trenton.

Many aspects of venturing were discussed at the day sessions and in the evening the boys heard an inspiring talk from Lt.-Col Gordon Hedley-Smith. The 1st Cannifton-Corbyville troop recently visited a bowling alley. The pack, under the leadership of Eileen Donaldson, went on a snowmobile party last Monday in the vicinity of Cloverleaf Drive.

Weiners and marshmallows were served.

Store Opened in 1849

Lewis Firm Dates Back to Village Days

A firm that first opened its doors when Belleville was a village, is marking its 120th year in business.

With the anniversary, the John Lewis Company, plumbing and appliance dealers, becomes one of the longest-established businesses in Ontario.

The newspaper in which its first advertisement appeared — The Victoria Chronicle — has long since disappeared, even its name forgotten. It is one of a multitude of community changes during the firm's record operation.

When John Lewis first opened his Front Street hardware store in 1849 he did a thriving business in a village that counted among its economic staples:

Four carriage factories, two grist mills, an axe factory, eight blacksmithies and an organ factory.

A year later Belleville took its first big initial step forward: It was formally raised from the status of village to town with its own elected municipal council.

The community was on the way up and the company's fortunes apparently flourished accordingly.

So much so, recalls the present staff, it was granted a warrant by Queen Victoria as suppliers to government agencies. A coat-of-arms, symbolizing the royal favor is still in possession of the company today, one of the few relics of earlier days to survive the changes brought by time.

A key figure in the Lewis record of longevity is Moses R. Doyle, a plumber hailing from the Prince Edward County village of Wellington who went to work for John Lewis in the latter half of the 19th century.

An expert on heating materials, he was responsible for putting the company's stamp on hundreds of domestic and commercial installations throughout the Quinte district.

Among other innovations, he installed the first hot water furnace at an army veterans' hall in Picton in 1886. In 1949 when the company was 100 years old the system was still working. Mr. Doyle also installed the first commercial refrigeration and oil burning units in the area.

With the death of the company's founder, the John Lewis operation went through several business transfer phases with Mr. Doyle as a partner.

Finally, the entire operation was secured in the early 1900s by Mr. Doyle and his son W. J. Doyle.

In 1947 the firm was incorporated under its present name with three generations of the Doyle family as company officers — the present owner W. R. (Bill) Doyle being named secretary-treasurer.

Today it trades with a city of 33,000 people and a surrounding district which has from correspondingly.

In all that time it has never been off Front Street. Its original site was only a few shopping paces from today's store. John Lewis moved a few doors up to the present location when he expanded his business near the end of the century.

Besides directly servicing the community its operations produced a flow of tradesmen into the local workstream over the years who apprenticed at Lewis'.

Whatever the future has in store for the company, at least one thing is certain: It will continue to be a Doyle enterprise for years to come.

Bill Doyle says his son Brian, now 22, will be the fourth generation to enter the business.

Donofrio: Strike Is Not Over

PICTON (Staff) — "We've tried every avenue to try to get Proctor-Silex to the bargaining table but they won't come. We aren't going to leave these people and this strike will be broken up only by mutual agreement."

This statement was made yesterday by James Donofrio, union representative, concerning recent reports that the strike is almost over.

Workers at Proctor-Silex have been on strike since July 17.

Mr. Donofrio declared, "The strike is definitely not over, despite exaggerated rumors that are now being spread. If and when we do decide to end the strike and remove the picket line in front of Proctor-Silex, it will be to the mutual agreement of both the union and the remaining strikers.

He said that the union is still supporting the strikers.

Mr. Donofrio admitted that his union may be decertified, saying, "We expect there may be a decertification move; however, this union will not be happy to see this happen and I'm not too sure the people inside the plant want to see it either."

The plant is operating with workers hired last fall.

Mr. Donofrio said that the picketers" strike pay has not been reduced and most of the picketers are eligible to collect unemployment insurance.

"Any individual on the picket line who claims he wants to go back to work for Proctor-Silex is only speaking for himself and this only involves one or two people," said the union spokesman.

Mr. Donofrio said "The boycott on Proctor-Silex products will continue and be intensified."

New Plates Restrict Listings

The increased postal rates have resulted in a reduction in the amount of circular mail going out from the agricultural office in Stirling.

Agricultural representative Douglas Tipper in his latest Hasti-agri-gram notes that some newsletters, once mass distributed are being restricted and concentrated on farmers who are active participants.

For instance the Hastings Farm Service Club newsletter now goes out only to paid up members.

Insurance Contracts Checked

No permanent school insurance contracts will be made until a committee of the Hastings County board of education has looked into the matter and decided whether or not a consultant is required.

At present, the Hastings County Insurance Agents' Association has placed a temporary binder for all necessary coverage required by the board, K. F. Wormald, business administrator, told the trustees.

Assurance that the matter is still under review was sought by Mrs. Jean Hutchison, Trenton.

"I have heard some anxiety expressed by local agents that the insurance contracts have been given permanently," she said.

Interest on Savings Must Be Included On Tax Returns

The department of national revenue today asked that taxpayers delay filing their 1968 income tax returns until they have received their T5 slips for savings account interest from their banks.

Because of procedural changes announced by Finance Minister Benson's October budget proposals, banks and other institutions are now obliged to send out T5 slips to taxpayers receiving $10 or more in interest or dividends.

Previously T5 slips were sent out only when interest payments were $100 or more.

For every T5 slip a taxpayer receives, a copy of that slip is sent directly to the taxation department by the company paying out the money. The department can then match slips they receive against income reported by the taxpayer on his income tax return.

Premature filing of income tax returns without all the required income information slips is a major cause of processing delays.

Because of the new regulations an additional 5,000,000 T5 slips are expected to be handled this year by the department.

Normally, a taxpayer who has maintained a savings account with a minimum balance of $250 throughout the year can expect to receive a T5 slip this year.

Talk on Consumer Affairs

The University Women's Club of Belleville and District were honored to have as guest speaker, Mrs. Una Abrahamson, editor of Consumer Affairs for Chatelaine magazine. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. T. C. Ringland.

Mrs. Abrahamson began by defining consumerism and outlining the role it plays as protector and educator of the sometimes unwary buyer. Its aim is to make the public more critical buyers, and the manufacturers, better sellers.

Although there is some necessary legislation at both the provincial and federal levels, Mrs. Abrahamson said she felt that since the government could never pass legislation for the use of common sense, we must strive for better communication among government, manufacturer and buyer.

Since women spend most of the money, she urged that they take the responsibility of acquiring at least a basic knowledge of economics, re-educating themselves to keep up with new products and technology, and buying according to individual needs and income.

Mrs. Abrahamson went on to clarify the purpose of the seal of approval awarded to certain products by Chatelaine. "The seal of approval does not promise any miracle; nor is the seal awarded willy nilly. Manufacturers must apply for it and have their product subjected to rigid torture tests and periodic rechecks. The onus is at all times on the manufacturer to keep his product worthy of distinction," she said.

Mrs. Abrahamson, concluded her talk by urging women to be critical shoppers, skilled technicians, business-like complainants who shop wisely and demand the best.

Members of the club had an opportunity to ask questions afterwards.

Mrs. C. E. Osgood, on behalf of the club, thanked the speaker.

Mrs. R. Burtt, convener of the Regional Conference to be held in Belleville, October 24-25, reported that the theme will be 'Law Reform' and that the necessary heads of committees had been chosen.

Mrs. H. W. Burns reported that this year's Spring Fair will be held on Saturday, May 3 at St. Michael's Auditorium. The Spring Fair will feature an exhibition of paintings by Manly Macdonald.

Methods of Teaching Religion Is Outlined

Sister Joan Whittingham, catechetical consultant for Belleville Separate Schools, was guest speaker at the February general meeting of St. Joseph's Parish Council.

She spoke on the new methods of teaching religion in the schools and of the "Come to the Father" program which is being used in Grades 1 and 2.

Mrs. W. Buckley, convener of the telephone bridge and euchre, reported that there had been an enthusiastic response to the venture.

Mrs. Chartrand, Guide and Brownie convener, thanked those who had helped with the recent tea held in St. Michael's Auditorium, especially Mrs. A. Nagode who convened the bake table for south east district.

Final arrangements have been made by Mrs. W. Clarke for the presentation of a fashion show by McIntosh Bros. to be held in the new auditorium at St. Joseph's School on March 19.

The president, Mrs. H. Carr-Braint, announced that the annual Communion luncheon would take place on Sunday, March 16. The speaker will be Mr. R. Conlon of the Belleville Children's Aid Society.

A letter was received from Mrs. George Brown, president of St. Mary's Parish Council, Kingston, asking members to participate in making afghans for the poor of the world. Anyone who wishes to co-operate in this project may call Mrs. T Kelly, Fairway Ave. for information.

The next meeting will be held in the Parish Hall on March 10.

Specialists Study Sleep

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Babies have three kinds of sleep—one more than adults—says a specialist in psychiatry and psychology who has studied sleep patterns of newborn babies.

Dr. Dugal Campbell told a recent symposium on sleep and dreaming here that adults have REM rapid eye movement sleep and "slow-wave" sleep, named for the kind of brain-wave patterns it produces. But babies have a third type of sleep — "transitional" — which is a mixture of the other two and is not found among adults.

Dr. Campbell, an associate professor of psychiatry and psychology at Queen's University, said babies also spend much more of their time in "active" sleep, when the brain is active. He said such sleep provides the baby with brain exercise to help it keep mentally fit.

Dr. John Knowles, of the same department as Dr. Campbell, said REM sleep takes up about one-quarter the time of an average adult's sleep. Most dreams occur during the REM sleep period.

Couple Wed 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Burris, Consecon RR2, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at home and the Consecon United church hall.

The couple were married at the bride's home RR1, Hillier, by Rev. A. J. Terrill and recall the day was bright but cold. The attendants were Arthur Burris, brother of the bridegroom and Clarice McFaul, sister of the bride, who are still living.

Mrs. Burris is the former Luella McFaul who was born at Wellington, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McFaul and spent her early days in the Wellington area. Mr. Burris was born at Madoc, Ontario, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burris and has resided in the Consecon area most of his life.

Mr. Burris, a member of the Consecon United Church, was Reeve of Hillier in 1940-42, councillor for the township, Past Master of Consecon Masonic Lodge and Past Patron of Eastern Star Quinte 59.

Mrs. Burris is a member of the Consecon United Church, a member of the UCW and Past Matron of the Eastern Star Quinte 59.

Mrs. Burris has three sisters, Mrs. Clifton Ellis, Wellington, Mrs. Fred Clarke, Consecon, Mrs. Clifford Panting, Hillier, and two brothers, Corey McFaul Picton, Douglas McFaul, Wellington. Mr. Burris has three sisters, Mrs. Lorne Alyea, Consecon, Mrs. Ken Alyea, Consecon and Mrs. Bob Ferguson, Barrie, besides two brothers, Arthur Burris, who resides in South Dayton, N.Y., and Ross Burris in Hillier.

Their family consists of two sons and a daughter, Keith Burris of RR1, Consecon, Corey Burris, RR2, Consecon and Mrs. Earle Goodmurphy RR1 Consecon. Also three grandchildren, Joan Goodmurphy, Dale and Patti Burris.

A three-tier wedding cake, with a pair of silver candelabra holding gold candles adorned the anniversary table, which was decorated with two flower centrepieces and rose bowls with 'mums on the guests' tables.

A special scroll was received from Prime Minister John Robarts congratulating the happy couple plus a letter from Hon. George Hees, MP, extending best wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Burris extended thanks to all concerned for gifts received and for the many wishes of happiness extended to them on this occasion.

Couples Wed 50 Years Renew Marriage Vows

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Pope Paul sent special blessings, and congratulations.

Other messages of best wishes arrived from Governor-General Michener, Prime Minister Trudeau and Ontario Premier John Robarts; and of many more one came from a former Sudbury priest now in Africa.

All were part of a recent anniversary celebration here when two sisters, the former Exilia and Josephine Carriere, renewed their vows of marriage which 50 years ago made them Mrs. Adelard Sauve and Mrs. Louis Belanger at a double wedding.

The most noticeable difference between the ceremonies in 1919 and this year was the 35-mile distance between the St. Jean de Brebeuf Roman Catholic Church here and a church to the west at Espanola, Ont.

It was there at the Church of The Good Shepherd that the two sisters walked down the aisle half a century ago to exchange marriage vows with their respective husbands.

Exilia, born at Buckingham, Que., moved to Espanola when she was a child and met her husband-to-be, who was from Moose Creek, Ont. They moved to Sudbury in 1928.

Josephine was born at Inklay, N.Y. Her husband worked as a contracting carpenter until retirement.

Secretaries' Association Hears Talk on Safety

Secretaries "Rally 'Round the Flag for Safety" was the theme of the program of the Year for the National Secretaries' Association, highlighted by the Bay of Quinte Chapter at their monthly dinner meeting on Feb. 17 held at the Quinte Hotel, Belleville.

G. L. Smith, safety consultant with the Industrial Accident Prevention Association's Toronto office, in speaking on office safety, emphasized the fact that such seemingly insignificant things as pencils and paper clips can be the "downfall" of an unwary office worker if left lying about the floor, and he cited cases from his files of the consequences of such careless practices as leaving drawers open; unbalancing filing cabinets by pulling out too many drawers at once; lifting such things as office equipment or supplies incorrectly; disregarding safety signs. It is interesting to note that 85 per cent of all back injuries are caused when lifting weights under 25 pounds.

Mr. Smith illustrated his talk with a humorous film which showed that unsafe habits are no laughing matter when you are the victim.

During the question period which followed, two safety tips were brought out — one recommending the use of non-skid waxes in offices and corridors, and the other suggesting the placing of a book beneath the top of the secretary's desk on which to hang her purse and thus eliminating the need for it to sit on the floor and create a tripping hazard.

Mr. Smith was introduced by Mrs. Helen Worrell and thanked for his presentation by Miss Marjory Cross.

The business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Verona Meades, who welcomed secretaries from the Mead Johnson Co., Corby Distillery, Hastings County Board and Quinte Roofing as guests for the evening. The aims and goals of NSA were explained and pertinent literature was made available to the visitors.

Reports of the executive and committees were presented. It was reported that an ducation night had been held on Feb. 10 on the topic of "Parliamentary Procedure" and a "quickie quiz" was held on this subject which indicated the success of the study session. It was also noted that some of the members had enjoyed a tour of the new wing of the Belleville General Hospital, which will be one of the most modern medical centres in the province.

The members were reminded that 'Secretaries' Week' this year takes place from April 20 to April 26 and 'Secretaries' Day falls on April 23, which was the date chosen by the Bay of Quinte Chapter for executive night when they will entertain their bosses for the evening.

The Feb. booster prize was won by Mrs. Helen Worrell.

Danish Milliner Expert Designer

MONTREAL (CP) — In the tradition of milliners, Montreal's well-known Danish-born hat maker is known only as Mr. Flemming. But in 12 years here he has established a thriving business confined entirely to women's hats—unusual at a time when most fashion designers are turning to diversification.

But he has entered the ready-to-wear field, as have so many of Montreal's younger designers. This spring he has designed his second collection for Kates, a nationally known Montreal millinery firm. The collection carries his name label and is priced to fill the gap between the volume hat market and custom designs.

His own haute couture salon is in an old, elegant apartment house, across fashionable Sherbrooke Street from the Museum of Fine Arts. Several other designers also have their salons and living-apartments in the building.

Mr. Flemming's living room is much more conservative than one would expect from his own preference for "mod" clothes. He turned up recently for a luncheon interview in a Black Watch plaid suit with a white stock blouse-shirt, and faced Montreal's winter with four tailored fur coats—a wolf, racoon, mink, and his latest, a black broadtail.

"How can you project fashion to others without being fashionable yourself?" he asks. "You yourself must show a daring."

His salon features soft gold walls and drapes, Louis XVI furniture and a huge French green velvet "pouf" in the middle of the fairly small room. Handsome screens are ingeniously arranged with hooks on the backs for hats and can be turned around for customer viewing. It is much more a fashion milliner's setting than the adjoining apartment.

Mr. Flemming was born in Copenhagen, into a shoe manufacturing family, but he liked hats better. He learned his trade in Denmark and London before coming to Canada in 1957. But Montreal wasn't interested in a new milliner and he took a job in a china department of a department store. Then he decided on a now-or-never policy and opened his own millinery salon. In the last few years he has steadily built up a large clientele, including Montreal's most fashionable women.

He believes hats are important to a woman's vanity. "They are an ego prop, and hats can take 10 years off a woman's age."

He was delighted to be asked to do a moderately priced collection for Kates. "You're putting your finger on the whole fashion scene of Canada," he says. "I get more bang out of that than seeing one of my hats driving off in a Rolls-Royce."

Incidentally, he's calling one of his spring hats Rolls Rose. It's a bright green summer felt in a head-hugging toque style, featuring one rose.

Now he is to do all the millinery designs for the Kates firm, starting next fall, but he won't relinquish his private business.

This winter, for his salon customers, he favors chinchilla. His fashion philosophy: "Hats no longer belong in millinery alone. Today they are accessories."

For spring he likes a beret profile and scarves wound into turbans. He's also partial to summer felts. "They're perfect for our climate, and I usually combine them with straw."

Music Teachers Gather At Luncheon Meeting

The Sun Luck Gardens Restaurant was the scene of a luncheon recently when Court Stone spoke to the Belleville Branch of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association.

Thirty teachers and their guests heard Mr. Stone, who is the Ontario President of the Registered Music Teachers speak on the advantages of being a registered music teacher.

Mr. Stone, a composer, teacher and examiner from Toronto, spoke about the work of the Association and the problems it has encountered in an effort to achieve government recognition and a provincial standard of qualifications for music teachers.

He pointed out that teachers already belonging to Registered Music Teachers Association would achieve immediate qualification under a government system, thus avoiding long waiting periods for processing of applications.

Questions from the floor were addressed to Mr. Stone and a discussion ensued.

The luncheon meeting was chaired by vice-president, Wayne Vance in the absence of President Mrs. Dolores Wall.

Mr. Vance announced coming musical events, one of which will be the first student recital of 1969 to be held on March 8 at Sir John A. Macdonald School.

Mrs. Julia Van Ochten introduced Mr. Stone and he was thanked by Miss Lorraine Wardhaugh.

Woman Is Partner in Flying Services

EDMONTON (CP) — Mary Wilkin is a woman in a man's world, and she's happy staying that way.

Mrs. Wilkin, a tall attractive blonde who is mother of three teen-age sons and a daughter, is a partner in Centennial Flying Services Ltd. of Edmonton, a company that offers aircraft rentals as well as government-approved flying lessons.

"As long as you remain a woman in a man's world, you're all right," she says. "But if you start trying to beat them in their own game, you're dead.

"The day you see me at work in a pair of coveralls will be a frosty Friday. . . ."

Recently divorced, she was almost pushed into the business partnership with Frank Elkins by the need to provide her children with the kind of mother they could respect.

"It was such a new world and I hated to leave the security of home," she says. "When the marriage broke up, it was either a case of the children and myself crippling along or picking up the pieces and surviving."

She was the driving force behind Centennial Flying Services.

"The more I flew with Frank, the better I liked the idea. He had doubts but I had terrific faith in him. He has a good reputation and he's reliable.

"Some people think I'm pretty goofy, but there's method in my madness. If you believe in what you're doing and have faith, things are bound to work out.

" . . . I think the boys are kind of proud that I'm in this business."

Mrs. Wilkin hasn't flown recently because of three automobile accidents, but plans to get back into the swing of things in fairly short order.

"I'm going to start flying again," she says. "I lost confidence and didn't trust myself."

She feels a pilot's licence gives the holder a great deal of satisfaction.

"It can put some steel into anyone, even a little henpecked guy."

Sociologist's Prediction Brings Irate Response

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband read in the paper where some sociologist made the prediction that within two years, women will be going topless to the corner drugstore and supermarket. He says if this happens he is going to the neighborhood theatre completely nude and if he is arrested for indecent exposure, he will hire a lawyer and take it to the Supreme Court if necessary.

My husband insists that while women keep screaming their heads off demanding equal rights, they have no more rights than men. He says if men showed as much of their bodies in offices and bars and restaurants, they would be clapped in the cooler.

Do you believe, Ann, that in two years things will have gone that far? Please say it isn't so! — AFRAID OF THE FUTURE.

DEAR AFRAID: Far be it from me to guess what the world will be like two years from now. If anyone had told me two years ago that coeds would dance naked in Madison, Wisconsin, or that performers at Yale would peel off all their clothes and invite the audience to do the same (many did!), I would not have believed it. So. madame, please excuse me if I refuse to make any predictions.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a terrible problem and don't know where to turn for help. First of all, let me say I am 40 years of age and have been arrested twice this month for shoplifting. I can't resist pretty nightgowns.

I went to a doctor who told me that shoplifting was only a symptom of my real problem. Nymphomania. He gave me some pills that made me worse. I started to go out with homosexuals. Before long I dropped the gay boys and became interested in a woman who was ten years my senior. She got me mixed up with dope. After three months of freaking out, I checked into a sanitarium. It was there that I fell in love with a 21-year-old boy. (He was a dishwasher.) The guy is very nice but he is a necrophiliac. All he wants to do is make love in the cemetery.

Please, Ann Landers, don't tell me to drop him. Tell me how to cure him. Thank you. — A GREATFUL READER.

DEAR READER: Never mind about him. I'm interested in you. Please tell me how a guy who can't even spell "grateful" got into Yale in the first place.

And how do you manage to stay there when you spend so much time writing phony letters to Ann Landers? I have come to recognize your stationary, Buster, and the New Haven postmark helps a lot, too.

Have a heart and lay off, will you please?

* * *

DEAR ANN: My wife is sharing a hospital room with a woman who also had a hysterectomy. This woman's husband comes to visit her every day and brings (under his coat) her pet poodle. He says it cheers her up to see Frenchy.

My wife likes dogs but not in the hospital. She doesn't want to make any trouble, but I think it is very inconsiderate to bring a dog into a semi-private sick room. What do you think? — S.O.S.

DEAR S.O.S.: It's worse than inconsiderate. It's outrageous. It's also against the law. Report this screwball to the floor supervisor at once.

Home and School Association News

PRINCE CHARLES SCHOOL

On Wednesday evening, Feb. 19 the monthly meeting of Prince Charles Home and School Association was held and president, David Thompson welcomed a large number of interested parents of Prince Charles School students as well as many guests from the Queen Mary Home and School Association.

The theme of this most interesting and thought provoking meeting was "Family Life Education and Educational Sexuality". L. Moore, Principal of Prince Charles School introduced a well known and knowledgeable panel which included Dr. Elizabeth Scott, gynecologist; Mrs. V. Castellano, family counselor; Rev. William Lamb, pastor, Holloway Street United Church and W. Cochrane, physical education and health supervisor, Hastings County Board of Education. Mr. Moore was moderator.

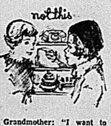
Following a brief introduction to the evening's subject by Dr. Scott and comments by the other members of the panel, an informative film entitled "Parent to Child About Sex" was shown. This film had been procured from the Wayne State University in Michigan and brought about many interesting queries during the next half hour which was devoted to discussion groups during which group leaders posed questions relating to the film.

Refreshments, prepared by the mothers of the grades three and four pupils were served, providing a pleasant period of relaxation. However, the parents were anxious to resume the program. Questions written by the parents were presented to the panel for their advice and opinions, and in this area, the expertness of the panel manifested itself by providing satisfactory answers to the various problems.

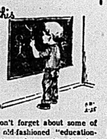
This lengthy and instructive meeting was reluctantly brought to a close and sincere appreciation was expressed to members of the panel. Mr. Thompson reminded the parents of the Saturday morning movies and cartoons to be shown March 1 at Prince Charles School.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Grandmother: "I want to get my grandson an educational toy for his birthday, but I'm not sure what he would like. There are so many new things on the market and they all look so scientific and wonderful."



Don't forget about some of the old-fashioned "educational" toys when you're shopping for a child's gift. The small blackboard, for example, is still a fascinating item for children.

The value of familiar things is sometimes overlooked in the constant effort to provide new and stimulating toys for young children.

Alouette Club Enjoys 'Old Time' Social

The spirit of the winter carnival was still floating in the air when the French Alouette Club for Belleville and region with members and friends gathered in Trenton, last Saturday night, for an evening of music and dance in the style of the "Good Old Time."

The event had been organized and prepared by the club entertainment committee under the direction of the vice-president, Gilles Lavoie. Ernie and Lucille Dempster were in charge of the music, dance and plays and all those present participated in the program.

Among the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Frappier, Downsview, Mr. and Mrs. James Hultquist, jr., Brampton. Mr. and Mrs. Frappier were introduced to the group by the president, Donat Cleement, as well as a few fairly new members, Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Martineau, and Mr. and Mrs. Levis Boudreau, of Trenton.

Between the dances, a number of games were enjoyed.

Spot dance prizes went to Mrs. Claire Hall and Bruno Rivard, and to Richard Charron and Mrs. Monique Leflamme. For the limbo dance, elimination of the contestants was difficult in the end between experts Paul Frappier, Levis Boudreau and the winner Real Lauzon.

Prizes for best costume went to Mrs. Monique Laflamme, as a cowboy, and Edmond Hall, second, as a well costumed lumberjack. A special consolation prize was awarded to Mrs. Solange Clement. Door prize went to Mrs. Mariette Noel de Tilly.

Lunch was almost a meal with ham, pork beans, French "cretons" and doughnuts. Everyone had much praise for the women who had prepared the lunch under the direction of Mrs. Jacqueline Hultquist.

The president, Mr. Clement, thanked everyone for their participation and specially those responsible for the success of the evening.

Successful Living

Reader Wants Info on Church of England Society

By DORIS CLARK

Some time in the latter part of the 19th century an organization existed in England called the Church of England Children's Society. It's concern was the welfare of children. Orphans and deserted babies were cared for and settled, where indicated, in secure foster homes.

Between 1882 and 1932 the Society was instrumental in moving many needy children from Britain to Canadian homes.

A section of how these children made out is to be part of the history of the Society now being written, and the Canadian Association of Social Workers has been asked for help in finding them.

C. of E. children transported to Canada found new life in the new land. Many made their mark; some have passed on. Who were they, what did they do, where did they live?

If you have any news at all about one of these Canadian foster children, do write to me so that I can pass your message along.

Dear Doris: About the nervous Sunday School teacher, I am nervous too and at times find my self tight-lipped, and even afraid to express myself. When I was asked to take the Bible topic at the Women's Auxiliary I was speechless. Then came a weak, "I'll try" — although I planned on playing sick the whole month ahead!

I did the studying anyway. Then came the night. Lo and behold I did brave it. I managed to stumble along somehow, and have taken several topics since.

I have managed to gather up enough courage to teach Sunday School three years now. But I have one fault. I speak too fast. How can I avoid this? — Still Sticking With It.

Dear Still: When a jittery teen-ager reads the scripture lesson, he may race through it so fast that he has sat down before you have time to think. It's a common fault of amateur speakers.

Get in front of your mirror again and time youself. Talk half as fast — I mean half — as you think you should. Stop between paragraphs to let the ideas sink in — to your head.

Then when you speak to your class, try a new approach. As well as measuring out your words, interject some questions, often. Get the class to show you by their response that you have slowed down enough for them to take hold of what you are saying and think about it.

Discussion is better than a straight speech anyway, when it comes to learning anything.

Orchids to you for sticking with it!

Dear Doris: Some time ago a woman wrote you to say she found it difficult to establish a steady correspondence.

When I receive a letter I intend to answer, I address an envelope and place the letter I have received in it. This I fasten to a clipboard with others.

When I am ready to write I have the last letter of my friend to read and it relaxes me as though she were present. It really does add warmth to the one I will write. — Hoping To Help.

Dear Hoping: Fine. Reading a letter over is excellent for getting into the mood to chat with a friend on paper. Pen pals will pick up your clipboard idea too.

Mulligatawny Is Good Main Course Soup

By MARY MOORE

The Husky Tower gives you a dazzling panoramic view of Calgary. You sip your Mulligatawny or taste your Quiche Lorraine and Pecan Pie while the dining-room revolves and the glorious foothills of the Rockies ever so slowly come into view. It is a spine-tingling experience that was fitted into a busy twenty-four-hour visit. Still thinking of that Mulligatawny soup I was whisked to the TV2 station for an interview but as soon as I was airborne on Air Canada's Flight 812 for home I made notes to remind me of those soup ingredients.

I may not have reproduced the Husky Tower version but it is a delicious facsimile.

I am giving it here today because as I write it is soup weather — a new fall of snow covers my garden and the temperature is ten degrees above and the sun is shining.

MULLIGATAWNY (a main course soup)

one 3 to 3½-lb. chicken (see below)
12 cups water
2 chicken oxo cubes
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon M.S.G. (accent)
2 cups chopped mild onion (or 1 cup bottled flakes)
2 cups diced (¼") carrots
two - third cup raw long grain rice
1 cup finely chopped celery
1 (or 2) teaspoons curry powder

Simmer the chicken in the water with the gizzard and heart until meat nearly falls from bones—about two hours. Let cool to lukewarm, lift the chicken to tray and strip away skin and bones. Chop meat, watching for any tiny spine and rib bones that you may have missed. I had a generous 3½ cups that weighed 1¼ pounds. Strain and chill broth. Skim off fat. I had 10 cups strained broth. Return to soup pot and add all ingredients except chicken meat and cook until rice is tender. Add meat and heat through. I had 13 cups which I suppose in any houshold is 13 servings.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Fricassee of Chicken; Buttered Noodles with Minced Chives; Glazed Baked Acorn Squash; Assorted Fresh Fruits; Assorted Cheeses and Crackers; Tea.

NOTES: 1) I added more curry powder — 2 teaspoons in all — because our crowd loves it. 2) I added the chicken liver to the chicken pot a minute before it was removed from heat to cool.

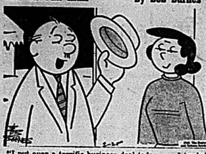
THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes



"I put over a terrific business deal today - - - I traded a peanut butter and jelly sandwich for a half of a banana and a piece of chocolate cake."

Mariner Off On Mars Trip

CAPE KENNEDY — An unmanned Mariner "seeing-eye" spacecraft streaked today toward Mars on a five-month 226,000,000-mile journey to probe secrets of the mysterious Red Planet.

The 901-pound spacecraft hurled into space from an Atlas Centaur rocket Monday night, was the first of two which the United States is sending to explore Mars this year.

Mariner cast a glow visible for miles as it rocketed from Cape Kennedy, Fla. Scientists tracked it for 4½ hours, then locked its navigation equipment on two guide points, the sun and Canopus, the brightest star in the southern hemisphere.

Controllers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena plan to fine-tune Mariner's course in about four days.

"We don't expect to determine whether life exists on Mars - - - we may be able to establish whether it could exist or possibly even whether it did," said Dr. Robert Leighton of the California Institute of Technology. He's chief scientist for the television experiments.

Bertrand Likely to Be Drafted As UN Leader

QUEBEC (CP) — An informant says Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand would prefer to step down but will likely be drafted as permanent leader of the Union Nationale party.

The informant, a prominent figure in the Union Nationale hierarchy, described the personal views of the party's 52-year-old interim leader by saying Monday:

"Let's say Mr. Bertrand is not overly tempted by the leadership job.

"Apparently he has recovered completely from his heart troubles. But because of the demands of the job he thinks a younger man would be preferable."

However, Union Nationale insiders say Mr. Bertrand will likely be coaxed into continuing to lead the party to give newcomers time to prepare for the leadership job.

The leadership in the ruling Union Nationale is the dominant issue in provincial politics as the Quebec national assembly opens a new session at 3 p.m. today.

In Montreal Sunday, Mr. Bertrand said a leadership convention should be held to choose a permanent successor to the late premier Daniel Johnson, who died of a heart attack Sept. 26.

But the party source said Monday that such a convention might not be necessary because "if Mr. Bertrand decides to be a candidate he may be the only candidate."

The informant said Mr. Bertrand intends to consult cabinet colleagues during the next three weeks before announcing his decision at a party meeting here March 14-15.

The source said almost all cabinet ministers want the premier to continue as party leader "at least for a couple of years."

This is because three leading "younger" Union Nationale politicians are not yet considered ready for the job by all groups in the party.

The younger aspirants for leader are generally considered as: Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal, 42, who entered politics in 1967; Mario Beaulieu, 38, the party's chief organizer and a candidate in the March 3 provincial byelection in Montreal Dorion; and Marcel Masse, 32, minister without portfolio.

The session beginning today is the first since the legislative council, or upper house in Quebec, was abolished and the legislative assembly was renamed the national assembly of Quebec.

Standings are: Union Nationale 55, Liberal 49, Independent 3, Vacant 1—total 108.

North Ontario Indians Get Medical Help

TORONTO (CP) — A federal government program to increase medical services for Northern Ontario Indians and Eskimos has started, using University of Toronto physicians.

The doctors, who are staffing a 70-bed hospital at Sioux Lookout, Ont., 180 miles northwest of the Lakehead, cover a large area north to Hudson's Bay, west to the Manitoba border and east to Hearst, Ont.

The hospital is responsible for the care of 8,000 Indians who live north of the Canadian National Railways main line. The area lacks roads and the only communication for five nursing stations is by radio-telephone and chartered aircraft.

Dr. Harry W. Bain, chief of pediatrics at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children and head of the University of Toronto's pediatrics department, originated the idea of staffing the Sioux Lookout hospital.

Dr. Bain approached the federal government in May, 1968, with the idea of helping Indian and Eskimo children.

Dr. Allan Handysides and Dr. James Boone, both of the Sick Children's Hospital, now are at Sioux Lookout and two others will join them next week.

The federal government will sponsor a University of Toronto program to send two doctors to Sioux Lookout for two years.

Students May Visit Arctic

KITCHENER (CP) — Efforts of two senior public school pupils here could lead to an unusual student exchange project.

The students donated books to the centennial library at Inuvik, N.W.T. Now, S. N. Hodgson, NWT commissioner, wants them to visit the Arctic community in June.

Russell Buie, former Kitchener public schools superintendent who just returned from a similar post in the Inuvik area, suggested Monday that the invitation be expanded to an exchange between Kitchener public school students and Eskimo and Indian children from Inuvik.

How to Be Rude in A Nice Parliamentary Way

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has used the word "hell" three times so far in this session of Parliament.

John Lundrigan, Conservative MP for Gander-Twillingate, has referred to Ray Perrault, Liberal member for Burnaby-Seymour, as the "honorable member for BS."

Russell MacEwan, Conservative MP for Central Nova, has addressed himself to Mr. Trudeau with "Heil Hitler."

But such Commons language is not considered unparliamentary or even harsh.

The severest epithet among politicians is "liar" and any MP who uses it in the Commons against another MP has to withdraw it.

But there are ways around even this rule.

Without batting an eye, the late Jimmy Gardiner, Liberal agriculture minister, once heard himself described as "having no more regard for the truth than a tomcat has for a marriage licence."

A former Liberal labor minister, Milton Gregg, was once called a coward in the Commons. As a winner of the Victoria Cross, he did not feel he had to ask to have the remark withdrawn.

The book of official parliamentary rules and forms in Canada lists expressions considered unparliamentary, but some of these often get by in the Commons these days.

Among the banned expressions listed under abusive and insulting language are:

Villains, impertinence, rude remarks, gross calumny, impudence, ruffianism, hypocrite, Pharisee, murderer, hooligan, blackguard, traitor, malignant slander, scurrilous, dishonest, vicious, vulgar, criminal, corrupt, insulting dog, jackass, swine, cheat, and stool-pigeon.

Canada, China Stage Brief Meeting Friday

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations between Canada and Communist China for the exchange of diplomatic recognition have so far consisted of one short meeting, informed sources said.

This meeting was held last Friday in Stockholm between officials of the Canadian and Chinese embassies. Prior to this there had been three phone calls—two from the Canadian embassy and one in return from the Chinese.

The Canadian embassy now is awaiting further word from the Chinese on where and when serious negotiations should begin.

So far there had been no indication from Peking about its attitude toward Canadian recognition. Anything less than enthusiasm on Peking's part could mean extremely delicate negotiations, say officials.

Some persons in the external affairs department feel the government made a serious diplomatic blunder in announcing, in advance of these negotiations, that Canada was willing to break relations with the Nationalist Chinese regime on Taiwan in order to exchange diplomats with the mainland government.

Prime Minister Trudeau, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and the official Liberal platform in the 1968 general election all indicated that recognition of Peking would be tied to an acknowledgement of the Taiwan government.

There are fears Peking, familiar with Canada's position, will make increasingly difficult demands.

A file, outlining all the pros and cons of recognition of Peking, was prepared by the department late last year, and the cabinet had been fully briefed before it decided, on Jan. 30, to go ahead with negotiations, even at the expense of breaking diplomatic ties with Taiwan.

Constitutional Change Must Make Life Better

MONTREAL (CP) — Any change in the Canadian constitution must be realistic enough to provide "for a better life" and not be merely a substitution of words on paper, Premier John Robarts of Ontario said Monday night.

While changes "must be dealt with very carefully," he said, "we cannot take forever to do it."

But solution of short-term problems could be beneficial to any remaking of the constitution.

Mr. Robarts made the remarks at ceremonies where he and Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec were recipients of the Temple Emanu-El Brotherhood Citation of Merit.

The Rabbi Dr. Stern Award—named after the temple's spiritual leader, Dr. Harry J. Stern—was presented to the musical Brott family of Montreal.

They are Dr. Alexander Brott, his wife and two sons, Boris and Denis.

The premiers and the Brott family were honored for their contributions to greater understanding and fellowship among people.

Indians May Be Exempt From Treaty on Ducks

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is considering the exemption of Indians from provisions of an international treaty protecting migratory birds, the Commons was informed Monday.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in reply to Robert Simpson (PC—Churchill) that this is one of a number of questions involving Indian rights under study by Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien.

Mr. Simpson asked whether the government is considering renegotiation of the international migratory birds convention, a treaty among Canada, the United States and Mexico, to take account of Indian rights.

In recent test cases, the Supreme Court of Canada has ruled that the treaty applies to Indians who have maintained their right to kill protected game is not limited by the treaty.

Hundreds of Americans Involuntarily Sterilized

NEW YORK (AP) — Hundreds of mentally ill Americans have been subjected to involuntary sterilization in recent years in six states whose laws on the subject may be affected by a U.S. Supreme Court review.

Indiana, one of the six, sterilized 706 males and 870 females from 1936 to 1962.

The Supreme Court agreed Monday to grant a hearing to a Nebraska woman who challenged the right of state officials to have her sterilized. She was Gloria Cavitt, 37, of Grand Islands, who has had eight children in 14 years.

Nebraska law, which applies only to patients at the Beatrice State Home for the Feeble-Minded, provides that sterilization may be imposed by a board of examiners as a condition for parole or discharge. Mrs. Cavitt is a patient at the home.

In 1964, 1965 and 1966, Nebraska sterilized 11 males and 16 females.

In California, the medical director of a state hospital can order the sterilization of any mentally retarded or mentally ill patient, subject to the objections of relatives or friends. The objections may, however, be overruled by a court.

Dr. William F. Sheeley, commissioner of the Indiana state department of mental health, Monday ordered the sterilization of two woman mental patients—the first such orders in 21 months.

Indiana law provides for sterilization, after open hearings, of the feeble-minded, epileptic and hereditary insane if the action is deemed to be "in the best interests of the patient and of society."

In Maine, a subject in a state institution may be sterilized by consent of guardian or relatives or by court order. The state has had one such case in the last five years.

Maine residents not in an institution may be sterilized upon the approval of a three-doctor board for "the prevention of reproduction of further feeble-mindedness or for therapeutic treatment of certain forms of mental disease." Sterilizations in this category average about five a year.

Wisconsin law authorizes the sterilization of institution patients if there is unanimous agreement by a surgeon, psychiatrist and institution director that "procreation is inadvisable." The state has not sterilized anybody in the last two years.

The sixth state with a sterilization law is North Carolina. Sue L. Casebolt, executive secretary of the state eugenics board says: "I can't remember the last time we had a hearing."

In North Carolina cases may be brought before the eugenics board by any penal or charitable institution, mental hospital or welfare organization.

Singing Nun – St. Joseph's Choir in the Wings

Nancy Bailie, Pamela Hendry and Elizabeth Woodcock Competed

Three Day Music Festival Opens to Cheers from Participants

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Suddenly you are alone in the world. Around you is complete silence, and in front of you are rows and rows of faces, watching. You mount the platform, and begin to sing praying you won't forget the words.

If you have ever had the experience of singing a solo, you can understand perfectly. If you have not, you can only try to imagine what it's like.

At Monday's session of the Rotary Music Festival, at St. Andrew's Church and St. Thomas' Parish Hall, there were many soloists singing or playing instruments.

The setting of St. Andrew's Church can be particularly awesome for a soloist — of any kind.

With the large high vaulted ceiling and huge interior, to an aspiring singer it can take on the dimensions of Carnegie Hall.

What is it actually like to get up in front of a vast audience, and an adjudicator and perform?

Three young women who went through it all, Pamela Hendry, Elizabeth Woodcock and Nancy Bailie competing in the oratorio solo class — told how it was.

"I thoroughly enojyed it — it's just great, and I haven't forgotten my lines yet", said Pamela.

"She's confident like that", put in Elizabeth. "Me, I just get butterflies. I just try to think of what I'm singing. I find if you are too concerned about little things you could just fluff it," she added.

"The main thing is to keep all your thoughts on your words," Miss Woodcock emphasized.

Nancy Bailie, the only one of the group showing a calm exterior to the world said it has been over 10 years she has been actively singing.

"My throat seems to swallow by itself, but I try to concentrate on the words", she said.

"And forget about the adjudicator," asserted Pamela.

What about previous singing training?

Pamela explained she has passed her grade 8 singing exam from the Royal Toronto Conservatory of Music. She has been singing in festivals for two years, but had no singing lessons as such.

Elizabeth, has taken voice training for seven years, and is currently working on her Grade 8 singing exam. Nancy has never taken singing lessons before in her life.

Their motives for entering the festival were varied, though. Elizabeth's motive: "I wanted to have my singing adjudicated. "Nancy, on the other hand, got involved "on a whim". Pamela is Elizabeth's friend, and since Elizabeth was entering, Pamela went along for the ride.

Pamela is currently taking teacher training at OSD, and Elizabeth is a public school teacher. Nancy is a housewife.

Nancy summed the whole thing up very well, "singing is a talent, and if you can do it, you might as well try."

Another group of soloists at St. Andrew's last evening were Steve Levick, Clyde Dawson, Bruce Pearce and Leslie Walcott.

Most of the boys were in the midst of singing lessons and were active participants in their church choirs. But, for most of them, it was their first festival.

First prize winner Steve Levick thought the whole thing was "scary". "My legs were shaking. I thought the adjudicator was nice, and I like his accent, too."

"I had goosepimples on my goosepimples" is the way Leslie Walcott put it, "but I like it more than any singing I do at my house."

Parents Get Chance to See Children Perform

By DONALD MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

Smiling, happy kids — hundreds of them trouped into St. Andrew's Church yesterday afternoon to participate in the Rotary sponsored Music Festival.

Grades one, two and three started the afternoon session with grade four choirs finishing off the competition after the late afternoon coffee-break.

Said one parent sitting in the back of the church listening "this is one of the advantages from the festival that perhaps few people think of."

"Really, how often do parents actually get a chance to get out and see what their children can do?"

Another advantage derived from the festival besides the obvious ones of learning to compete and just plain learning and improving is the pleasure the children get from performing.

It was especially obvious yesterday afternoon when the youngest competitors in the whole festival took part.

"Why didn't we sing another one," piped out one grade one student from Our Lady of Fatima school as the group was leaving the church after listening to the advice of the adjudicator, Donald Francke.

"The man said we made a couple of mistakes."

"Oh! Never mind, we won," said another nearby student.

And so it went.

Over in St. Thomas' Parish Hall it was the younger piano soloists who performed before the watchful ear and eye of the instrumental adjudicator, Ronald Smith.

Again it was difficult to decide whether it was the performance or the delight of the performers that made the show for the numerous parents and spectators.

Adjudicator, Donald Francke described her as singing "very well indeed."

Hint Grants May Halt

Board in Planning Bind Over New Wings

A hint that the province of Ontario may withdraw cash grants for building of vocational wings on secondary schools was given to Hastings County board of education last night.

That was the interpretation the trustees placed on the department of education's request that approval for all secondary school construction up to 1973 must be submitted to the department by March 14.

"Do you mean we must submit a tentative capital budget for schools we aren't yet sure we need and haven't yet planned to build?" asked Mrs. Jean Hutchison, Trenton. "Somebody had better talk to the minister."

A recent memorandum from the department informed boards that no cash payments for vocational school construction will be made unless tentive proposals are submitted by March 14. Sketch plans must go to the department by Aug. 29.

At the present time, the province gives cash grants to cover 75 per cent of the cost of constructing vocational departments in composite schools.

According to predictions based on population growth, the county may require 2,850 additional pupil spaces in secondary schools within the next four years.

To protect the interests of the county a tentative building proposal for these spaces will be submitted to the department, although future detailed studies may dictate withdrawal of one or more of these proposals.

Along with the motion to send the proposals to the department, went the board's vote of thanks to superintendent of plant, W. J. B. Keith for spotting the provision in "an obscurely worded" memo from the department.

"I'm sure we are one of the few boards in the province to find this clause,' director of education Eric Runacres told the board.

"What it really means, in our opinion, is that the province plans to opt out of vocational cash grants," Mr. Keith commented.

"Any school building proposals submitted after March 14 will not be eligible for the grants. By getting our probable needs in to the department now we are buying a little time until Aug. 29, when we must have sketches ready to submit."

Former Boards Dissolve Feb. 28

All former school boards in Hastings County, reconstituted as committees of Hastings County Board of Education last Dec. 18, will cease to exist Feb. 28.

The county board last night voted to terminate the services of all trustees with former boards. Under legislation setting up county boards, the former boards were required to serve during the transition period for as long as their services were required.

Also terminated is the services of the secretary-treasurers of the boards. R. O. Dulmage said they are all men with full time jobs, who served as secretary-treasurers on a part time basis.

The only exception to the dissolution rule is Trenton Board of Education, which will continue to act as a committee until the end of March to assist with a property transfer for the new Marmora St. School. The trustees will receive no honorarium for their extra month's work.

Two Rinks Pull Upsets in Women's Bonspiel

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP) — The spotlight turned to Alberta and Ontario after two rounds Monday in the Canadian women's curling championship.

Despite pre-tournament betting on Manitoba and Saskatchewan, people are starting to talk about Simmone Flynn of Medicine Hat, Alta., and June Shaw of Kenora, Ont., and how they stayed undefeated after two games.

Mrs. Flynn, who has won the southern Alberta playoffs four times, says she picked up a lot of her strategy from playing on mixed rinks.

"Everythin, I've learned strategy-wise has been from men," she said after her second-round, 10-5 win over Saskatchewan in the 10-rink, round-robin event.

Bunched in third place are six provincial champions—Joyce McKee of Saskatoon, Sask., Vi Pike of Grand Falls, Nfld., Mary Toole of Charlottetown, Phyllis Chapman of Moncton, N.B., Mae Shaw of Kimberley, B.C., and Pat Brunsdon of Winnipeg.

Holding down last spot with two losses are Mary Naddof of North Sydney, N.S., and Loena MacKimmie of Lachute, Que.

The third round at 9:30 a.m. EST today had Newfoundland going against Saskatchewan, British Columbia against Ontario, Nova Scotia against New Brunswick, Manitoba against Quebec and P.E.I. against Alberta.

In second round play, New Brunswick defeated Quebec 11-4, Manitoba beat P.E.I. 13-6, Alberta downed Saskatchewan 10-5, B.C. edged Newfoundland 9-7, and Ontario disposed of Nova Scotia 9-2.

Alberta built up a 5-0 lead over Saskatchewan after two rounds and never looked back as Miss McKee had trouble with her draw weight on what some skips called heavy ice.

Such was not the case with Mrs. Flynn.

"I love the ice here," she said. "It's keen and true and once you have read it, it stays that way."

Ontario skip Mrs. Shaw had an easy time handling Nova Scotia although Miss Nadoff took a 1-0 lead after the first end.

Mrs. Shaw got the single back in the second then proceeded to steal points in the next fiv ends.

The Ontario skip needed treatment Sunday when a stiff neck threatened to hamper her game.

"It was just a sore muscle, but it's all right now," she said.

Collecting bounty on certain species of wildlife — commonly herded together under the label of "predators" — seems to be a popular Ontario wilderness pastime in the heart of Macdonald-Cartier Freeway country.

Since there doesn't seem to be too many ranchers in these here parts riding herd on anything that could be on any self-respecting predator's menu, we can only assume that bounties are, to some extent, a throwback to the musket-packin' pioneer days.

The upshot of the freewheeling gunslinging has left the native wolf population, for example, sadly depleted and, in many areas of the continent, facing extinction.

At one time, of course, there was good reason to draw a bead on Little Red Riding Hood's arch-enemy: he'd haul off a prince's portion of mutton and beef from the back 40 quicker than farmers could bury the carcasses.

Today, there doesn't seem to be sufficient threat to domestic animals to authorize, much less encourage the wholesale slaughter of wolves on sight for an easy $25, or whatever the local bounty happens to be.

In preying on the weak, the wolf has helped keep the size of wild animal herds in balance with available habitat. By killing diseased deer, for example, a wolf is indirectly aiding the well-being of an entire herd.

Moreover, studies under controlled conditions at Algonquin Park have shown conservationists that even in a completely protected environment, wolves maintain a steady density of about one animal to every 10 square miles and do not deplete the natural supply of their prey.

But Lupus Carnivoris is still on everybody's "WANTED" poster — not to rid the landscape of a nuisance, but too often merely for the lucrative bounty.

What would happen to some of our weekend would-be big game hunters in states like Michigan and Wisconsin, where not only are there no wolf bounties, but hunters caught killing wolves are liable to $100 fines and jail sentences.

What gets an Ontario sharpshooter a $25 bounty could land a Wisconsin hunter up to six months in the jug.

To top it off, a 40-year study undertaken in Missouri indicated that the bounty system has not been proven effective in controlling the population of designated wildlife — which is surely the purpose of the scheme.

A leading Missouri conservationist — game research biologist Frank W. Sampson toted up his state's tab for putting a price on the heads of certain members of the wildlife population.

He found that some $1,761,000 of Missouri taxpayers' money had been paid out in bounties over the last 22 years in a program that researchers were forced to label ineffective.

It seems to be a question of shooting first, and asking for the bill later.

North Stars Agreeable To Blair's Relaxed Manner

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The relaxed leadership of Wren Blair seems to be agreeing with Minnesota North Stars.

When Blair reassumed the coaching duties a few weeks ago, he said it would not be the end of the world if the North Stars failed to make the National Hockey League playoffs.

That statement removed much of the pressure, and the North Stars now appear to have an excellent chance of gaining a playoff berth in the Western Division.

Minnesota took another step in that direction Monday night by playing to a 1-1 tie against Los Angeles Kings before 6,512 fans in the California city.

The tie gave the North Stars 42 points and undisputed possession of fourth place in the West, one point ahead of Philadelphia Flyers, who were idle.

The North Stars seemed headed to a victory until Howie Menard of Los Angeles scored his eighth goal of the season at 18:51 of the final period.

Goaltender Cesare Maniago of Minnesota seemed to have Menard's shot under control, but it trickled past him into the net. Danny Grant's 26th goal, at 19:54 of the second period on a power play, had given Minnesota a 1-0 lead.

Maniago stopped 32 shots while Gerry Desjardins of Los Angeles kicked out 29.

Blair, Minnesota's general manager, turned the coaching position over to John Muckler early this season. But when the North Stars had trouble winning under Muckler, Blair reclaimed the job he held all last season and for the first few weeks of this one.

Philadelphia, meanwhile, denied it is considering trading goaltender Bernie Parent to Toronto Maple Leafs for suspended centre Mike Walton.

Bud Poile, the Flyers' general manager, said in Montreal Monday that "Parent is not available to Toronto for any player on their club at the present time."

Walton was suspended by Toronto manager-coach Punch Imlach last Thursday when the forward walked out on the team in a dispute about the amount of ice time he was receiving.

There was speculation that the 24-year-old Walton, a 15-goal scorer this season, would be traded to Philadelphia for either Parent or goaltender Doug Favell and forward Brit Selby.

Injury Forces Magnussen To Miss World Competition

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP-AP) —Karen Magnussen of Vancouver, sitting in a wheelchair on the sidelines of the Broadmoor Arena, fondled a medallion depicting the Kremlin given her by a Russian friend and cried quietly.

On the ice, spinning and pirouetting through their routines, were the figure skaters against whom Karen was supposed to start competing today in the world championships.

"I'll just sit here and root for the whole bunch," Karen said. "No, I don't have any favorites except Linda."

Linda is Linda Corbonetto, 19, of Toronto, Karen's teammate on the Canadian team and also the Canadian women's singles champion.

Linda broke down, too, when a doctor specialist reported that Karen had broken bones in both her legs and would have to spend the next six weeks in a wheelchair.

The compulsory school figures in the ladies' singles was to start at 8 a.m. MST (10 a.m. EST) today with Gabriele Seyfert, a blonde beauty from East Germany, the heavy favorite to replace Olympic champion Peggy Fleming of the United States, now a professional, as world champion.

The Russians are expected to sweep all the medals in the pairs and Britain's dazzling Diane Tower and Bernard Ford are regarded as cinches in the free dance. Chief threats in the dance are the North American champions, Donna Taylor and Bruce Lennie of Toronto.

The loss of Miss Magnussen was a shock to the Canadian team.

Negotiations Produce Progress

NEW YORK AP) — Negotiators for major league baseball's players and club owners planned to return to the bargaining table today following a marathon Monday night session which failed to produce a settlement of their bitter pension dispute.

"Everybody is just too fatigued to continue," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players' Association, as he emerged from the nine-hour meeting shortly after 3 a.m. EST.

Miller reported that "progress is being made but we still have some problems." He said he would meet again with John Gaherin, the owner representative, and player representatives from the 24 major league clubs.

Miller, obviously tired after the meetings, which began at 4 p.m., broke for dinner at 7 p.m. and resumed at 9 p.m., indicated a published report that the dispute had been settled took the negotiators by surprise late Monday night.

The New York Daily News reported that a settlement had been reached in a story from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

"There was some positive progress," Gaherin said. Neither he nor Miller would elaborate.

The players, who have asked association members to boycott spring training, want increased pension benefits, disability benefits, retirement at the age of 45, improved widow's benefits, health care benefits, changes in life insurance coverage and severance pay.

The owners, who paid $4,100,000 a year into the pension plan in the past, originally offered an additional $1,000,000 for an annual total of $5,100,000.

Peter Crowle Honored For Soccer Contributions

By GEORGE H. CARVER

One of the city's outstanding sportsmen was signally honored at a presentation party held in the armouries sergeants' mess Saturday night.

Peter Crowle, associated for the past nine years with the Parsons' Soccer Club as player-player-coach, coach-and-manager, and chief organizer of minor soccer as well as the city schools, was presented with a handsome table lighter from club members, officials and friends on the eve of his departure for a new position and home in Toronto.

Verbal tributes were paid by the club sponsor for the past decade, Bruce Parsons of Parsons' Cleaners, former team-mate Herb Mueller, now a resident of Toronto and the writer who made the presentation.

A resident of this city for the past 23 years, Mr. Crowle was associated with the Vagden Mills and Deacon Brothers. Recently he accepted a position with the Gorman Knitting Mills, of Scarborough.

Cornish-born Peter has been associated with soccer since he was fourteen years of age. In Belleville he joined the Belleville United Club in 1948 when the sport was on pay-as-you-play basis.

"Boyd Finlay was the manager. We bought our own jerseys and paid our own transportation. We paid 25 cents per game before we played."

Later he joined the Northern Electric Club and followed up with the Parsons' Club in 1959. He was captain of the team from 1960-1963 taking over as player-coach, then coach and manager.

He was chiefly responsible for raising the sport from the doldrums to the present high status it holds in sports circles in the city and district.

He persuaded city hall to grant a piece of land on Zwick's Island for a new playing field and with club members labored to put the field into playing shape.

He brought the Parsons' Club to its finest year in 1966 when the team missed the Kingston District League championship by a single point. "This," he says, "was the finest soccer club this city has produced."

Peter felt that soccer should be part of minor sports and the sports scene of public and high schools. He was mainly instrumental in organizing minor soccer. In 1968 he had nine teams playing and it was so successful the league has now expanded to eleven clubs.

He helped organize the sport in the city schools and all told had some 500 youngsters, minors and students playing last year.

He is proud of the fact that none of the 500 soccer youths ever "got into trouble." "Any frustrations the youngsters may have had were worked out on the soccer fields of the city. I am proud of them."

"I'm sure the people here are convinced that soccer is a great sport for the youngsters and I'm equally sure the work will be carried on after such wonderful initial success."

The Parsons and their ladies gave Mr. Mueller a standing ovation. "Herb," a former goalie and halfback, was associated here with the Sun Valley Motor Hotel as master chef and was the Buddy Rich-Gene Krupa of his own musical combo. He left the city recently to become Director of Foods of the Gainsborough Kitchens, residing at West Hill, Toronto.

Mr. Parsons paid tribute to Peter, Mr. Mueller and the club as a whole stating he would continue his sponsorship. "I have enjoyed it," he said, "and when the club got into some financial difficulties, didn't mind them taking their trouble 'to the cleaners'."

Gordie Howe's HOCKEY

Ross (Lefty) Wilson sometimes pines for the days when life was simple - - - like five big trunks.

In the days of railroad travel, that's what the equipment was packed in. Four large square trunks for skates, pads, uniforms and the rest of it and one long trunk for the sticks.

Now in the age of air travel, Lefty and his assistant Dan Olesevich, have 27 trunks and bags and bundles to look after.

This includes two bundles of sticks, one medical trunk, one skate sharpening machine, individual bags for 18 players, one bag of sweaters, one for underwear and, as Lefty calls it "one bag of tricks."

The "bag of tricks" includes extra rubber pads, saws, pliers and so on.

Rushing to catch a charter flight after a game can be quite a problem for the trainers. It's loading the equipment on and off buses and on and off the plane and it is also working against the clock.

Now, of course, because of the scheduling we fly almost 100 per cent. This season, I think we have only a couple of train trips and they are the overnighters from Montreal to Windsor. This happens to be one of my favorite trips and I think all the players like it.

We leave Montreal at midnight and get into Windsor around 1 o'clock the next afternoon. To me this is real relaxing.

Looking back, I think the Red Wings were one of the first professional sports clubs to fly. I know we started in my first season - - - and that wasn't yesterday.

In those days, the bulk of our travelling was still by train and it has only been in the last 10 to 12 years that we've swung practically 100 per cent to planes.

It's nice and fast and so on, but I can still appreciate Gump Worsley's fear of the air. There are times when I'm not too comfortable myself.

But flying in a group like we do, some of us have found a cure. Start a rousing bridge game. It takes your mind off it.

Quebec Seniors Prefer Takeout Game

HAMILTON (CP) — Skip Ron Wright and his Quebec senior curling champions are living proof that the young set has no franchise on the running, takeout game.

The Quebec rink from Hudson, using a running weight to overcome the tricky ice at Hamilton Thistle Club, Monday defeated Saskatchewan and Manitoba in the first two rounds of the Canadian seniors curling championship.

"The ice is swinging so much that you must have the weight and play a straight defensive game if you're going to win," said the 63-year-old takeout king, who prefers a difficult double takeout to a draw to the four-foot circle.

"We just try to get the jump on the other team in the first few ends and then go to straight takeout."

Wright has John Crombia playing third, Bill Cook second and Jim Sloan lead.

The double victories Monday tied Quebec with Alberta, skipped by Gordon Walker of Edmonton, and the Gordon Moore rink from Victoria. Alf Phillips Sr. and his Ontario champions from Toronto also were undefeated after winning an opening-round game and drawing a bye in the evening matches.

Rinks skipped by 1967 champion Jim Murphy of Saint John, N.B., Fred Cochrane of Lumsden, Sask., and Stan Brooker of Noranda, representing Northern Ontario, were tied for fifth place with a victory and a loss going into today's third round at 9:30 a.m. EST.

Prince Edward Island, skipped by Dr. Wendell MacDonald of Charlottetown, drew a bye in the opening round and lost the second-round match. Dr. MacDonald has represented P.E.I. on every occasion since the national tournament was inaugurated in 1965.

Meet Nats Tonight

Selects Start Canadian Tour

WINNIPEG (CP) — Moscow Selects arrived Monday night after a 26-hour plane trip and immediately demanded ice time this morning to practise for tonight's game against Canada's national team.

The Russian hockey team was expected to arrive Monday afternoon and the delay in their arrival gave Gordon Juckes, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, tense moments.

The delay brought back the memory of a squabble last month with the Russian A team which had threatened to call off an exhibition schedule in Canada.

Anatoly Kostrukov, Selects, head coach, and assistant Anatoly Egorov were not available for comment, but Andrey Starovoitov was on hand to talk to Juckes.

Starovoitov is Russia's chief of hockey and formerly was chief referee.

He said through an interpreter the Selects are chosen from the best of the Moscow Senior Hockey League—"practically a national B team."

He said some of the players will be with the A team at the world tournament in Stockholm starting March 15.

"This team is made up of younger men than the A team", he said. "The games they play in Canada will give our younger players needed experience."

Six players from Canada's Ottawa-based national squad arrived here to join the Winnipeg-based team for tonight's game. They include Richie Bayes, Terry Caffrey and Tom Martin, Ottawa's top line.

Also in Winnipeg from Ottawa are Kevin O'Shea, rookie defenceman Ab DeMarco and goalie Steve Rex.

The teams take Wednesday off then play again Thursday.

Bateman Expos' Backstop

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (CP) — John Bateman, a husky six-foot-three catcher, is tagged the No. 1 man for duty behind the plate this season with the new expansion Montreal Expos of the National League.

Bateman has been hustling at the Expos' early training camp and has been hitting the ball well.

"I think we will have a better ball club than a lot of people expect," said Bateman. "We may be a bit weak in the number of experienced and capable pitchers and also at shortstop, but all in all I think we won't do bad."

Bateman, 26, played the last four season with the National League Houston Astros and for two of them did the bulk of the catching.

His best batting average was .279 in 1966. He broke into organized baseball in 1962 with Modesto of the California League, went up to Houston for two season and then was sent to Oklahoma City of the Pacific Coast League for two more.

Bateman and Ron Brand, also a catcher drafted from the Astros, came to West Palm Beach to work out with other batterymen despite the current owners-players dispute and partial strike by players seeking more television money for their pension fund.

"As far as I'm concerned, I signed a contract and thought I should honor it," said Bateman. "But I'm not lacking in support of the players."

Wegener is a towering six-foot, four-inch redhead who said he likes his fast ball best.

He is 22 and has been in the minors since 1964. He pitched last season with San Diego of the Pacific Coast League where he had a 4-12 record.

Dan McGinn, a lefty, is a curve ball specialist and something of a strikeout artist. He played last season with Asheville of the Southern Association and had a 6-3 record. In four seasons he has been in the majors only once, briefly with Cincinnati Reds, but at Asheville he struck out 133 batters in 110 innings.

Mike Oates said control has been his problem, but he feels he now has it licked. He is only 20 years old and was also with Asheville last season with an 0-3 record.

Dunlops Torment Belleville Teams

WHITBY — It has been years since the Whitby Dunlops tormented Belleville hockey fans, but last night they managed to do it again, defeating Belleville 10-3.

The Dunlops of today are a juvenile all-star team, and their win came over Belleville Western Tire, not Belleville's once-mighty MacFarlands of Senior "A" renown.

The win gave Whitby a 1-0 lead in games in the best two out of three series in the second round of the Ontario play downs.

Steve Moore, Bob Mulvihill and Bob Beecher scored single goals for the Western Tire crew in a rough game which saw the officials hand out a total of 23 penalties.

Western Tire coach Lou Smrke said after last night's debacle "We'll beat them in Belleville Sunday. That's a promise."

CFB Rink Scores Win in Opening Draw

TORONTO (CP) — Jo Hope of Canadian Forces Base Trenton defeated Alice Bell of Windsor 7-4 in the opening draw of the southern Ontario women's curling championships Monday.

Meanwhile Betty Fowler of Welland scored the most lopsided win of the fifteen rink, double - knockout competition when she trounced Margaret Johnstone of Toronto 15-7.

In other action, Helen Jewett of Unionville edged Marg Sanderson of Orillia 9-8 and Helen Burton of Exeter defeated Fern Reynolds of Lindsay 6-4.

In last place with two losses were rinks skipped by Merrill Rawding of Liverpool, N.S., Al Fahrner of Charleswood, Man., and John McCarthy of St. John's, Nfld.

Ruby White's Meaford Rink defeated Iris Wallace of Fort Carling 8-6, and Ermal Holland of Oshawa defeated Audrey Packard of Kitchener-Waterloo 12-8.

Esposito Nears Scoring Records

MONTREAL (CP) Phil Esposito, Boston Bruins' high-scoring centre, could make National Hockey League history this week.

Esposito made news of a different sort last week when he was given a two-game suspension by NHL president Clarence Campbell for shoving and punching a referee.

However, the Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., native will be back for Boston's four games this wek and needs only six points to break the NHL scoring record of 97 points currently shared by Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks.

While on the sidelines, Esposito, who currently has 92 points including a league-leading 56 assists, watched Hull gain some ground in the race. Hull now has a runner-up total of 83 points, including 42 goals, the most in the league.

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings is third with 81 points, followed by Mikita with 78.

There have been 115 more goals scored in the first 361 games than there were in the same number in 1967-68. The East Division has 1,206 of the 2,109 goals. Last season there had been 1,994 goals in 361 games, 1,117 by the East Division.

No one, however, is getting many points from St. Louis Blues, as goaltenders Jacques Plante and Glenn Hall continue to lead the Vezina Trophy race with a combined goals-against average of 1.95.

Farm Parley Seats Scarce

OTTAWA (CP) — Allocating 400 invitations among more than 2,000 agricultural organizations for the Canadian agriculture congress in Ottawa next month is causing the federal agriculture department some major headaches.

Dr. Roland Poirier, assistant deputy minister of agriculture and chairman of the steering committee planning the March 24-27 gathering, took a buffeting Monday from delegates at the annual meeting of the Canadian Horticultural Council when he told them that only 175 seats have been allocated to producer groups.

"The majority of producer groups are being disfranchised," protested Allan Claridge, president of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association.

He said 175 seats was "a minority" among the total.

"If our future is being discussed, we should have a say in it."

B. G. Wilson of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association complained that responsibility for speaking for nine Ontario commodity groups is being given to two boards that represent specific commodities.

Edward Gilmore of the B.C. Coast Vegetable Marketing Board asked how the non-invited groups would know who represented them at the conference.

Walter E. Kroeker, president of the Vegetable Growers' Association of Manitoba, said failure to give seats to western marketing boards ignores "a unique reservoir of experience in supply management that is not available in other sectors of agriculture."

Dr. Poirier replied that space and facilities have restricted attendance to 400. The names of the delegates would be published before the meeting.

There was no question of a minority since it was not a voting congress.

Fifty-five of the seats are divided among 10 provincial governments. The federal government will get 40, university agriculture faculties 25, food trade associations 25, suppliers of goods and services to farmers 15, wholesale and retail food marketing bodies 15.

The 175 farmer seats will be divided among farm organizations, producer associations, co-operatives and producer marketing boards.

Dr. Poirier said there are 50 seats not allocated and some of these are being given to groups already invited, following a flood of protests. Some were going to the horticultural council.

Postal Delivery Upset

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Postal delivery in Hamilton, Welland and the Toronto borough of North York was upset Monday by wildcat strikes and blanket sick calls as letter carriers protested new post office regulations.

In North York, 135 letter carriers held a two-hour walkout at two postal stations to protest pile-up of mail that resulted from cancellation of Saturday deliveries. They returned after postal officials agreed to discuss their complaint that the pileup was too big to handle in one day.

Casual labor was employed in Hamilton and Welland to handle the mail after letter carriers reported sick.

In Welland, the entire force of 28 mailmen stayed away.

The sick calls in Hamilton followed a meeting Sunday in St. Catharines at which some city carriers called for strike action to protest new regulations that require the men to remain on their routes during lunch break. There were also complaints about a "three-day" backlog of mail that would await the carriers every Monday.

Alex Edey, president of the union representing the city's carriers, said carriers now are on a five-day delivery schedule but clerks and sorters are still on a six-day schedule.

"So in effect on Monday morning, we have to carry a three-day backlog of mail."

Ontario May Ease Rules About Marking of Election Ballots

TORONTO (CP) — A select committee's report on election law Monday recommended that voters casting ballots be able to use a cross "or other mark with a pen or pencil in a white circle opposite the name of their choice."

The report, tabled in the legislature Monday, recommended the change with a view to decreasing the number of ballots disqualified because a voter failed to use a cross or used a pen instead of a pencil.

The committee also suggested candidates be allowed to offer refreshments, including alcoholic drinks, to potential supporters.

"The committee felt unanimously that the days when the electorate could be persuaded with food and drink are long past—if they ever did exist," chairman Edward Dunlop (PC—York-Forest Hill) told a news conference.

Candidates would be identified only by name unless there was a confusion in identities of similar names, in which case a ballot also would carry addresses.

Hospitals, homes for the aged, and similar institutions would be named polling places for persons resident there and unable to reach regular polling stations.

Among other proposals included in the report were:

—Abolition of election boards with duties assumed by returning officers or chief elections officer.

—Creation of a permanent office of returning officer.

—Nomination and election days fixed on a regular day of the week.

—Extension of the franchise to judges of federal and provincial courts, clerks of the peace and Crown attorneys previously disqualified.

—Extension of proxy voting to members of the armed forces, certain transportation workers and persons medically incapable of getting to a poll.

—Extension of advance poll voting privileges to any person who affirms he will be absent from home on election day.

Mr. Dunlop said the bill now is in the hands of Premier Robarts and that passage is necessary this year to prepare the province's electoral machinery.

Omitted from the report were recommendations on the lowering of the voting age, better ways of maintaining voters' lists and regulations governing financing for political parties and candidates.

These will be studied in a second report to be tabled in the 1970 session, preceding the general provincial election expected in 1971.

In other legislature business:

—Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) told a committee meeting he finds its intolerable that Ontario Housing Corp. cannot say when it will have housing for the 13,000 Metropolitan Toronto applicants. His remarks were in reply to a statement by H. W. Suters, OHC managing director who said certain "imponderables," would dictate how much money would be available from the federal government.

—Fred Young (NDP—Yorkview) demanded the government produce a statement explaining a purchase of 2,778 acres of land proposed for a Waterloo County townsite. He asked why Development Minister Stanley Randall didn't buy the land directly from farmers.

Outright Ban on Toxic Glue Is Urged by MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Tough regulations to prevent glue-sniffing were urged Monday as the Commons gave second reading to the government's hazardous products bill.

Opposition spokesmen gave a warm welcome to the legislation, although some complained it was long over-due.

But Steve Paproski, Conservative member for Edmonton Centre and former linemen with the Edmonton Eskimos, called on Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford to take advantage of the legislation to put an outright ban on toxic glue.

"I say to the minister, get this stuff off the market and the sooner the better," he said.

Glue is only one of many consumer products that may be banned or regulated under the measure, and the government has not yet said what it plans to do about it.

Mr. Basford has explored the possibility of developing safe substitutes for the model glue that has been blamed for a number of deaths.

He has also been considering regulations requiring a warning label or a register of purchasers, or possibly ordering storekeepers to keep it behind the counter so children can't steal it.

Mr. Basford's bill has two lists of products, the first of those that will be banned completely and the second of products that the government may regulate.

The first includes such things as poisonous jequirity beans; paints with high lead content used in children's toys or furniture, and highly volatile paints.

The second list, or schedule, would give the government broad power to set regulations on the importation, advertising and sale of items as diverse as household cleansers to Christmas lights.

Mr. Paproski wondered why model glue had been placed under the second rather than the first schedule, and suggested this would open the way to "permissiveness" under the regulations.

"If this happens and if definite action is not taken in spite of all the pressures that may be brought—and we know there is pressure—I warn the minister he will not have the confidence of the Canadian people.

"No one can tell me it is not possible for chemical companies, who are always boasting about their research staffs, to find a substitute. . . ."

The legislation would give the government the right to add new products to either schedule as need arose.

NDP Opposes Move to Raise MPs' Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — A move by Liberal members of Parliament to secure a pay increase has encountered early New Democratic Party opposition.

Stanley Knowles, NDP House leader, said in an interview Monday it is not the time to raise MPs' salaries.

"Pensions for the elderly and for retired civil servants should be raised first," he said.

Mr. Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre) also said nobody in his party's 22-member parliamentary group is in favor of extravagant increases, although some are in favor of some increase. Others are opposed to any increase.

A Liberal MPs committee which has studied the role of the MP has made a case for an increase in a report now in the hands of Prime Minister Trudeau.

The report makes no recommendation for a specific increase in salary, now $12,000 annually with a tax-free $6,000 allowance for expenses.

However, it notes that MPs have suggested a minimum increase to a straight $18,000 plus unspecified expenses deemed necessary.

Top figure mentioned was $26,000 plus retention of the $6,000 expense allowance.

Chiropractic Coverage Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Murray Gaunt (L—Huron-Bruce) told the legislature Monday coverage of chiropractic services should be included in Ontario's health scheme because experience in Alberta has shown it would not cost the government any money.

He was speaking on his own private member's resolution that "the Ontario government immediately include chiropractors and other paramedical groups under OMSIP."

There is no chiropractic coverage under the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan on the excuse that "these things cost money," Mr. Gaunt said.

Premiums paid for this service under Alberta's plan in six months were $368,000, while claims paid were $213,000, leaving a credit of $155,000, the Liberal member said.

The resolution, as a private member's motion, does not normally come to a vote under legislature procedure.

It was supported by Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) and Alex Carruthers (PC—Durham).

Mr. Pitman said inclusion of paramedical groups under OMSIP "would enable them to provide the kind of help needed by many people in the province."

Code to End Toy Spying Is Urged

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Toy Manufacturers Association was urged Monday to draw up a code of ethics to prevent espionage within the industry.

E. M. Grossman of Toronto, president of Reliable Toy Co. Ltd., told a news conference at the opening of the Canadian toy fair that a form of policing should be agreed to and enforced by the association.

"Meanwhile, toymakers must tighten up security measures and do a better job of screening employees."

Mr. Grossman referred to the theft earlier this month of eight models that were to be unveiled by his company at the toy fair, and said police and a detective agency "have come up with sufficient evidence to prove that this was an inside job."

"I thought the toy manufacturing industry was growing up, that it was becoming sophisticated. The physical processes such as manufacturing and marketing have become sophisticated—but some of us still appear to have back-alley morals."

Mr. Grossman also called for a code of safety measures to be drawn up in co-operation with the federal government which, for example, had already expressed interest in toxic paints.

And, he said, if the toy industry doesn't do something about some pricing practices, the consumer affairs departments at the federal and provincial levels will soon step in.

Welfare Changes Forecast

TORONTO (CP) — Federal Health Minister John Munro sees such sweeping changes coming in welfare's role that even its name will change.

He suggested in a speech at the University of Toronto Liberal Clubs seminar on urban poverty Monday that welfare will come to be thought of as "community development, social development and human resource development."

"Its main thrust will be development. Preventive programs, remedial programs—programs which involve the recipient constituency in an active, participatory role—will predominate.

He also said the federal government is considering a negative income tax for Canada's poor.

Free Transportation For Aged Is Requested

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario social and family services department should encourage communities to give free public transportation to senior citizens, Bernard Newman (L—Windsor-Walkerville) told the legislature Monday.

Too many older residents "are incarcerated in their one-room boarding houses because they cannot afford transportation to downtown, to church or to visit relatives," Mr. Newman said.

He said the department should provide senior citizens of one Ontario city with 100 free passes for public transportation as an experiment. The department might also encourage communities to use school buses after school hours to transport elderly persons.

Mr. Newman said some Ontario cities already provide reduced rates for senior citizens.

Library Board Reports

TWEED — More than 14,000 books were borrowed during 1968, according to members of the Tweed Library Board.

Several new books have been purchased, among them — a new set of the Encyclopedia Britannica. This particular purchase will enable borrowers to take out one set.

The Board reported that subscriptions in the surrounding townships amounted to $44 and fines from the town totalled $45.

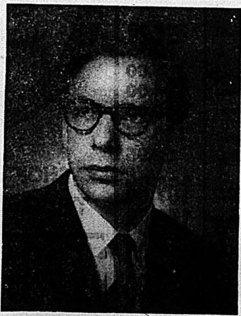
New members are encouraged, the charge is minimal, and any books that are not available in the local library can be obtained, free of charge, from the Regional Library.

Crop Insurance Representative Named

TWEED — The Crop Insurance Commission of Ontario has announced the appointment of Arthur McLaughlin as area representative for the counties of Northumberland, Peterborough, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac and Leeds.

Mr. McLaughlin is a native of Lennox and Addington County, where he has farmed for many years. He has been an agent for Crop Insurance since the inception of the program. Mr. McLaughlin brings with him a great deal of experience in both agriculture and insurance. His training and guidance will greatly assist the crop insurance agents in his area in their work of explaining this program to farmers.

The Crop Insurance Commission was established to provide low-cost protection from the hazards of bad weather, insects and disease for farm crops. The moderate premium rates for crop insurance are possible because the Provincial and Federal Governments share all administrative costs of the program. In addition, the Federal Government pays 25 per cent of the premiums and the Government of Ontario 5 per cent.



A. E. LePage Limited announce the appointment of Mr. Will W. Pringle to their sales staff at Belleville.

A life long resident of Belleville, educated at Queen Mary Public School, Albert College and Quinte Secondary. He joined the mortgage department at Victoria and Grey Trust and spent a number of years with the accounting department at the Canadian National Railways. Mr. Pringle recently passed with honors the prescribed course of the Ontario Real Estate Board and will be pleased to serve his many friends in the Quinte District.

Hepburn Scores Triumph

Nominees for Oscar Awards Announced

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Katharine Hepburn has scored another acting triumph by winning her 11th Oscar nomination, a record in movie academy annals.

The 59-year-old, two-time winner—in Morning Glory in 1932 and Guess Who's Coming to Dinner, last year—is up for The Lion in Winter in nominations announced Monday for the 41st annual awards.

Miss Hepburn was nominated for her performance as Eleanor of Aquaitaine, wife of Peter O'Toole's King Henry II.

The Lion in Winter received seven nominations in various categories, including best picture. Others listed for best film of 1968 were Oliver!, which led with 11 nominations; Funny Girl, which received eight; Romeo and Juliet, four, and Rachel, Rachel, four.

A surprise to forecasters was the lack of a nomination for Paul Newman for directing his wife Joanne Woodward in Rachel, Rachel. Miss Woodward's performance was nominated for best actress.

Nominees for the statuettes which the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will award April 14 in televised ceremonies include:

Best performance by an actor in a starring role: Alan Arkin in The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter; A'an Bates, The Fixer; Ron Moody, Oliver!, Peter O'Toole, The Lion in Winter; Cliff Robertson, Charly.

Best performance by an actress in a starring role: Miss Hepburn; Miss Woodward; Patricia Neal, The Subject Was Roses; Vanessa Redgrave, Isadora; Barbra Streisand, Funny Girl.

Miss Hepburn's 11th nomination puts her one up on Bette Davis. Six actresses, however, have two Oscars apiece—Miss Hepburn, Miss Davis, Elizabeth 'Taylor, Ingrid Berman and the late Vivien Leigh and Luis Rainer.

Actors in supporting roles: Jack Albertson, The Subject Was Roses; Seymour Cassel, Faces; Daniel Massey as Noel Coward in Star!; Jack Wild as the Artful Dodger of Oliver! and Gene Wilder, The Producers.

Supporting-actress nominees: Lynn Carlin in Faces; Ruth Gordon, Rosemary's Baby; Sondra Locke, The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter; Key Medford, Funny Girl; Estelle Parsons, Rachel, Rachel.

The Library Corner

By O. D.

Ashton, Helen, — William and Dorothy.

This novel tells the story of two people — Dorothy and her brother William Wordsworth. Miss Ashton presents a vivid picture of their life and that of the people around them — Coleridge, Lamb, and Walter Scott. An interesting tale of England's literary elite of the nineteenth century.

Brace, Gerald Warner, — The Department.

An English professor at a Boston university, preparing for retirement, reviews his life and comments about the people around him — his associates and friends. An interesting contrast to Agnes Turnbull's Many A Green Isle which is also about a university professor.

Colver, Anne, — Mr. Lincoln's Wife.

Creighton, Luella, — Turn East, Turn West.

A young lass in pioneer Ontario finds life in a small town very confining. Her youthful exuberance strikes out against the rigid code of behaviour demanded by the town.

Goulding, Dorothy Jane, — Margaret.

The many varied and often terrifying adventures which befall a young Irish girl bound for the wilds of Upper Canada are well described by this Canadian author.

Han Suyin, — The Four Faces.

Among the ruins of Angkor in Cambodia, Dr. Han creates a marvellously satirical novel. At a Writers' Congress some one gets killed — "who done it?" In working out the plot, the author writes a thoroughly good novel incorporating the differences between East and West as only Han Suyin can.

Saint, Dora Jessie, — Fairacre Festival.

A bad storm heavily damages Fairacre's church, St. Patrick's. The cost of repairing the church is about two thousand pounds and this sum must be raised by the village. How the villagers rallied around and raised the needed money makes a heart-warming story.

Williams, John A., — Sissie.

A brother and sister return to the deathbed of their mother, Sissie, who has been a dominant force in their lives. Although both highly successful in their careers, these two young Negroes find they are not satisfied with life. Only by forgiving their mother who has imbued them with hate, can these two young people learn to live with themselves.

ANAF News

Donald Deming has been appointed pipe major of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201 Pipe Band. He still has room for a few more young fellows interested in learning the pipes or drums.

Classes are held every Wednesday under competent teachers in the ANAF auditorium. The band will be competing at the big International Band and Marching Festival held at Cape Vincent, N.Y. on Saturday May 24.

Behind The Glass

By CDT.

Due to playoffs in different categories, a number of curlers who were slated to play in the Tri-Quinte bonspiel starting on Wednesday will be unable to compete and therefore the committee has decided to go with 48 rinks instead of 64 and start the spiel on Thursday evening at 6.30 with a second draw at nine.

There will be the tour on Friday to Corbys Distillery but the dance scheduled for Saturday night at CFB Trenton has been cancelled.

There will be a full schedule of games on Saturday and most of the finals will be played on Sunday.

Fire Protection to Be Discussed on Saturday

Municipal officials from the four Quinte area townships purchasing fire fighting service from Belleville will meet Saturday at Cannifton to draft a counter submission for presentation to the city.

Attending the meeting will be the reeves and clerks of the four townships of Sidney, Thurlow, Ameliasburg and Tyendinaga.

Officials from the above townships met at Ameliasburg more than a week ago to consider a new fire fighting agreement proposed by the city which would have drastically increased costs to the townships. The increases proposed by the city were as much as 10 or more times the present rate.

At the Ameliasburg meeting township officials decided the city proposal was unacceptable and voted to draft a counter proposal for presentation to the city.

HE STOLE THE MONSTER'S BOOTS

FOUND ANY TREASURE LATELY?

The most notorious treasure collector of them all, Captain Kidd, sailed from New York in pursuit of pirates and instead became one himself. He captured great riches but made the mistake of sailing back to New York where he was caught and hanged in 1701.

People are still looking for Captain Kidd's treasure. Find another type of treasure by selling the family's no longer used things with an Intelligencer Want Ad. It's as easy as dialing 962-9171 matey!

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Stopping Smoking Helps Even If Habit Old One

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I know all the hazards of cigarette smoking but I just can't seem to quit. I have cut down on cigarettes. Smoke about from 15 to 20 a day.

However I go to my doctor for periodic chest X rays and heart examinations, including electrocardiograms. So far everything seems to be all right. What are the odds against a heart attack or lung cancer if I continue in this manner? — Mrs. P.

COMMENT: Statistics vary; and odds vary. But everyone seems to agree that the odds (whatever they are) go against you. Just the other day I read that the chances of the heavy smoker getting heart or artery disease are 100 to 1 as compared with the non-smoker. That is quite high, as the odds go; but even if exaggerated, the basic truth is there: you're betting way over your head in a no-limit game.

As for lung cancer, I guess you know that it is pretty much accepted by the profession that it is a direct threat in cigarette smokers. The more years and the more cigarettes, the greater the likelihood of cancerous invasion of the lung.

I don't know how long you have been smoking, Mrs. P., nor, how old you are. You say you've "cut down" to about a pack a day. Therefore, I assume that you were at least a two-pack-a-day smoker. Perhaps three.

Now the next step is to stop entirely. For it has been shown that the chances brighten even if smokers with a long history at last quit.

Don't depend entirely upon your physical checkups. Once every year or two is insufficient degree of protection. Examinations only salve your conscience; they don't prevent the onset of disease — but are helpful in discovering it early.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My best friend was recently killed in an auto accident. He was a passenger in a car driven by a man who had been drinking. When will it end? Miss B.

Comment: Chronic alcoholism and car accidents remain one of our most frustrating problems. For, example, in a recent study by Julian A. Waller, MD, of 1,251 consecutive highway deaths of persons aged 15 years or older who survived less than six hours after crashes in three California counties, alcohol was found in the blood of 58 per cent of the drivers, 47 per cent of the passengers and in 36 per cent of pedestrians.

• • •

For Mrs. T.: It's possible, but only a guess that your weakness may be due to a potassium loss which sometimes occurs after taking thazid drugs and oral diuretics (body-fluid removers) over long periods of time. Your doctor can investigate this. If this is the cause, then potassium chloride in pill or liquid form will take up the slack.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have not been hearing much lately about psychosomatics. Have doctors given up on this theory? Mr. Y.

Comment: It isn't a theory and we haven't given up on it, Mr. Y. Hippocrates knew there was an extremely important connection between emotions and illness a few thousand years ago; and we modern doctors have enough evidence to prove there's a direct connection between Psyche (mind) and soma (body). Do not sell your emotions short.

• • •

For Mrs. F.: A "sport" is a form of animal or plant life which has many characteristics differing markedly from those of its parents. It is a mutation.

Rioting Incidents Causing Concern

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A Canadian said Monday that the increasing incidents of rioting in many countries, including Canada, must make the Western world realize that the time has come to ask some "basic and soul-searching questions" about youth.

"This rioting may come from trivial causes, for wrong reasons, and be starred by professional agitators, but we cannot be mere observers of uncontrolled outbursts of protests," said John A. Macdonald, director-general of the special programs branch of the department of health and welfare in Ottawa.

He was speaking for Canada at a meeting for the UN's Social Development Commission which is studying the problems of youth on a worldwide basis for the first time.

The commission has before it a UN report which says that what is being done for, with and by youth is perhaps the most important yardstick for judging the effectiveness of economic and social development plans throughout the world.

The report says that 54 per cent of the world's population in 1965 was under 25 years of age and that "it is certain" that youth will predominate in world affairs."

The Canadian presentation called for UN action and volunteer help to assist the youth of the under-developed world.

It said governments must realize the importance of instituting realistic youth policies, employing all the resources of government and calling on the participation of the young.

"One must urge the adoption of programs fostering opportunity for youth to learn and work and play; one must urge that provision be made for the training of leaders and teachers."

Government's first responsibility "is to give youth the opportunity for health, education and useful dignified employment, coupled with the opportunity for leisure time and recreational activity.

"While doing so let us neither worship youth nor deny it the opportunity it needs to be heard. We must fight against the natural tendency to the patronizing, antagonistic, and recriminatory and above all loquacious toward youth."

Instead the world must listen attentively and sensitively to what youth was trying to say about adults and themselves through their poetry, songs and ordinary conversation. Adults must listen to youths' fears, hopes and ambitions in its own language.

The adult world must begin to exercise its responsibilities as "proponents of orderly social change in seeking out the causes of discontent, whatever and where they are."

"We must anticipate events and plan their progression, rather than react to them after the chance for initiative has passed or repress them by force or the implicit threat of force which is the admission of the inadequacy of what is defended."

Robertson asked how much of the first faltering steps to do something for those urgently needing help.

There was an imperative need for contemporary Western society to re-assess its purpose and to "muster the courage to experiment boldly and constructively with new approaches and values and goals."

The problem of youth would not be solved before today's young persons had reached middle age. But there was a chance for significant break-throughs on a number of fronts.

"If break-throughs are not made in the developing countries, the problems of today in the developed world will be dwarfed by those of tomorrow."

Students Endangered Selves In Setting Fire to Building

MONTREAL (CP) — Sir George Williams University students who set fire to the university's computer centre two weeks ago could have perished in the blaze, a fire chief testified Monday at the preliminary hearing of one of the accused.

Chief Joseph Bervaldi said "a wall of flame" covered part of the ninth-floor computer centre in the university's main building when firemen arrived Feb. 11.

"If any of the students had got caught near that wall of flame, I don't think they would have gotten out."

Students also were 'in grave danger of asphyxiation."

The district fire chief was testifying at the preliminary hearing of Kennedy J. Fredericks, 29, of Grenada in the West Indies.

Fredericks is the first of 89 persons to appear on charges of conspiracy to commit arson and to damage property after a two-week sit-in at the computer centre erupted into violence.

His hearing continues today.

Hearings for the others arrested are scheduled to begin Wednesday. Seventy-nine were been granted bail last week but 10 still had not provided deposits by Monday.

In the Feb. 11 violence the occupiers piled furniture down stairwells, elevator shafts and escalators and blocked doorways as police were called in by the administration.

Then they threw business equipment, computer tape and punch cards down into the street, destroyed more than $1,000,000 worth of computers with fire axes and caused another $1,000,000 worth of damage by turning on fire hoses and smashing interior fittings. They finished by setting fire to the computer centre before riot police broke in and made arrests.

Occupation of the computer centre and the seventh-floor cafeteria and adjoining faculty lounge was to protest the makeup of a university committee investigating charges of racism laid against an assistant biology professor by six West Indian students.

In other testimony Monday, William Clayborn, a security guard with a private security agency, said Fredericks had cut the wires on a telephone used by security staff shortly after 2:30 a.m. Feb. 11.

A computer expert told the court that replacement of the computer equipment would cost an estimated $1,290,000 plus a 15-per-cent duty, a 12½-per-cent federal sales tax and "probably" an eight-per-cent provincial sales tax.

Walter Cavill of Control Data Canada Ltd., which sold the university a computer and component parts in February, 1967, said many of the parts had been damaged by fire and that the computer itself had been smashed by axes, picks and sledge hammers.

One of three architects who surveyed the building after the student outburst estimated the damage to the building alone at $900,000. John Barret said smoke damage was evident from the ninth floor to the top floor, and there was water damage "as far down as the first floor."

Bernard Peclet, a chemist attached to a criminal investigation laboratory, testified that "three and possibly four" separate fires were set on the ninth floor.

Quebec Appoints Woman Superior Court Judge

MONTREAL (CP) — Rejane Laberge-Colas, the first woman in Canada's history to be appointed to a Superior Court bench, almost became a classical contralto.

The soft-spoken champion of women's rights also married a man who used to disapprove of women lawyers and who advocated the women's-place-is-in-the-home theory.

He became a feminist when he married me," Mrs. Colas said, referring to her lawyer-husband Emile.

She called her appointment to the bench a "total surprise" and a "major step towards equal rights for women." It crowns a legal career that began late—after a false five-year start as a classical singer.

Mrs. Colas was interviewed Monday. Tall, attractive and almost shy, she avoided the subject of politics to discuss her main interests—family legal problems, women's rights and what she hopes to accomplish as a Superior Court justice.

"I will probably deal frequently with family cases when I am on the bench," she said. "And I hope to be able to be human in my judgments because I am a woman and because I have a family."

Mrs. Colas, who will ascend to the Quebec Superior Court March 6, also expects to be dealing with cases in corporation law, in which she has been specializing almost since she left the University of Montreal law school in 1951.

"I won't be able to campaign for women's rights any longer," she added. "I have instructions from the chief justice."

She was appointed despite what she called discrimination against women in the legal profession because Prime Minister Trudeau and some members of his cabinet were "in favor."

Mrs. Colas, who graduated from law school at the top of her class, said discrimination against her as a woman diminished as her colleagues grew to respect her work.

But she attributes her appointment as much to her work in the Quebec Federation of Women as to her work as a corporation lawyer.

The federation, established in 1966, works largely as a co-ordinator between various associations concerned with women's rights.

"Sometimes women have rights at a theoretical level, but not at a practical level. When a married woman negotiates for a bank loan, for example, they frequently ask her husband if it's OK.

"Male mentality has to change. But women are at fault too. Many women are against other women—especially if they cannot succeed in careers themselves.

Mrs. Colas started law school in 1947 after having tried to eke out a living for five years as a classical singer. She also performed on radio "but there just wasn't much singing to do in Montreal in those days."

She met her husband when he served as president of the Quebec Junior Bar in 1955 and she was one of the councillors. Married a few years later, Mrs. Colas has taken a month off to have each of her three sons, aged 8, 6 and 4.

She is vice-chairman of the Canadian Consumer Council and a member of the Quebec office of revision for the Civil Code.

Aid Refused

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Education minister William Davis said Monday the Ontario government has refused to grant Brock University $120,000 to aid 59 students who were accepted at the university here without graduating from Grade 13.

Brock had allowed the students to enrol after completing a six-week summer course.

John Mayer, associate dean of arts and sciences at Brock, said the university is discussing the issue with provincial government officials. He said the university plans another course for Grade 12 students, who plan to skip Grade 13, next summer.

On Wednesday the firing begins in the Tri - Quinte bonspiel and by Sunday night winners will be declared for seven trophies and accompanying prizes with the Belle Cleaners trophy as the prime target.

Charles Cox of the Quinte Curling Club is the general chairman with Wilfred Mills and George Adams as his assistants. CFB, Trenton has J. C. "Curly" Lord, and Wayne Oates while the Trenton Curling Club has Harold Hemstead, Lyle Carr and Tom Hetherington. This committee have done a tremendous job in arranging a program and the 64 rinks that will compete have been given plenty of time for sociability.

On Friday at 1.30 the curlers will gather at the Quinte Curling Club, which is the host club for this year's spiel and will be taken by bus to Corby's distillery where they will make a tour of the plant and enjoy a social hour as guests of the distillery.

On Friday evening the curlers will knock off competition and with their wives, sweethearts and guests enjoy a dance and buffet lunch at the South Station.

At the present time rinks from Colborne, Rockcliffe at Ottawa, Ottawa Granites, Cobourg, Utica, N.Y., Picton, Napanee, St. Hubert, Quebec, Whitby, Camp Borden and Richmond Hill have been entered and the committee is short a half dozen rinks but these will be filled when the bonspiel opens.

Since the bonspiel was sponsored The Intelligencer has donated a quantity of old cheddar cheese to the local club for the enjoyment of curlers playing at the rink and this will be continued again this year.

There will be no full course meals at the different clubs but sandwiches, coffee and deserts will be available. Good curling.

Chatty Christmas Cards

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Since it takes us about a month to get rid of the Christmas tree, you can believe that we only now got around to tossing out the mounds of Christmas cards. And the ones I most gladly parted with were those long, rambling recitals of "what the Guck family has been doing" all year.

These invariable come from families we hardly know, or have long forgotten, and we have to remind ourselves who these people are and why they feel driven to broadcast all these precise biographical details.

But what I most object to is their uniformly warm and cheery tone. They try to give the impression of being a model family, busy and creative, having gobs of fun, winning honors, enjoying jolly famly reunions, and going on yachting vacations at the drop of a hatch.

Maybe a few of these chatty Christmas notes vaguely approach the truth, but I doubt it. None of the families we know well would dare send us such literary treacle, because we are acutely aware of the scars and schisms in the family circle, from Pappa and Mamma down to the littlest sibling who happens to be in intensive psychiatric care.

How refreshing it would be, for a change, to receive a dour and candid Christmas missive that more closely approximated the facts of family life, something on this order: —

"Hi, friends across the continent. We're Jim and Betty Glum, and our three children, Ham, Shem and Impetigo., who used to live your way before Jim got demoted and his company moved him to the paraffin factory in Moose Jaw, which is the end of the business road for him.

"Well, we're still hanging on folks. Last month marked our 20th wedding anniversary, and we hardly thought we'd make it. But Jim found a new mistress up here, and Betty keeps herself busy as a Nurse's Aid, so the marriage keeps rubbing along. God knows why.

"Our oldest boy, Ham, was thrown out of three schools before we found one that allows pot-smoking in the dorms. He was briefly engaged to a little tart from town, but fortunately she became pregnant and married the milkman's son, posthaste.

"Shem, our second boy, is still sleeping all the time, and keeps promising to look for a job 'tomorrow.' He's become the world's leading expert on afternoon TV soap-operas.

"Impetigo, our dearest young daughter, writes that she's happily weaving burlap loin-clothes in Haight-Ashbury and intends to come home for a visit in two or three years.

"Jim's job looks more precarious than ever, and we haven't been asked anywhere very much since Betty started drinking and crying at parties. Merry Christmas, and the same to all of you!"

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For Feb. 26th,

Your birthday today: Material reality is open to manipulation and improvement. Your intuitions are a swift and sure guide for doing what is appropriate to get the doors to prosperity open. The urge is to plunge ahead with such activity while neglecting meditation and regular rest. Today's natives usually are practical, resourceful.

ARIES (March 21—April 19): Your work should proceed normally; don't let restlessness tempt you to experiment. If you run into a practical joke, play it straight; show reasonable dismay, but not anger. Expect something amusing for your loved ones.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Financial arrangements are exposed to changes from the outside, not all of them unwelcome. You may draw commendation. Tomorrow is a complex day.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Competition for attention blossoms all around you. Envy does not become you or help your progress no matter how dramatic the success of others may be. Your turn comes by and by.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Your community throbs with surprises. Stick with the familiar rather than with dramatic outsiders. Gather friends tonight.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your intuition rises bright and clear in the morning. Move strongly in your own self-interest. Just be sure nobody is unfairly hindered by what you do. Your associates follow with little persuasion needed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This is a good day for promotion, but not for definite action, speculation, or any form of gambling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Financial pressures begin a cycle of improved condition; keep pushing conservative approaches to sound investment. Entertain with quiet dignity rather than heavy expense.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your emotional needs have been restrained so long you may feel like kicking over the traces. Hasty action like wagers or speculative investments should be made only with extra funds set aside for such experiments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You have more energy available now — use it on the most neglected areas of your career-building activities. There is no time like the present for self-improvement programs, planning realistic goals, re-education.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Somewhere in this day there is a subtle relief factor at work, so that your morale rises and you think a bit bigger. So celebrate tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Day-dreaming takes on original form today; it might even be salable as literature if worked out well! Make some notes.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The air clears, particularly if you have managed not to upset anybody important. You have some true friends who are solidly behind you, saying little until the need arises. Make amenities recognizing this fact.

Roll up your sleeve to save a life...

THE JOHN LEWIS CO. Est. 1849

MAKE FRIENDS — HOLD CUSTOMERS — motto of John Lewis. The firm known as The John Lewis Co. Ltd. was started by the late John Lewis in the year 1849. For the next 50 years the company operated as a hardware store in the site now occupied by McIntosh Bros. . . . Later Mr. Lewis moved to the company's present location and decided to add plumbing, heating and sheet metal work to his hardware line. He built an addition on the back of the store and took Mr. M. R. Doyle into partnership with him to handle the new services. A few months later John Lewis died. His sons Frank and Arthur retained their interest until 1898, selling out then to Mr. Doyle and Mr. J. B. Reeves. Upon the death of Mr. Reeves a few years later Mr. M. R. Doyle, along with his son W. J. Doyle, took over the entire business.

1849 to 1969

Now after 120 years The John Lewis Co. is proud to serve this new generation of Belleville and Quinte district with the best and most dependable household appliances. At The John Lewis Co. our primary concern is to sell only products rated No. 1 . . . among them Maytag, Hobart, Gibson, Enterprise, Rogers-Majestic, Emerson . . . to mention a few. And to provide service at all times.

W. R. (Bill) Doyle

MAKE FRIENDS — HOLD CUSTOMERS — still our motto. Upon his return from the war, W. R. Doyle, the present owner and son of W. J. Doyle, joined the firm with his grandfather and father. The three men ran the business together enjoying an increasing clientele. With the deaths of M. R. Doyle in 1952 and W. J. Doyle in 1954 W. R. (Bill) Doyle found himself taking over the reins. From 1950 to the present The John Lewis Co. Ltd. gradually changed from the hardware line to primarily large appliances. At present the store is stocked with the best names in modern quality appliances and Bill Doyle still follows his grandfather's policy of "Make Friends and Hold Customers".

Material Costs Push Prices of Homes Here Up $400 to $1700

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The price of new homes in Belleville has gone up in the past few weeks but the increase had nothing to do with the location here of the regional office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Rather, sharply increased prices for lumber and other building materials have been the reason for the home price hike.

This was the assurance given UIC representatives yesterday at a special meeting called to give local builders the opportunity of explaining the price escalation for new homes.

The meeting was called by Mayor J. Russell Scott at the request of local labor council president Ray Bradshaw and UIC employee representatives.

G. L. Griffin, Toronto, regional secretary for the Economic Security Employees' National Association told the meeting that early February prices quoted for new homes in Belleville saw increases ranging from $400 to $1,700 as compared with December.

The inference was that local builders were seeking to take advantage of the approximately 200 UIC employees who will be seeking homes as a result of transfers to Belleville.

Countering this suggestion, however, was local builder Maurice Rollins, who said the reason for the increased home prices was the sharply increased cost of lumber since December which he said "is going up every day."

Lumber prices, he said, had gone up 30 per cent in the past three months.

In addition price increases were being experienced in all other lines of building materials. Fred Pope of Bellewood Lumber confirmed the lumber price increase, saying that after 15 years in the lumber business "it was hard to believe."

Another home builder, Don Kellar, said lumber prices had gone up by more than 20 per cent since January and, in view of such rapid hikes, builders just couldn't estimate the end cost of a house.

He said that for a builder to contract for a house in the face of such rising costs would leave him holding the bag.

"I don't know whether I am interested in signing a firm contract any more," he said.

Joseph Cox, local home builders' executive, said that on a $20,000 house, the increased price of lumber alone could add more than $1,000 to the completed cost.

Home building subcontractors, including Randy Loewen, Albert Horlock and Garn Peacock, said increased material costs would force them to raise prices.

Mr. Rollins said the increased prices quoted were for homes still unbuilt.

Power Struggle Looms in Israel

Reds Seize Camps

SAIGON (AP) — More than 1,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese pushed to within 15 miles of Saigon today, seized a group of refugee villages in Bien Hoa and fought their way to the edge of the busiest American air base in South Vietnam on the fourth day of the Communist offensive.

Early tonight U.S. and South Vietnamese forces were still trying to root out the guerrillas who withstood five assaults by South Vietnamese rangers and rocket and machine-gun fire from helicopter gunships.

Across South Vietnam, the Communist command intensified its offensive. Its troops pounded more than 50 towns and bases with rockets, mortars and ground attack Tuesday night and today.

LEVI ESHKOL

Viet Cong Go Quietly

SAIGON (Reuters) — Viet Cong guerrillas who stormed through a Canadian government-supported hospital left quietly when patients explained they had tuberculosis, it was learned today.

Heart Attack Fatal to Eshkol

JERUSALEM (CP-AP) — Ukranian-born Premier Levi Eshkol of Israel, one of the architects of the modern Jewish state, died of a heart attack today. He was 73.

Deputy Premier Yigal Allon was chosen by the cabinet to replace Eshkol. Allon will head a caretaker government until the next general elections in November.

Eshkol had been in failing health in recent months from bronchitis, pneumonia and a heart attack Feb. 3, after a severe crisis shook his cabinet.

Eshkol's death raised the prospect of a struggle for the succession between supporters and opponents of Defence Minister Moshe Dayan. It came at a crucial time for Israel, with the Jewish state under mounting attack from guerrillas based in the neighboring Arab nations and pursuing a policy of retaliation opposed by the United States and other nominal allies.

In Damascus, the Al Fatah guerrilla organization claimed Eshkol was fatally injured when Al Fatah commandos made a rocket attack on his country home Monday night.

"This is the most ridiculous and childish announcement that the primitive Fatah propaganda's wild imagination has even fabricated," an Israeli foreign ministry spokesman said.

The Israeli government has reported the attack on the Degania Bet Kibbutz earlier but said the premier was not there at the time.

Eshkol became premier in June, 1963, after the resignation of David Ben-Gurion, led their Mapai Labor party to victory in the 1965 elections and was premier during Israeli's lightning victory over the Arabs in the war of June, 1967.

Another Bomb Explodes

MONTREAL (CP) — An explosion shortly before closing time Tuesday rocked the Queen's Printer book shop on downtown St. Catherine Street only minutes after police were tipped off by an anonymous telephone caller.

No one was injured in the blast—the city's 10th this year—although seven employees and one customer were inside at the time.

The explosion in the shop's basement level just before 5 p.m. knocked tiles from the ceiling and scattered Canadian government publications over the floor. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

Police said an anonymous telephone caller told them three minutes before the blast that a bomb had been planted in the store. Investigating officers just arrived on the scene when the bomb—planted near a stairway in the basement level of the federal government store—exploded.

Police said they have a description of a young man who entered the store shortly before the blast and asked what time it closed.

Five persons were injured Saturday night when a bomb exploded at the Liberal party's Reform Club on downtown Sherbrooke Street.

Earlier in the month, a powerful blast at the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges injured 27 persons and caused extensive damage.

Reward money totalling $51,000 has been offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons responsible for the incidents.

Bertrand Fictitious

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A lawyer who says he had Lee Harvey Oswald as a client several months before President Kennedy was killed has testified that the mysterious Clay Bertrand of the Clay Shaw case did not exist.

Bertrand "was a figment of my imagination," Dean Andrews Jr. testified Tuesday at Shaw's trial on a charge of conspiring to kill Kennedy.

Andrews had told the FBI that a man he knew as Clay Bertrand telephoned him the day after Oswald's arrest to ask that he go to Dallas to take over as defence lawyer.

But Tuesday he said he had "let my mouth run ahead of my brain."

Hang Your Head

Rick Sykes of Albert College hangs his head in dejection as Nicholson College's Hubert Hicks eludes him and goes up for two points during last night's Class "A" senior basketball playoff game for the Bay of Quinte title. Sykes recovered from his dejection to score 13 points and lead his team to a 52-50 win over Nicholson. (See story on Page 19.)

Nixon Renews Pledge U.S. Wants Germany Reunified

BONN (CP) — President Nixon brought his "new era of consultation" to West Germany's capital today, dedicating the United States once again to reunification of the divided country and to the security of West Berlin.

Nixon told Chancellor Kurt George Kiesinger and Foreign Minister Willy Brandt: "The commitment of your nation and mine to the ultimate reunification of Germany — that cannot change."

The president added that the United States and West Germany also could not change their commitments to the "common defence" and the "orderly construction of a durable peace in the world."

A similar expression of U.S. commitment to the defence of West Berlin is expected when Nixon visits the city Thursday and once again looks at the wall dividing it.

Germany's continued division more than 20 years after the war headed the list of topics Kiesinger was certain to bring up in his meetings with the new American president.

Other pressing matters for them to consider included:

—The amount of U.S. goods and government bonds West Germany will purchase to offset the $900,000,000 in foreign exchange the U.S. is spending this year to keep 225,000 troops in West Germany;

—The future of the North Atlantic Alliance in view of French President de Gaulle's new manoeuvres to kill it;

—The European Common Market, of which West Germany is the most powerful member economically;

—The treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons, which West Germany has been reluctant to sign;

—The Communist pressure on West Berlin because of plans to hold the West German presidential election there; and —The squabble between France and Britain, in which West Germany is caught in the middle.

Cars Recalled

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. said today it is notifying the owners of 4,900,000 GM cars and trucks to take their vehicles to dealers for the replacement of a possibly defective carburetor part or for service "to prevent the possibility of exhaust emissions from entering the vehicle."

Involved in Canada are 535,000 cars and trucks, some made in Canada and others imported from the United States.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Considerable cloudiness will continue over eastern Ontario through today and Thursday but northern and southwestern Ontario can expect a fair share of sunny skies.

Students Cheer Dief as He Flays Agitators

TORONTO (CP) — University authorities should deal firmly with students "who fancy themselves as Mao Tse-tungs."

That's what former prime minister John G. Diefenbaker told 280 Osgoode Hall students yesterday.

Some university authorities, he charged, are running scared.

The students gave Mr. Diefenbaker a standing ovation after he attacked student violence, U.S. draft-dodgers, free border-crossings by revolutionaries, infiltration of organized crime in business and what he called generally "a hurricane of crime in Canada."

After declaring that revolutionaries comprised no more than 5 per cent of the students, Mr. Diefenbaker said: "Those who fancy themselves as Mao Tse-tungs and Che Guevaras should be given a clear indication that this kind of conduct will not be condoned, and their juvenile playing of revolutionary games is not to be tolerated."

He waved a newspaper clipping as he charged that fomenters of revolution were being freely admitted to Canada. His clipping announced that Red Rudi Dutschke of Germany was arriving.

The answer from the Government, he said, had been that even if these people — Stokely Carmichael for one — advocate a change of government by force, and the spilling of blood if necessary, their freedom of speech should not be interfered with.

When a student asked what he thought of U.S. draft dodgers, Mr. Diefenbaker said: "I have never regarded them as particularly commendable. I don't know what good they can be to Canada when they are not much good to their own country."

As part of the "hurricane of crime" which was sweeping the country, international criminals were finding their way into Canada without difficulty or hindrance, he said.

Airmen at Trenton Participate In Airlift of 1,000 Soldiers

TRENTON — More than 1,000 Canadian servicemen will be airlifted to Jamaica next week to face battle conditions in a hot and humid tropical climate.

The exercise, which is carried out each year, will see troops learning about keeping the peace in the cruel climates of tropical lands.

Details of the operation were released today by a spokesman at CFB Trenton.

"The aim of the operation is to orientate the soldier to the tropical climate," said the spokesman.

"While the serviceman is there he will be living under simulated conditions which will be the same as those of other soldiers whose job it is to keep the peace in lands like this.

The 1st Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment at London, will be sending approximately 800 servicemen to what officials describe as the "jungle cockpit" area of Jamaica.

The operations will take place about 60 miles outside of Kingston, the capital of Jamaica.

The remaining personnel will be made up of flight crews, ground transport squadrons along with communications, operations and air mobile teams.

"CFB Trenton will be responsible for the airlift of these troops and their supplies", explained the spokesman.

On March 3, the first of some 37 flights to Jamaica will begin and operations will be under way by March 8. The troops will start their 2,500 mile homeward journey on March 20.

The airlift operation will involve three Hercules aircraft from CFB Edmonton and four from Ottawa with Trenton handling one Yukon.

Assistance will also come from 429 Buffalo squadron in St. Hubert and 403 Helicopter squadron in Petawawa.

Lt. Col. G. W. Webb, CFB Trenton's operations officer, will assume the position of Jamaica transport commander for the operation. Director for the exercise, labelled Nimrod Caper, is Lt. Col. J. J. Barrett, commander of London's 1st Battalion.

"Most of the planes will situate in Ottawa with some coming here to pick up supplies." added the spokesman.

The Trenton Yukon will be making a total of six flights while the two Hercules will be making 68 flips.

The whole operation is one of gigantic proportions with Trenton as the focal point of flight organization. Aside from the airlift personnel here will be responsible for most of the ground transport.

Board to Complete Staff

Business personnel with Hastings County board of education have been reassigned to new positions throughout the system.

At a closed committee-of-the-whole session following Monday night's board meeting, trustees decided the total number of business officials would be held at 18.

Before amalgamation of boards into the county unit Jan. 1, 22 business personnel were employed throughout the county.

Kenneth Wormald, hired earlier in the month as business administrator, heads the business section of the county administration.

W. J. B. Keith was appointed plant comptroller, responsible for school construction, inspection and maintenance. He was formerly superintendent of plant for the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

The board decided to hire two business officials to complete its staff. One is an assistant business administrator at a salary to begin at $13,000. The second is a manager of finance, responsible for data processing, payroll and accounts. His salary will begin at $12,000.

Farmers to Meet Here

Farmers from the four counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Lennox and Addington, will convene in Belleville next week for their annual three day Quinte Farm Conference.

Topics under discussion at the Club Canara conference on March 5, 6 and 7 will be the dairy industry, livestock and crops in that order.

Addresses by experts in each of the three fields, plus panel discussions will be featured each day with morning sessions to get under way at 10 o'clock. Sponsors of the conference, which draws up to 350 farmers each day, are the Quinte district Soil and Crops Improvement association, and the milk committees and beef improvement associations.

Snowmobiles Allowed At Outlet Park

The Ontario department of lands and forests has relented slightly with respect to the use of snowmobiles in provincial parks.

The machines are still not allowed in the Sandbanks Provincial Park, but snowmobiles may now enter the Outlet Beach Provincial Park, providing permission is first obtained at the park gate.

Department Minister Hon. Rene Brunelle said that snowmobile owners had co-operated well by staying off new planting and "entry with permission" for the Outlet park would be granted on an experimental basis.

Earlier the department ruled that snowmobiles would not be permitted at the Outlet and Sandbanks park nor at Presqu'ile park.

Costs Push Up House Prices

ville on speculation, the meeting was told.

Mr. Griffin and A. F. Milne, UIC regional placement officer, said they were satisfied with the explanation of the house price increase, the latter suggesting that possibly the increase had been ill-timed.

The increase had been announced, he said, on the same date that tenders had been called for the construction of the regional headquarters at Belleville.

Ray Bradshaw suggested the misunderstanding might have been avoided through better communications.

But even with the recent price increase, UIC representatives were assured that home prices were still far below those in the Toronto area.

The reason for this was the comparatively low land cost, although Mayor Scott could give no assurance of how long this would last.

The cost for servicing land was increasing all the time, he said.

Local realtor Frank Follwell said that while the cost of a new home in Belleville had been increased, this did not apply to older type homes, the price of which had not increased "one iota"

Mr. Milne said that not all UIC personnel would be in the market for a home and enquired regarding rental possibilities. He wanted to know if any row or town housing would be available.

And posing a question unrelated to the day's meeting, Mr. Bradshaw asked builders what housing accommodation could be built for sale to families in the $4,000 to $5,000 per year bracket.

To this Mr. Rollins said that under today's building costs nothing could be built for families earning less than $7,000.

The Hellyer housing commission record promised nothing for families in the $4,000 to $5,000 bracket he said.

"I wish it had because this would be our greatest market," he said.

Lumber Shortage Raises Prices

Unprecedented deep snow in British Columbia bushland resulting in a shortage of logs, together with heavy lumber purchases by American and Japanese buyers, have combined to force up the cost of new homes in Belleville.

Since the first of the year, new house prices in Belleville have increased by from $400 to $1,700 builders admit.

Two local home builders, Don Kellar and Joseph Cox, home from the West Coast where they attended a home builders' convention, say lumber prices have gone up by 30 per cent since last autumn and quote BC dealers as saying the end still is not in sight.

One of the main reasons for the lumber shortage is the heavy snow and bitterly cold weather on the coast which has shut down logging operations.

And helping to boost the price for lumber is the fact that American and Japanese buyers are making heavy purchases.

This means late deliveries on orders from the local area with one supplier stating delivery can be as much as three months behind.

At the West Coast convention, builders were told that because of the 30 per cent increase, the cost of lumber for a $20,000 house would be up $1,140.

As a result the cost of new homes all across Canada was expected to increase this year by from eight to 10 per cent.

A Sleep of Prisoners, by Christopher Fry, imprisons troops in church and the result is a dramatic setting for a play. The drama will be presented tomorrow and Friday nights at St. Thomas' Anglican Church by Forum Players including (from left) George Brickwood, Rod Coyne and John Shaw.

Play Set for Church

St. Thomas' Anglican church, now celebrating its 150th year, tomorrow night returns to one of the oldest Christian traditions — drama in the church.

Scheduled for a two-night presentation is the play Sleep of Prisoners, by the Forum Players.

Part of the church's month-long sesquicentennial program, the production also breaks new ground for drama presentations in the Quinte area.

It is believed the first time a production of such dramatic proportion has been locally presented within a church — the setting for which it was originally written by British poet-playwright Christopher Fry.

Because of this however the play while well-known and despite critical and public acclaim, is not frequently presented.

To unfold age-old themes of man in conflict with his environment, Fry uses modern dramatic devices. The action centres on a small band of captive soldiers, temporarily lodged as prisoners of war in a church. In their dreams they identify with biblical characters and incidents, giving them contemporary relevance.

The cast of the latest Forum venture which ends Friday night — includes George Brickwood, John Shaw and Rodney Coyne.

Marmora Loses Fight with CNR--Nine Stations to Close

OTTAWA — The village of Marmora has lost its fight against Canadian National Railways and now the community soon will lose its own railroad station.

The Canadian transport commission has granted a CN application to remove its station agents from nine small towns in the Belleville region, it was confirmed here today.

Express and freight service in the communities will now be processed by special long-distance telephone lines linked to a centralized master agency at Belleville.

Other villages involved are Madoc, Stirling, Wellington, Frankford, Campbellford, Colborne, Newcastle and Strathcona.

The commission turned down a CN application to include the Perth - area hamlet of Forfar in the list, on grounds that existing telephone service there is inadequate.

The official decision ends a long battle by Marmora waged by its reeve William Shannon against a shutdown of community railroad services.

Marmora and Forfar were the only two opponents to the application when it came before a public hearing of the commission in Belleville last December.

The two-day session saw Hastings County and its member municipalities throw their weight behind reeve Shannon in an appeal against economic centralization in urban areas to the detriment of rural regions.

Today, Reeve Shannon, still awaiting official notification of the commission's conclusion, accepted his defeat philosophically.

Marmora, he still believes, was the "one place" that should have been the exception to the commission's ruling.

"I accept the fact, and this decision no doubt was well thought out," he added. "But I'm not very happy."

"It's a retrograde step on the part of the railroad in their service to these communities."

The centralized service actually has been in operation for nearly a year, although station agents in the villages still have remained on duty. However, their function has been merely titular as far as the railroad was concerned as the commission's decision was awaited.

Today, CN Rideau - area manager Harry Fast said the railroad now is moving to formally close out the local stations.

Company and union officials already were in conference on personnel problems and the station agents would receive official shutdown notices this week.

The task now being tackled is relocation of the agents elsewhere in the area according to seniority.

The closings will leave no employees out of work, said Mr. Fast.

"It is a matter now of orderly relocation," he added. "There should be no problem."

Shutdown and relocation operations should be completed by mid March, said Mr. Fast.

Student Voice Proposed

Students may soon have a voice in the administration of their schools if ideas held by county trustees crystalize into reality.

Formation of a consultative advisory committee is now under consideration to give teachers and the community a say in education.

The idea was first proposed by the Ontario School Trustees' Council, which is now polling boards throughout the province to get their opinion.

Purpose of the committee would be to make recommendations to the board "with respect to all educational matters pertaining to the schools under the jurisdiction of the board."

Hastings County trustees registered their approval of the concept Monday night, but would like to see some changes in the committee structure proposed by the Council.

"We can form a standing advisory committee of our own, tailored to the specific needs of our county," board chairman James Clarke suggested.

The Council's proposal proposes a 14 member committee, composed of the board chairman and two trustees, the director of education, six teachers chosen by the teachers in the employ of the board and four persons from the community.

"Would it be too much to ask if one of the members could be a student?" queried superintendent D. C. .tirling.

His request gained immediate support from board members.

"I approve the idea of a committee, but not as laid out by the Council," said Mrs. Jean Hutchison, Trenton. "One of the teachers should be replaced by a student."

"Two of the teachers should be replaced by students," added Everett Fairman, Belleville, a retired elementary school principal.

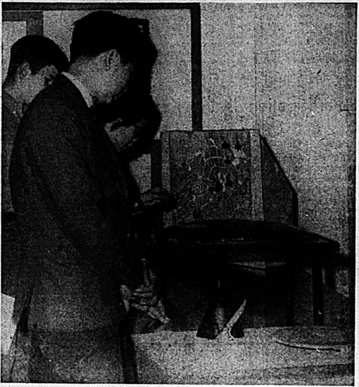
The board decided to forward agreement in principle to the Trustees' Council, and consider the formation of a consultative committee for Hastings County at a later date.

Board Names Banks

Dunwoody and Company, chartered accountants in Trenton were appointed auditors for Hastings County board of education Monday night.

At the same session, trustees decided on the board's banks.

The Toronto Dominion bank at Front and Bridge streets will handle the board's current accounts. The downtown branch of the Bank of Montreal will handle the capital funds.



Displays Intrigue Audience

Students Assist Library With 'Variety Night' Show

By ROBERT AVERY
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — There was something for everyone, from bagpipes to a rock band. And between shows you could be filmed for your first television appearance or watch a wrestling demonstration.

It was all at Trenton High School last night when over 300 students took part in a "variety night" to raise funds for new library books. The show was the first of its kind to be held in Quinte area schools and was an undisputed success.

"We have been working on this for five weeks", said Lee Errett, president of the Student Council, "and it looks pretty good."

More than 700 visitors who jammed the school auditorium for the show.

"Pretty good" is a modest term to describe the variety and calibre of entertainment which was presented in two one hour shows. And between sections of the show the audience was treated to one hour of touring display areas.

Track and wrestling demonstrations had the gymnasium floor bordered with interested spectators. And the language lab gave many parents the chance to see just how much they remembered of their high school French.

The "Hall of Fame" room let visitors see the development and progress of the high school through books, pictures, school documents and newspaper clippings.

The cafeteria was devoted to displaying the work of the students. There were paintings and displays on various aspects of the courses of study. The students in the metal shop put out an eye-catching display of metal furniture which brought out the shopping instinct in many female visitors.

But the most popular of the displays was a video television screen.

The two hours of entertainment saw the Trenton high school band perform under the direction of Ted Snider. Bagpipes, a rock band, a spoof on Shakespeare's Macbeth and the Trenton Sing Out group made sure that there was something for everyone.

And it looks like this first venture paid off as the students have reached their goal. Mr. Errett said it was hoped that receipts would total $350.

"This whole thing was done by the students, they deserve the credit," added the student council president.

Last night their credit came in the form of an undisputed success.

"We didn't know it would go over this well but, now that it has, maybe some other schools will do it," said Lee.

The program was unique with the idea of separating the two one hour stage shows with the display tour and this was the key to the evening.

City Group to Check New System

At least 10 Bellevillians, citizens and municipal officials alike, will take off from Trenton March 17 for Flint, Michigan.

Purpose — to study intensively the "Flint plan" which advocates the total use of schools after class hours for community and cultural activities.

Those going are James Clarke, chairman of the Hastings County school board, along with at least one other member from the county educational system; Inspector Ralph Blatchford from the police department and four members of the Quine Arts Council.

City Recreation commissioner Lorne Williams and another member of the arena committee are waiting approval from the city manager for the trip. And it is possible that others from the school system will attend the two-day trip.

Already 160 communities in North America including Ottawa, London and Oshawa in Ontario, have adopted the highly acclaimed plan which opens schools after hours to make complete use of facilities.

Among neighboring communities, Kingston has decided to send its director of recreation and administrator of parks on the trip.

Responsible for the trip, planned via a chartered Air Canada flight from CFB Trenton on March 17, is Mrs. Marion Wilson.

She said she felt that at this time, with the school systems being revamped, it would be an excellent opportunity for people to see "total school use" before policies had been firmly established.

It will be a two-day excursion, at a cost of $76, including passage there and back, rooms and all meals.

Mrs. Wilson said the date for completing the plans is the end of this week, since Air Canada must know by March 3 how many people are going.

The trip is also open to any interested citizen who wishes to go.

In Flint, the Mott plan of the Flint department of education is responsible for taking many groups through the educational system and showing education and recreation personnel from all over the USA and Canada how the system works.

Heart And Health

Not everyone is as robust as Dwight D. Eisenhower. At 78 the former U.S. president is reported to have weathered successfully a "high-risk" operation to relieve an intestinal blockage.

Such an operation would have been critical enough without the general's record of heart trouble going back several years. Following his last major attack and recovery six months ago it was noted he had survived twice as many attacks as the number that apparently most often add up to certain and quick death. Moreover his previous three attacks had occurred within three-and-a-half months.

A Washington report said at the time: "His weathering of at least five separate attacks — and his reported continuing progress so far in rallying from the sixth — put him in the 'multiple attack' category . . . a category for which reliable statistics are not available."

A spokesman for the U.S. public health service's national heart institute said he was sure there had been instances in medical literature of survivors of "many attacks," even beyond six, but he could not document this. From statistical information, he said, "it appears that the third attack is most often fatal."

Mr. Eisenhower undoubtedly is a rare case, yet not so unusual considering his interest in golf and fitness. Golf was his favorite way of relaxing from the awesome pressures of the presidency. He was even criticized for it, for those were the days of summit meetings and recurring threats to Western security from Soviet Premier Khrushchev. Yet no man — not even a U.S. president — is indispensable and the fact Mr. Eisenhower is still alive today, although an invalid, may be attributed in part to his dedication to the outdoors and physical fitness. In addition, modern methods of treatment greatly enhance a patient's chances of recovery.

While we are on the subject, this is Heart Fund Week in Belleville when canvassers seek contributions to this worthy cause. And as research continues, aided by the public's financial support, individuals can be their own best friend in this regard. A Heart Fund advertisement gives six vital pointers: See your doctor periodically. Control high blood pressure. Don't smoke. Eat foods low in saturated fat and cholesterol. Avoid overweight. Be physically active.

Ulster Election

As the Northern Ireland election results show, religious tolerance and full civil rights for the Roman Catholic minority are still no closer to realization. Nowhere in the world, perhaps, does religious bigotry — and it applies equally to Protestants and Catholics — arouse such passions as it does in Ulster.

Prime Minister O'Neill, the Irish aristocrat whose family dates far back into the early history of the country, is back in power, as anticipated, but at the head of a party sadly weakened and divided by internal opposition to his policy of reconciliation with the Catholic minority.

Mr. O'Neill won only narrowly in Bannside, a largely rural constituency in which he had never before been opposed. His opponent — the fiery Dr. Ian Paisley. For a fledgling politician, Paisley (who is moderator of the Free Presbyterian Church of Ireland) is no shrinking violet. Just the opposite, in fact. A man of deep convictions, Paisley nevertheless possesses none of the tolerance or humanity that would enable him to make the kind of concessions O'Neill hopes one day will enable Protestant and Catholic to live in relative harmony.

O'Neill for his part seems to have paid the price of a low-key campaign. Expecting an overwhelming victory in his own riding, the prime minister shrugged off the opposition. Paisley, a sort of Irish George Wallace playing on the emotions of a rigid and unbending Protestant electorate, at 42 looks as if he is going to be a force in Ulster politics for years to come. And as if Paisley were not opposition enough, O'Neill must also contend with men like former deputy premier Brian Faulkner who some time before the election resigned over his leader's policies. Ulster has had its troubles before, but the period ahead could be one of the most turbulent, politically, since Ireland was partitioned in 1921.

Letters to the Editor

Students Should Learn to Accept Responsibility

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

Education minister William Davis last week told students at the University of Windsor that universities should take care of their own reconstructing and not have it imposed on them by outsiders. He stressed that "governments must safeguard against the interference which would prevent universities fulfilling their true roles."

Since he supports the theory that universities should be self-governing without government interference, perhaps he agrees that those students who are determined to have full authority should be given a taste of responsibility as well and be instructed (by university administrators) to pick up the bill for replacing and repairing property damaged and destroyed by rioters and student dissenters instead of using government funds collected from taxpayers.

Student loans and grants; construction, equipment, maintenance and staff salaries are paid in part with tax dollars. Tuition fees don't begin to cover the cost of university operations.

Government grants and loans should have some restrictions — i.e. (a) students involved in riots, property damaging demonstrations or sit-ins which deprive serious students of the use of publicly supported classrooms or equipment should not be granted further assistance, and the amounts they have already eceived should become due immediately upon proof of their involvement:

(Students who are paying for their own university expenses, should promptly be expelled and no refund granted when they are involved in sit-ins or takeover of public facilities, or in riots or demonstrations where public property is damaged.)

(b) students requesting loans and grants should not be granted government assistance when they plan to attend such colleges as Rochdale, where promiscuity in classrooms is tolerated (see Weekend Magazine, Jan. '69) perhaps even encouraged by administrative acceptance of this as one of the students' "rights."

Taxpayers also have rights — and one is to be sick and tired of paying through the nose to support immorality and student rebellions!

Everyone knows the problem — few volunteer workable solutions, but these two restrictions could do much to eliminate the abuse of government funds by a minority group of irresponsible grumblers who feel they are only exercising their rights when they unlawfully seize public property, whether for sit-ins, demonstrations or immoral purposes and thus deprive conscientious students of their right to use them!

It is time we called a halt to this permissive society that allows indigents (those supported by public funds) to shout obscenities at the people who are being bled to death by taxes to support them.

Students would be well advised to stop biting the hands that feed them before those benevolent hands turn upon them and extract the teeth of the gnawing malcontents.

So Much Talent . . . Yet Country Has Many Problems

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

I would like to direct some questions on the problems of the day.

Who gives companies permission to charge the public any rate of interest they see fit to charge . . . The Governments?

Why are Members of Parliament so proficient in cutting costs at the expense of men losing their jobs, while they are so generous in raising their own salaries and providing themselves with extra luxury?

Our Governments say Canada is the richest country in the world in natural resources. We have our parliaments loaded with the best business brains in the country. Millionaires, lawyers, economists etc., and they cannot make the country pay its way. Would average people do a better job?

Our Governments say we have a housing crisis. If so, where do they place the thousands of immigrants who enter the country each year. Is this the reason we have the problem? Should there be a slow down until more housing is available? (With the exception of people forced to leave their country).

Is it right for companies and stores to raise their prices at special seasons, such as Christmas etc., to make extra profits while others who ask for a raise in salary to meet the higher costs, are accused of causing inflation?

Who gives companies permission to package goods in various forms that appear to be the value you are paying for, but unwrapped are not?

J. DAWSON.

Home and School Participation Is the Key

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

In the interests of the parents in the county, please publish the following letter.

Changes are made so fast in these times, it seems hard to keep up with them. Nothing escapes from them. One field of several changes of late is education. Schools change, subjects change, and admininstration changes too. But are we ready for it? We are always ready with our criticisms: are we ready to work to-gether?

In this, Home and School organizations can play an important role. Our county school boards need all the help they can get, and Home and School can give that help. But 30 or 40 percent participation is not enough. It has to be an all-out effort. It is easy to voice our opinions at the dinner table, but are we going to be heard at the Home and School meetings also?

Our children depend on us. Our school boards depend on us to help build our educational system the way we want it. Do not stand on the sidelines, but participate.

Join your Home and School and belong.

CHRIS KRISTALYN,
District Vice President.

Mail Pick-up Poses Some Difficulties

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

Along with your correspondent "Trenton," I have received a letter from Scarborough which was mailed there on a Thursday and not delivered in Belleville until Tuesday.

But what I really want to complain about is the pick-up of mail going out of Belleville.

It used to be picked up at the corner boxes at 9 p.m. I don't claim this should still be done, maybe that is asking too much. But surely a little later than 5 o'clock could be arranged. Even the 5.30 pick-up at the East Belleville branch office was not too bad. One could deposit mail on the way home from work, and expect it to go out that evening. But now, if mailed there, (they collect at 5 o'clock) it is already a day old when it starts its journey. Even on lower Front Street where you might expect to find a parking place while you deposit your mail, it is picked up at 5.10 p.m.

If you are a stenographer or secretary, it is impossible to stop work at 5, get into coat and overshoes, get car from parking lot, and deposit mail where it will be picked up that night, without going to the main Post Office which is to say the least a congested traffic area at that time of day.

A letter appeared in your paper some time ago from a postal worker who apologized for the inconvenience caused by the strike and suggested it would all be made worthwhile by the increased services to the citizens.

But to me it seems the service is getting progressively worse.

50 YEARS AGO

February 26, 1919

In a hockey match between the Boy Scout teams, the Patrol Leaders and the Patrol Corporals, the latter team won, the score being 6 to 0. The following composed the teams: Patrol Leaders — Jack Sarley, Jack Crozier, Harry Anderson, Irwin McPherson, James Jeffrey, Patrol Corporals — Willie George, C. Rigby, C. Barnett, L. Barlow S. Gaines and G. Watts. The Patrol Leaders played well but they could not get the rubber in the net. James and Charles Jeffrey are clever players. Harry Anderson and Irwin McPherson made several splendid rushes. For the Corporals George Watts and S. Gaines had the credit of each scoring three goals. Nothing could get by Willie George in goal.

Portrait of Mao Saved Yachtsmen

Peterborough Examiner

It must have been an Englishman in the foreign service who told the sports at Hong Kong Yacht Club that sailing to Macao, the island off Mainland China 'was not a good thing at this particular time.' Only an Englishman of that breed could have delivered such an understatement.

Three yachts and 15 passengers have already been seized by the Communist Chinese who appear to be looking for hostages. Relations between the Chinese and the government of Hong Kong have been strained since Hong Kong authorities imprisoned Communists who were held responsible for the 1965 anti-British campaign of violence in the colony.

The Chinese have been holding Anthony Grey, the Reuters' correspondent in Peking, prisoner in his own office as a hostage for the Hong Kong arrests and recently took into custody a British couple and their son who are charged with unspecified crimes.

A month ago Canadian sportsman Anne Larsen and his wife were held for 10 days after their crippled vessel drifted into Chinese waters. They were searched and interrogated before being freed.

Two Dutch news photographers bound for Macao in a yacht were intercepted by a gunboat and four armed junks but were clever enough to be wearing high neck Mao jackets and had a portrait of Mao in the yacht's lounge. The Chinese were so pleased they decorated the Dutchmen with Mao badges.

Our ploy would have been to fly the Jolly Roger and demand a 21-gun salute.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A five-man party from a U.S. radar picket ship boarded a Soviet fishing trawler off Newfoundland 10 years ago today—in 1959—where four American Telephone and Telegraph Company cables had been broken. The navy crew reported no evidence of any intent other than fishing.

1846—Frederick William Cody—better known as Buffalo Bill—was born in Scott County, Iowa.

1948—RCMP raided Alberta IODE for reports on baby-farming.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—officials in London announced that Capt. Randolph Churchill, son of the prime minister, had parachuted into Yugoslavia to confer with Marshal Josip Broz (Tito): Allied forces repelled an attempted attack by German E-boats at Anzio south of Rome; Russian troops captured Porkhov, 45 miles east of Pskov.

Mr. Stanfield Finds Speaking French Is A Stumbling Block

Montreal Star

All praise to Mr. Robert Stanfield in his persistent effort begun, alas, rather late in life, to learn French. It is not easy once youthful years are over. He hinted at some difficulties during his recent visit to Drummondville. He had tried, he said, to take an immersion course in Quebec during the Christmas recess of Parliament. The course was not available. He therefore took off for French-speaking Guadeloupe in the Caribbean, hoping to combine sunshine with French language instruction.

What a man of steel he must be! Our own chief recollection of holidays in the sun is that one is overcome by lethargy. The Canadian is unused to the effects of a sub-tropical climate. He lives his own life, ruggedly determined to survive the rigors of the Canadian winter.

When he gets into the sun, he goes to pieces. The normal checks and balances of his life are destroyed. He lies on beaches, hour after hour, dazed and drugged, intoxicated in a hazy way by the effect of heat and sunshine upon his exhausted mind and body.

It was a good try, Mr. Stanfield, but we would take a small bet that the sunshine beat you, and French studies ran a bad second to rest and recuperation.

Swedes Say Faithfulness Is Essential in Marriage

Brantford Expositor

A report on the sexual habits of Swedes has dispelled some of the myths about Love for Friendship's sake. Eighty per cent of all Swedish women believe that love is a necessary condition for sexual relationship.

A still higher percentage, 91 per cent of women and 87 per cent of men, say that matrimonial faithfulness is essential. Ninety per cent of all married couples lived according to that principle during the past year.

The report, published by the Swedish institute of Public Opinion Research, is the first in the world that fully represents a population between 18-60 years from all types of homes and professions.

It is based on answers supplied by 2,156 specially selected people, of whom only 153 refused to co-operate. Some of the report's findings: 89 per cent of all men and 81 per cent of all women believe that if a couple is in love they may have a sexual relationship without being married.

"The maxim: if you are in love, it's alright, is a view held primarily by younger people and particularly unmarried people," says Professor Hans Zetterberg, of the Research Institute. "But even in groups officially standing for restraint this holds true."

Berliners May Be Able To Travel About City

BERLIN (CP) — Representatives of West Berlin and East Germany will meet in East Berlin later today to discuss possibilities for an agreement granting more freedom of movement to Berliners, West Berlin Mayor Klaus Schuetz announced.

The East Germans want the West Germans to cancel their March 5 presidential election in West Berlin. In return they have offered to issue passes for West Berliners to visit friends and relatives in East Berlin at Easter.

The West Germans say the Communists must produce at least a long-term pass agreement before they will even consider moving the election out of West Berlin. Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger said last week other East German concessions would be necessary for an agreement.

Schuetz sent a message to East German Premier Willi Stoph Tuesday asking for prompt talks, not only on a pass agreement but also on "other things."

ADN, the East German news agency, said Stoph replied several hours later, but the report indicated the East Germans would not accept an attempt to broaden the talks beyond the East pass issue.

The East Germans, backed by the Soviet Union, stopped issuing wall passes to West Berliners three years ago. With the election just a week away, observers doubt it can be moved out of West Berlin on such short notice even if the apparent impasse is solved.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said Tuesday that West Germany must cancel its election before the matter of wall passes can be settled. It reiterated the Soviet and East German view that holding the election in West Berlin was a "provocation," since in the Communist view West Berlin is not part of West Germany but a separate political entity.

The Soviets and East Germans have promised "consequences" if the election is held in West Berlin. East Germany has already barred the West German presidential electors from the surface routes to the city 110 miles inside Communist territory, and the Soviets have scheduled large-scale military manoeuvres in the area to coincide with the election.

The crisis is expected to be high on the agenda of talks today between Kiesinger and President Nixon during the president's visit to Bonn. Nixon is scheduled to visit West Berlin Thursday.

Vatican Envoy Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament Hill's mail from across Canada on the issue of diplomatic recognition of the Vatican is running heavily against such a move.

For example, spokesmen for Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and NDP Leader Tommy Douglas said Tuesday the two party leaders have not received a single letter in favor of recognition of the Vatican.

In the case of Mr. Stanfield, the latest count was 156 to 0 against recognition.

The spokesmen said they could not recall any previous occasion when all the mail on a given issue was negative

A spokesman for Prime Minister Trudeau said most of the letters directed to him on the issue are critical.

It is understood that Mr. Trudeau has received more than 500 letters opposing recognition and only a few in favor.

New York Fire Takes Nine Lives

NEW YORK (AP) — A fire raced through a midtown Fifth Avenue office building, killing nine persons and leaving seven others critically burned.

Most of the victims Tuesday were trapped on the third floor of the five-storey building at 48th Street, near Rockefeller Centre. Some were jammed in an elevator disabled by the flames and others were piled against a door.

Dozens of others ran down smoke-filled stairwells or clambered down aerial ladders. Some were carried out by police.

Copy Hydro Is Suggestion

Water Resources Body Reform Is Urged

TORONTO (CP) — James Freithaupt (L—Kitchener) Tuesday proposed that the Ontario Water Resources Commission should be turned into "an operation like Ontario Hydro," selling its services to local utilities commissions.

Mr. Breithaupt told the legislature that operations of the ORWC under the department of energy and resources management has been inept and its place in the new regional governments must be clarified quickly.

OWRC services cannot be localized, as would happen if the government's plans for sewer and water services under regional government are realized, Mr. Freithaupt said.

It should become an operation like Hydro, financed with provincial backing and as a provincial body not restricted by local government limitations.

OWRC operations have contributed to difficulties in getting new supplies of water for Waterloo County and the city of Kitchener, the Liberal member said in the throne speech debate.

Five sources of water are available but OWRC has ruled that three of them are exorbitantly expensive without showing the comparative cost figures to prove its argument.

Constitutional Referendums May Be Arranged in Quebec

By THE CANADIAN PRES

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Tuesday the government is considering legislation to create a system of referendums which could be used, among other things, to determine the feelings of Quebecers on constitutional negotiations with the rest of Canada.

Mr. Bertrand said at a news conference following the opening of the fourth session of the 28th legislature that the "inaugural speech" read by Lt.-Gov. Hugues Lapointe referred to the referendum legislation under consideration.

The speech said it will be necessary to determine "the mechanism whereby the sovereign will of the people of Quebec" can be expressed constitutionally.

The government, said Mr. Bertrand, does not intend to restrict the scope of the referendum legislation to internal matters. A referendum could cover constitutional matters with the rest of Canada.

The premier was speaking after an opening ceremony that was stripped of much of the royal trappings that used to mark legislative activity in Quebec.

Steelworkers Seek $1.40 Pay Boost

HAMILTON (CP) — Nearly 12,000 steelworkers at Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. are asking wage and other benefits that would cost the company $1.40 an hour over a two-year period.

Ron Tipler, president of Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America, said Thursday night the demands, the most costly in recent bargaining history between the union and company, would mean a total of $4,500 to each worker over the next two years.

Ten proposals by the negotiating committee would total almost double the settlement the steelworkers won three years ago.

A Stelco spokesman said today the company is prepared to discuss the proposals when bargaining begins, but he would not comment specifically on the 10 points.

Outlining the points to about 1,500 steelworkers at a meeting, Mr. Tipler said negotiations are tentatively scheduled to begin April 1 for the contract which expires at midnight, July 31.

The contract demands of Local 1005 at Stelco's Hilton workers normally set the pace for about 4,000 other steelworkers in the Stelco chain whose contracts expire this summer.

In addition, 16,000 steelworkers at International Nickel of Canada in Sudbury and Port Colborne, Ont., and 6,500 workers at Algoma Steel Co. in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., are expected to borrow heavily from the Local 1005 demands in their summer bargaining.

The contract demands include a 49-cent-an-hour wage increase for all employees Aug. 1, 1969 and a further 25-cent-an-hour increase Aug. 1, 1970.

The proposed increase would take the lowest-paid steelworker to $3.25 an hour from $2.51 and the highest-paid to $5.33 from $4.59.

Young Dancer to Appear In Musical Production

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

And then there are those who are almost veterans before they reach the age of 16.

Note well the example of one Lorne Loveless, 15, scholarly student — tap and jazz dancer.

Lorne is a student at Moira Secondary School, and has been dancing for six years. He finds no problem with dancing interfering with his homework. In fact, it seems he is doing superbly in both.

Lorne left Feb. 25 for Jubilee Auditorium, Edmonton where he will be dancing in the musical production of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying".

The show runs three days—March 13, 14 and 15 and Lorne will be doing gruelling eight-hour a day rehearsal work for the two weeks previous to the show.

How did he get involved in a musical, nearly at the other end of the country?

Lorne was chosen because he has a great deal of promising talent. His teacher at his dance studio, Brian Foley, saw it shining through, and decided to really let there be light.

The dancer explained that lessons don't take up any time during the week, but he explained, "on Saturdays I usually go to Toronto for at least three lessons."

"But during the week I practise at home, downstairs, where I have my own exercise bar," he added.

He said he was very excited about the whole thing not only because it is his first time dancing in a musical, but because the kind of impression he makes is most important.

It is important for his own career, of course, but, Lorne said, "our dancing teacher explained that the load is on us, as representatives of the school. If we are successful, more dancers from the studio will be able to participate in shows such as this."

His plans for the future include, hopefully, a career in choreography . . . but then, it is kind of early to tell, yet.

"Dancing is a lot of fun," Lorne remarked, "but kids don't seem to realize this. A dancer is looked upon as a sissy. Dancing is a lot of hard work, rehearsals — but more people should try it."

The Experts Say

Committees Should Be Appointed To Arrange for Conventions

TORONTO (CP) — One way to find out about the attractions your town has to offer is to get on a convention committee. With accommodations, tours, favors, entertainment to plan, you have to develop a visitor's-eye view of familiar surroundings.

Once your national or provincial group has agreed to hold its convention in your town, you need three things; a committee, a budget, and time. If you are chairman, says Grace Carter, get as many people on your committee as is practical. The involvement is good for the members and therefore for the club, and the shared work load is easier on the chairman's nervous system.

"If I were running a convention, I would delegate delegate, delegate."

Miss Carter is assistant director of sales at the Royal York Hotel, and part of her job is working with convention committees.

Usually there is some discussion between the hotel management and the local host club before an invitation is extended to a larger group, but when the time for detailed negotiation comes, the hotel will want to know as much about the convention as possible as far ahead as possible.

Miss Carter says at least two years notice or more for an exceptionally large convention is a good idea. You can base attendance figures and program plans on past experience.

Some hotels will supply you with printed room reservation cards, complete with prices, that can be sent to members and returned directly to the hotel. In some cases, you may prefer to set up a reservations committee of club members to work with the hotel.

The program chairman should have an idea of how many meals, how many plenary sessions, how many smaller workshop sessions and parties will be held, so that appropriate rooms can be kept available.

"And don't forget exhibit space if you need it, and space and staff for registration. Let the hotel know who is important—they might add a VIP touch, such as flowers in the room.

"Some of the executive will need suites. The executive secretary often needs a suite and needs space for an office. You might also need to rent office equipment for her and her staff."

If the convention is big enough, you might want a separate committee for the formal banquet. In any case, you will want to arrange for favors, flowers, perhaps special seating for the head table, if the banquet is formal. If you can give it a local flavor with food, decorations, entertainment, Miss Carter says people usually enjoy it.

She suggests you avoid anything unusual or exotic in the way of food, though, when you have several hundred people to feed. Roast beef is safest.

You need someone in charge of entertainment, and in charge of speakers. Arrangements for both, including reservations and transportation as well as pay, should be made as far ahead as possible.

"You must have a group ready to meet trains and planes for the delegates as well as the VIPs."

Miss Carter points out that most hotels have organized a good many conventions, and can guide the committee.

To organize events such as local tours, official welcoming parties, post- or pre-convention tours, talk to the local convention bureau, chamber of commerce, travel agencies and transportation companies.

If there is a major local attraction or an industry that might be of interest to delegates, their representatives can often help.

Miss Carter says convention visitors from the United States, for instance, enjoy films on English china, supplied by importers. Local merchants or associations may supply shoppers' lists.

If you do offer a sightseeing tour, you might want to arrange for a tea and shopping break.

If delegates have brought their families, you should have some separate program of tours and activities for them.

"If it is all planned ahead of time, then when the convention starts, the committee can relax and enjoy it."

College Guild Entertains at Coffee Party

Members of Albert College Guild gathered recently in the spacious and attractive board room of the Manor for a coffee party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Simpson. The former retired recently after 38 years on the staff of Albert College, and principal for the past five years.

The president of the Guild Mrs. Hugh McKay spoke briefly in appreciation of the contribution that both Mr. and Mrs. Simpson had made to the college over the years. On behalf of the Guild, Mrs. McKay presented Mr. and Mrs. Simpson with a jug in Cranberry glass, to add to their collection of antiques.

Mrs. Simpson replied with thanks and expressed pleasure at the choice of gift

An informal coffee hour followed, when Mrs. G. Diment, social convener assisted by other members served, after which a social hour was spent with Mr. and Mrs. Simpson.

Dream of Susannah Moodie Gives Poetess Inspiration

EDMONTON (CP) — Poet Margaret Atwood sat on a rug wrapping up her tarot cards in a silk scarf "to keep evil influences out."

She had just told a fortune from the long French cards that are forerunners of the present 52-card deck.

"I don't put much stock in all this occult stuff," she said, grey eyes gleaming

Then she explained the subconscious inspiration for her latest book of poetry. In a dream she saw Susannah Moodie alone on a stage in an opera.

Miss Atwood does not remember where she heard about Mrs. Moodie, the 19th century writer who settled in Upper Canada. But after the dream, she read two of Mrs. Moodie's books: Roughing It in the Bush, about homesteading near Cobourg, Ont., and Life in the Clearings, sketches of Upper Canada towns.

She was struck by the relationship between those times and the "hang-ups" of contemporary Canadian life.

Then Miss Atwood located a rare photograph of Mrs. Moodie — "mad-looking and old." In the poem's third section, she portrays Mrs. Moodie as a ghost on a Toronto streetcar.

Miss Atwood is currently learning to cast horoscopes.

Roast of Pork Fit for A King

By MARY MOORE

Tentatively I have mentioned crown roasts of pork and lamb but without hope that many of you would coax the butcher into preparing this royal roast.

But times have changed. Canadian cooks are becoming more daring and less afraid of that towering tyrant, the supermarket butcher.

"We have the cut of meat you want. Please ask for it" the supermarket signs proclaim.

Okay girls, go ahead and ask for a crown roast of pork. Your butcher will need two loins of eight or nine ribs each. He trims the fat from the bone ends, then fastens the two loins together with strong string with his curved needle. Then he forces the loins, bone side out, into a crown shape and fastens them into position again using strong string and a curved needle. It is a roast that requires expertise. Many of our Canadian butchers of European origin can and will do it for you, but you must give them time by ordering it in advance.

CROWN ROAST OF PORK

7 to 8-pound crown roast of pork

salt and pepper

Stuffing:

one small cauliflower, cooked and placed in centre of roast just before serving

OR

1 cup chopped onion

1 cup chopped celery

1 cup chopped apple

4 cups soft breadcrumbs

½ teaspoon salt

¼ teaspoon pepper

¼ teaspoon rosemary or sage

Garnish:

pickled crabapples

To prevent charring, neatly wrap bone ends of crown roast of pork with small strips of foil. Sprinkle all over with salt and pepper. Fill centre with stuffing — see below. Place on rack in roasting pan and roast at 325 deg. Fahr. Pork must be well done so allow 30 minutes per pound which means a seven-pound roast needs 3½ hours at least but to be sure use meat thermometer and when it registers 185 deg. Fahr. pork is cooked through.

If you use a cooked whole cauliflower as your stuffing enclosed by the little fence of rib bones it is quite simple and attractive. But if you prefer the stuffing, saute the onion, celery and apple in the butter until just limp — about 5 minutes. Gently mix in breadcrumbs and seasonings and fill centre of crown roast before putting it in the oven.

This roast is easy for the carver for the butcher has to crack the bones at bottom of each rib before shaping his crown roast or the loin will not bend.

Poetess Gives Thanks for Dirty Dishes

By DORIS CLARK

DIRTY DISHES

Thank God for dirty dishes
They have a tale to tell.
While other folks go hungry
We're eating very well.
With home and health and happiness
We shouldn't ought to fuss
For by this stack of evidence
God's very good to us.

January 1969 issue CCB Outlook.

The poetess, Isobel Watson, is a blind reader of this little magazine, a publication of the Canadian Council of the Blind.

Dear Doris: Is it better to go on living with a husband you can't stand any more or pull out? My husband married a carefree happy girl who loved him and turned her into an old nervous woman who hates him.

He nags and ridicules me. He hasn't been a help to me at all. I've had to fight for everything and feel it's not worth it any more. Our youngest will be on his own soon. I've even gone out working to see the family gets a good education.

To make it worse, even the family doesn't realize it, as we're supposed to be Christians. Believe me I've spent a lot of hours in prayer about it. Any counsellor's, etc., advice he would just put me in the wrong about.

He often quotes, "Wives, submit yourselves to your husbands." But he ignores "Husbands, love your wives as yourselves." — No One.

Dear No One: So the downgrading has done its work and you feel like a nobody. So-called Christian behavior takes a queer twist, sometimes.

It does happen that when all the birds have left the nest, a couple are thrown upon each other's mercy and take another look at what they got into — say three decades before. I gather your reassessment was a shock.

The answer to your first question is no. But do be sure you won't die of loneliness. Going it alone may mean freedom — but at what price? I can't make any decisions for you, from this distance.

I'd strongly urge an outpouring to a trained counsellor, who will talk over with you what the real trouble is, and what might be done about it.

Dear Doris: I particularly enjoyed the bit of verse you finished your column with before the New Year. It began, "I dreamed death came the other night, etc."

I cut it out and read it many times at our own home and when in other homes during the holidays. So many enjoyed it.

I just wanted to let you know I, for just one of your admirers, appreciated your sense of humor. We need much more of this in this day and age. — Mrs. M. B.

Dear Mrs. M. B.: And that is for sure! Now the fun has gone full circle. Thank you. (For any readers who missed it, the poem proceeds to describe arriving in heaven, receiving cold looks from other unlikely heavenly guests, and the eventual dawning upon the dreamer that "no one expected me!")

Ann Landers

Better Idea to Give Household Pet Away

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There is an important problem in our family. My mother is going to take our dog to an animal hospital and give a fake name and address so they can't bring her back. Why? Because the people who owned Sweetie didn't housebreak her and she doesn't know the outside of the house from the inside.

ANN LANDERS

We got Sweetie when she was three years old. She is now nine. Next month we are moving into a new house with wall-to-wall carpeting. My mother says she is not going to have the new carpets ruined like in the old house.

Please explain to my mother that after you have a dog for six years, which is more than half of my life, you just can't send her away. — SAD EYES.

DEAR SAD: It is almost impossible to housebreak a nine-year-old dog, but leaving Sweetie at a hospital under a fake name is unfair to the dog — to say nothing of the hospital. Your mother should give Sweetie to a farmer — or someone who can keep her outside. She should then buy you a puppy to train.

Please don't think your mother is mean. I've been in her spot and I can assure you that her eyes were sadder than yours on several occasions.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has not spoken to me for 48 hours. Why? Because there was no chocolate syrup in the house and he had to eat his vanilla ice cream with caramel sauce.

This hulk is 6' 2" and weighs 220 pounds. He is the life of every party. Everyone thinks he is a "swell guy" and a barrel of fun. And he is — to strangers. But when it comes to his own family, he is demanding and crabby.

He reads your column every day and thinks you are a smart cookie. Whenever you have a knock for women he hands me the paper and says, "See anybody you know?" Please print this letter so I can hand the paper to him for a change. It might help. — TIRED.

DEAR T: Here's your letter, Honey, but don't hand it to him now. Wait till you run out of chocolate syrup again and then hand it to him.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 24 and have been engaged for a year. Joe is 26 and highly intelligent, or so I thought.

Recently we were at the home of Joe's eldest brother. His nephews, 6 and 10 years, were busy looking through the family album. They came across a picture of Joe with his former girl friend. The 10-year-old piped up, "Gee, Uncle Joe, this girl is a lot prettier than the one you got. What happened?"

Everyone laughed so loud I thought the walls would crack. They kept it up for ten minutes. I nearly died of embarrassment. On the way home I told Joe I was deeply hurt that he didn't defend me. He said the kid meant no harm and that such remarks should be laughed off. What do you say? — STAR.

DEAR STAR: Kids can be brutal without realizing it. While they mean no harm, they must be taught tact and consideration for others. The "correction" should have come from a parent, however, not from Joe.

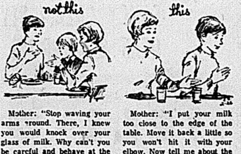
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "Stop waving your arms around. There, I knew you would knock over your glass of milk. Why can't you be careful and behave at the table."

Mother: "I put your milk too close to the edge of the table. Move it back a little so you won't hit it with your elbow. Now tell me about the rest of the game."

Don't confuse youthful enthusiasm with misbehavior. Prevent minor accidents if you can, but don't fuss too much about unimportant things like spilled milk.

Gamma Mu Chapter Views Colorful Slides

The hostess for the Feb. 18 meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter Beta Sigma Phi was Mrs. R. Vaughan.

The business segment of the meeting included a letter from the Phi Psi Chapter read thanking Gamma Mu for the invitation of their members to a previous meeting. An announcement was made of a seminar regarding the use of school recreational facilities by the public being held in Flint, Michigan in March. It was also suggested that the Chapter consider the possibility of purchasing the magazine The Canadian Consumer in order that the members might study various products on the current market. Also as the election of officers is in March, each executive member was asked to read the duties of her office.

The program portion of the meeting entitled Nature's Landscape was also presented by Mrs. R. Vaughan. The introduction for her program was a poem. The Definition of Beauty, by Harold Titus — a most fitting one for the beautiful slides which were shown to the group. The slides included scenes taken on visits by Mrs. Vaughan and her husband from the east coast to the west coast of Canada and the European countries of Spain, Germany, Switzerland and Holland. Another poem was also read as various slides of fall scenes were shown.

Following the program a sale of articles brought by the members was conducted to assist the Ways and Means Committee. Also a donation of hats was made to the chapter and these were sold at the same time to aid in service work.

The co-hostesses for the evening Mrs. L. Schnell and Mrs. T. Logan served the usual delicious refreshments to conclude an enjoyable evening.

Senator Opposes Provincial Role

OTTAWA (CP) — If provincial governments had a say in appointments to the Senate the upper chamber would be more partisan than it now is, Senator J. J. Connolly (L—Ontario), former government leader in the chamber, said Tuesday.

Criticizing a federal government proposal for provincial appointments as one area of Senate reform, Senator Connolly said it is naive to think that provinces would "vie with one another for excellence of appointments."

He predicted such a scheme would "result in this House in a political free-for-all."

Speaking during a debate in the Senate on a report of a Senate committee on procedural rules, Senator Connolly defended the chamber as "the custodian of the basic freedoms of Canadians."

He said the role of the Senate is legislative. The chamber is "not a debating society, not an ombudsman, not a policeman, not a part of the administration."

MPs Raise Objections to Allowing Abortions

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposals to change the law on abortion and homosexuality again were the focus for vehement moral and religious opposition in the Commons Tuesday.

At the same time, the government and Prime Minister Trudeau were drubbed verbally for insisting that MPs vote on a whole package of criminal law changes, including those two sections.

The Commons completed its seventh day of debate on Criminal Code amendments without the legislation receiving second reading.

The 14-member Creditiste party displayed the only united front among the three opposition parties when it served notice that, as a result of a survey of Quebec constituents, all will vote against the government's bill.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield declared a free vote for the official Opposition, whose speakers revealed a split on the abortion and homosexuality questions although they were united in condemning the government's tactics.

The 22-member New Democratic party has also split on the bill's contents.

The bill occupied the full day's sitting Tuesday, except for a one-hour private members debate during which two measures to lower the voting age to 18 from 21 were sent to a Commons committee for study.

The stumbling blocks to approval of the Criminal Code changes are a provision to exempt from prosecution homosexual acts in private by consenting adults and a provision to permit abortions when a hospital committee certifies that the woman's life or health is endangerd.

Mr. Stanfield made it plain that he will vote for the government's bill despite serious reservations. He said he doubts whether the abortion and homosexuality sections make any real reform.

The abortion provision might make it harder to terminate pregnancies in remote regions.

He renewed his criticism of the government for refusing to split the bill into sections for voting purposes and permit its supporters to vote according to their personal convictions.

The Conservative House Leader, G. W. Baldwin (Peace River) delivered the harshest blast against the government's approach on the measure.

"I think that the attitude of the government has been arrogant, authoritarian, undemocratic and downright immoral," he charged.

Issues of morality and conscience should be kept far outside political partisanship but were being placed on the statute books by questionable means.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said the abortion and homosexuality sections violate Christian morality.

"You can never achieve a good end through immoral means," he said.

"The Creditiste party is happy to stand on the teachings of God and not on those of the Liberal party."

On the government side, Gilles Marceau (L—Lapointe) said that while he opposes abortion himself as a Roman Catholic, he does not consider he has a monopoly on the truth.

He had decided that he had no right to prevent a woman from obtaining an abortion if her morals permit her to apply for one.

Maurice Foster (L—Algoma) said the government has proceeded in the only practical way by covering all the criminal law changes in one bill, although the abortion section still leaves unsolved the problem of pregnancies resulting from rape or incest.

Steve Paproski (PC—Edmonton Centre) said the bill really means unrestricted abortion, because nothing in it will prevent termination of life for frivolous reasons. Homosexuals would be given the green light to proselytize the young.

Hugh John Flemming (PC—Carleton-Charlotte) bitterly attacked the homosexual section, saying: "I cannot see myself voting to put the stamp of respectability on something that is degrading and demoralizing to our people."

Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste--Roberval) appealed to "every Catholic, Christian and atheist with humanity to fight the bill because of the two backward and uncivilized sections."

Town's Eyesore To Become Rink

DESERONTO — An eyesore which has irritated Deseronto for a number of years is to disappear, and the site will become an open air rink.

The matter was decided at last week's meeting of the town council. Councillor Jack Layfield, a member of the recreation committee, made the request, and gave a preliminary sketch of the proposed plan.

Built and used many years ago as a match factory, the building remained vacant for many years, until acquired by Ideal Venders, Ltd., which eventually built a new plant at the north-west end of the town. Again vacated, it was burned after having been used for a year as a plant for manufacturing small wooden items. The ruins have never been cleared away.

This year Mayor J. W. Sharpe set up a Civic Improvement Committee, which is now making plans to clear away the blocks of concrete on the floor and on the lot. Until this is done the exact measurements of the floor will not be known, but it is estimated to be about 80 by 100 feet. The part of the floor which is clear is being utilized by the town to store sand and gravel piles for street use.

The recreation committee has been active this year, and rinks on the former high school grounds have been widely used by old and young alike. But ice would be formed more easily on a cement base than on the ground, Councillor Layfield argued. Council accordingly gave its permission for this slab of concrete to be used provided there was proper supervision. Councillor Layfield assured them that the rink would be properly operated.

The recreation committee was congratulated by several councillors on the success of the carnival held on the three rinks on the high school grounds. The committee netted $113 from this venture.

On the recommendation of Councillor Layfield, Dennis Vick and Norma Layfield were appointed to the recreation committee. Both are teenagers who contributed a great deal to the success of the carnival.

Alkenbrack Says Contractor Issued Worthless Cheques

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Douglas Alkenbrack complained in the Commons Tuesday night that thousands of dollars of worthless cheques were left in his constituency when a federal contractor went bankrupt recently.

Mr. Alkenbrack, member for the eastern Ontario constituency of Frontenac-Lennox and Addington, said D. Leblanc Inc., of Laval, Que., went into receivership about Feb. 13 while working as a sub-contractor on the Bath-Millhaven federal prison.

The prime contractor, Argo Inc., had reported that the subcontractor was not bonded, and Mr. Alkenbrack called for an explanation of this "dire lack of management" on the part of the government.

Paul Langlois, parliamentary secretary to Works Minister Arthur Laing, said the general contractor has undertaken to redeem any cheques issued for direct labor by the subcontractor and not cashed.

Have you noticed all the smiling faces around your Loblaw store lately? My mother has, and says the fact that Loblaw's customers are happier these days is because Loblaw's employees are friendlier than ever.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Later this spring we would like to make a trip to Kentucky, a place we have never been, and want to take in the Bluegrass country. Just which part of the State is this in and what are some of the highlights? Some of our friends suggest going by Detroit, others recommend going by Buffalo. Which way is the better?

ANSWER: Commercial centre of the Bluegrass country is Lexington. It is one of the markets in the world and is also the chief bluegrass seed-producing centre in the country.

Horse racing has long been associated with Lexington, the first race-track having been built in 1798. The Lexington Jockey Club was formed in 1809 and held its metings at Ashland, the home of Henry Clay, who was one of the first American breeders to introduce the Arabian strain.

Around Lexington are some of the most celebrated horse farms in the world, noted for the breeding of thoroughbred racing and saddle horses. Strictly speaking, the Bluegrass comprises only about 1,200 suqare miles, of which Lexington is the centre.

Some of the horse farms, both thoroughbred and standardbred, are open to tourists. Information and maps are available at the Blue Grass Automobile Club in Lexington. Ther are conducted tours at 1.30 p.m. daily, from April through October. Many a winner of the Kentucky Derby was raised on these farms.

The recommended route is by 401 to Windsor and Detroit, and Route 75 south from there. From Belleville, this is 710 miles. Going by Buffalo is about 40 miles further.

• • •

QUESTION: In driving to Phoenix, Ariz., which would be the shorter route — to head down to Indianapolis and St. Louis, or make for Chicago?

ANSWER: Ther is little difference in distance. Going by Chicago it is 2,410 miles, by Indianapolis it is 2,390.

NO SMOKING

In Ontario it is illegal to smoke within 10 feet of the pump while filling up with gas. There is a similar law in Norway but it goes even further. In that country it is illegal to smoke while driving in towns or built-up areas.

FREEWAY DRIVING HINT

If an accident or breakdown occurs ahead of you on the freeway and the disabled vehicles are partly blocking the lanes, always slow down to a safe speed and use caution.

But, when the vhicles are off the highway and present no hazard at all, don't be tempted to reduce speed just to take a peep to see what has happened. Drivers who do this often start off a chain reaction in the traffic pattern which results in one of those tie-ups so peculiar to the freeway.

So if one or two vehicles are halted on the shoulder, spare a thought for the drivers behind you. Unless there is anything you can do to help, keep moving at a reasonable speed. You will save others a lot of time, temper and maybe a few insurance claims.

Michener Advises Students To Put Their Trust in Courts

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (CP) — Governor-General Roland Michener urged West Indies students Tuesday to have faith in Canadian justice.

In a reference to the recent rampage at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, he said he could not discuss it in detail because the issue is before the courts. Eighty-nine students, including about 40 from the West Indies, face charges as a result of the destruction of the university's computer centre.

On his way into the lecture hall to address the faculty and students of the Barbados branch of the University of the West Indies, Mr. Michener was met by about 250 students carrying placards in protest against racial discrimination.

He won their cheers when he took a sign reading "Against Racism" and carried it briefly. "This is one I can agree with," the Governor-General said.

Mr. and Mrs. Michener, on a state visit to the Commonwealth Caribbean countries, travel to Trinidad and Tobago today. It will be their last stop.

At the university here, Undergraduate President Darlington Smith said in his formal welcome to the Micheners that Barbados students regret the damage at Sir George, "even though it was incited by other actions."

He said their main concern is that their brothers get a fair trial "in the land and city where Man and His World was the theme of Expo 67."

Mr. Mitchener said: "I think I can assure you that you should have the confidence in our courts that I have in yours, because I know we both have grown in the same mould and we believe that justice should be meted out to all without favor or affection or regard to condition in life."

The demonstrators said they were protesting against racial discrimination in the events leading up to the Sir George violence.

Corn Growers Ask for Eastern Ontario On-farm Aids

OTTAWA (CP) — Eastern Ontario corn growers Tuesday called for help in building on-farm storage facilities as the prime need in developing an economically viable corn industry.

They turned thumbs down on proposals for an Ontario corn marketing board and they asked for an end to preferential freight rates which they said favor corn shipments from southern Ontario.

A brief from the corn committee of the Dundas County Soil and Crop Improvement Association, read to the Ontario select committee on farm income, said the history of marketing boards "has demonstrated inflexibility and lack of success."

It called for aids to farmers in storing their produce on the farm, leaving the farmer free choice of his market.

Neil Williams of Winchester, Ont., chairman of the Dundas committee, charged that inequitable freight rates made it cheaper to ship corn 600 miles from Chatham to Montreal than the 100 miles from Winchester to Montreal.

At the same time, he said, fertilizer manufactured at Brockville, in eastern Ontario, is $1 a ton cheaper in Chatham than in Winchester.

Two agriculture experts, Dr. Ford Stinson, principal of the agricultural college at Kemptville, Ont., and Dr. S. C. Hudson, former head of the federal agriculture department's economics branch, stressed the potential of eastern Ontario for corn.

Dr. Stinson said about 135,000 acres of corn were planted last year and another 150,000 acres could be utilized with proper drainage.

Dr. Hudson said eastern Ontario corn rated as much as 50-per-cent higher than U.S. corn in oil content. Eastern Ontario distillers and starch plants would use local corn if they could be assured adequate supplies.

Dr. Hudson said it would be profitable for dairy farmers to convert to growing corn.

Arthur Fentiman, an Ottawa contractor who will plant 700 acres of corn this spring, criticized farmers for asking for too much help.

He didn't see why farmers should get any more consideration than any other industry.

Gordon Hill, another of the six-member committee, said the taxpayers' money that goes to agriculture is well spent. It enabled Canada to have "the second cheapest food in the world."

W. H. Hardy of Inkerman, Ont., a professional agrologist who went into corn production because he "knew a good investment when I saw it," said he wouldn't need government help "if I could meet my competition fairly and squarely."

He opposed a marketing board on the grounds that as a progressive farmer he wanted the freedom to become efficient and seek his own markets.

Professor's Paradox

If All Spoke Two Tongues Perfectly, Bilingualism Would Die

MONTREAL (CP) — A member of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism said Tuesday night that if everyone in Canada knew and spoke perfect French and English the bilingual character of the country would be destroyed.

Professor Frank R. Scott, speaking in a lecture at Marianopolis Colleg here, said that without the large unilingual sectors in the country bilingualism would die out.

"If everyone across the country knew French and English perfectly, one of the two would become superfluous and we would forget it."

The commission, he said, is not saying that everyone should or will be bilingual. It is trying to ensure the equality of French and English wherever they meet in a single institution such as in government and the top levels of industry.

Mr. Scott said the problem of equality occurs in Quebec at the top level. Part of the commission's task was to guarantee the right of a man whose language and culture is French to rise to the top without having to sacrifice his language or culture.

"It is not true to say that in the province of Quebec one cannot get a job without speaking English" he said. "One cannot get a top job without speaking English."

But at the lower levels it is massively French, Mr. Scott said, so much so that according to the 1961 census about 70 per cent of Quebecers did not know English.

Mr. Scott said that according to the provision of the British North America Act both French and English were guaranteed official status in what was then known as Canada.

But now, according to the federal constitution, he said, the Western provinces were also bound to respect French as an official language, although some provincial premiers seem unaware of the fact.

Mr. Scott added that the commission did not produce its idea necessarily to save the unity of the country "but for the basic issue of human rights".

One such human right is that of parents to choose the language in which their children are to be educated.

"If a young French-speaking manager is offered a promotion to a plant in Calgary, he will find there are no facilities for educating his children in any language but English."

If he then decides to stay in Quebec his career will suffer, Mr. Scott said.

Mr. Scott said the separation of Quebec from Confederation would not help the human rights issue because it would not solve the problem of "making communities live together recognizing each other's rights."

Twins, Anne Marie, Thomas Aquino Get Set

Local Participants Love To Enter Music Festivals

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

The audience was small, and generally, so were the participants. But the atmosphere outmatched these two factors — because of the stimulating sense of competition and showmanship displayed.

This was the scene at St. Thomas' Parish Hall yesterday afternoon as a quick succession of young accordion soloists dominated the stage.

The afternoon program, adjudicated by Ronald Smith, saw musicians from age nine to 15, giving solo performances.

It became the normal course of events to look on the program and realize that quite often, the same names would appear again and again — only performing in different classes.

One good example was Thomas and Anne Marie Aquino who are brother and sister. These two talented youngsters gave performances in two different classes.

In their final solo efforts, Thomas was awarded a mark of 82, while his sister tagged behind with an excellent showing of 80.

The pair, although playing solo this time, have often played duets together and have amassed a total of six first place awards in previous festivals.

When questioned as to the number of festivals they had appeared in, Anne Marie couldn't remember exactly, because there had been so many.

"We have been in more than 10 festivals, anyway," she said.

Although they are only 11 years old, the twins still get nervous about playing in public. They have been taking music lessons for four years, and just love it.

What about the adjudicator? He's ok," admitted Thomas, "jolly good, in fact," he said.

They Sit and Wait

At the music festival session of accordion solos at St. Thomas' Parish Hall, Helen Calbury, Gordon Taylor, Oscar Nespolie and Clyde Dawson line up in the wings. Nine-year-old Gordon, the youngest of the group, was awarded a mark of 83. Adjudicator Ronald Smith had high praise for the youngsters.

Adjudicators' Job Tough But What About Trio

By DONALD MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

"An adjudicator's nightmare."

That's what Ronald Smith called the piano trio competition that he judged yesterday.

But if "it's literally impossible to keep an eye on both the music and the three pianists playing together" for the adjudicator it is just as difficult for the three players to stay in unison.

Take one of the piano trios who played yesterday — Class 41 — Piano Trio — 10 years and under.

It took nine year old Clarice Vandervelde, nine year old Peter Irvine and 10 year old Stephen Edey one solid month of practising together to win their competition by two points yesterday.

"We practised every day since the end of January," said Clarice. "Everyday we could," agreed one of her playing partners Peter Irvine.

But then it was all worth the trouble. When the competition was over never were there three more pleased youngsters than Clarice, Peter and Stephen who all come from Belleville.

Mr. Smith, who is the instrumental adjudicator for the three day Rotary Music Festival said "that it is very difficult to sort out piano trio competitions."

He feels that it is the most difficult to judge.

"It's like a jigsaw puzzle," he pointed out.

The primo, secondo and terza which are the names for the music the first, second and third players play respectively, is written on the music sheet in pieces and the notes are very difficult to follow smoothly, especially when you have to watch the players at the same time.

To help him in his adjudicating Mr. Smith goes over the music very carefully before the performance so that he has a basic idea of the pieces.

Young Violinist Looks at Festival as Training for Future

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Kerry Stratton is second violinist in the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra, is a former concert master and has been an assistant conductor.

Unusual? Not until you realize he is 16 years old.

He competed last night in the Belleville Rotary Music Festival playing a violin duet with Peter James which netted them a first class mark of 84.

He also played French horn last night and in that department obtained a second class 75 mark.

Kerry is a Grade 12 student at Quinte Secondary School. He has played violin since he was 12 years old and French horn since he was 13.

He was a former concert master and assistant conductor of the Interprovincial Concert orchestra at Parry Sound.

Kerry decided to play a violin after "hearing a concerto of Paganini." He explains that the French horn was chosen as a secondary instrument because of its complementary appeal to the violin in music he has heard.

Kerry is studying to be a conductor by watching his own conductor and by talking with all the musicians he knows. As well, he is a member of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra.

As can be expected, Kerry hopes to go on in music, by taking a bachelor of music degree in conducting or in music education at the University of Toronto.

He has also dabbled in composing, working for four years writing a string quartet work.

"Just playing well isn't enough for some people. Creativity must come from elsewhere."

Kerry also describes composing as "experimenting with what you've already learned."

To Kerry, creativity comes under three headings — creativity with the composer, the musician and the listener.

"Creativity with the composer is the actual existing form of creation. The musician has to take what's written there and make it live."

"Certain orchestral works with which the listener can be creative are those to which he can apply his own interpretation of what he thinks the music means to him."

He has his own opinions of contemporary music.

"What people think of Stravinsky now is what people thought of Beethoven then."

Kerry remembers a symphony by Beethoven which was met with fear by his audience and he compares it to a ballet by Stravinsky which was booed in Paris.

"Music is such a great recorder of history. I can't criticize modern music. There is good and substandard in every age."

"In future generations we will have separated the good and the substandard bits of today's music."

Kerry Stratton

Play Ball!

Boycott Dies from Bargaining

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball's spring training camps were expected to begin resembling major league installations today following settlement of the pension dispute between owners and the players' association.

A marathon negotiating session ended early Tuesday with a $5,450,000 compromise pension package and settlement of a players' boycott.

Within a matter of hours after the settlement, several players had signed contracts and said they would begin working out.

General manager Jim Campbell of world champion Detroit Tigers signed nine veterans.

Catcher Tim McCarver, player representative of St. Louis Cardinals, called general manager Bing Devine from New York to report the settlement and agree to terms for 1969.

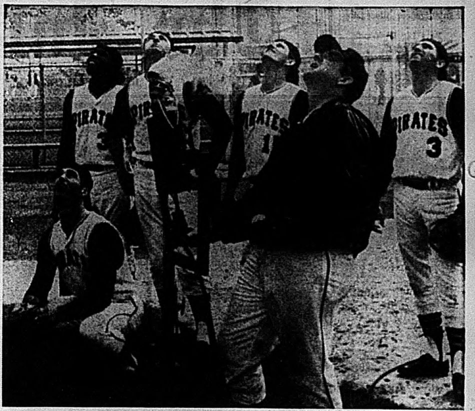
Cincinnati enrolled pitchers George Culver and Tony Cloninger and outfielder Bobby Tolan and infielder Jimmy Stewart.

Stan Bahnsen, the New York pitcher who was the American League's rookie of the year in 1968, signed with the Yankees, leaving five players including Mickey Mantle still unsigned. Mantle is expected to arrive at the Yankees' Fort Lauderdale, Fla., training site Friday.

Tony Horton, a first baseman, and shortstop Larry Brown signed Cleveland contracts and joined the Indians' workout at Tucson, Ariz. Pitchers Al Jackson and Ron Taylor of Toronto ayreed to terms with New York Mets.

The team in the most trouble seemed to be Minnesota Twins. President Calvin Griffith admitted that he had signed only 23 of the 42-man squad.

Included among the dissatisfied Minnesota players were sluggers Harmon Killebrew, Tony Oliva and Bob Allison, infielder Cesar Tovar and pitchers Jim Kaat, Dean Chance and Dave Boswell.



'It's A Bird, It's A Plane...'

Pittsburgh Pirates' coach Don Leppert, dark jacket, pulls trigger on a bazooka appearing apparatus that shoots baseballs high in the air to give catchers training in catching high popups at spring training camp in Bradenton. Jerry May, left, is in catcher's position waiting for the ball to start down as smoke from the compressed air pours out of barrel of gun. Others, from left: Manny Sanguillen, Gary Kolb, Robin Porter and Chris Cannizzaro.

Soviet Seconds Still Better Than Nationals

WINNIPEG (CP) — Russia's ninth straight exhibition hockey victory over Canada was described by coach Jackie McLeod Tuesday night as "like a leading hitter going nothing-for-18 in baseball."

The 4-1 victory by Moscow Selects, Russia's second team, followed eight losses by Canada to the Soviet first-string squad earlier this year.

"We're doing the same things, getting the chances, but just can't buy a break or a goal," McLeod said in the Canadian dressing room after the defeat.

Adding to his problem was the complaint of goalie Wayne Stephenson who asked to be benched following the first period because his eysight was failing.

Stephenson fanned on Russia's two early goals, the first coming on a shot just inside the Canadian half of the rink and the other from the blue line. The 3,422 fans were not impressed.

Stephenson is to be sent to an eye specialist today in hope he will be available to play for Canada in the world hockey tournament next month at Stockholm.

McLeod said the Russians probably will play better in Thursday's game—"they played this one just after stepping off a 26-hour plane ride."

"And I promise we'll be better too."

He said the Nationals had as many chances as the Russians "but now we are trying to be too perfect in front of the net—the boys are working in too close before letting go."

JACKIE McLEOD
'Can't Buy A Goal'

The Russians outshot Canada 42-35 and McLeod had praise for Moscow's goalie Puchkov as well as the Selects defence which blocked many of the shots.

A total of 10 minor penalties were called in the game, six to Russia.

A Hull Linked To Trade Rumors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Punch Imlach's future as coach of Toronto Maple Leafs apparently still was in doubt today.

Team president Stafford Smythe and six other members of the Maple Leaf Gardens' hockey committee met with Imlach Tuesday night to discuss his status as coach of the National Hockey League club.

Smythe has been reported opposed to Imlach's maintaining his dual role of manager-coach. He would like to see Imlach remain as general manager and appoint a new coach.

There was no word on the outcome of Tuesday night's meeting. Even its location was kept secret from reporters, who waited at the Gardens for some word.

Imlach's latest problems with management began last Wednesday night when centre Mike Walton walked out on the team after a dispute about the amount of ice time he was receiving.

Rumors have Walton, a 24-year-old centre, going to Philadelphia Flyers, Detroit Red Wings or Chicago Black Hawks in a trade.

Speculation Tuesday night was that Walton, right winger Larry Mickey and left winger Bob Pulford would be traded to Chicago for left winger Dennis Hull and defenceman Gilles Marotte.

Imlach, however, denied that he was close to making a deal for Walton.

"I have a few meetings I have to attend, but I would have to say I don't know if any trade will be made. I repeat what I said earlier. I am not going to trade Walton just to get rid of him. The deal would have to be beneficial to the Toronto hockey club.

"Also, if anything comes up I might decide to think about it for awhile. There's no basis for anyone to say a deal will be made today or tomorrow or this week. I can't say because I don't know."

Meanwhile, the Maple Leafs announced they might recruit forward Doug Acomb from Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series for tonight's home game against St. Louis Blues.

Acomb, leading scorer in the junior league, would replace any one of several ailing Toronto forwards—possibly right winger Ron Ellis, bothered by torn chest muscles.

In other games tonight, Detroit visits Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers welcome Chicago, Los Angeles Kings play host to Boston Bruins and Minnesota North Stars are at Oakland Seals.

BUDAPEST (AP) — A Hungarian court sentenced soccer player Zolten Varga in absentia Tuesday to a five-year prison term and confiscation of his property on charges that "he refused to return to Hungary." The 24-year-old soccer ace left the Hungarian Olympic soccer team at the Olympic Games in Mexico City and joined his wife in West Germany.

TORONTO (CP) — Montreal and Detroit dropped out of the National Lacrosse Association Tuesday. But Eastern NLA president Terry Kelly of Oshawa said that Brantford, St. Catharines, Oshawa and Rochester have applied for membership. Buffalo is a candidate to join holdovers Toronto Maple Leafs and Peterborough Lakers in the four-team Eastern Division. The Western Division — Portland, Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster — is expected to remain intact. There is some possibility that Seattle may replace Portland. The Detroit franchise will be shifted to Oshawa.

TORONTO (CP) — Roy Johnson of Calgary, trainer of Merger, said Tuesday that the 1968 Queen's Plate winner may return to racing this year. Merger, owned by Max Bell and Frank McMahon's Golden West Farms, suffered a strained tendon in his right front leg during a workout about a month after winning the Queen's Plate. It was thought then that the colt's career was over.

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Gene Littler is the leading money winner on the Professional Golfers' Association tour with $52,428.61 in earnings so far this year, the PGA reported Tuesday. Second on the list of 10 top money winners is Jack Nicklaus with $36,950.

MONTREAL (CP) — Seventeen horsemen have been fined and 16 suspended from Blue Bonnets Raceway for violation of Canadian Trotting Association rules Feb. 19, a track spokesman announced Tuesday. Driver Ron Turcotte and trainers Claude Dupont and Maurice Barette were fined $10 each and suspended for 30 days. The fines resulted from violation of a rule that only authorized persons are permitted in the paddock.

Took the Cure

Leading Senior Skip Began Game for Therapy

HAMILTON (CP) — Gordon Moore, undefeated going into the fifth round of the Canadian senior curling championship today, has two stories about how he became interested in curling 11 years ago.

"The first one—I like it best—is that I found golfing too expensive, but actually I took it up as therapy for my arthritis."

The 56-year-old British Columbia skip from Victoria leads the 11-rink round-robin tournament with four consecutive victories although second-place Ontario, skipped by Alf Phillips Sr. of Toronto, also is undefeated after three games.

The Quebec rink, skipped by Ron Wright of Hudson, was in third place after four rounds of the championship for men of 55 years and over with a 3-1 won-lost record. Rinks skipped by Dr. Wendell MacDonald of Charlottetown and Gord Walker of Edmonton follow at 2-1.

New Brunswick, the 1967 champion skipped by Jim Murphy of Saint John, had a 1-2 record, while rinks skipped by Fred Cochrane of Lumsden, Sask., Stan Brooker of Noranda, Que., representing Northern Ontario, Merrill Rawding of Liverpool, N.S., Al Fahrner of Charleswood, Man., and John McCarthy of Newfoundland, all were at 1-3 after four games.

Moore says he was so crippled with arthritis 12 years ago, that "I couldn't hardly get out of a chair."

"So, one day I'm playing golf with a friend and he misses a short putt and throws his putter in the lake. Then, he borrows my putter, misses again and snaps my putter over his knee.

"I asked him just what he thought he was doing and he said: 'if you can't afford this game, you shouldn't be playing it.'"

That was about 11 years ago and Moore took up curling a few months later.

The British Columbia rink won its third consecutive game by edging Saskatchewan 10-8 Tuesday morning when the Lumsden skip missed an open takeout with his final shot of the game and defeated Manitoba 9-8 in an extra end of the regulation 10-end game in the afternoon.

Meanwhile, Phillips and his Toronto draw artists were trouncing New Brunswick 12-3 and Nova Scotia 11-3 to continue their unbeaten string.

P.E.I. then beat Northern Ontario 9-5 in the fourth round, playing a straight takeout game.

Former Rivalry Renewed To Sasky Skip's Delight

The meeting between Pat Brunsdon of Winnipeg and Joyce McKee of Saskatoon was a highlight of the 10-team, round-robin tournament and the result was an 8-5 victory for Saskatchewan—the third time Miss McKee vanquished Mrs. Brunsdon.

They met twice before in bonspiels when the Manitoba skip lived in Alberta from 1954 to 1966.

"Joyce has to be one of the best skips I know," said Mrs. Brunsdon after her fourth-round loss.

Four teams now share the lead with 3-1 records in the national final which winds up Thursday, barring a playoff.

Besides Miss McKee, the leaders are Phyllis Chapman of Moncton, N.B., Mae Shaw of Kimberley, B.C., and June Shaw of Kenora, Ont.

There's another roadblock in fifth place with four rinks holding 2-2 records. They are Simonne Flynn of Medicine Hat, Alta., Marie Toole of Charlottetown, Vi Pike of Grand Falls, Nfld. and Mrs. Brunsdon.

Suffering four straight losses are Mary Naddof of North Sydney, N.S., and Leonna MacKimmie of Lachute, Que.

The fifth round, which began at 9:30 a.m. EST today, featured two games involving the four top teams.

Ontario played New Brunswick and B.C. battled Saskatchewan. Other games matched Manitoba and Nova Scotia, Quebec and Alberta, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island.

Fourth-round games Tuesday saw Ontario whip P.E.I. 14-4, Newfoundland edged Nova Scotia 7-6, B.C. nip Quebec 8-6, New Brunswick beat Alberta 12-6 and Saskatchewan defeat Manitoba 8-5.

Soviet Skaters Dominate

Canadian Women's Hope in 11th Spot

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP-AP) — Three skating teams from Russia and a 17-year-old shopkeeper's daughter from Vienna dominated opening-day events at the world figure skating championships Tuesday.

Russia's Irina Rodnina and Alexei Ulanov outskated the four - time titleholders from their own country, Ludmila Beloussova and Oleg Protopopov, in the pairs compulsory figures.

Another Russian pair, Tamara Moskovina and Alexei Mishin, were third in the 1-2-3 sweep of the compulsory. The free skating, counting 70 per cent in the judging, climaxes the pairs competition tonight.

Beatrice Schuba, the pert Austrian skater, moved ahead of favored Gabriele Seyfert of East Germany after four of the required six school figures in the ladies' singles event.

Linda Carbonetto of Toronto was in 11th place after the four events, but expressed confidence she would score well in the two compulsory figures today.

The Russian leaders in the pairs event put on a breathtaking performance in defeating Miss Beloussova and Protopopov, duplicating their exhibition in the recent European championships.

A Canadian couple, Anna Forder, 17, and Rick Stephens, 21, of Port Perry, Ont., the Canadian pairs champions, finished ninth with 88.7 points. They were fifth in the recent North American championships in Oakland, Calif.

An American brother-sister team of Cynthia and Ronald Kauffman of Seattle, the U.S. and North American champions, were fourth in Tuesday's compulsory.

The move by Miss Schuba to the top of the standings in the ladies' singles did not deter the supporters of the blonde and glamorous Miss Seyfert, the European titleholder and silver medallist in the 1968 Olympic Games.

Miss Seyfert is still expected to take the title, won last year by Peggy Fleming of the United States, now a professional.

The East German girl is a daring and dazzling free skater, while Miss Schuba is less spectacular in that final phase of the event which counts for 50 per cent of the judging.

The free skating windup is scheduled for Thursday night.

Hana Moskova of Czechoslovakia, competing despite a painful back injury, fell to fourth place from third in the singles event, behind Hungary's Zsuzsa Almassy.

Two American girls, Julie Lynn Holmes and Janet Lynn, remained in contention in fifth and sixth place respectively.

After the four figures, Miss Seyfert had a fraction of a point lead over Miss Schuba in points, 729.4 to 729.1, but the Austrian lead in the all-important ordinals, or placings, on which judging is based. She was picked first by five of the nine judges.

Miss Carbonetto, 19-year-old Canadian champion from Toronto, amassed 625.2 points, but said she hoped to advance today in the last two compulsory figures. These, she said, are her best.

"I am reasonably happy with the results to date," she said. "Last year I didn't belong in the figures, and I am very happy with the improvement I have shown in a year's concentrated work."

In the North American championships in Oakland, Miss Carbonetto advanced to third place from fourth on the basis of her free skating program. Last year at the Grenoble Olympics, she took an unprecedented leap from 25th place in the school figures to 13th in the final standing.

Miss Carbonetto was left the only Canadian in the ladies' singles after Karen Magnussen of Vancouver was sidelined with fractures in both legs, diagnosed during the weekend after she complained of pains.

Trenton Rink Splits Day's Play

TORONTO (CP) — Helen Jewett's Unionville entry and Patty Hamilton's Toronto Granite foursome were the only undefeated rinks Tuesday night after five rounds in the southern Ontario women's curling championship.

Mrs. Jewett defeated Ruby White of Meaford 8-5 and Mrs. Hamilton was an easy winner over Jo Windsor of Burlington, 15-5.

In other fifth-round matches of the 15-rink, double-knockout competition, Ermal Holland of Oshawa downed Helen Burton of Exeter 13-6; Iris Wallace of Port Carling stopped Marc Sanderson of Orillia 16-8; Marg Johnstone of Toronto St. George's defeated Alice Bell of Windsor 8-5 and Joe Hope of Trenton edged Betty Fowler of Welland 9-8.

In afternoon play, Toronto Granite beat Trenton 10-5, Meaford nipped Oshawa 10-9, Unionville trounced Exeter 8-2 and Burlington dumped Welland 13-6.

In third-round play, Toronto St. George's beat Isabel Curtis of St. Thomas 9-7, Orillia clipped Fern Reynolds of Lindsay 12-2, and Port Carling won an extra-end game over Audrey Packer of Kitchener-Waterloo by 12-10 score.

The sixth round of play was scheduled for 9:30 a.m. today. The final will be played Thursday.

Terriers Have Edge By Blanking Kingston

ORILLIA (CP) — Back-up goaltender John Wrigley stopped 18 shots Tuesday night as Orillia Terriers blanked Kingston Aces 3-0 to take a 2-1 lead in the Ontario Hockey Association senior series best-of-seven quarter-finals.

A power-play goal by Gary Milroy at 4:20 of the second period was all the Terriers needed as they peppered Kingston goaltender Mike Lovett with 33 shots.

Doug Kelcher and Grant Moore added the other Orillia goals.

Fourth game is scheduled for Kingston Friday and the teams return to Orillia Sunday.

The Aces may have lost defenceman Bob Olajos for the rest of the series. Olajos, who came out of retirement for the playoffs was injured in the second period when he attempted to check forward George Westfall of the Terriers.

Albert Seniors Beat Nicholson in Playoff

STAFF — A tall Albert College senior basketball squad rallied after trailing much of the game, and nipped Nicholson Catholic College 52-50 in a playoff game to capture first place in the Class "A" senior basketball league and prevent a Nicholson sweep of the three Class "A" divisional crowns.

Albert and Nicholson finished the season with identical records of five wins and a loss, and split two previous games, necessitating last night's contest on the neutral Centennial Secondary School court.

Albert jumped off to a 6-0 lead last night, but Nicholson surged back to take a 17-12 first quarter lead, using a tight 2-1-2 zone to keep the taller Albert players away from the backboards, and then igniting a fast break with Wayne Storms doing most of the scoring, including a string of eight consecutive points during one stretch when Albert missed eight shots in a row.

Nicholson maintained a slim 29-25 lead at the half, but could not hold off the Albert squad in the third quarter when the Albert starters, all of whom are over six feet tall, began to hit the boards and take away Nicholson's fast break.

The momentum of the game swung towards Albert, and though the score was 40-40 after three quarters, Albert seemed to be in control of the play.

The trend continued in the fourth quarter, and Albert opened up a 52-46 lead with just over a minute remaining, but Nicholson couldn't net more than four points with a full court press, and Albert held on to win.

Rick Sykes topped the Albert scorers with 13 points, while Dean Ayoub netted 12 points and brothers Bob and Dick Trott contributed ten points each

Wayne Storms, the headman on the fast break, threw in 22 points for Nicholson to top the game's scorers, and he received support from Hubert Hicks with 14 points and Ray Duminie with six.

Nicholson Catholic College turned out to be the dominant power in Class "A" basketball this year, capturing both the junior and midget titles with undefeated teams, which each won all eight league games.

Need Overtime

Kinsmen Get Jump on Lindsay

STAFF — A rash of penalties didn't prevent the Belleville Kinsmen bantams from overcoming a 2-0 first period deficit last night, and scoring their second overtime win of the Ontario Playdowns.

Last night's 3-2 road win over Lindsay came in the first game of a best two out of three series in the second round of the Ontario playdowns, which resume in Belleville Sunday afternoon.

Belleville scored a first round 7-6 overtime win over arch-rival Trenton, but last night's contest was at least as significant, for Belleville took 12 of the 21 penalties handed out and played nine consecutive minutes with two men short during one rough stretch.

Mark Coates was the scoring star for the Kinsmen last night, notching the tying goal with four minutes remaining in the third period, then scoring the winner at the five minute mark of the first overtime period.

Lindsay jumped off to a 2-0 first period lead, but Russ Herrington started Belleville on the road to victory with a second period marker.

The penalty-killing efforts of Robbie Foster and the netminding of Bruce Clark kept the Kinsmen in the game until Coates rescued the Kinsmen ship with his scoring heroics.

Pair of Titles

Trenton Hosts Win Big

STAFF — Competitors from the host Canadian Forces Base Trenton carried off a pair of championships and three runner-up awards last weekend to lead Zone 5 to the team title at the second annual Canadian Forces Badminton championships.

Corporal Bill Branch of CFP Trenton captured the Men's Veterans (over 41 years of age) singles championship, in his first year of national competition, by defeating teammate Garney Larush in an all CFB final.

Branch and Larush then combined to go all the way to the Veterans Doubles finals before losing out to a team from Zone 9, the European contingent.

Cpl. Marilyn McCordick of CFB Trenton took runner-up honors in the Women's Singles, and then combined with Cpl. Ghislane Boivin to capture the Women's Doubles crown.

Cpl. Dale McIldoon, of CFB Uplands and Zone 4, was named the tournament's outstanding player when he captured the Men's Singles crown for the second consecutive year, and teamed with Cpl. Marcel Brisebois to win the Men's Doubles consolation event.

The three-day tournament attracted over 75 competitors, who were the champions of each of the nine zones into which the Canadian Forces are divided.

The team standings were Zone 5-124 pts., Zone 4-95 pts., Zone 3-81 pts., Zone 2-76½ pts., Zone 6-76 pts., Zone 8-73½ pts., Zone 1-69 pts., Zone 9-63 pts., Zone 7-18 pts.

Committee to Look 'Eyeball to Eyeball' at Algonquin Park

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's standing committee on natural resources and tourism voted Tuesday to take a weekend trip this summer to Algonquin Park and, as chairman James Jessiman put it, look "eyeball to eyeball" into the logging and wolf situations in the park.

The committee also decided to invite officials of Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. to appear before the committee in April to explain whether or not the company has plans to build a smelter in the Timmins area.

Mr. Jessiman (PC—Fort William) promised that the 34 committee members will take a "ground-level look" at the situation in Algonquin Park.

He said he would speak to Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, to request that the department take no further decisions either on the question of killing wolves or about the amount of logging to be done in the park until the committee has made its trip.

Both the wolf and logging issues have been subjects of considerable public controversy.

Last fall, the lands and forests department produced a provisional plan for Algonquin Park which placed certain restrictions on logging activities.

The question of destroying wolves has been a controversial one since a hunters' group suggested about two years ago that wolves should be poisoned wholesale in Ontario to prevent destruction of deer.

The suggestion for a weekend trip to the park was criticized by some committee members as inadequate.

Clarke Rollins (PC—Hastings), past-chairman of the committee, warned a weekend was not enough time to really assess the park's situation.

Mac Makarchuk (NDP—Brantford) warned that timber company or department guides might "slant" what members get to see and asked that a representative of a naturalist group be invited along.

Mr. Makarchuk, who proposed the invitation to Texas Gulf officials, explained later that the company has been hauling ore from its Timmins mines for about four years to an American refinery.

TORONTO (CP) — Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. said Tuesday it never has and is not now shipping ore from its Kidd Creek mine near Timmins to the United States for processing.

Ideal Airport Will Keep People Away from Source of Noise

TORONTO (CP) — An airport, like a magnet, attracts things—mostly people.

People make a lot of noise. Sometimes, aviation folk say, people make more noise than the jet engines they complain about.

After all, they point out, the airport was there first.

Still, they are not unsympathetic to a major problem of 20th century civilization. In the quietness of aerospace laboratories everywhere, in government planning boards and in architects' studios, answers are sought.

Advances have been made in reducing jet-engine noise without significant loss of power—the pilots' bugbear—and more are on the way. But the cost is heavy—as much as $1,000,000 for one aircraft. Some airlines might not survive if required to undertake wholesale fleet conversion.

With the volume of air traffic in some cities expected to double within five years and quadruple in 10, and with larger, faster aircraft coming into service, some in the industry feel that, apart from noise abatement in itself, a fresh approach should be taken to problems created by traffic density.

They'd start with a new airport. This gets into a sensitive field where few will talk for publication.

Costs mounting into hundreds of millions of dollars for new facilities, new highways and land assembly would be a strain upon the public purse; there would be economic dislocation; planning on three levels of government would be involved.

Prof. H. S. Ribner of the University of Toronto's Institute for Aerospace Studies, tucked away in the northern reaches of Metropolitan Toronto, is out of the mainstream of politics. His specialty is the noise of aircraft and what can be done about it.

He won't talk about Toronto International Airport at Malton, 17 miles west of his laboratory. There, protests of area residents forced a change of thinking in the department of transport which had announced plans for major airport expansion to take care of anticipated needs in the 1980s. Now the department will do only what it must for the 1970s.

The anti-expansion movement reached such a pitch that it was claimed at one point that aircraft noise was a threat to the residents' sex life. A doctor told a public meeting that noise levels and pollutants from constant overhead flights could produce physical and mental disorders ranging from allergies to sexual impotency.

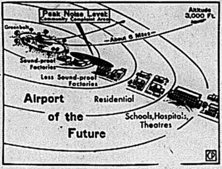
In an interview that developed into a classroom lecture, complete to blackboard, Dr. Ribner outlined what occurs when a big four-engined jet airliner takes off.

Though the owner of the trim three-bedroom bungalow under the flight path may think otherwise, the pilot slackens the throttles after the initial takeoff at full power. The pilot is under wraps.

"We try to be good neighbors," say the airlines, "and we won't let him go all out. Also, unless it is essential because of weather conditions, his flight path is away from residential areas."

Airport operators, who prefer not to be quoted by name, say the bungalow shouldn't be there. They claim that a builder may have found a loophole in a municipal bylaw, sneaked in a house close to the flyway, and that a smart real estate agent sold it on a day when air traffic was light or the prevailing wind was blowing in another direction.

Municipal authorities concede that this is possible. But they say, too, that Ottawa does not keep local authorities fully informed on its expansion plans.



Ideal Airport

One day a traveller may look down at airport planning such as this. Residential and public buildings are far from thundering whine of jet engines. In a typical multi-take-off airport in North America, the black area on map has evolved into a community complaint area where residents have been affected by highest noise level in vicinity outside runway area. (CP Newsmap)

Dr. Ribner is not concerned about what should have been done. He merely notes on his blackboard that the aircraft, in taking off and climbing, generates as much as 120 PNdB at a point four miles down the flight track. It's a lot of noise.

In the abbreviated, alphabetical language of the laboratory, PNdB is perceived noise level in decibels.

That's not the same as EPNdB. That allows for the extra irritation factor of the jet engine's fan whine.

EPNdB is what you hear when the jet aircraft is coming directly at you in landing —you hear the jets only when the aircraft is receding.

Dr. Ribner said the major aircraft companies have been working vigorously on systems for reducing the fan whine of aircraft flyover noise. For example, Boeing Aircraft has found it probably can achieve a reduction of 13 to 16 PNdB from a level of about of about 125. It seems a slight reduction, but to the human ear, says the noise expert, the noise will be cut by a factor of three.

Boeing's design—lengthening the engine nacelles to provide more room for soundproofing and with other refinements—is applied to a modification kit for the 707-320B airplane. Boeing estimates the cost at $1,000,000 for each kit and about two years to get into production, if a market were available.

A direct result of this high cost would be an increase in direct operating costs of the airline using the kit. This would amount to about seven to 10 per cent, depending on depreciation. Higher fares might be necessary.

Canada, where the department of transport builds, owns and operates all major airports, has one of the world's best air transportation systems. In the United States, all but one or two airports are municipally owned and operated, subject to federal traffic control.

In both countries, municipal governments complain of not being brought fully into the picture in projections of airport development.

Local bylaws that permit encroachment upon the airport of residential and industrial projects are quickly out of date. Local-level planners say they should be told what is likely to happen in 25 or 30 years, not five or 10.

Municipal governments are well aware of the conomic benefits of an airport to the region it serves. Malton, where more than 5,000 workers are directly employed, is estimated to pump between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 a year into the Toronto-area economy.

Studies in the United States have indicated that a man walking in a park scarcely notices the noise of a plane taking off, while the same volume of sound beating upon an enclosed area drives the same man to distraction.

Starting from this premise, Dr. Ribner outlined some principles aimed at alleviating the airport noise nuisance that have been advocated in reports of the Federal Aviation Administration in the United States:

First could be a "green belt" or park around the airport for public recreation.

Then there might be heavy industry in a ring, with little or no soundproofing necessary because of the nature of the buildings and the high local noise levels inside.

Light industry, with no particular soundproofing, would come next, followed by residential areas. Public buildings on the periphery—such as hospitals, theatres and schools —would require sound-reducing construction.

Aviation people go along with this concept of an airport.

Looking to the future, they see both increased "movements"—more airplanes—and larger aircraft. Larger aircraft carry more people; greater power would be necessary.

The industry is not in agreement as to whether greater power would mean increased noise levels. They point to increased efficiency and quieter operation in motor-car engines of today compared with those of 15 to 20 years ago.

The first of the jumbo jets to take the air was Boeing's B-747, a 231-foot-long, 355-ton aircraft seating 490 passengers which made its maiden test flight Feb. 9.

It's twice as large as any plane now in the air and its four engines, each of which generate 43,500 pounds of thrust, are twice as powerful as any commercial plane now flying.

Boeing has a stretched version of the B-747 on the drawing boards. It will measure 265 feet in length and have a wing span of 219 feet. It will carry from 600 to 800 passengers.

The Wright brothers' first powered airplane flight Dec. 16, 1903, could have been made inside the B-747. It was 120 feet and lasted 12 seconds.

Robarts Says He Is Not Opposed to National Medicare Plan

TORONTO (CP) —Premier John Robarts said Tuesday his remarks that the federal government is attempting to coerce the provinces into joining the medical care plan should not be interpreted that he is opposed to the scheme.

The premier's statement in the legislature in reply to a question by Pat Reid (L—Rainy River) brought shouts from the opposition of "fuzzy thinking."

"I'm not opposed to a national medicare plan," said Mr. Robarts, "but I am violently opposed to the way in which the federal government is trying to ram it down our throats.

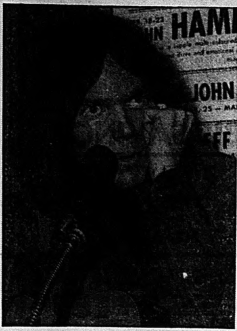
"I have no hesitation in repeating what I have said before, that the federal medicare plan is a deliberate attempt to use federal fiscal powers to intervene in areas of provincial responsibility."

Mr. Reid asked whether the provincial government would challenge the constitutional validity of the plan since it required the payment of $225,000,000 a year from the people of Ontario for which they would get no benefit.

Mr. Robarts replied that no purpose would be served in taking the matter to the courts.

Mr. Robarts refused comment on a speculation that Treasurer Charles MacNaughton would announce in next Tuesday's budget speech that Ontario will join the scheme within a year.

Rey Gisborn (NDP—Hamilton East) urged the government to divert money intended for property tax rebates into direct municipal financial relief.



Rich Folksinger

Folksinger Neil Young answers questions in between songs at a Toronto club telling how he left Toronto three years ago with $400. He has returned, relatively rich, with $75,000 now invested. His story of how he earned it, despite huge commission fees to managers, has been turned into a song. (CP Photo)

Legion Sponsors Oratorical Contest

TWEED — Recently the Northbrook Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion held a public speaking contest at North Addington High School, at Cloyne. The quality of the speeches was only equalled by the deliveries, and reflected the increasing involvement that young people intend to have in matters that concern the entire society.

Four categories of speakers were heard: The grade 1 to 6 contest was won by Ernest Mordak with "Time."

The grade 7 to 8 contest was won by Nicole Goodtellow with "To Smoke or Not to Smoke."

The grade 9 to 10 contest was won by Sharon Lessard with "Canada Today."

Grade 11 to 13 contest was won by Jacque Letendre with "Bilingualism, Curse or Cure."

Sixteen students participated in the Public Speaking Contest.

The meeting was chaired by Mr. Peterson, Flinton.

Winners compete again Sat., Feb. 22 in Kemptville in the Legion Hall.

Animal Shelters May Close

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Humane Society will close its animal shelters or turn them over to municipalities if provincial legislation aimed at limiting the society's powers is passed, Tom Hughes said Tuesday.

The legislation, proposed Feb. 19, by Agriculture Minister William Stewart, will require humane society inspectors to produce warrants for investigations and force the society to turn over unclaimed animals for research.

Mr. Hughes, humane society general manager, said the proposed legislation is intended to weaken the humane society and protect Ontario agricultural interests from embarrassing publicity.

He said Mr. Stewart was pressured into proposing the legislation by the Ontario Federation of Agriculture's "powerful lobby."

Mr. Hughes said more than 700 Ontario farms keep pregnant mares in inadequate conditions and the new laws would define these farms as "research premises".

Potter Presents Demand For Testimony by Doctor

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature Tuesday passed a motion that Dr. J. W. Mullner, staff physician at the Ontario Hospital at Brockville, be ordered to appear before the standing health committee to discuss allegations he made against the hospital.

The motion was introduced by Dr. R. T. Potter (PC—Quinte), chairman of the health committee. The committee decided Feb. 6 to seek the legislature's permission to subpoena the hospital's superintendent and 14 staff members, including Dr. Mullner, to clarify the allegations.

At the February meeting Dr. Shulman made public a memorandum given him by Dr. Mullner.

Lack of Ice May Affect Seal Hunt

HALIFAX (CP) — A fisheries spokesman says mild winter with a consequent lack of icefields in the Gulf of St. Lawrence may curtail the annual seal hunt scheduled to start late next week, especially for airborne hunters.

The seals normally drop their "white coat" pups on the southward-drifting icecakes and this is where the controversial annual kill takes place.

This year the gulf is generally free of ice except along the northern New Brunswick and Gaspe coasts and in Northumberland Strait. However, ice extends northward along the Labrador coast.

Decline of the Supporting Actor Evident in Oscar Nominations

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has announced nominations for its 1968 awards, and one lamentable trend has continued— the decline of the supporting actor and actress.

The supporting category was instituted for the 1936 awards, and filled a valid need. The star had long been pre-eminent in the Hollywood system while lesser actors did yeoman work for little recognition.

The winners in these early years read like an honor roll of classic character performers: Walter Brennen (three times), Alice Brady, Fay Bainter, Donald Crisp, Joseph Schildkraut, Jane Darwell, Mary Astor, Charles Coburn, Barry Fitzgerald, Ethel Barrymore, Edmund Gwenn, Walter Houston, Thomas Mitchell. . . .

Their faces and styles were known to every movie-goer. Most of last Monday's nominees for supporting performers probably are little known to the general public.

Do you recognize Seymour Cassel, Daniel Massey, Jack Albertson, Lynn Carlin, Kay Medford or Sondra Locke, all up for supporting Oscars this year?

Or, from recent years, Gene Hackman, Vivien Merchant, Mako, Ian Bannen, Frank Finlay, Joyce Redman, Grayson Hall, Lilia Skala, Mary Badham?

There are at least four reasons for the shortage of well-known supporting players.

1. The attrition in character actor ranks. All of the above-mentioned winners of the earlier Oscar years have passed from the scene, either by death or retirement, except for the redoubtable Walter Brennan.

Few accomplished performers have moved in to fill their places. Some former stars are willing to take occasional supporting roles, but many are too proud to make a career of it. And the studios no longer have contract lists to support and develop supporting players.

2. The flight of filming to foreign countries. Fewer Hollywood pictures means fewer assignments for supporting players. To save money and achieve realism, film-makers abroad prefer to assemble their supporting casts in the foreign country.

3. The phobia against familiar faces. Hollywood films in the 1930s and 1940s had a cozy, family look because nearly all the faces had been seen in dozens of other pictures. Today's directors and producers rebel against casting the same old faces.

4. Concentration on stars. Today, when several stars can earn $1,000,000 a picture, film-makers figure to get their money's worth. That means concentrating the camera and direction time on the high-priced star, to the neglect of other performances.

FOUND ANY TREASURE LATELY?

The most notorious treasure collector of them all, Captain Kidd, sailed from New York in pursuit of pirates and instead became one himself. He captured great riches but made the mistake of sailing back to New York where he was caught and hanged in 1701.

People are still looking for Captain Kidd's treasure. Find another type of treasure by selling the family's no longer used things with an Intelligencer Want Ad. It's as easy as dialing 962-9171 matey!

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

STOP 29 Restaurants Limited

MAJOR FOOD FRANCHISE OPPORTUNITY

"THE ONE THAT STANDS OUT AMONG THE REST"

"A rose is just a rose by any other name". In the past many food franchises have been offered to the public comprising the same type of standard food items disguised by fancy names with the possibility that their product could be duplicated right next door by any competitor who wishes to do so.

Now for the first time in Canada, STOP 29 RESTAURANTS LIMITED offers a totally new concept in economy food merchandising, e.g.. Fresh brewed coffee 5c per cup together with the fabulously new patented TOASTREAT SANDWICHES at the amazing low price of 29c each.

The fabulous new TOASTREAT SANDWICH MACHINE produces a perfectly toasted, completely sealed sandwich, piping hot within a space of 1 minute in 12 delicious varieties —among them, corned beef, smoked ham, blueberry cobbler, smoked turkey, etc. Already the pilot operation has produced a public response beyond any expectation.

We must however warn prospective applicants that STOP 29 RESTAURANTS DO NOT sell hamburgers, hot dogs, French fries (French Friars or would you believe Acapolco Potato Stringers) but are exclusive in Canada with the fabulous New Toastreat Sandwich maker. Excellent locations are now available in the Toronto area for qualified operators who have the vision for this entirely new concept and who feel that they want to be connected with "THE ONE WHO STANDS OUT AMONG THE REST".

An investment of $23,500. is required to commence. This amount will give appointed franchisee a completely equipped and furnished store outlet right down to the last detail ready to commence operation. If you feel you have the qualifications and the vision for this type of enterprise and want to be among the first in your area with the fabulous Toastreat, then write us giving background, etc. to:

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Fumes Are Likely Cause If Family Has Headaches

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: You have often said that M.D. might stand for Medical Detective, too. Well, here's a mystery for you to solve, if you can.

There are four of us in our family. We were all perfectly healthy until we moved into our new house (which happens to be an old house we bought at a bargain). After living in it for about two weeks I began to come down with severe headaches, listlessness and fatigue. A day later both my boys, aged 8 and 12, complained of headaches, too. And a few days later, my husband now complains of headaches, loss of ambition and difficulty in concentrating on his job.

There are your clues, Dr. Steincrohn. Want to solve this diagnostic riddle? — Mrs. O.

COMMENT: First, let's lay down the ground rules. You must know, if you are a regular reader of this column, that I refuse to diagnose or treat from way back here. Better take your problem to your family doctor — and soon!

Now why do I say "soon"? Because the clues you have given intrigue me. They give me a hunch that your trouble may be chronic carbon monoxide poisoning. The symptoms fit in, the recent move to new quarters fits in too?

Many people are careful of carbon monoxide fumes in the garage when the motor is running, and forget that defective household appliances may be producing such poisoning causing headaches, and later dizziness, faitness, ringing in the ears, pounding of the heart, nausea,, etc.

Better have someone come in to check on your utilities, water heaters, flues, etc. Mrs. O.

But better still, you all should first have medical checkups. If not due to carbon monoxide, your doctor will find some other reason for the "family headaches."

* * *

For Mrs. G.: Heart block means just that — the normal number of heart beats are not getting through from the upper to lower heart chambers. In any cases, surgeons insert a "pacemaker," an electronic device which automatically stimulates the heart muscle to beat at regular intervals and at a calculated rate.

In many serious cases, this instrument has not only saved lives, but allowed such patients to return to work and live normally.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Our young son is an epileptic. He is taking phenobarbital and is still not under control. Our doctor says that this is a condition we hardly know anything about. Is there anything else to do? — Mrs. F.

COMMENT: Yes. I would ask for consultation with an internist and a neurologist. During the past few years doctors have found many more drugs than phenobarbital useful in controlling attacks of epilepsy.

He should have electroencephalograms (brain-wave examinations) and other studies. Although epilepsy is still a problem, it is past the stage when we "hardly know anything about it." As your son is not improving, I am sure your doctor will agree to consultation.

* * *

For Mrs. R.: One invites brickbats when attempting to advise parents and grandparents on how to manage and bring up their children or grandchildren. Really, I don't know the remedy for overcoming your 5-year-old grandchild's concern about his mother's driving. If you'll allow me a facetious observation, I didn't realize until now that "back-seat drivers" begin their unwelcome driver-directions at the age of 5. I thought that such immaturity only developed during maturity.

Former Albert College Vice Principal Dies

DR. THOMAS CREIGHTON McMULLEN, PhD, F.C.I.C.

A former teacher and vice principal of Albert College, Dr. Thomas Creighton McMullen, PhD, F.C.I.C., died after a short illness at his home, 14 Parker Street in his 78th year on Tuesday.

He was born at London, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George McMullen and had been a resident of Belleville for 53 years.

Dr. McMullen was a graduate in chemistry from the University of Toronto and came to Albert College as a teacher in June, 1916, retiring in 1963.

He taught upper school mathematics and science and became dean of studies and vice principal, a position he held at the time of his retirement.

For many years he served as a member of the board of governors of the College. He was honored by the Canadian Institute of Chemistry by being made a fellow of the Institute.

Dr. McMullen was a member of Bridge Street United Church and active in the work of the congregation. He was an honorary elder of the church session and for many years was chairman of the library board of the church.

College Official Was Warned Computer Centre Could Burn

MONTREAL (CP) — The controller of Sir George Williams University testified Tuesday that he was told by Kennedy J. N. Frederick 13 days before a student rampage two weeks ago that the university's computer centre could be "burned down."

Henry Worrell, 50, said Frederick told him Jan. 29, when the student occupation of the ninth-floor computer centre began, that the centre would be burned unless the administration gave in to student demands.

Mr. Worrell was testifying at the preliminary hearing of Frederick, 29, of Grenada, the first of 89 persons to appear on charges of conspiracy to commit arson and destroy property after a peaceful two-week occupation erupted into violence Feb. 11.

The other 88 accused are scheduled to appear today.

Occupation of the computer centre and the seventh-floor cafeteria and adjoining faculty lounge in the downtown 12-storey building was to protest the makeup of a university committee investigating charges of racism laid against an assistant biology professor by six West Indian students.

Occupiers threw business equipment, computer tape and punch cards into the street, destroyed more than $1,000,000 worth of computers with fire axes and caused another $1,000,000 worth of damage by turning on fire hoses and smashing interior fittings. They set fire to the computer centre before riot police broke in and made arrests.

In his testimony Tuesday, Mr. Worrall told the court he went to the computer centre Jan. 29 to speak to the occupiers.

Mr. Worrell said Frederick had told him students would "burn down the computer centre unless their demands were met."

"Their demands included the appointment of a new committee to investigate charges of racism against a university professor."

Mr. Worrell said he did not return until Feb. 11 and "smoke was so thick you could not see your hand a foot in front of your face."

Graham Martin, 29, director of the university's computer centre, testified that the centre would not be operating "normally" until next October.

An estimated "30 man-years of work" were lost in the destruction spree and the equipment was a "total loss."

Mr. Martin said the two computers and auxiliary equipment had suffered "at least 30" separate blows from axes.

The computers were used by the administration to process payrolls, student records, library files, the marking of student examinations, faculty and student research. They also were rented to outside firms for processing payrolls and inventories.

Loss of computer work done for firms outside the university would amount to $100,000 between now and October.

Mr. Martin is the official complainant in the case.

A security guard said he was held hostage for about an hour by about 50 students before the burning and smashing spree began.

The guard, Jacques Turcotte, 21, said he was on the seventh floor shortly before students occupying the faculty lounge broke into the adjacent cafeteria at about 2:30 a.m. and started throwing tables and chairs down stairwells and escalators.

"Two of them came up to me, grabbed me under the arms, and led me into the cafeteria. I was told to stay put and one of them remained with me while the cafeteria was being emptied of all the furniture. . . .

"I was then told I could no longer act as a guard since they now were the masters of the building."

Mr. Turcotte said he was led down to the ground floor at about 4 a.m., when police arrived, and his escort ran back upstairs.

Alarming Harm Done Sniffers

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto obstetrician said Tuesday a four-month study shows that 30 Toronto boys who sniffed glue suffered chromosome damage that may have changed every cell in their body.

Dr. Thomas Ryley of Wellesley hospital said in an interview he found definite evidence of chromosome damage that could leave the boys more susceptible to leukemia, a blood cancer, and could result in "deformed offspring.

The study, sponsored by the Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario, used 14-year-old boys preferred to the hospital by Juvenile and family courts. It was the first known completed study in North America on the effects of glue and solvents on the human body.

Liver damage was also noticeable in 17 of the 30 boys.

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend of mine, who is head of a large industrial firm, apologized for being late to dinner. "I just couldn't get away from the office," he said "It seems I never can get away from the office very long."

I asked him what was so important and compelling there — a merger, a new product development, some technical foul-up along the line? He scowled, and then grinned. "It's people," he said. "Ninety percent of it is people."

"I thought you had some good people," I said. "They have certainly made a fine record the last few years."

"Of course, they're good people," he answered. "They are good in their jobs. But the problems don't relate to the jobs as such — they relate to the emotional life of the people to their fears and their angers their stubbornness and their childishness.

"That's why," he went on, "good executives and subordinates are so hard to find. Most of them are excelllent technicians — they know their fields inside out — but their emotional growth is about one-tenth of their intellectual growth."

"Why should this be so?" I asked.

"In my opinion," he said, "because it takes a certain kind of neurosis to survive in most fields, and business is no exception. The well-balanced man tends to stay where he is, content with his lot — while the driven man climbs up the ladder and he imagines he's part of the solution when he's really just as much part of the problem.

"My toughest job," he went on, "has little to do with our products or our sales. It has to do with a dozen or so men who often behave like children in a sandpile — envious of one another, grasping their pails to their chests, reaching for someone else's toy, and dead set in their own ways. And some are frightfully self-destructive.

"Many of them are fearful and insecure, no matter how much success they've already had. You have to keep letting them know you love them and admire them and respect them. Their status is terribly important, all the symbols of corporate eminence are invested with an almost religious meaning to them, and so are the plants of the business —once they've done something right, they want to keep repeating the same process, whether or not it's relevant to what's happening now.

"That's why I'm late for dinner," he signed. "Not because I'm a big business tycoon — but because I'm a cross between a Nanny and Viennese psychiatrist, with a little bit of top-sergeant thrown in!"

COLLECTION DAY, THURSDAY

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For February 27

Your birthday today: The coming year is one of harvest — counting the blessings you have earned over a decade by making the best of a situation. Meditation will guide to a philosophic balance. Travel lightly, at least in symbol. Today's natives tend to manual dexterity, mimicry. They nearly always have very likeable personalities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): This is a day in which things go easily enough without any extra special push. For once, let well enough alone: just go through the routines normally. Be nice to your own this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): In this rather complex day, work through the backlog of correspondence, delayed errands, partnership papers, joint plannings. Clear out anything in the home which has lost its function and is merely taking up space.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Everything seems going for you. Avoid extremes or too many words. A great deal can be done if you have your wits about you. Come home fairly early!

CANCER (June 21—July 22): In your urge for expanding self-expression, do not forget the other fellow's need for recognition. A little diplomacy will take you a long way toward where you want to go.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): In solitude make an effort to review briefly all the past incidents on which you still show reactions. See what you may be able to do to improve your prestige. Mere spending will not help.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): If you will avoid haste and temper, you will be transcending a strong trend. The people in your home will respond readily to kindness. Organize a small party this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your situation should be improved as a result of the sincere efforts you've made lately to stay out of squabbles. Take full advantage and continue in this direction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Today is ideal for beginning long journeys: either physical geographical moves or symbolic moves such as new courses of study. The goals are related to to a new human condition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Get rid of any long-standing nuisances if you can, or make plans to by-pass them in such a way as to detour their impact on your life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The evening hours are great for gay social activities and lightly pursuing affairs of the heart.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You should concentrate unwaveringly on following up previously settled plans. Anything along experimental lines is not within your scope today. Put work-a-day matters out of your mind altogether with a refreshing evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You can do anything within reason with the splendid influences of today. However, carefully fill the day with all the doings that are within regulation.

‘Man and World’ Rescue Arranged

Delay Expo Levies

MONTREAL (CP) — A two-point plan to enable Montreal to re-open its Man and His World exhibition this year was announced Wednesday by Lucien Saulnier, chairman of Montreal's executive committee.

Mr. Saulnier told a news conference the plan might involve a financial risk to the city of about $3,000,000. It would be presented to city council for ratification Friday with a recommendation from the executive committee that it be accepted.

Under the proposal the province would assume up to $5,500,000 of the operating deficit of the exhibition and the federal government would defer an equal amount from the monthly payments Quebec is making on its share of the Expo 67 deficit.

The second point in the proposal would spread repayment of Montreal's share of the Expo deficit over an eight-year period.

The agreement was announced at the news conference here shortly after Prime Minister Trudeau made a similar announcement in the Commons.

Mr. Saulnier said that on the basis of current estimates of exhibition revenues and expenditures, the city's financial risk would be limited to "approximately $3,000,000" provided exhibition employees accept "the wage schedule which has been proposed to them."

The deficit for the 1969 operation of the fair could be as high as $8,500,000—of which the province would cover $5,500,000—but the deficit could be much lower if public response to the exhibition was good.

The deficit was more than $5,000,000 in the first season of operation last year.

Opening and closing dates for this season as well as admission prices were to be announced Friday.

Mr. Saulnier announced Jan. 29 that Man and His World would have to shut down for financial reasons.

Apollo Flight Postponed

Even Star-bound Astronauts Remain Slaves of Sniffles

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The United States space agency today postponed the Apollo 9 launching three days, from Friday until Monday, because of colds suffered by the three astronauts who are to fly the 10-day earth orbit mission.

Launch time will be 11 a.m. EST Monday.

The decision was made after doctors examined the three astronauts, James A. McDivitt, David R. Scott and Russell L. Schweickart.

The trio came down with sore throats and stuffy noses Wednesday.

The astronauts took medicine, drank plenty of liquids and rested 12 hours Wednesday night.

They awoke in "good spirits" today and underwent a 45-minute medical examination.

The doctors pronounced the pilots improved but felt it wise to delay the flight.

The countdown on the giant Saturn V rocket and spacecraft, which had progressed on schedule, was to continue down to nine hours before the original planned liftoff and then be held until Monday.

It was the first time after 18 U.S. man in space flights that a launching had been delayed by illness. Many launchings have been postponed by technical and mechanical problems.

Exhaustion as much as the colds was a factor.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, chief astronaut physician, reported that McDivitt, Scott and Schweickart were physically exhausted from the training for the flight, termed the most complex manned mission ever attempted.

Berry said he wanted the men to be physically and mentally ready for the journey in which they are to test the lunar module, the bug-like vehicle designed to land two men on the moon. Schweickart plans a two-hour space walk.

Federal Aid Fatal to Alligators

MIAMI (AP) — Poachers, fearful of proposed federal legislation, have begun an all-out massacre of Florida's dwindling alligator population, says an old poacher.

The poacher said the slaughter quickened after newspapers carried stories last week about a bill to provide federal protection for alligators and other threatened wildlife.

Two Florida game and conservation officials agreed.

"I would say out of the South Florida area there might be roughly 1,000 hides sold a month on the average," said the old poacher who asked that he not be identified.

"I would believe that would go up to 1,500 to 1,600 now, and it don't take many months like that to wipe the alligator poulation out.

"You can ride all day from the east coast to the west coast and from the Everglades National Park up to Lake Okeechobee and never see a gator. Ten years ago you might see 80 or 90 of them lying along the banks."

He said the bill, which would make it illegal to sell any part of protected animals in interstate commerce, scares the poachers because of the enforcement powers of the federal government.

Dealers buy the hides for $4.75 a foot.

Then the idea was gone and the work ended -- in ruins."

Martin to Attend Eshkol's Funeral

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — The body of Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol, resting in a simple wooden coffin draped with a prayer shawl and a national flag, lay in state today in Parliament Square.

A state funeral will be held Friday and Eshkol will be buried at Mount Herzl on the outskirts of Jerusalem.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Senator Paul Martin, government leader in the Senate, and Philip Givens, Jew and Liberal member of Parliament for York West, will represent Canada.

News Briefs

DETROIT (AP) — The deaths of four persons by asphyxiation in their cars has led to a General Motors recall of 2,400,000 vehicles, a corporation spokesman said Wednesday. Owners were asked to return the cars for correction of faults which could lead to seepage of exhaust fumes into passenger space.

U.S. Makes No Progress In Healing Racial Rift

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kerner commission's warning of an American society sharply divided by race goes largely unheeded one year later, an independent follow-up study concluded today.

The grim finding that blacks and whites in the United States continue to drift dangerously apart contained still another warning:

"The nation in its neglect may be sowing the seeds of unprecedented future disorder and division."

The report, called One Year Later, was issued by Urban American, Inc., and The Urban Coalition, non-profit Washington organizations dealing with city problems.

It was published one year after the national advisory commission on civil disorders—called the Kerner commission after its chairman, Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner—handed down its report on the causes of rioting that had rocked U.S. cities in recent summers.

The Kerner commission, with a controversial indictment of "white racism" as an underlying cause, concluded that "our nation is moving toward two societies, one black, one white—separate and unequal."

Today, the progress report concluded:

"A year later, we are a year closer to being two societies, black and white, increasingly separate and scarcely less unequal."

Viet Cong Bride Nabbed

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese forces crashed a Viet Cong wedding Wednesday, killing three guerrillas and capturing six suspects including the bride, a U.S. Navy spokesman reported.

He said the bride was a known member of a Viet Cong entertainment group.

What happened to the bridegroom was not reported.

Nixon Visits Berlin

BERLIN (CP) — President Nixon left Berlin today after a four-hour visit in which he got a hero's welcome from West Berliners and held out hope for an eventual end to the division of this city.

Nixon gazed grimly across the Berlin Wall, declared anew U.S. support for Berlin, and said the courage of the city might eventually lead to reconciliations that would end the division of Berlin, Germany and Europe.

Nixon took off for Rome after being mobbed time and again by exultant crowds as he drove through the city.

Nixon told workers and their families at the Siemens electrical factory that Western resolve to protect the city could not be shaken by any form of pressure.

No Hint Given U.S. Plans Any Resumption of Bombing

PARIS (Reuters) — The United States said today "indiscriminate Viet Cong attacks against populated centres in South Vietnam complicated the task of the peace negotiators in Paris.

The chief U.S. negotiator, Henry Cabot Lodge, told the Hanoi and Viet Cong delegation at the sixth formal session of the peace talks: "Such attacks bring you no military advantage; they bring down upon you a universal condemnation and disappoint the world's hopes for peace."

But nowhere in the prepared statements of Lodge and Saigon delegate Pham Dang Lam, who spoke after him, was there a threat to resume the bombing of North Vietnam.

In a statement issued by the National Liberation Front the Viet Cong said the U.S. and Saigon administrations were threatening to resume the bombing against North Vietnam.

This statement was issued in South Vietnam and circulated in Paris today, on the eve of President Nixon's visit here Friday.

Two 4-year-olds Fall Off Shoreline Ice Onto Floating Floe

The Brink of Deatn

By DONALD MACKENZIE
Staff Reporter

WELLINGTON — Call it a miracle or friendly fates but when two four year old boys fall off banks of ice and land on a floating ice floe instead of into 10 feet of freezing water you've got to call it something.

That's exactly what happened to four year olds Raymond Lavender and Timothy Glisinski, both of Wellington, late yesterday afternoon.

If it hadn't been for Mrs. Phyllis Fritz who was working in a home along the Lake Ontario shoreline the lake most probably would have claimed two young victims.

Mrs. Fritz had been keeping her eye on the boys since she first noticed them playing on the high banks of ice that form along the shoreline.

She even told them to go home once, because the ice was so dangerous.

But kids will be kids and although they told Mrs. Fritz they would leave the ice they went back and began to play again.

"Suddenly they just disappeared," said Mrs. Fritz.

"You couldn't even hear them yell for help because the surrounding ice held in the noise.

"It must have been a miracle because instead of landing in the water they both fell onto a large chunk of ice floating around in the middle of a hole in the ice floes."

Mrs. Fritz ran out and leaned over the hole which was circular, approximately a 10 foot diameter, and managed to calm the almost hysterical tots.

"They were just bobbiing around on that floe," said Mrs. Fritz, "and with waves washing up through the ice that would be enough to scare the daylights out of anyone."

Completely by herself and hanging halfway over the ledge, Mrs. Fritz managed to get the boys to reach up their hands. She grabbed their wrists, one boy at a time, and a few minutes later when help arrived, both were safe and sound.

Soaked, freezing and scared but they were safe.

"It would have been it if they hadn't landed on that piece of ice," said Mrs. Fritz.

In the almost freezing water of Lake Ontario a person could stay afloat only a matter of minutes.

"Besides," said one observer, "if the kids had landed in the water there really would have been no way to get through the ice to save them."

Last weekend two teenagers needed assistance to get out of a hole they fell into in almost the same location.

Separate School Board To Implement Program

Despite the transfer of the priest who prepared the ground rules, a family life education program will be implemented next September in some separate schools under the jurisdiction of the Prince Edward and Hastings County Roman Catholic School Board.

At its regular meeting last night the board decided to send two teachers and a priest, if available, on the special summer course in Ottawa. On their return they will form the nucleus of a teaching staff for the new family life program.

Superintendent F. B. Allore told the trustees that Rev. Donald Cummings, who did the "missionary work" in preparing teachers and parents for the program had been transferred to Diocesan headquarters in Kingston.

At the suggestion of Paul Mercier, the board will write to the archbishop in Kingston, asking him "to consider our plight and send us a subs'itute".

The family life program, to start in schools in Belleville and Trenton, will consist of five to six week presentation of three class periods a week.

Over a three year period, as more teachers are trained, the program will be extended to all grade levels in all schools in the system.

Rev. Louis Casartelli said parents in his area, Nipissing district and north Hastings, were anxious to see family life education begin immediately.

However, J. B. Kroeze, Trenton was in favor of training two teachers, "and feeling our way around the new program slowly".

According to the guidelines laid down by Father Cummings, the course will require eight teachers and the full-time services of a priest when in full operation.

His plan called for two teachers in Belleville, two in Trenton, and one each in the Picton, Tweed, Marmora and Bancroft areas.

Make Special Education 'Invisible' Says Allore

A first step to make the special education pupil "totally invisible in the regular school program" was taken last night by the separate school board of Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Trustees approved the hiring of a co-ordinator of special education to serve on a consultative basis with regular teachers in the school system.

"The need is urgent," superintendent F. B. Allore said. "People with specialists' certificates in this field are scarce and those now employed in our schools have been approached to move to other areas."

"We can't afford to be without this program and a co-ordinator," declared Paul Mercier, Belleville. "This is not an expenditure — it's a necessity."

Mr. Allore told the trustees that adequate remedial reading and testing programs in early grades would eventually reduce the number of pupils entering special education classes.

"What is the superintendent's opinion of doing away with segregated special education classes and integrating the pupils in regular classrooms?" asked James Lesage, Tweed.

"That question was settled 50 years ago," replied Mr. Allore.

"All the bad aspects of our special education program in North America developed through ignoring Dr. Maria Montessori's principles of complete continuous progress for all pupils in all grades.

"In North America, we were a militaristic society, as Lloyd Dennis has told us so effectively, and segregated special education classes fitted into this system. Segregation works for teachers and pupils, but nobody has solved the problem of community reaction to its graduates."

Mr. Allore said the administration was working on means of getting rid of segregation "so the child is not tagged as a special case, and instead becomes totally invisible among the pupils in a regular classroom."

"Once our program is moving smoothly, these children will melt into the student population," he assured the trustees.

Trustees Check System

One of the purposes of large-units of educational administration — equality of educational opportunity — came a step closer to realization for separate school students last night.

Trustees of the Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board took a look at the school supplies situation and decided to put all schools on an equal basis in September.

The move was prompted by a request from the principal of Marmora separate school for board purchases of workbooks, notebooks, pen-[illegible] and erasers.

[illegible]ne board learned that parents in Marmora Read, Marysville and Batawa now buy pupils' supplies themselves. In other schools the board provides the supplies.

Because bulk purchasing is made each spring for the following year the board decided to wait until next September to provide supplies to all schools in the system.

Hidden Meanings of MONEY in Marriage

Discover why it's often not the lack of money that causes trouble, but the misuse of it — as a weapon to punish a spouse, or as a prop for a shrunken ego. New Relay Station Now in Operation

The Maynooth-Bancroft area now has its own low power relay radio station CBOD.

Located in Maynooth the station will serve all area residents and will carry all CBC radio network English language programs except for periods in the morning and afternoon which deal with weather, forest fire and road reports.

Other items of interest to area residents will also be carried.

Station CBOD operates on frequency 1230 with an output of 40 watts and is a sister station to those at Haliburton and Barry's Bay.

It should be of particular interest to those listeners who cannot get good reception from radio stations in the south during the day due to interference from rock formations.

Public Speaking Winners Compete

Winners from the finals of the area Principals' Association public speaking contest held in Frankford Tuesday night will be in Belleville this Saturday.

In the junior class Dale Paus of Upper Bayside school took first prize and Billy Vincent of Rednersville was the runner up.

The winning senior was Sandra Mousseau of Harmony School in Belleville followed by classmate Beverly Lewis.

They will be speaking in the Zone 9 finals to be held in the city this Saturday.

Contestants in the contest were from Thurlow, Sidney, Ameliasburg and Murray townships from both junior (Grades 5 and 6) and senior (Grades 7 and 8) classes.

Altogether there were eight junior contestants and four senior speakers in the Tuesday night competition.

Besides the final contest this Saturday for the senior goup the winner from Tuesday night will also be speaking at the Hastings County Council public speaking contest to be held in the spring.

Junior Farmers Elect Officers

The annual election of officers was held in conjunction with a broom ball game. Also discussed at the meeting was the Guelph conference to be held March 21 to 23. Four delegates from Hastings will attend.

Other officers elected were Jim Gunning, vice president, Debbie Wannamaker, secretary, and directors Ralph Detlor, Douglas Jarrel and Lloyd Bateman. Provincial director is Roscoe Morgan and press reporter Janet Donnan.

BOOKS STOLEN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Systematic pilfering has put an end to some of the borrowing privileges at the University of British Columbia graduate students' library. Hard-cover books will be locked up. A student spokesman said 14 of the 15 volumes of the Time-Life nature series have disappeared.

Market Square Parking Now Provides 76 Spots

TRENTON — The final step in Trenton's market square parking lot should be completed today.

Work crews were putting the finishing touches on the light standards yesterday to make the town's new concept in centralized parking easier to use in the darker hours.

The lot was being used in October of last year when the meters were being installed and at that time there was one main hitch for motorists.

Drivers had to follow a series of painted arrows to get to the parking spaces and this coupled with the single entrance at King and Elgin Streets, was responsible for more than one traffic tie up.

But things were ironed out and now the new unit is making it easier for downtown shoppers to find a place for the family car. Provided under the centralized parking will be 76 parking slots as compared with 45 under the old system.

The farmers' market, a regular Saturday tradition here, has been moved to the rear of the police station as a result of the expansion and time has shown that it has not suffered from the change.

The project was made possible by the demolition of the old fire hall. The Trenton Parking Authority contributed $30,000 towards the new fire station to pay for the land.

Minister of Education Speaks at Rotary Dinner

CAMPBELLFORD — Among the distinguished guests at the Campbellford Rotary Club rural and urban dinner were Hon. W. A. Davis, Minister of Education, Hon. George Hees M.P. and Mrs. Hees, Russell Rowe M.P.P. and Mrs. Rowe.

The dinner was held in the Legion Hall, catered by the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary.

Hon. William Davis as guest speaker was introduced by Russell Rowe M.P.P. who stated Mr. Davis as well as being Minister of Education in Ontario was also Minister of University Affairs and chairman of the Council of Ministers, an organization composed of all the ministers of education across Canada.

In his address Mr. Davis stated that education is in a state of ferment and answers are hard to find.

"Only in the climate of today can changes be made, there is no comparison between the present and the past. Teachers are conservative and hesitate to make changes and must be sure changes made will be valid, and if education is to make progress there must be an understanding from the general public.

With the inevitable change the economic limitation must be recognized, there should not be extravagance in buildings and services should not be duplicated. In Ontario the present budget is one billion, two hundred million dollars — approximately 50 per cent of tax dollars, but investment in education is the most important investment to be made and the most important asset of any country is in the minds and talents of the people".

Speaking of student riots and violence Mr. Davis stressed that the negative side of student problems had received too great publicity as only a small minority of students participated in relation to thousands of good students trying to progress in a conservative way.

As one of the reasons for student unrest the minis'er said that society as a whole has become materialistic, the striving for affluence has in a measure superceded good family life, the parents are leaving too much to the teachers, to both parents and teachers the curriculum should do more than hold the present trend.

The regional system will not solve all the problems. With changes in agriculture an increasing number of young people will have to find jobs in urban areas and must acquire the philosophy and training to adjust to urban living.

"If Canada is to have a future the greatest asset the country has is the young people in the schools, elementary, secondary and post secondary and they are the ones who will make the rules to live by. Nothing is more important in society today than the youth we have and their efforts to relate to change," Mr. Davis concluded.

Appreciation for his address was expressed to the Minister by Rev. Gordon Whitehorn.

Chairman for the evening was Rotarian Al. Weaver, president of the Rural and Urban committee.

Teachers Attend Preview

Local clergy and teachers went to the movies in Belleville yesterday afternoon.

The event was a special preview screening at the Belle Theatre of The Heart Is A Lonely Hunter, due soon in the city.

The theatre management invited guests from around the Quinte district — including clergy and teachers from the Ontario School for the Deaf.

The Heart is a Lonely Hunter is the film version of Carson McCullers moving novel immediately accepted as a universal masterpiece while the author was only a young woman.

Its profound and universal themes evolve from characters in a small southern town — a disillusioned Negro doctor, a young girl facing the dilemmas of adult life and the deaf mute to whom all the varied personalities are drawn.

Moving Day At Hospital For Patients

When it ends, the 73-year-old hospital will have been transplanted into a gleaming new care centre for the Quinte district.

In a painstakingly-plotted manouevre, more than 200 patients were gently shuttled in the hospital's $9,000,000 extension — the final, and major, phase before the new wing is in total operation.

A task force of nurses and nursing aides, reinforced by the BGH women's auxiliary volunteers, were marshalled into action precisely at 10 a.m. as the move began.

The hospital was ruled off-bounds to all visitors this afternoon when the transfer operation was expected to reach its peak.

Prior to the actual move, all patients and their belongings were identified by tags bearing names and room destinations in the new seven-floor wing.

Patients were then placed in wheel chairs or laid on stretchers and carefully wheeled down the tunnel connecting both old and ultra-modern BGH.

For all the caution crucial to such an operation, the move was carried out with cool, clinical effiicency.

Earlier in the morning elevators sevicing the new wing stalled briefly but the hitch was straightened out long before the patients were due for transfer, hospital authorities said.

Marshalling point for the move was the cafeteria near the former BGH emergency ward where hospital administrator Philip Rickard and small staff of nursing supervisors supervised the assembly and despatch of personnel.

The patients move into a centre with all its services already fully functioning and prepared for the influx.

The sophisticated mechanism that is a modern hospital organization has been gradually phased into functioning, ready for today's move.

Yesterday the first surgery was carried out in the new wing's operating rooms.

Features of the hospital extension already are well known to many Quinte residents — close to 5,000 turned out for the open house last Sunday, when the building was officially opened by Ontario Health Minister Matthew Dymond.

But initial impression to be gained by patients viewing the project from the inside for the first time, will be the accommodation arrangements.

A major feature of the new wing is the increased availability of private and semi-private beds. The 310-bed total includes 47 private and 148 semi-private rooms.

Speaking Finals Set for NCC

Public speaking finals for zone 9 will be held Friday at 1.30 p.m. in the south gymnasium at Nicholson Catholic College.

The competition, sponsored by the trustees' association, is open to all members of the public who wish to attend.

Eight contestants from the district will compete in the prepared speech section and a similar number will give impromptu talks.

A Boost for City

Confirmation that the Ontario regional headquarters of the Unemployment Insurance Commission will be located in Belleville is good news indeed. It will mean a large resident civil service work force, estimated at more than 350 and an annual payroll totalling more than $2,000,000.

Growth is occurring in Belleville, and this latest development is tangible evidence of it. The city has been slow to change, but change it must, as the Downtown Merchants' Association was reminded the other day.

"Everything revolves around change," Donald Scott of the Kitchener Downtown Association told his counterparts here. And he proceeded to tell them what had been done in his community. The city has a mall, there is shrubbery, a downtown cafe . . . that sort of thing. Membership is strong and there is no fear of competition from other enterprises.

"Take a positive attitude — you've got to be doing something yourselves." Mr. Scott is right of course. And in fact things are being done. Downtown renewal, for instance, is under study. It will take years, but the city is moving in this direction. A plaza? The decision of the Ontario Municipal Board is awaited there. The city, nevertheless, is on the move — and that is what counts.

With the UIC people coming here, housing facilities will be under some strain for a while. Ironically, one of the main reasons for the move here is increased administration and living costs in Toronto. Housing costs there have gone up 70 per cent in the last five years, and it has reached the point that authorities say only one worker in ten can afford a new house.

The cost of living in Belleville is low by comparison. It shares an across-Canada increase in home costs of about 50 per cent in the last five years. This is lower than in Toronto. The newcomers, moreover, will be coming to an area where children can grow up in an atmosphere of relative peace and quiet, and in which business opportunities and recreational facilities are happily combined.

Women Scribes

Imperial Oil Review is an interesting publication whose subject matter has a lot to do with the outdoors, industrial developments and other aspects of what essentially is a man's world. Hardly the place, one would think, for women scribes.

Yet that is where two young women writers make the scene, in the magazine's current issue. The Quebec winter carnival of course is a subject of interest to all, but in her article on it, Vicki Innes also writes of her swift excursion into the male world of motor racing — she took a spin round the track of the Esso Grand Prix with winner Jacques Duval. On other occasions, Miss Innes has written on such male preserves as tires and water conservation.

Thelma Dickman, who came to Ontario from British Columbia 14 years ago, contributes an article on a steam train trip organized for railway buffs by the Upper Canada Railway Society. Mrs. Dickman has also written on such diverse topics as the effects of tides, weather and the phases of the moon on fishing operations, and the harmfulness of noise.

Writing is one area in which women can compete on equal terms with men. That they have done it successfully since long before such modern phenomena as Canada's royal commission on the status of women (its findings are still awaited) has been proven long since. Jane Austen, Charlotte Bronte . . . their names are legion. And today women writers enliven the contemporary scene with such articles as those mentioned above.

The POP Scene

On television of late there has been a procession of the latest pop groups, each shaggier and more eccentrically-clad, noisier and more raucous than the one that went before. They sing, or rather yell their way through a succession of nondescript pieces. In short, they come and go and they leave no lasting imprint on the memory. Then along come the Beatles . . . yes the Beatles of extraordinary memory, and they sing "Hey Jude," and the same hypnotic spell they wrought in their heyday five years ago is at work again. They did it on The Smothers Brothers show last Sunday. Hey Jude, incidentally, is currently at the top of the popularity polls with Beatle Paul McCartney as the soloist. By coincidence, the Beatles' first movie, A Hard Day's Night, which came out in 1964, was given a TV revival Saturday evening. Today, the celebrated British lads still have that touch of genius nobody in their field has been able to touch.

Ottawa Offbeat

Senate and Commons Try Getting on Same Wavelength

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Despair not.

After 102 years of segregation the Senate and Commons have taken a teensy-weensy step toward integration.

It could be the beginning of the end of more than a century of separation, a watershed, a turning point. Tiny, but at the same time tremendous.

What has happened?

The Commons and Senate — in the same building on Parliament Hill, the hugely rambling Centre Block — have unified their fire alarms.

But not without a tearing of senatorial hair.

Until just the other day they each had their own klaxon fire horn.

The Commons horn was wired to blast off in one long sustained howl, like the continuous ringing of its sessional bells.

The Senate horn was adjusted to howl at a different pitch and rhythm, intermittently in a slow and measured pulse.

Idea was to avoid confusion in case of fire.

You see, the Senate all these years had a slow-beat bell so ditto the horn.

Same with the Commons, continuous bell so likewise the horn.

But no more.

Now on the same electrical circuit, the two alarms are wired to ring as one.

The Senate didn't like it, of course. The senators, like Quebec, insisted they were "different."

But the public works department, the fire marshal and the Ottawa fire department said two different bells on two different pitches and two different pulses would not make sense unless the Senate was walled off from the Commons by a soundproof concrete wall.

So the Senate, reluctantly, accepted this humiliation of integration.

Almost all other parliamentary services still come in pairs, one for the Senate, another for the Commons.

There are:

Two barbershops. Two sets of guards. Two staffs of male sweepers and cleaners. Two groups of charwomen. Two post offices side by side. Two reading rooms. Two carpenter shops. Two locksmiths. Two, in duplicate, of just about everything.

Even, would you believe two different brands and styles of brooms, mops, kits and tools.

How "separate" can separation get?

Well, a Senate messenger will run a message to the "other side" of the Centre Block, but only as far as the nearest Commons messenger for final relay to its destination.

The Commons char staff will run their mops and brooms up to an imaginary line in a corridor — the "border" — and no further. The Senate charmen will do the same, going up to but never over the demarcation line.

But since the Commons and Senate corridors are not always swabbed the same day, the line is not all that imaginary.

For the floors are of white stone, the line between the clean and the unclean runs as sharp and clear as white on black.

As far, and maybe further, than the paying of separate bills, one by the Commons, the other by the Senate, for use of the same mail truck.

Each post office, Senate and Commons, dispatches its outgoing mail in separate bags, of course, in the same truck under separate contract to the capital's postal terminal. There, a separate pickup, in separate bags naturally, is made of incoming mail.

Now here is a little secret — and don't ever let the Senate hear about it — the Commons has a couple of sort of "private" services all to itself.

Like a tailor and valet.

And an upholsterer.

But don't breathe a word to your Senate friends or they will insist they have one too.

However, be not dismayed. The fire alarms have been integrated, and in this world of super-segregation, that is progress.

Just one more thing . . . the cost of Parliament continues climbing.

Up this year by $485,400 from $3,280,100 to $3,765,50 for the Senate.

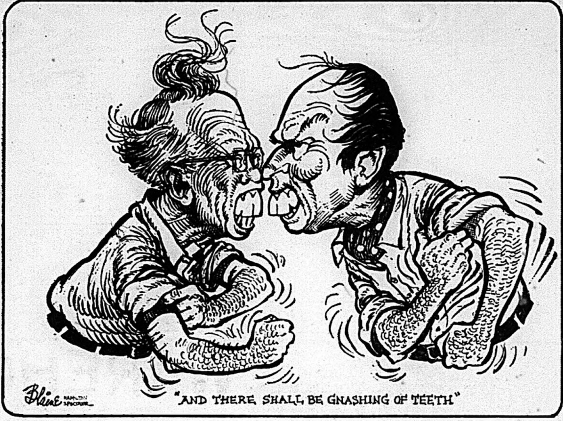
Together they climbed $1,319,450 in the year from $19,309,650 to $20,629,100.

How much can be charged to duplication of services for politicians who refuse to integrate while ramming unification down the up-choked throat of the defenceless defence department?



"AND THERE SHALL BE GNASHING OF TEETH"

Unbalanced

Windsor Star

One of the perplexing social problems is the freedom with which demented men and women walk the streets of any city or town in Canada. They can have minds that are criminally geared.

Every so often a murder is committed. And, the accused is convicted of the crime but acquitted on the ground that he was insane at the time of the killing.

An individual cannot be arrested and detained on the suspicion that he is going to slay someone. But, the police know there are many persons on the streets who are not in their right mind and who are potential killers.

This is a question that requires a lot of deep study. And, while it is not valid to detain anyone on suspicion, the fact remains there are too many murders being committed by persons who are insane.

Care for A Course in Astrology?

Windsor Star

The girls in Salem, Mass., witches to some of their contemporaries, were born too soon. Currently Centennial College in Scarborough is having a 10-week course in astrology, which is said to fit in nicely with a night class in witchcraft.

Why bother with it? The idea it's asserted, is to take mystery out of mystical fields. To learn what's nonsense and what isn't.

"Astrology," the sponsor declares, "can give a better idea of what people are like than a cockeyed test dreamed up by astrologers." In any case about 35 students are reported to be taking the course, which runs to around two hours a week.

Discipline Problem

The Strap — Or Psychology?

Brockville Recorder and Times

It is of interest to parents and teachers in this area to learn that Mr. Lloyd A. Dennis, director of education for Leeds and Grenville, is opposed to the use of the strap to discipline unruly students. He feels there's a better way of controlling a class, and we hope he is right.

Many parents will not agree with Mr. Dennis in this approach to discipline and there will be teachers who won't either. While the strap is still in use in Brockville schools, apparently it is used on rare occasions and then the principal administers the leather in the presence of another teacher and the occurrence is duly recorded. The strap is a last resort when all other methods of control fail.

Psychiatrists claim that students should be able to do as they please in class. But this doesn't seem to have worked out well in areas where it has been tried. If there is no discipline at home, (and many parents are too permissive), what hope is there for control in school? How does the teacher handle the school bullies? Sweet-talk, reasonable discussion, isolation, suspension? This, we hope, would become a matter for the school psychologist.

But what if psychology does not work either? There are probably other methods in Mr. Dennis' approach to the problem . . . and it is a problem. We would wish success for his approach to this problem but perhaps he shouldn't be too quick to sell the old straps as scrap rubber.

January-February Sales

Hamilton Spectator

Aren't these January and February sales out of this world? And maddening as well?

Imagine Aunt Bertha who bought a lovely fur coat during December. She paid $660 for it—a bargain, so she thought.

Now the same fur coat is on sale for $320. And Aunt Bertha's drug bill will be at least $20.

How about Uncle Bert, who stuck out his chest and smiled when his daughter and son-in-law thanked him for the wonderful color TV set he bought them for Christmas. It cost him all of $950, but it was worth it. Besides, another store was advertising similar models for $975 at the same time!

Now the same color TV is on sale for $666. And Uncle Bert's face is set in permanent black and white.

Could we suggest that next year's January and February sales be held in December of this year? If they aren't a lot of people on our list aren't going to get a thing from us for Christmas.

Diplomatic Faux-pas?

British Disclosure of French Plan Causes Dismay

By HAROLD MORRISON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

In defending its position on the Anglo-French squabble, the British government in effect has proclaimed a new doctrine in international diplomacy.

It believes it has the unilateral right to disclose two-country secrets to other friends any time Britain feels they have a right to know.

This declaration has alarmed some of Britain's own countrymen for, as they have argued, this could lead to a position where no country will ever trust Britain to keep a secret again.

While many critics have deplored the shadowy nature of secret diplomacy, it is a cold fact that much exploratory bargaining would be curtailed unless countries involved are convinced that what they have to say won't be spread around.

Certainly, in the case of President de Gaulle, the prospect of further secret negotiations with Britain has virtually collapsed following the blunt way in which his proposals for talks on reshaping Europe were swiftly relayed to Western Europe and North America, without his permission.

The British government argues it had to move fast to keep one jump ahead of de Gaulle. If Britain had not spilled the contents, de Gaulle might have done so in a way which might have suggested Britain was negotiating behind the backs of its European friends.

What kind of game is Britain playing? Does it really want to become a conformist member of the Common Market as it exists or is it more to Britain's advantage to gain membership for the purpose of reshaping it? De Gaulle often expressed his suspicions.

Whatever his doubts, he was evidently confident that when it comes to diplomacy conducted through private talks in quiet corners, he could trust the British foreign office to observe the long-established niceties of diplomatic protocol.

If two countries hold confidential talks, one does not go off blabbing to third parties without showing the courtesy of asking permission to make the talks public, or at the very least, giving notice that the substance is being relayed elsewhere.

De Gaulle was caught flat-footed by the blunt way in which the British government acted. But losing one battle does not mean losing the war. There are many ways in which information can be leaked. And if Britain wants to play at unilateral breaches, undoubtedly de Gaulle's own men are equal to the game.

Trenton's First of Year

Blood Clinic Goal Is 350 Pints

TRENTON — Are there 350 people in the Trenton area who want to save a life?

That's what members of the auxiliary of the Trenton Memorial Hospital will discover next Monday when they hold heir first blood clinic of 1969.

"We have three clinics a year," said auxiliary chairman Mrs. W. Berry, "and we are setting our goal at 350 pints for this first one."

In previous years the goal has been reached, but Mrs. Berry points out that the number of donors thin out during the summer holiday period. To make up for this, organizers are hoping not to merely meet their aim but to surpass it by as much as possible.

"There are over a quarter of a million patients in hospitals across Canada who owe their lives to blood donors," said Mrs. Berry.

The clinic will be set up at the Legion hall and refreshments will be served. Everyone will be tested to see if he is able to give blood. The first clinic begins at 2:30 and goes until five in the afternoon. A second one starts at 6:30 in the evening and finishes at nine.

"It only takes 30 minutes," concluded Mrs. Berry, "and if everyone gives there will be an ample supply for Trenton area families when they need it."

Huge Pork Factory Is Planned

ABBOTSFORD, B.C. (CP) — The Winnipeg-based National Grain Co. is getting ready to hit a home run in the big league of raising hogs, with a huge pork factory scheduled to start production in June near this Fraser Valley community.

General manager J. T. Ross Husdon of the new national swine centre says the project is certainly the biggest single hog operation of its type in Canada, and possibly the world.

He said in an interview the new company will utilize 1,200 sows and 30 boars to produce about 24,000 marketable hogs a year. B.C. now markets 70,000 hogs annually.

Mr. Husdon estimates that if the top hog price remains around $31 a hundred pounds and the swine centre hogs dress out at 160 pounds, then each hog should gross about $50 at the slaughterhouse.

This gives the 65-acre farm a $1,200,000 gross annually on an initial investment of $1,400,000 for land, facilities and stocking of animals.

The market potential is virtually unlimited. B.C. consumes about 500,000 hogs a year, mostly imported from Alberta and the United States.

Construction started last September on the first of 15 buildings.

Sows in the first unit of 400 producers began farrowing just after Christmas and the litters, weaned at three weeks, went into a nursery barn for another month.

Mr. Husdon said the first farrowing produced an average of 10.3 piglets a litter with a survival rate of 9.1, an extremely good average. He said they should reach their market weight in 150 days compared with the industry average of 180 days.

The company anticipates an average of 2.25 litters for each sow annually.

An integral part of the company's plan to speed up production involves use of an automatic sow, a rubber-nipple-studded contraption now being tested at the University of B.C. in Vancouver.

Piglets would be turned over to the milk machine for further nourishment at three days of age. The sows dry up within a week and are ready to be bred again.

In addition to being a pork factory, the swine centre will function as a research station with the blessing of the provincial agriculture department.

Agricultural scientists will study every phase of the breeding program. Each hog's farrowing statistics, size of litter and rate of growth goes on a computer card for future use.

As the pig generations roll by, the poor producers and defectives will be weeded out.

The swine centre is using a special crossbred sow produced in Colorado and Yorkshire and Landrace boars. Mr. Husdon said selection of the breeding stock combined with highly-specialized feeding should produce hogs far better for marketing than those now being slaughtered.

"More lean, more ham, more lin," he said.

Celebes Quake Kills 64

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Rescue workers today were still digging through the rubble of earthquake-shattered towns and villages in the Celebes, reports reaching Jakarta said today.

Rescue teams have recovered 64 bodies so far but full details of the damage were not immediately available from the remote coastal regions struck in the earthquake Sunday. There were fears that the death toll might climb higher.

More than 200 persons died in a similar disaster in the area in August last year.

French Name Ambassador to Peking

PARIS (Reuters) — Etienne Manac'h, one of France's leading diplomats, has been named ambassador to Peking, the official gazette announced today.

Manac'h, 59, has been head of the foreign ministry's Asian division for the last eight years and in this post played a major part behind the scenes in smoothing out difficulties at the Vietnam peace conference here.

He will replace Lucien Paye, 61, France's first ambassador to China since the French government recognized Peking in 1964.

Paye, a former education minister, asked to be recalled, foreign ministry sources said.

Manac'h, who is of Breton origin, makes no secret in private of his conviction that the Vietnam issue will be decided on the battlefield and not at the peace conference table here, some of his friends say.

Yippie Leader Faces Barrage of Heckling

TORONTO (CP) — Jerry Rubin of New York City, leader of the Youth International Party, Wednesday faced a barrage of paper airplanes and heckling by more than 2,000 University of Toronto students.

Wearing a Viet Cong flag as a cape, the Yippie leader's one-hour speech was interrupted so many times that he called for a rebuttal.

Rubin, whose visit was sponsored by the cultural affairs committee of the university's Student's Administrative Council, said education was irrelevant.

Most Toronto Students Write No Exams

TORONTO (CP) — Students in 19 of Toronto's 27 high schools will be exempted from writing final examinations in June if they have obtained an average of 50 per cent in their earlier exams, tests and classroom work.

Toronto board of education approved the new policy Tuesday night and A. L. Milloy, school superintendent, estimated "a few thousand" of the city's 27,000 secondary school students will benefit.

Authority to change exemption standards was given last month by Education Minister William Davis.

Dr. J. R. McCarthy, minister of education, said elimination of examinations for all students "has been inevitable ever since we dropped external examinations in Grade 13 in 1967."

He said having final examinations at the end of a school year provided poor incentive for study.

"We support the idea that a student ought to work at a satisfactory level all year and ought not to be able to slough off his work for nine months and cram his way through," he said.

Present departmental regulations empower each school to set its own passing standards and examinations.

Dr. McCarthy said the recent announcement of extending the school year to June 13 from June 3 had nothing to do with implementing the policy of dropping examinations.

WALKER'S

270 FRONT STREET DIAL 968-5751

Hat Fashions Highlight UCW Tea

Hats, hats and more hats, were the order of the afternoon and evening Wednesday, when Bridge St. United Church Women held their fifth tea and hat show in the church hall.

The presentation, was not only delightfully colorful, but refreshing, too.

Conveners Mrs. A. E. Miles and Mrs. G. Anderson did an excellent job in guiding the organization of the event, giving the hat show a relaxed and professional air.

Commentator, Mrs. Elizabeth Black gave adept descriptions of each millinery creation, much to the enjoyment of the audience.

Co - ordinating the models was Mrs. O. Summers. The seven lovely models who shared the spotlight were: Mrs. G. Moore; Mrs. V. White; Mrs. D. M. Maddocks; Mrs. J. Rollins; Mrs. W. Holway; Mrs. D. Deacon and Mrs. R. Fox.

Providing pleasant background music for the show was pianist Mrs. W. Berkley. Soloist was Mrs. R. Riedel.

The procession of hats, in beautiful pastel shades, color combinations and styles were exactly what the large audience of attentive women had come to see.

"Hats are foremost on the fashion scene for 1969," began Mrs. Black, "and can be worn with every ensemble, from your favorite pantsuit to your most exquisite garden party frock."

After her introduction followed an array of hats, in every shape, shade and size imaginable.

Hats of straw, wide-brimmed and saucy; or floral creations of sedate beauty. Styles for the older woman, or for the woman who likes variety in everything she wears — even flirty thirty hats, inspired by Bonnie and Clyde. Hats were supplied through the courtesy of Woodley's.

The entrance to the main tea room consisted of a large white wicker basket full of pink snapdragons and daisies. Conveners here were: Mrs. A. Clare in the afternoon and in the evening, Mrs. B. Leslie.

In the tea room itself, baskets of freshly cut 'mums, snapdragons in pink and white added a touch of spring. Colorful papier mache lanterns were suspended rom the ceiling — for just the right atmosphere.

Convener of the kitchen in the afternoon was Mrs. D. Williams and in the evening was Miss O. Root. Homebaking conveners in the afternoon was Mrs. H. Parker and the evening, Mrs. T. Colden.

The main tea table, with its white linen tablecloth, was set off nicely by silver candelabra and pink candles. A floral centrepiece of pink carnations finished the lovely settings and silver tea service.

The individual tea tables were covered by white tablecloths also, each centred by a small flower pot containing pink paper flowers, topped by a miniature hat.

In charge of tickets and advertising was Mrs. R. Schryver; while Mrs. G. Anderson and Mrs. A. E. Miles headed the decorating committee.

Pouring tea in the afternoon were: Mrs. H. Davis, Mrs. W. Dallas, Mrs. J. Loynes and Miss G. Kinney. In the evening, pourers were: Mrs. H. Davis; Mrs. R. E. Berry; Mrs. G. Greatrix and Mrs. C. R. Clapp. Treasurer for the event was Mrs. H. Mott.

U.C.W. Meeting

CENTENARY UCW

The February meeting of Centenary UCW was held at the church hall. The president Mrs. D. Douglas opened with a prayer. Minutes of last meeting were read and adopted. During the business it was decided to cater to a wedding, also an invitation was accepted to attend 'World Day of Prayer' service at Wallbridge church.

"Thank you" notes were read and Mrs. G. Sills conducted the study book on "Man and his work in China."

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

INTERNATIONAL NIGHT

NAPANEE — For their International Night last week, the Third Napanee Guides did a great deal of research work and used considerable ingenuity. For the occasion in Trinity Church banquet hall, each of six patrol leaders was responsible for one country. A separate section was alloted for each. Each leader gave a talk on the country she was illustrating, describing the country itself, and the ways of its people. An item of entertainment typical of that country followed, a song or dance, or a skit. And at each booth food of that country was waiting to be purchased at the close of the program, with the proceeds to be contributed to the International Friendship Fund.

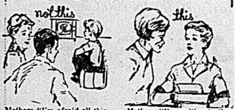
Patrol leader Elizabeth Eadie was responsible for the presentation of Ireland, Cathy Pearce for Holland, Betsy Alkenbrack for Germany, Carol Sinclair for Hawaii, Marie Calnan for Mexico and Nora Poole for Jamaica. Each patrol leader and the members of her patrol had done a great deal of research to bring out the characteristics of the land for which she was responsible.

About 120 Guides and their leaders enjoyed a delightful evening. The Third Napanee Guides had invited the Second Napanee Company and the Deseronto Guides to join them. Leaders of the Second Napanee Company are Mrs Nell Lambert, Mrs. Howard Storey, Mrs. Harold Wilson, and Nancy Poole, and of the Deseronto Guides, Mrs. J. A. Morden and Miss Janice Hearns. Leaders of the hostess company were: Mrs. James Alkenbrack, Cathy Alkenbrack, Pamela Hart and Jane Armstrong.

Honored guests were Division Commissioner Mrs. Howard VanVlack, District Commissioner Mrs. Werk Poole, and Mrs. Caroline McMillan and Mrs. Theresa Lott, leaders of the Newburgh Guide Company.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "I'm afraid all this violence on TV isn't good for Teddy. He's so nervous about the dark and has bad dreams too often. All his friends watch the programs so he thinks he has to also"

Mother: "I'm writing to the sponsor and objecting to the violence on his TV program for children, and I'll send a carbon copy to the broadcasting company. We couldn't possibly permit Teddy to watch such a disturbing program."

Parents must decide which programs are harmful and must restrict viewing, while they continually press those responsible for better quality television for children.

Problems on Taking Wedding Photographs Discussed

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: "Still Smouldering" is probably single and therefore cannot understand that the wedding photographs are a momentary flash to record for the future.

As a professional photographer, I always suggest that the pictures be taken before the ceremony, then there is no waiting period. However, some people are still superstitious about the groom seeing the bride in her wedding dress before the actual ceremony begins. Also, there is the difficult item of time allowance before the ceremony.

As for Portrait Studio time. The time is usually spent in travelling from church to studio and from studio to reception hall. Plus the time necessary for "cleaning up" the bride and groom. I remember one rainy day when the minister requested that the people would not throw confetti because of the rain. The guests paid no heed and the bride's gown turned from a shimmering white to a glorious technicolor.

As to the guests watching the "peep show", as "still Smouldering" calls it. — The disturbing remarks from the guests lengthens the photo-taking time and endangers the photo-facial expressions with ill-timed remarks.

I have never seen elderly people kept out of a reception hall unless they wished it. If they were infirm, arrangements were always made whereby they could sit in comfort in a warm place. — Smile Please.

Dear Smile: OK. There is another side to it, I agree. But you don't have to be infirm to resent standing out in a cold wind for an hour. I'm telling you, there is sometimes no alternative.

• • •

Dear Doris: Find enclosed 20 cents and self-addressed envelope for material on children with learning disabilities.

Doris, if my memory serves me correctly you were in my city two or three years ago to speak at the Y.W.C.A. I did not know about your visit till some time later. I would have liked to have had the pleasure of shaking hands with you and have you autograph my scrapbook of your material (one of my hobbies). — W. E. D.

Dear W. E. D.: Nothing would give me more pleasure than to meet you and sign my name in your book. I am enjoying the inspirational paragraph from the "Mount of Blessings" which you enclosed.

One of the delightful rewards of reaching around by letter into the lives of thousands of Canadians is the kind of note you have sent me.

• • •

Dear Doris: About that woman who gave away vegetables but still had no friends: You suggested some possible shortcomings, which I thought helpful, but neglected the one which came to my mind right off: Didn't she realize she was asking too high a price for turnips?

To make people like her, all the woman with the turnips would have had to do was to say with her offering, "I hope you will enjoy these vegetables half as much as I enjoy your company." I guarantee they'd have been back, probably bearing an offering of their own.

— All the things we've given without getting anything we want in return! We might just find that we, too, have been charging too high a price for our turnips. — Just Thinking.

Dear Just Thinking: You know your vegetables!

Ann Landers

Sisters-in-law Resent Aggressive Widow

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband died four months ago. Guy was the oldest of three brothers. I always got along well with Guy's brothers but their wives never cared for me. I am younger than my sisters-in-law and it so happens I am more attractive and better built than they are.

Since Guy died I am happiest when I am with his brothers. There is a strong family resemblance, also their voices and mannerisms are similar. It's almost like being with Guy again.

Friday I was feeling down in the dumps. I telephoned my brother-in-law and asked if he would drop by after work. He said yes. At 5:00 he called back to say he had forgotten a social engagement and his wife expected him home.

Why are some women so selfish, Ann? Don't you think my sister-in-law should have invited me to go along instead of stopping her husband from coming to see me? Please take my part. — BUILT BETTY (my brother-in-law's nickname for me.)

DEAR BETTY: Your brother-in-law's nickname for you gives me a pretty good clue to the problem. I'm glad you threw it in.

I understand your loneliness and I sympathize, but obviously your sisters-in-law consider you a threat. If you are wise you'll refrain from any aggressive moves toward their husbands and wait for them to invite you when they are inclined to do so.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My last name is one which you would recognize so I shall not sign this letter.

Last month my husband's book (on which he worked well over a year) was published. His publisher allotted him a small number of free copies which he autographed and sent to his closest friends. For the past two weeks we have been receiving letters like this one: "Dear ———: Thank you for the book. I haven't been able to read it because the neighbor (or my sister - - - or my uncle - - - or my grandmother) saw the book on the table and took it to read."

Why doesn't someone inform these people that autographed books should not be let out of the house. The owners of these books should say to their friends, "Go buy one. It's worth the price." — RESENTFUL.

DEAR R.: — As an author of a recently published book, I must say you are a woman after my own heart. You voiced my sentiments beautifully and I thank you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Tonight my boyfriend (age 17) put his hand where it didn't belong. I didn't blow my cool but I made it clear that he had the wrong number.

He took me to the door and apologized — said he felt like a rat and hoped I'd forgive him. Then I got to thinking — it wasn't all his fault. I hated to admit it but I had led him on a little. I was a tease. I encouraged him to get fresh and then I clobbered him.

He made me stop and think. I'll never do it again. — GUILTY TOO.

DEAR G-2: Your letter supports a pet theory of mine. More often than not, the guy who gets his face slapped had reason to believe he could get away with whatever it was he tried. Thanks for saying it better than I could.

Salmon Skillet Meal Fast and Economical

By MARY MOORE

If the number of telephone calls and letters received are a dependable criterion then this Salmon Skillet Supper is a success.

For a fast, economical, nourishing meal you cannot beat it. I made it in a new electric frypan on CHEK — TV Noon Show in Victoria. My number of air minutes was limited so speed was the watchword.

SPEEDY SALMON SKILLET SUPPER (serves 4 or 5 — see below)

one 1-lb can salmon (drained and chunked — see note)
one 10-oz. can cream of mushroom soup 1½ cups water
two-thirds cup minute rice
¼ teaspoon salt
one 12-oz. package fresh frozen peas
8 slices process cheese
paprika

Add water to frypan, stir in soup to blend. (NOTE: Obviously you may use a standard frypan over electric or gas or propane or wood burner if that is what you have!) To pan add drained and chunked salmon. (NOTE: fi this dish is to serve only four people you can make - ½-lb. can stretch adequately but if it is for five people you need a 1-lb can of salmon.) Also add rice and salt and peas and stir to mix. Cover top with slices of process cheese, sprinkle with paprika, cover and simmer 10 to 12 minutes. Cheese will be melted, so try not to disturb it too mcuh when you serve this, keeping melted cheese on top.

We served our experimental batch to two guests at Marianne's and Herbie's home. These two venturesome young people, Marlene and Peter Maclaren, left on January 4th for a posting in Northern Ireland. We made Irish scones and a big green salad to serve with the salmon supper.

Bill Supported, 158 to 54

Stanfield Votes for Criminal Code Changes, Dief Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Fourteen months after it first emerged, the government's Criminal Code bill faced its first formal test in the Commons Wednesday and came through with clear support.

The vote was 158 to 54 on second reading as the Conservatives split and one Liberal joined the ranks of the opponents.

All 22 New Democrats voted in favor, while all 14 Creditistes voted against.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, who has urged a free vote on homosexuality and abortion since last summer's election campaign, stood up with 14 of his followers to support the bill.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker and seven of his onetime cabinet colleagues were among 39 Conservatives voting against it.

The 120-clause bill covers a multitude of issues from animal-baiting to theft from the mails, but most attention during six days of second-reading debate focused on the changes in abortion and sex law.

In effect the bill would legalize all private sex acts between consenting adults—including husbands and wives—in line with Prime Minister Trudeau's opinion that the state has no place in the bedrooms of the nation.

But several Conservatives argued that approval of the bill would be a move towards a degenerate society condoning homosexuality.

Opinion of the abortion section, which would permit abortion on grounds of a threat to the mother's health as well as to her life, was just as widely divided.

Some MPs, led by NDP Deputy Leader David Lewis, argued that abortion should be a matter left to a woman and her doctor. Others argued that it should never be permitted.
cause of the abortion change.

While the NDP and Creditiste parties had full turnouts for the vote, 32 Liberals and 18 Conservatives were absent.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons is: Liberals 154, Conservatives 72, NDP 22, Creditistes 14, independent 1, vacant 1.

The bill now goes to the justice committee for study, where it is expected efforts will be made to amend many of the individual sections.

The government, in refusing to permit a free vote or to handle controversial sections separately, has argued that the amendment stage will provide an opportunity for MPs to give a verdict on individual parts.

Wednesday's vote came early in a short sitting devoted to a bill making chages in the Financial Administration Act, which also received second reading.

The bill provides for abolition of the office of comptroller of the treasury and transfers most of its responsibilities to the treasury board, a cabinet committee that supervises spending.

Centennial Filled to Capacity For 'Stars of Festival' Show

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Promises of a star-filled evening came true last night for hundreds of Bellevillians who jammed Centennial High School auditorium for the final event of the first annual Rotary Music Festival.

The "stars" of the show were choosen, by adjudicators Ronald Smith and Donald Francke, because of their outstanding performances during the three-day event.

As always, the judgment of the two gentlemen was excellent — providing a completely delightful show.

Master of ceremonies was Linton Read, who jokingly described the program as "well-rounded," and a crowning achievement. "This will be the first of many festivals here in Belleville," he said.

As the master guiding hand behind the evening's proceedings, Mr. Read enjoyed his task to the fullest and his listening audience enjoyed it right along with him.

Lending just the right touch of both subtle humor and seriousness to the occasion, he kept the program flowing at light and even pace.

The program — which consisted of every conceivable musical talent from soloists to high school bands — was put together at 5.30 that same evening by the two adjudicators. Even on such short notice, all things ran smoothly, with the highest degree of efficiency.

Mr. Read took time to commend and thank the two adjudicators, Ronald Smith and Donald Francke.

He termed them "wise, competent and kind men, to whom we owe all our thanks and admiration."

Mayor J. R. Scott was present to hand awards to the two top winners, Miss Cathy Smithrim and Clyde Dawson.

The cash awards, donated by several Belleville groups, totalled more than $1,000, a good beginning for a first festival attempt by the Rotary Club.

The whole musical effort by the Rotarians was an admirable one—and a good beginning for many festivals to come.

Judging from the calibre of musical performance, the number of award winners and overall enthusiasm, it can be said the event will become an annual one, that will tap the talent and genius of youngsters.

Many high marks were attained by the majority of competitors — for example Clyde Dawson and Oscar Nespolie, who competed in the 11 year and under class on Monday won a total of 88 marks from the adjudicator.

If this is any trend, the only indications are that young musical talents will have the chance they deserve—the opportunity to play in public, and have their performance assessed by a professional musician.

Final Festival Results

The following are the placings in competition at St. Andrew's Church, Ronald Smith adjudicating:

Kathy Smithrim

Trenton Singer Plays Star Role At Music Festival

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Kathy Smithrim of Trenton won $100 for being one of the top performers in Belleville's first musical festival. She performed at last night's festival of stars.

Miss Smithrim, 19, has been singing since she was three years old starting with "Jesus Loves Me."

Now a mature mezzo soprano, Miss Smithrim has been taking voice lessons for two years and is studying at the University of Toronto in the hopes of obtaining her bachelor of music degree.

Upon receipt of her degree she would like to teach vocal music in secondary schools.

"I'd like to perform, but you don't perform until you're 25," she said last night.

Miss Smithrim won first class honors with an 85 Monday and Tuesday did so again with an 87 at the Belleville Rotary Music Festival.

Her first public singing was with church choirs when she was five or six years old.

She has also received scholarships during 1967 and 1968 at the Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival.

Miss Smithrim attributes much of her vocal success to her voice teacher in the university, Miss Helen Simmie.

"She's really motherly and she loves all her students. Just now I'm beginning to feel she thinks I'm something special," she said.

Miss Smithrim cannot imagine not being able to sing.

"I'd have to adjust my whole life. I'm always singing. If someone should mention a title in conversation I start to sing the song."

She knows well the strain that is part of vocal training and singing.

"It's hard work. People don't think it's physically hard but it is."

"I don't think anyone should start taking professional lessons until they are in their teens — at least 16."

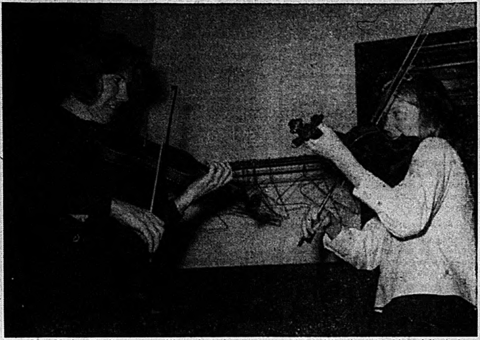
She does believe that a budding young vocalist should learn all the piano possible and get practice by singing in choirs and music festivals — "as many as possible."

Her opinion of contemporary music is definite.

"I find it very shallow. I can't listen to it more than 10 minutes. It's all rhythm."

She doesn't believe that music, in particular singing is a neglected art.

"Anyone will listen to a good singer and love it but there aren't that many good singers around."



Mrs. Marion Stratton may not have been in the actual solo violinist competition that her daughter Michele won. However, she was the piano accompanist and has been teaching violin to her daughter and others for the past four years.

Mother and Daughter Combine For Top Marks in Violin Class

By DONALD MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

It was a mother and daughter effort yesterday that won the accompanied violin class for children 12 and under at the Rotary Music Festival.

Michele Stratton, 12, won over the other three competitors in her class. She is taught by her mother, Mrs. Marion Stratton and was also accompanied by her on the piano.

According to adjudicator Ronald Smith, Belleville is going to have a "first class string orchestra if this keeps up."

He felt that the four violinists Mary Pape, Kirby Julian and Patrick Smith (all 12 years old except for 11 year old Julian) were outstanding.

"It's evident that they've all had a good teacher," said Mr. Smith in his remarks.

That was another compliment for Mrs. Marion Stratton since she teaches all four of the children herself.

The children even have collective practice sessions every Saturday.

"They do ensemble work at that time," said Mrs. Stratton, "but they all have individual lessons."

Each one of the children began playing the violin young — when they were nine years old and practice makes perfect.

Prior to the competition yesterday it was a solid month of practice for each of them.

As for the question "Why the Violin?" all the children could say is that "we like it."

Bayside School Choir Shows Off Their Star Quality On Festival Night

Winners Receive Awards At the Closing Session

The following awards were presented to the overall winners of the three day long Rotary Music Festival.

Tuning - - - a Necessity

Paul Scott, an entrant in the cornet class for youths 18 years old and under, tunes his trumpet with accompanist Ann Ketcheson before his performance yesterday afternoon at the Belleville Rotary Music Festival.

Secretaries Unsung Heroines

Now that the Belleville Rotary Music Festival is over for 1969, the unsung heroines have gone back to their classes.

Without the adjudicators' secretaries the festival could not have continued and if it could, would have been badly disorganized.

The assistances to adjudicators, Ronald Smith and Donald Francke, were filled by the Rotary Club when they drafted high school students from BCI.

According to Cathie Palmer, 18, one of the students, the girls were selected from one BCI class and were given time off from school to serve at the music festival.

And it was quite a task.

The secretaries were responsible for keeping the records of the performer's marks and achievements as well as seeing that the news media had the results of the festival's activities.

The girls, eight of them, worked in shifts, taking equal turns at the desk in the centre aisles of St. Andrew's Church and St. Thomas' Parish Hall.

Stars Return to Soothe Bruins' Pain

Leafs' Chief Races Blues' Jim Roberts

by Maurice Switzer Sports Editor

As blue as a Toronto Maple Leaf sweater might be, Gardens stock could hardly be placed in the "blue chip" category in these days of decision for the Smythe Dynasty.

Intelligencer financial expert Richard Payne interprets the Gardens' fiscal flounderings as "quantitative ramifications of sub-par performance attainment within the organization's operational framework."

Translated from Mr. Payne's obscure east hill dialect of Hab — (a strange tongue born in the bowels of Montreal Forum shower-rooms) — this means that the Leafs have been losing.

And in fine style.

Only George Imlach's version of the Rat Patrol would take advantage of two prime-time network television spots to take a 4-2 dusting from Chicago's black budgies, and follow up with a Sunday 7-2 giveaway to, of all people, the Minnesota North Stars.

You remember Minnesota? That's the state renown for providing the southern-most site on the continent for a Hudson's Bay Company trading post. Well, certainly not for producing winning hockey teams!)

After last weekend's Leaf double-header debacle, we made a beeline for one of the city's foremost practitioners of the gentle art of litigation, who broke the tidings that there were not sufficient grounds to merit suing the aforementioned Mr. Imlach for non-support.

Things went from worse to horrendous.

The sliver-king of the Maple Leaf bench, meandering Michael Walton, said he didn't particularly care for blue, and would like to sport the fashionable threads of another NHL stable.

Well, HE didn't exactly say anything — he sort of vanished off the face of Carleton St. . . leaving Alan Eagleson, the White Knight of beleagured athletes, to give out interviews by proxy.

Michael has returned to the fold after learning the best offer the Leafs had for his services was a swap with Montreal for Claude Ruel, plus $713 worth of new Shawinigan francs.

Walton — perhaps better known as Stafford Smythe's niece's husband — could probably have a lifetime popcorn concession at the Gardens for the asking if he decides to keep his high-scoring talent in the family and on the Maple Leafs' bench.

In civilized quarters of the league, meanwhile, Boston Bruins were living up to their reputation as the team to beat, and proceeded to let everyone do just that.

Playing without a pair of stragglers by the names of Esposito and Orr, the Bruins managed to accomplish the difficult task of letting the Montreal Canadiens move from eight points back in second place to a four-point first-place bulge within a fortnight.

Mr. Orr was sidelined by tricky knees, while Mr Esposito came down with Campbell Cholera for two games. Maurice "Rocket" Richard battled a more prolonged bout of the same infection in the spring of 1955.

His resulting absence from the Canadiens' lineup caused him to lose the league scoring title and sparked a riot in downtown Montreal to make this month's campus capers in the same city look like a glee club concert.

Mr. Campbell, the carrier of the disease, has reportedly cancelled his reserved seat in Boston Gardens for the next six years, while Beantown seafood emporiums report a current sell-out of anything remotely ressembling an octopus.

String of Losses Ends at Four With Phil Back

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins took advantage of the return of two of their top stars Wednesday night to break a losing streak that had cost them the lead in National Hockey League's Eastern Division.

The Bruins, bit by injuries and suspension of their leading scorer, snapped a four-game losing streak by defeating Los Angeles Kings 4-2.

The win was due mainly to the play of John McKenzie, who scored two goals, and Phil Esposito, their high-scoring centre, who assisted on both McKenzie's goals.

McKenzie, sidelined with a knee injury since Feb. 2, returned Wednesday night and scored his 19th and 20th goals of the season.

Esposito was suspended for two games last week for shoving and hitting a referee. The two points he earned pushed his total to 94, four points away from the league record for a regular season.

The record—97 points—is shared by Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks.

Although Mike Walton did not pick up any points in his return to the Maple Leafs lineup, Toronto managed to squeeze past the Blues 3-2 and end a three-game losing streak.

In other games, Montreal Canadiens scored five first-period goals to defeat Detroit Red Wings 7-2, New York Rangers downed the Black Hawks 5-3 and Oakland Seals beat Minnesota North Stars 6-5.

Beside McKenzie's goals, Fred Stanfield and defenceman Ted Green also scored for the Bruins. The Kings' goals were scored by Lowell MacDonald and Ted Irvine.

At Toronto, Ron Ellis' goal at 18:31 of the third period gave the Leafs their ~~win over~~ St. Louis. Paul Henderson, in the first period, and Floyd Smith, in the second, also scored for Toronto.

Terry Crisp and Larry Keenan got the St. Louis goals. Doug Harvey, who got an assist of Crisp's goal, will have his stick enshrined in the Hockey of Hall of Fame in Toronto for becoming the first defenceman to score 450 assists in the NHL.

Centre Henri Richard led the

At New York, defencemen figured prominently in the Ranger win over Chicago. Arnie Brown scored twice for New York and helped extend the Rangers' unbeaten string on home ice to 12 games.

Defenceman Jim Neilson, Rod Gilbert and Dave Balon also scored for New York. Rookie Montreal scoring with two goals in Canadiens' win. John Ferguson, Dick Duff, Yvan Cournoyer, Claude Provost and Mickey Redmond added single goals.

Bobby Hull, with his 43rd goal of the season, and Eric Nesterenko, with two goals, scored for Chicago.

At San Francisco, the Seals staged their best comeback of the season with two second-period goals by Ted Hampson and a four-goal third-period effort after spotting the North Stars three first-period goals by Claude Larose, Danny O'Shea and Danny Grant.

'Bit of a Flake'

Sheepish Walton Back in Blue

TORONTO (CP) — Mike Walton looked a little sheepish as he stood surrounded by sports writers in Toronto Maple Leafs dressing room Wednesday night.

Walton had no goals, no assists and no penalties in the Leafs 3-2 win over St. Louis Blues, yet he was the only player they wanted to talk to.

The 24-year-old centre, described by Keith Allen, coach of Philadelphia Flyers as "a bit of a flake who can score goals," had played for Punch Imlach, the man he vowed he would never work under again. And everyone wanted to know why.

"I came back because I wanted to play and the guys want me," Walton said as he dressed for the flight to Philadelphia where the Leafs were to play the Flyers tonight.

"It's just great to be back."

Walton didn't act like the wise-cracking youngster who once wore a Beatle wig to a practice. He stood in front of five or six reporters with his head down, answering questions in one sentence or less.

"I've been under a lot of pressure for the last week and I haven't been sleeping too well," he said.

"Some of the guys had asked me to come back. Then, when the team as a whole wanted me to return, I telephoned Mr. Imlach.

"I told him I wanted to play tonight and he told me to come down and see him. So here I am."

Walton's return was almost as abrupt as his departure following the Leafs 5-1 win over Montreal Canadiens last Wednesday.

He had stomped off to the dressing room after being benched in the third period, changed into his street clothes and left.

MIKE WALTON

He Came Back

Walton's complaint was that he wasn't getting enough ice time, a point disputed by King Clancy, Leafs assistant-general manager, who keeps a record of playing time for each member of the club.

Wednesday night, Walton played 15 minutes and 34 seconds plus two shifts on the powerplay.

"What's there to say," Imlach said following the game as reporters waited to get into the dressing room.

"It's obvious that he feels differently about what he said about not being able to play for me."

Walton said he and Imlach agreed the sometime left winger, who scored 30 goals last season, would return and play as well as he could for the rest of the season and the playoffs. But the crusty coach and general manager did not rule out the possibility of a trade in future.

Phil Esposito rejoined Boston Bruins Wednesday night after a two-game suspension and added two assists to his lead in National Hockey League scoring.

Trenton's Hope Rink Makes Women's Final

TORONTO (CP) — A Trenton rink skipped by Joe Hope Wednesday night eliminated Patty Hamilton's Toronto Granite entry 8-3 in the semi-final of the southern Ontario women's curling championship.

The win advanced Mrs. Hope against Helen Jewett's unbeaten Unionville rink in today's final. If the Trenton rink wins, a second match was to be held this afternoon.

The only loss suffered by the Trenton entry in the double-knockout competition was to Mrs. Hamilton.

In the 10-end semi-final, Mrs. Hope was in control all the way as the Toronto Granite foursome had difficulty delivering the correct weight.

Earlier Wednesday, Mrs. Hamilton advanced to the semi-final by edging Ruby White of Meaford 11-10. Mrs. Hope eliminated Ermal Holland of Oshawa 10-5 in the afternoon.

Local Baseball Expansion ?

Looking ahead to the coming season and hoping to expand, the South Hastings Baseball League will hold its annual meeting at 8.30 p.m. Thursday, March 13th, at the Belleville Recreation Centre.

The league will discuss new business and plans to increase its size from four teams to six or more this season.

Anyone wishing to enter a team should forward his entry to the league executive by the date of the general meeting.

All interested parties are asked to contact Art Buller, the league secretary-treasurer at 962-8430.

Juvenile Reunion in Trenton

STAFF — Every hockey club dreams of having the services of a "policeman" — like a John Ferguson or Reg Fleming — to keep the opposition honest.

But for their reunion game Friday night with the Trenton Junior 'B' Golden Hawks, the town's 1963-64-65 all-Ontario juvenile "AA" champion team will have two bona fide bobbies in their lineups.

Defencemen Jon Gibbons and Terry Hutchinson, both holding down jobs on police forces, will be among the members of the highly successful Trenton juvenile team making the trip for Friday night's 9 p.m. game from points as far distant as Hamilton, Burlington, Port Credit and Toronto.

Other juvenile "old-timers" familiar to area hockey buffs will be Andy Teeple and Al Ferguson — both members of this season's Belleville Senior 'A' Mo-Hawks — former team captain Bob Fraser, and Bert Garrett, older brother of Golden Hawks' goalie John Garrett.

The Golden Hawks will use Friday night's exhibition game at the Trenton Community Gardens as a practice scrimmage in the midst of their Eastern Ontario Junior 'B' series with Peterborough Don Byes.

Centennial Seniors Close off with Upset

STAFF — The rookie Class "AA" Centennial senior Chargers showed promise of things to come last night, when they upset Trenton 65-54 in the last game of their maiden season.

"We had no experience and a shortage of players to contend with, so we had to play four juniors on the senior team all year, and get by with an eight-man team," commented Charger senior coach Doug Irvine.

"Being inexperienced, the team was inconsistent, and I guess I expected too much from the boys at times," Irvine added, "but we improved greatly this year, and we finished the season on a high note with our second win of the year."

Bob Henderson, a 6' centre and forward, is one of the junior - age boys who played senior basketball all year.

Henderson, playing only his second season of basketball after graduating from a Centennial bantam team which won ten of 12 regular season games, said: "It's a big jump from bantam basketball, but it was good experience for me. We're a small team, but the only times we got beaten badly were in games against Quinte and BCI, when we were outmuscled."

Henderson and his teammates were seldom outhustled last night as they employed a fast break to run up a 10-0 lead early in the first quarter, and set the tempo for the game which saw each team take turns scoring a cluster of points.

Centennial held a slim 20-28 lead at half-time, but widened the gap to 44-37 after three quarters, and sealed the game up with a 21 point fourth quarter outburst sparked by John Koch's eight points and Larry Fell's six points.

A pair of lefthanders, John Koch playing the baseline of Centennial's 1-3-1 offence, and Dennis Neron playing the flank sparked the Centennial win with 21 and 19 points, respectively.

Forward Les Nicholson with 21 points and centre Andy Fesar with 15 were the big guns for the fifth place Trenton Tigers.

Centennial's junior win evened the Chargers' season record at six wins and six losses, and clinched fourth place in the seven team loop.

Frank Johnston popped in 20 points to lead the Chargers, while Mike Semark added ten points, and Glen Mallory and Keith Wilson contributed six apiece. Simmons' ten points were tops for Trenton.

Dogged Defence Gives Quinte Win

STAFF — A tenacious 2-3 zone defence clamped down on the Picton offence last night, limiting Picton to seven field goals and enabling the Quinte senior Saints to move past Picton and Napanee and clinch second place in the seven team Class "AA" league.

Forward John Mywaart sparked Quinte's 47-24 win with six points and 19 rebounds, while Wayne Casselman netted 11 points and Eric Emerson hooped nine.

Wayne Coward with eight points, and Steve Ward with seven were the top point-getters for the slumping Picton club, which is now in fourth place.

Quinte juniors thrashed Picton 69-36 to move into a second place tie with idle BCI, and insure themselves of at least third place in the seven-team junior division, while the midget Saints upset Picton 58-54 to clinch at least a tie for second spot, and move to within two points of front-running BCI.

An 18 point effort by guard Steve Nash, 14 points by Tom Churchill and nine points by Bill Kirkham sparked Quinte's junior win.

Bill Barrett threw in 16 points for Picton and Joe Burley added seven for the losers, who have only won one game all year.

Gordie Howe's HOCKEY

The last time the Los Angeles Kings played in our building, which was their last scheduled appearance of the season at the Olympia, we beat them, 6-3, and maybe we had a little luck riding with us. I know I did.

I was fortunate that night in getting the three-goal hat trick and I haven't had an abundance of them during my career. I think that one was No. 18. Anyway, the middle goal of the three was rather unusual. The puck was shot by my linemate, Alex Delvecchio. It was a soft, blooper type shot and it bounced off my shoulder and then did a perfect arc over the shoulder of Los Angeles goalie Gerry Desjardins.

When I score a goal like that, or should I say when I'm credited with a goal like that, I tell myself it makes up for all those times I've hit the post. But I also must confess that while we practise deflection shots, we don't practise that type.

In a way that goal reminded me of one I scored against Montreal. Floyd Smith, who is now with the Toronto Maple Leafs, shot the puck and it hit the shaft of my stick, about half way up, and deflected between my body and arm into the Montreal net.

This one, I grant, was unusual, too, because it hit high up on the shaft. When we practise, we try to get the blade of our stick on it.

We employ a bunting motion, letting the puck hit the stick with the shooter firing just wide of the net. We've found that the puck will do what it wants to do; you just try and get your stick on it.

Camille Henry, who is now with the St. Louis Blues, is good on this type of play. It's generally the bigger men who cash in on it, but Camille is an exception.

The reason the bigger man has an advantage is because he can better stand his ground out in front of the goal where the jostling can be pretty rugged.

I remember one game in Boston where I thought I scored four goals, but didn't get credit for any of them. (Incidentally I've never scored four goals in one game in my 23 seasons.)

Anyway, in that Boston game, Parker MacDonald steered in a couple and I think Alex got his stick on the other two.

You remember nights like that.

Pennant-winning Stars Set Quinte League Paces

STAFF — The Quinte Hockey League playoffs which begin Friday will match up teams who had a decided advantage over their playoff opponents during the regular season.

The two semi-final series match first place Aluminum Stars against third place Central Taxi, and second place Stinson's Construction with cellar-dwelling Belvedere Hotel.

The Stars had little trouble with the Taximen during their five regular season meetings, shutting them out twice while winning four games and tying one.

Stinson's did almost as well, earning three wins and a tie in five games with the Hotelmen, but they did suffer a 5-0 shutout at the hands of the Hotelmen.

The Aluminum Stars led the league in scoring with 47 goals in 15 games, and had the stingiest defence in the league, allowing only 26 goals.

Rick Denard of Stinson's Construction was a double winner, topping the league in goal scoring with 11, and in scoring with 16 points.

WHEN YOU THINK OF YOUR CAR, THINK OF WESTERN!
A LEAKY MUFFLER CAN KILL!

The temperature's going down! Your chances of carbon monoxide poisoning are going up! Yes, winter weather means more driving with the windows up and this puts your exhaust system to the test. Your muffler need not be falling off to be faulty... it may not even make a loud noise. Yet it can be deadlier than a loaded gun! Don't take a chance... be safe, it costs so little.

Youngest Catholic Bishop in U.S. Plays Mean Left Wing

At left wing is Msgr. Thomas J. Gumbleton, auxiliary bishop of the Detroit archdiocese. He is 38.

Centre of the bishop's scoring line is Rev. Kenneth Unterner, who doesn't let an artificial leg slow him down.

The team of priests, who play three games a week during the winter, was originally welded together when the players were seminarians at St. John's Provincial Seminary in suburban Plymouth, Mich. Now there is a squad of 25.

Opponents in their games usually are young Roman Catholic laymen.

From time to time, however, the priests tangle with a priestly team from the London, Ont., diocese.

"Don't let any of these priests tell you they're playing just for the fun of it," He said. "Show me a good loser and I'll show you a loser."

Face Kingston Friday

Novices Win Away from Title

STAFF — Towers Food City novices travel to Kingston Friday night with a one game lead in the best two out of three "A" series playoffs of the Quinte-St. Lawrence Hockey League.

The Food City crew, fresh off Sunday's 6-0 whitewashing of fourth place Kingston, are undefeated in league play this year, and if they beat Kingston, they will play a round-robin series with the winner of the "B" series between Gananoque and Trenton, and the winner of the "C" series between Picton and Napanee.

The round-robin winner will advance into the zone play-offs, because there are no Ontario playdowns for the novice age class.

Belleville and Picton actually only played nine games of the ten game schedule, but they will not play their final game which cannot affect the league standings, because of a shortage of time.

Trenton and Kingston tied for fourth place behind Belleville, Gananoque and Picton, but Kingston was awarded fourth place on the basis of a better goals for and against record.

SOLUNAR TABLES
WHEN TO FISH OR HUNT

The schedule of Solunar periods, as printed below, has been taken from Mrs. Richard Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Use Eastern Standard Time.

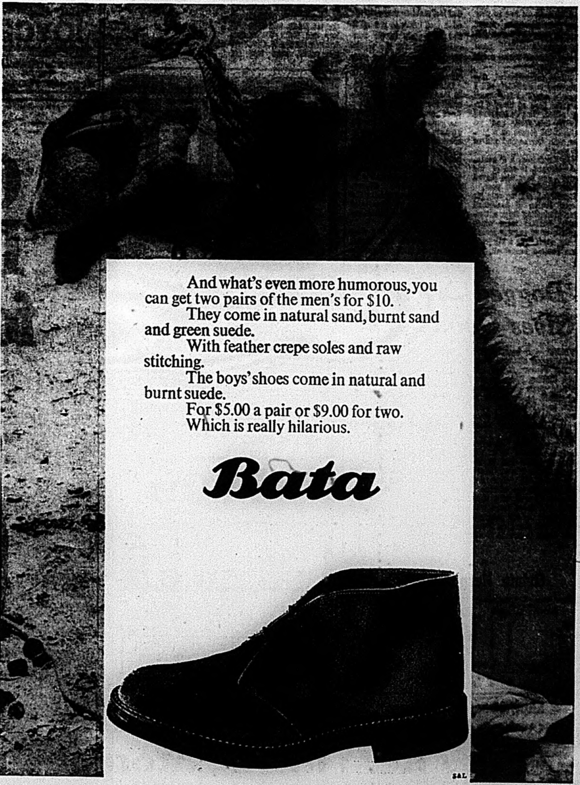
FUNNY ENOUGH, ONLY $5·50.



And what's even more humorous, you can get two pairs of the men's for $10.
They come in natural sand, burnt sand and green suede.
With feather crepe soles and raw stitching.
The boys' shoes come in natural and burnt suede.
For $5.00 a pair or $9.00 for two.
Which is really hilarious.

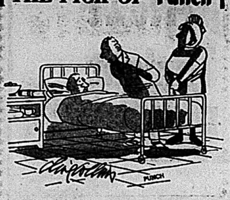
THE PICK OF Punch



"Bad news, pal . . . your blood group's been discontinued."

Pleasant Bay Woman Writes Children's Books

PICTON, Ont. (CP) — Once upon a time there lived a reviewer on children's books who sat down before her typewriter, wrote one book with her husband, then one by herself, and then another . . . and another . . .

This is the story of what seems to be in store for Janet Lunn, who was born in Texas, raised in New England, moved to Canada and eventually settled down in a place called Pleasant Bay in Prince Edward County north of Lake Ontario.

For 15 years Mrs. Lynn has reviewed children's books for a number of Canadian newspapers and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. She is married to Richard Lunn, who lectures in journalism at Toronto's Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, and started her writing career at the same place he began his—on the Kingston Whig-Standard.

Both started as reporters, but Janet soon branched out into reviewing children's books. Then the couple collaborated—more or less—on a history of Prince Edward which they called The County.

"I'd never do that again," she says with a shudder.

They started out to write alternate chapters, but soon Janet found she had no sooner prepared the first draft of her chapter than Richard would come along and edit and rewrite it.

"Things got pretty hot and heavy," she recalls. "I remember saying, 'So what's wrong with that sentence—why did you have to change that one?'

"No, we'll never do it that way again."

Her first novel, Double Spell, was published last Christmas by Peter Martin in Toronto and will be published by Harper and Rowe in New York. She does not like to describe it as a children's book, but concedes it is a story about children in their early teens, "and it may appeal to that age group."

The story, with a Toronto setting, is about twins, their house and a ghost. Now she's planning to do more.

Mrs. Lunn said she is impressed with the quantity of non-fiction being read by children today. Emphasis for this was coming from the schools, but a pattern of reading seemed to be emerging.

MRS. JANET LUNN

She thinks there are more children reading books today than ever before, and does not believe children's reading habits are influenced "one iota" by television.

"If their parents read books in the 1930s then those children probably read books today," Mrs. Lunn said. But she thinks television does have a definite effect on other aspects of the development of children, and she herself does not watch it at all.

"I'd far rather cuddle up with a good book."

She and her husband met at Queen's University in Kingston when they were both students. She was studying in a four-year honor arts course, three years of which she finished.

"I have a mental block about returning to school for that last year," Mrs. Lunn said, "and I probably never shall."

Tough Winter for Deer in Northwest Ontario

By THE CANADIAN PRES

March is the critical month for deer. It's been a tough winter, and it could get tougher next month.

Some branches of the Ontario department of lands and forests already have appealed for help—food and trails so that deer can survive until the spring thaw.

Snow depth for the province has been heavy this winter. Deer can't reach feeding areas. Snow depth for the province has been heavy this winter. Deer can't reach feeding areas.

In the Port Arthur district alone, the snow is from 34 to 40 inches deep.

"If we don't get a good thaw in March, we can expect to lose about 50 per cent or more of the deer in our district," said Al Elsey, fish and games supervisor for the department in Port Arthur.

And in northwestern Ontario, snow falls until late in April.

Don Simkin, game management director for the department, said in Toronto:

"We don't know how many deer there are in the province but we do know that more than 30 per cent of the deer in northwestern Ontario will die unless we get better weather in March."

In the Fort Frances district, Dino D'Agostini, fish and wildlife supervisor, said the department hired 12 farmers two weeks ago to make trails into the deer yards.

The farmers have carved out 50 miles of trails with tractors. The deer, says Mr. D'Agostini, accept the trails readily and are beginning to use them in search for food.

Mr. Simkin said snow is not always the problem.

"It's the crust we have to worry about. If the crust can hold the deer, then they are okay."

The deer in question, the white-tail, have been native to northwestern Ontario only since about 1900. The adult male reaches a weight of 200 pounds and can stand about 3½ feet. It is a favorite target for hunters.

If a hard crust forms on the snow but is still not strong enough to hold the deer, the animals' feet are cut by the crust.

And in the spring, if the deer are not strong enough, stillborn offspring are prevalent. If live deer are born, there is little chance the mother can provide enough milk for the young.

Deer feeding stations and plots have been provided in many parts of southern Ontario.

Your Dollars
Pick Your Mover

By KEN WEERES

This year one out of five Canadian families will change residence. If you are one of these families it is important that you have a good knowledge of what is involved.

When you deal with a moving firm be certain it is a reputable dealer. Often the best way to get a good firm is to ask any of your friends that may have moved for their suggestions. If they were satisfied with the firm, you may want to choose the same one.

A reputable moving firm should have no objection to giving you the names of two or three of their clients. Contact these families and ask for information about the firm's service. And check with your Better Business Bureau. There is no substitute for a reliable firm. It is worth your while to find one.

Estimates made by moving companies are usually not the actual charge you must pay. This is because it is difficult to estimate the actual cost. For local moves the cost is based on an hourly rate. It is hard to judge how long a move will take. Charges for long distance moves are based on 100 pounds weight for distance travelled. In long distance hauls the truck is weighed before loading and then again after your furniture has been loaded. In either case an exact cost cannot be given until the move is completed.

Local rates are often set by municipal bylaws while long distance truckers charge as suggested by the Canadian Warehouse Association. Thus moving charges should be almost identical for all firms. The main difference between firms is the kind of service offered. Unreasonably low estimates may be just a "bait" and you will have a much higher bill than expected when you get to your destination.

In Canada, the carriers liability for damage to your possessions is limited to 30 cents per pound for each article. This is usually insufficient. To get full protection your carrier will sell you full coverage at 50 cents for each $100 worth of furniture.

Whether you or the carrier does the packing is your decision. But the carrier will accept full responsibility for damages only when the packing and unpacking is done by his crew. In either case, you are responsible for having all appliances disconnected, rugs untacked and pictures removed from the walls or an extra charge will be made.

When moving your deep freeze it is not wise to leave the food in it even if it is packed with dry ice. It is better to sell it to friends or ship it in a freezer car. Ask your mover for his advice.

If your possessions are going to be in storage for a long time, you might check the movers warehouse. While a reputable firm will have a modern storage warehouse, some firms have very poor facilities. Cleanliness, fire protection and moisture should be examined.

As soon as your furniture is unloaded, check it for damages. Write to your carrier immediately, should your possessions be damaged in moving. Include in your letter the type and extent of damage.

When your carrier arrives he will expect to be paid by cash, certified cheque, or money order. Be sure to make the necessary arrangements in time.

Before leaving your old residence, be certain to notify all pertinent parties. The post office, delivery men, utility companies, magazines, banks, insurance companies and government vehicle branches should be made aware of your change in residence.

Selecting a reliable firm, checking for damage, and good insurance will protect the dollars you spend in moving furniture.

Melrose

MELROSE — Mr. and Mrs. Newton Demille and Cathy spent some time with Mr and Mrs. Jack Clarke of Kingston.

The "Messengers" enjoyed a sleigh-ride party at the home of their leader, Mrs. Don Macfarlane recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Weese and children of Toronto spent the weekend with their parents in this area.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Abrams (nee Anne Walsh), who were recently married at Read. The couple will be living in their home on the third line.

Mrs. C. Hagerman, Mrs. G. Gnaedinger; Mrs. G. McLaren and Mrs. G. Stratton were members of the Melrose WI who attended the February meeting of the Belleville Hospital Auxiliary.

"Do you realize you make a more elaborate speech each time you give me a five-dollar bill than you did when you proposed?"

Boiler Room Sealed

TORONTO (CP)—Officials investigating an incident last week in which 17 persons were overcome by carbon monoxide have ordered the building's boiler room sealed and alterations made to its air conditioning.

In a report released Wednesday, investigators from the provincial labor and health departments said fumes entered the air-conditioning system through spaces around piping left unsealed during alterations to the boiler room.

Dundas Girl Plans To Slim for Oxfam

DUNDAS, Ont. (CP) — Holly Thomas is pretty, vivacious and intelligent, but fat.

If you were an 18-year-old Grade 12 student, five-foot-two and 147 pounds, you would probably call yourself pleasantly plump, or even chubby.

But Holly says: "I am a living symbol of the vast prosperity of North American food producers. I am, to all intents, purposes, and boys, fat."

Recently i. occurred to her that other people in the world are fat for a different reason.

"Have you ever seen one of the many pictures of the starving children of the world. Have you ever compared our pot bellies caused by over-indulgence with their pot-bellies caused by starvation?"

Holly figured there must be a way to substitute her kind of fat for theirs and decided to sell her fat. She hopes others will want to join in the project.

She proposes to take off two pounds a week until she's down to 122 pounds. She hopes people will sponsor her for pennies, nickels, dimes or dollars for each lost pound with the money going to Oxfam or a similar relief organization.

Holly says: "If my take-off-athon were to become a Canada-wide effort, at least two nations would benefit by becoming more physically —fit ours by taking it off, another's by putting it on."

Teen Scene

Music Centre of Existence

LINDA GELDART

Music is defined as the art or science of combining melody, harmony and rhythm to form emotionally expressive compositions.

That is only the dictionary definition, though. For anything imaginable there are always several definitions, but when dealing in the abstract, such as art or music, interpretations can be intensely personal.

It is these highly personal interpretations that often bring about conflict. Conflict not only in definitions, but in ideas.

Bringing this kind of conflict to the music level finds many differences of opinion, and reactionary likes and dislikes.

To a young person, music is often the true centre of his existence. Without it, he is a cheerless, tuneless and unfulfilled individual — whether he realizes it or not.

Most teen-agers will admit this, though. To even try to contemplate his world, not backgrounded by music — is a wild and impossible thought.

"No music?" said one teenager incredulously, "without it, there would just be no way. I don't think a world without music would be one worth living in."

Despite driving their parents to distraction with the record player turned up as high as it can go, there is some part in every teen-ager, that longs to be part of music. To play it, and be surrounded by it.

Often, young people become interested and involved in music and they take it up seriously. Some put their talents to work in school bands — or other musical group efforts.

Evidence that many teenagers are involved in playing seriously was particularly noticeable at the recent Rotary Music Festival.

Of the more than 340 entries a good majority consisted of young people in high school bands, quartets, solo instruments or solo singing.

One such quartet, from Moira Secondary School, participated in the Festival, and even if they didn't come first, they enjoyed it.

Most of them have never before taken lessons, but their special interest in music carried on from their elementary school days through to high school.

It was here, they explained that they begin to seriously take up various musical instruments, and later become band or quartet members.

The idea that many adults have that young people are only interested in the top 40 is completely unfounded. All they had to do was go to the recent Rotary Music Festival, and hear for themselves.

Just the Eight of Us...

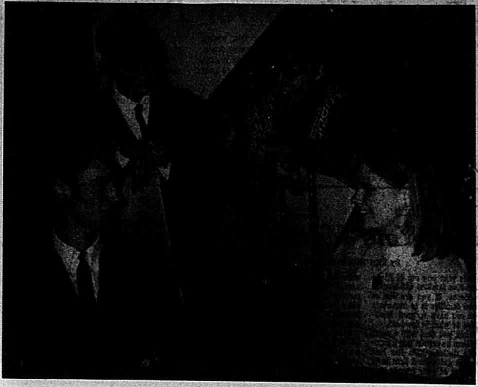
One of the few octets in the world, and its members, Steve Rose, Phil Kirby, Robb Matthew, Doug Williamson, George Sheffield, John Luffman, Dave Magee and Steve Sheppard enjoy playing in a very unique kind of a group.

Expert Tips Off Travelers

Every year approximately 2 million teen-age girls compete in beauty, talent or achievement contests. Debi Faubion, selected America's Junior Miss from thousands of young girls, supplies some tips from a winner. Traveling to 26 states, Debi has learned to jet-pace her grooming needs. Practical and packable, they are kept in easy reach in a go-everywhere hatbox. "Must have" items include a hair brush with a hollow handle for stuffing bobby pins, change-about collars for wardrobe expansion, and a key chain strung with earrings. Even Debi's camera — a must for teeners — boasts a space-saving bracelet strap.

As one of the nation's most photographed titleholders Debi studies the snapshots taken of her. Those informal, off-guard pictures are great for revealing not just scenery, but beauty needs. Any wonder over three billion still pictures are taken each year? Leave it to a photo to reveal a candid moment of truth. Debi has discovered the natural look wears best, and one grooming item travels many routes. A make-up pencil (in a neutral shade) can be used to define brows, sketch on lashes, and line eyes. The latter entails drawing a thin line on the upper lid, then, smudging away artificiality with a fingertip.

Coiffures and travel often play havoc with each other. America's Junior Miss, Debi Faubion, wraps hair ribbons around curlers so streamers will be packable, wrinkle-free and easy to find.



Music Is Their Thing...

Youth Parade

Kampus Capers Best Show Yet

By JOHN McNAIR

Kampus Kapers, Belleville finished for another year. This year's show was one of the best ever and featured a great variety of talent.

Reid Mallory was master-of-ceremonies and he introduced acts such as The Patent Pending which played three very well received numbers, and featured Jim Barker in a drum solo.

The Charivaris in their last performance as a group did a 15 minute medley of songs from the past. This act received the greatest applause of the evening—an indication of this this group's popularity.

Larry La Fleur and Pamela Thorton qualified as the two busiest performers. Larry was involved in The Patent Pending, the BCIVS band, four solos, and one duet with Mary Andrews. Pamela Thorton did her fire baton act, choreographed and performed in two dance numbers and did the Flower Child dance with Gary McLeod.

Other acts included the championship cheerleaders of BCI, the Glee Club, the Gymnastics Club, and Doug Mattis singing Exodus accompanied by David Hotchkiss on the piano.

The stage crew managed to do their end of the job flawlessly as they have always done in the past.

Mr. MacMillan and Mr. Ewashkiw directed the entire production and deserve a great deal of credit for their patience. Once again BCI has set a standard for others to follow.

School Spirit Under Debate

By SUE BOARDMAN

Concern has been expressed among students about school spirit, or the lack of it.

Three students at Quinte were queried on the subject. Meridith Geneja 12B, Sandra Kimmerly 9C and Paul Haggis 11D, came to the following conclusions on school spirit.

School spirit means participation, and comes from involvement in things like clubs and sports, they agreed. It includes supporting such things as basketball games.

One student said she didn't have as much school spirit now as in 1965 and 1966. Another admitted to trying to develop school spirit and the third claimed a full share.

"A person gets fed up because others put all the responsibility on one person," a student said. "In grade 12, you acquire more interests outside school and more concern for your marks."

"Lack of interest from others bogs me down," another claimed.

There definitely is a problem, the students decided. A stronger student parliament and a few more clubs are necessary.

"Everybody forgets school after 3:15 p.m." was a comment. "It is time for new activity. But the problem could be in the individual."

Quinte was well represented at the Rotary Music Festival this week, by both soloists and the band. The band placed fourth with a mark of 83 per cent.

Centennial's Band A Festival Winner

By BARB BRUCE

Centennial school spirit is flying high again. The Rotary Music festival was made for CSS. Our proud students left the competition with a second place standing for the band and numerous individual awards. Those who are not musically inclined offer their congratulations.

On Wednesday Centennial gymnasium was filled with the patter of little feet and happy cries of children as 30 preschoolers looked 10 years into the future. The youngsters were invited for a day as part of the studies in senior girls' health classes.

Students at Centennial were shocked last week to find teachers tacking examination time-tables on the bulletin boards. March 10 is closing in at an alarming speed.

Registration for next year has been completed at CSS, and now students are left with two problems. First, can I pass this year? Secondly, will I get what I wanted next year? Best of luck to all in every aspect.

Pride Accompanies School Endeavors

By JUDY SCHRIEDER

What is it that makes a student feel proud of his school? If you attend Nicholson you have much to be proud of.

Pride in one's school evolves from a pride in one's fellow students and in the endeavors of the student body as a whole. It is an emotion difficult to explain, yet very easy to feel.

When your junior girls' volleyball team captures the city championship, you can't help but glow with pride. When a student attending your school has an outstanding ability in the art of public speaking, you feel a part of her joy each time she wins a competition.

But, pride is not an emotion triggered merely by some note of victory — it can also accompany defeat.

In sports, a slim margin of points can determine the victory of the opposing team; yet the ability to accept defeat is a victory in itself.

As a spectator, you can feel proud of the enthusiasm, the school spirit, displayed by those around you, as well as of the athletic ability of the boys on the court.

Students constitute a school. Therefore, if you are proud of your school, you are proud of the students within it. I repeat — if you attend Nicholson, you have much to be proud of.

BUYS ISLAND HOME

Jack Lord, star of the television series Hawaii Five-O, likes Hawaii so well he has purchased a home there.

Hawaii Five-0

TV Show Changes Locale

NEW YORK (AP) — Hawaii Five-O, renewed for a second season, moved its locale to Los Angeles for a change of pace and scenery. It was a two-part tale about a quack "healer" who victimized the desperately sick and the gullible.

The wind-up of the story Wednesday night was in the usual TV form. Determined sleuth Steve McGarrett was grimly hunting down evidence against the woman "naturologist" whom he believed caused the death of his young nephew.

Most of the hour was spent showing him hunting down families of other victims, eventually exhuming the body of one man, but all without results. The climax came in the courtroom when McGarrett trapped her by a trick.

The two-parter was of special interest because the healer in the story operated in a manner which has caused great concern by legal and medical authorities in several states.

The production was slick, the acting skilful.

Now that CBS has taken over Get Smart, plans are afoot to do something dramatic early next season to call attention to the show in its new channel. The first project is to have agent Smart and spouse, Agent 99, become parents. Present plans call for twins.

Skips Fifth Straight

Alf Shows What It's All About

HAMILTON (CP) — Alfie Phillips Sr. skipped his Ontario rink to its fifth consecutive victory Wednesday in the Canadian seniors curling championship, but the prospect of playing three games today made him anything but happy.

"I can tell you I wouldn't have planned it this way," he said referring it this way," he gave Ontario a second-round bye Monday and forced the three-game grind today.

Meanwhile, Gordon Moore of Victoria has skipped his British Columbia champions to six consecutive victories to hold the lead in the 11-rink round-robin tournament and gets a bye in the evening round tonight.

Ontario's three games—Prince Edward Island is the seventh round at 9 a.m. EST, Alberta at 3 p.m. and Quebec at 8 p.m.—will be against "the best rinks we've played to date," says Phillips.

The Quebec rink, skipped by Ron Wright of Hudson, and skip Dr. Wendell MacDonald's Prince Edward Island champions from Charlottetown were tied for third place going into today's action with 3-2 records.

The Northern Ontario titlists, skipped by Stan Brooker of Noranda, Que., were fifth with a 3-3 record, while rinks skipped by Gord Walker of Edmonton and Jim Murphy of Saint John, N.B., followed at 2-3.

But Phillips considers the Alberta rink one of the best in the tournament for men of 55 years and over.

Two other rinks, skipped by Al Fahrner of Charleswood, Man., and Saskatchewan's Fred Cochrane of Lumsden, were tied for eighth place at 2-4, while Nova Scotia's Merrill Rawding of Liverpool was 1-4.

The Newfoundland rink, skipped by John McCarthy of St. John's, trailed with 1-5.

In other seventh-round games at 9 a.m. today, British Columbia played Quebec, New Brunswick took on Manitoba, Saskatchewan went against Nova Scotia, and Alberta met Newfoundland, Northern Ontario drew the bye.

The Ontario rink continued its domination by winning its fourth game with an 8-5 victory over Saskatchewan in the fifth round Wednesday, before running into its first strong opposition in the sixth round against Manitoba.

The Phillips crew was in trouble and trailing 5-4 after six ends, but rebounded with their disconcerting draw-and-hide game to pick up a 9-6 victory.

Alberta Women's Skip Predicts Double Takeout

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Most observers think the Canadian women's curling championship is a toss-up between Saskatchewan and Ontario, but Alberta's skip thinks the coin will stand on end.

Simone Flynn of Medicine Hat, 'Alta., predicted after the seventh round Wednesday night that the co-leaders each will lose a game in the final two rounds today and that she will win both of hers.

That eventuality will cause a three-way tie for first place in the 10-rink round-robin tournament between Mrs. Flynn, Joyce McKee of Saskatoon and June Shaw of Kenora, Ont.

"I think we can beat Ontario tomorrow and I think Ontario will beat Saskatchewan in the last game," said Mrs. Flynn who is playing in her first national final.

"We got a big lift from tonight's win and we feel we can keep it up."

Ontario and Saskatchewan have lost just one game in seven while Mrs. Flynn has lost two games.

Three provincial winners have 4-3 marks. They are Marie Toole of Charlottetown, Mae Shaw of Kimberley, B.C., and one of the pre-tournament favorites, Pat Brunsdon of Winnipeg.

Phyllis Chapman of Moncton is 3-4 and Vi Pike of Grand Falls, Nfld., has two wins and five losses.

Mary Naddof of North Sydney, N.S., won her first game Wednesday in seven starts while Leona Mackimmie of Lachute, Que., still is winless.

under way at 9:30 a.m. EST

Today it was Ontario against Alberta, Newfoundland against New Brunswick, Manitoba against B.C., P.E.I. played Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan played Quebec.

Results in the seventh round had Nova Scotia edging Quebec 8-6, Alberta over Manitoba 9-5, Saskatchewan bombed P.E.I. 12-2, Ontario shaded Newfoundland 8-7, B.C. walloped New Brunswick 10-6.

There remains the possibility of a tie for second place as well as first and in that event rules call for a playoff to determine a runner-up.

Trenton Juniors One Down

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — Trenton Golden Hawks lost the chance to draw first blood against Peterborough Don Byes last night, dropping a hard - fought 6-4 decision to the Eastern Ontario Junior 'B' pennant winners in the first game of a best-of-seven playoff series.

Meanwhile Oshawa Crushmen were beating Kingston Frontenacs 8-6 for a 2-0 bulge in their best-of-seven set.

Steady goaltending by John Garrett was largely responsible for a 2-1 Trenton margin after the opening 20 minutes of play here last night, but the Don Byes jumped ahead 4-2 in the second and held their lead.

Gary Lisle, Don Potts, Clare Webb and Pete Walling accounted for the Golden Hawks' goals. Pete Sullivan, with a pair, Phil Grady, Len Powers, Joe Watters and Jim Bennett scored for the winners.

Second game of the series will again be played at Peterborough's Memorial Centre this Saturday afternoon at 2.15.

Firemen Meet in Madoc

STAFF — Belleville's skating firemen will put a one - game winning streak on the line Sunday when they tangle with Madoc counterparts in a benefit for minor hockey in that village.

The Fire Department team's other exhibition game this winter was a 4-2 win over a police squad in the annual "red and blue" junior 'B' hockey fund - raiser.

The pair of firemen's teams clash in Madoc Sunday at 2 p.m. in the village arena.

Senior Award to Hergott

GALT (CP) — Ron Hergott of Galt Hornets was named winner Wednesday of the Andy Bellemer Memorial Trophy for 1968-69.

Hergott, who plays with right wing and defence, was runner-up in the Ontario Hockey Association senior Hockey scoring race.

The referees voted him the player who does his best and tries hardest at all times. The Bellemer Trophy is named for a former OHA referee.

Barrie Romp Earns 3-0 Edge

BARRIE (CP) — Barrie Flyers dumped Collingwood Kings 10-2 Wednesday to take a 3-0 lead in the best of seven Ontario Hockey Association Senior series quarter-final playoff.

Flyers lead 6-0 after two periods.

Mike Dubeau paced the winners with three goals and Dave Luciuk scored twice. Corby Adams, Pete Panagabko, Wayne Weller, John McMillan, and Dave Ferguson also tallied Barrie goals.

Clare Alexander and Ron Vermette replied for the Kings late in the third period.

STOP 29

Restaurants Limited
MAJOR FOOD FRANCHISE
OPPORTUNITY

"THE ONE THAT STANDS OUT
AMONG THE REST"

"A rose is just a rose by any other name". In the past many food franchises have been offered to the public comprising the same type of standard food items disguised by fancy names with the possibility that their product could be duplicated right next door by any competitor who wishes to do so.

Now for the first time in Canada, STOP 29 RESTAURANTS LIMITED offers a totally new concept in economy food merchandising. e.g., Fresh brewed coffee 5c per cup together with the fabulously new patented TOASTREAT SANDWICHES at the amazing low price of 29c each.

The fabulous new TOASTREAT SANDWICH MACHINE produces a perfectly toasted, completely sealed sandwich, piping hot within a space of 1 minute in 12 delicious varieties —among them, corned beef, smoked ham, blueberry cobbler, smoked turkey, etc. Already the pilot operation has produced a public response beyond any expectation.

We must however warn prospective applicants that STOP 29 RESTAURANTS DO NOT sell hamburgers, hot dogs, French fries (French Friars or would you believe Acapolco Potato Stringers) but are exclusive in Canada with the fabulous New Toastreat Sandwich maker. Excellent locations are now available in the Toronto area for qualified operators who have the vision for this entirely new concept and who feel that they want to be connected with "THE ONE WHO STANDS OUT AMONG THE REST".

An investment of $23,500. is required to commence. This amount will give appointed franchisee a completely equipped and furnished store outlet right down to the last detail ready to commence operation. If you feel you have the qualifications and the vision for this type of enterprise and want to be among the first in your area with the fabulous Toastreat, then write us giving background, etc. to:

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

She Could Sleep Forever And She Feels It Waste

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Once you wrote on sleepiness. I could sleep forever. I hate it. I get nothing done, my life is wasting away.

I love to work, always did, but can hardly stay awake to do it. Years ago I never needed more than five hours sleep but now I'm always sleepy.

Please can you write a little bit about this problem? I lost your previous column. I believe what you called the trouble began with the letter "N."

My doctor says, "Oh, you're healthy," and ignores this complaint of mine as being unimportant. I am getting fat don't feel well, and am wasting my life away, which is so short. Just exisiting is so awful when you can't stay awake. — Mrs. H.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I was told that niacin tablets might help my husband. He has had a thorough physical but nothing seems to help him keep awake. All he has to do is sit down in a chair and five minutes later he is fast asleep. He gets plenty of rest at night, often going to bed as early as 7:30. We never have evenings together like most couples. I sit up alone till 10 or 10:30, reading, watching TV, etc. This has been going on for years. Will niacin help? — Mrs. G.

COMMENT: Many insomniacs will say that inability to sleep is awful. But people suffering from narcolepsy (which is my guess — and only a guess in these two cases), will swear it is worse. I have never used niacin in such patients. The drug of choice "to keep them awake" is ritalin. Don't self-prescribe it. Better see your doctor for complete study, as narcolepsy may be tied in with other problems. But it's nice to know that can be transformed into wide-awake, happier individuals with proper treatment.

• • •

For Mrs. D.: It is called "plantar wart" because it occurs on the plantar surface (the sole) of the foot. Most will agree, that of all warts, it seems the most stubborn and most painful. It's due to a virus which is resistant to treatment. Sometimes simple treatment will eradicate it (relieving pressure on the foot etc.) But usually, perseverance and use of acids, X ray, surgery (or some other method) will overcome the pesky thing.

• • •

For Mr. H.: Play doubles with fellows in your own age group? Fine. Chances are they won't have you running all over the court. What I am opposed to is immoderation in exercise. At 65, playing four sets of singles under a hot sun with your 30-year-old boy is asking for it. For what? I'll spell it out: A CORONARY.

• • •

For Mrs. T.: If you need pencillin, your doctor will decide whether or not to use it — or another antibiotic. As you have a history of hay fever and asthmatic attacks, chances are he will be hesitant. For it's true that allergic penicillin reactions are more likely to occur in those with a history of hay fever or asthma.

• • •

For Mrs. O.: Allopurinol also being used in the treatment of patients having gouty attacks. It reduces the uric acid level in the blood serum and urine. Whereas the drug colchicine used to be about our only defence against this form of arthritis, the last few years have brought forth quite a few antagonists to this painful disease. These drugs not only shorten the actual attacks, but prevent them from occurring often.

Medical Association Wants Cigarette Advertising Banned

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Medical Association called today for federal legislation to ban all advertising of cigarettes and to require packages to carry a health hazard warning.

In a brief to the Commons smoking inquiry, the organization said "there is no longer any doubt that cigarette smoking is a direct threat to the user's health."

The professional association, representing about 20,000 physicians, reinforced its stand with these disease data:

—The more severe, debilitating, lung-crippling cases of chronic bronchitis and amphysema "are invariably found among smokers."

—The probability of death from lung cancer and the degree of smoking exposure are definitely related. The earlier one begins smoking, the more one smokes, the more one inhales and the longer one smokes, the greater the risk.

—Direct exposure to smoke increases the risk of death from cancer of the mouth and throat by 500 per cent.

—Mortality rates from heart disease between ages 35 and 54 are five to 10 times greater for smokers than non-smokers.

—Smoking increases the risk of dying from heart disease by 200 per cent for those with high blood pressure.

—"The over-all probability of death caused by heart disease is increased by 70 per cent in cigarette smokers."

—Smokers are more likely to get sinusitis, peptic and gastric ulcers, and strokes.

Smoking women run a 100-per-cent greater risk of giving birth prematurely, and their babies will be smaller than a non-smokers.

"The cost of lost productive life and premature death, th unnecessary expenditures quired to provide hospital medical care are staggering the imagination."

Besides the advertising ba and hazard labelling, the ass ciation urged more effecti control over sales to minors an discontinuation of governme financial support or subsidies the tobacco industry.

The brief said that if the a vertising ban is not impose the government at least shou require health hazard warnin on labels and all advertising, i cluding levels of tar, nicoti and other toxic substances.

Mental Health Correctional Approach Said Disquieting and Paradoxical

OTTAWA (CP) — A committee of the Canadian Mental Health Association says judges should be empowered to discharge the guilty in certain cases.

As a result, a person who punched someone in the nose while addled "by a bee-sting or a dentist's painkiller" wouldn't wind up with a criminal record.

The recommendation is among 23 in a report released Wednesday on the present judicial and correctional approach to mental disorder.

The report finds the current system disquieting, paradoxical and ridiculous.

It singles out lieutenant-governor's warrants for particular criticism.

The warrants may be used to send a man who is neither insane nor guilty, but unfit to stand trial, off to hospital for indefinite periods.

Those acquitted by reason of insanity also may be locked up under warrant, with inadequate provision for review of their case even after recovery.

The report says the defence should be able to raise the issue of fitness at preliminary hearing to protect the mentally ill.

It also says the issue of fitness should be raised in the late stages of a trial so an accused will not be incarcerated under warrant before he has presented a defence. And it says unfitness to stand trial should not necessarily mean detention.

It recommends a Criminal Code amendment to provide for boards in each province to review regularly the cases of those held under warrant.

The committee says judges should be empowered to grant absolute or conditional discharges in "bee-sting" cases—cases where a person has been upset to such a degree that, temporarily, he is not responsible for his actions.

Where the psychiatric disturbance was continuing and public protection was necessary, a judge might send an accused to a mental hospital.

For the chronically dangerous, provision would be made for indefinite confinement.

The report recommends that the Criminal Code sections that provide indeterminate sentences for "habitual criminals" or "dangerous sexual offenders" be repealed.

Only dangerous offenders would be liable to an indeterminate sentence under the proposed system.

The report says psychiatrists should be given 60 rather than 30 days to adjudge an accused person's mental fitness.

The examining psychiatrist would fill out a form assessing the probability of the accused becoming fit, saying how lo this might take, and advisi whether the person should detained as an involuntary p tient even if he is not before t court.

Even those in some ment disarray should not be "subje ed to the risk of indetermina detention" unless there is su stantial evidence they ha committed a serious offenc the report says.

It notes that lawyers avoid i sanity as a defence because the possibility of "perpetu confinement" under warrant.

Wishart Denies Race Factor In His Selection of Q.C. List

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart, looking grim and annoyed, Thursday denied that factors of race or color exerted any influence in the choosing of Queen's Counsel in the province after a Negro member of the legislature raised the point earlier.

Leonard Braithwaite, Liberal member for Etobicoke and the only Negro in the legislature, suggested he had been denied a Q.C. because of his color.

Speaking during the throne speech debate, Mr. Braithwaite said he had to raise a "sensitive" question about the criteria by which Q.C.s are chosen.

Mr. Braithwaite's exact words contained in a text released by the Liberal party were:

"I refer to the criteria by which Queen's Counsel are appointed. Traditionally, the title of Q.C. is recognized by the public as a reward for service to profession and community, and a recognition of skill in the calling.

"Service to the community is underlined by the mandate of the electorate when a lawyer also holds public office. I am proud to have the provincial welfare of some 60,000 constituents in my trust.

"I like to think that I serve the people of Etobicoke, in my own way and at my own level. . . ."

Mr. Wishart was not in the legislature during Mr. Braithwaite's remarks.

He commented afterwards: "In handing out Q.C.s I have followed the rule that all members of the profession must have been called to the bar at least 12 years beforehand, and he has not been out 12 years.

"I think this sort of thing is not called for. As to the suggestion of racial discrimination, there is no such a thought. I gave one to Lincoln Alexander, and he is a Negro."

Mr. Alexander, a Progressive Conservative, represents Hamilton West in the House of Commons.

In other business:

—Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) said Ontario MPPs are humiliated by their inadequate salaries and offices, by their circumscribed roles as committee members and by their ineffectiveness in the legislature. He was continually interrupted by angry shouts from the Conservative benches.

—Mines Minister Allan Lawrence said Anaconda Co. (Canada) Ltd. is having difficulty obtaining financing for development of a vast iron ore body northwest of Timmins because of foreign doubts about Canada's future policy in taxing mining companies.

—Education Minister William Davis said public money will not be spent to support experimental courses or programs in some universities or colleges when space and teachers for the students involved are already being provided elsewhere.

He said an experiment at Brock University near St. Catharines, in which students without Grade 13 but with Grade 12 and a summer course are admitted, will not be supported by provincial grants.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For Feb. 28th.

Your birthday today: This is only a starting point on a long journey into changing future conditions. Thoroughly see to every detail in your daily life, as you may not get the chance to go back to make corrections. Follow your intuition and seek new opportunity in every area which is unsatisfactory. Take nothing for granted. . . Today's natives are somewhat detached in temperament and may suffer spells of feeling alone. Dramatic ability is frequent.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The weekend round-up is again at hand. Lay in your supplies and organize a get-together tonight. Just stay within your budget!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Finish the work day with as much zest as you can put into it. Then go out early to see the brighter spots in town. Seek public entertainment or social invitations tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The edge is off personal differences for the time being: Do what you can to keep it that way with a friendly approach for all who come near, and leaving rest those who do not.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Check over your public image; think about how you'd like to look, and see what you can do about it. New budgets may be worth going after. Get expert advice!

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You have to wait for news about distant matters of concern or else postpone long awaited happenings. Take advantage of nearby, short-term opportunities. Life doesn't wait for you to finish pouting.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Social actions and money do not mix today and should not be tested together. Spend time among new acquaintances, seeking out those who share similar interests.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Minor frustrations arise merely from the pile up. Rouse yourself and get them out of the way! This will save you a great deal of embarrassment. Some are of unsuspected importance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Look into any health symptom that distresses you. Since recent tensions could possibly have set you up for an ailment, medical advice may prevent an incipient illness. Relax before your systems forces the relaxing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Storms are blowing all around you. You could get in except for financial concern. Don't worry, they will level out soon!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Stick to the middle-of-the-road, doing no more than the immediate situation calls for. Then make your own little private party at home with just the people you want to talk with.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Let larger responsibilities pass to broader shoulders. There is a limit to what you can carry singlehanded. Odds are that you are already overcommitted and shouldn't volunteer for more.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The urge is to be over-expansive in talk and spending or, perversely, to overdo the opposite. Find a comfortable balance with a very conservative work day and a somewhat freer evening. Romantic interests are favored by odd circumstances.

Probe of Police To Take 3 Weeks

BRANTFORD (CP) — An investigation of the Brantford police department will take at least three weeks to complete, a Brantford police spokesman said Wednesday.

The investigation, which began Feb. 17, is being conducted in private by three members of the Ontario Police Commission, at the request of the Brantford police commission.

The investigation was reported to have resulted from complaints by a Brantford police constable.

Doubts About Future Taxation Slowing Development: Lawrence

TORONTO (CP) — It isn't fair to Canada's mining industry for the federal and provincial governments to hem and haw any more about their long-term tax policies, Allan Lawrence, Ontario's mines minister, said Wednesday.

He said after the annual meeting of the Mining Association of Canada that a number of large mining developments in Ontario "that could have been moving before now" have been delayed by doubts about future taxation policies.

He suggested Ontario may have to take an active role in opposing the recommendations of the federal Carter royal commission on taxation—recommendations that could affect Ontario's mining potential.

If stirring up public opposition to such proposals is one way of stopping them "then it will be part of my job," said Mr. Lawrence.

The Carter report suggested ending depletion allowances to mining and petroleum companies, as well as dropping a three-year tax-free period now given new mines.

Mr. Lawrence said that, although the Carter report had come down two years ago, no specific comments had come out of Ottawa on it.

This had held back development of projects.

The Carter recommendations, strongly opposed by the mining and petroleum industries, could drastically influence the exploration programs of several companies in Ontario.

The minister said Ontario's long-range tax policies involving the mining industry will be outlined in the provincial budget due to be presented Tuesday.

"I hope this will remove one area of doubt, and I hope that not too long after Tuesday we'll get some definite word from Ottawa."

Ontario's tax reform committee, called the Smith committee, proposed revising the province's mining laws into a two-stage system, from which payments to designated mining municipalities would be made and all profits of a mining company would be taxed in excess of a 12-per-cent return on the depreciated value of its assets.

J. D. Barrington, outgoing president of the association, told the meeting the association and several member mining companies had submitted briefs on the Carter recommendations to the federal government, but had received no reply.

"This seems a strange way to treat an industry as important to the welfare of the country as ours."

Mr. Barrington said he hopes this does not mean that the content of a white paper on tax reform has already been crystallized in the minds of those concerned in Ottawa.

Finance Minister Benson had said the government would not adopt the Carter report as a whole but "he has commenced to do what we actually feared the most—that is, pick out and put into effect the revenue-producing sections of the report, thereby increasing taxes yet paying no attention to the Carter provisions to compensate."

'Need Your Aid' De Gaulle Told

Harry Mulhall

Last Chance Today!

It's the last day for renewing automobile licences in Ontario. Mose Bellevillians, like Mavis Rupnow, appear ahead of the deadline. Sparse lineup at city licence office indicates last-minute scramble may be a thing of the past. (See Page 2.)

Nixon in Paris For Two Days

PARIS (CP) — President Nixon came to Paris today, the climactic stop on his five-nation European tour, with an appeal to President de Gaulle to join him in "efforts to build a new sense of Western purpose" and in a search for "a just and lasting peace."

Portents of disturbances preceded Nixon's arrival.

The French Communist party called for demonstrations to protest the "new flare-up of American aggression" in Vietnam since Nixon's inauguration.

Roving bands of youth shouting "Go Home!" smashed windows at offices of American Express and Pan American World Airways, and at the Hilton Hotel coffee shop. Two persons were slightly injured by flying glass at the hotel, and five youths were arrested at the American Express office.

About 4,000 French riot police were mobilized in Paris.

Nixon in his two days of talks with de Gaulle faced the most delicate task of his European tour—that of trying to put Franco-American relations, strained for many years, on a better footing.

Nixon urged de Gaulle to join him in looking not to past aggravations but to the future.

"We will respect your convictions. We will strive to find areas of common understanding. We will talk, but we will also listen. For without France there is no Europe. Both your continent and our world need your wisdom and experience."

In a glowing compliment to his host, Nixon said "few leaders of the modern world think so broadly as you."

"Few have so well understood the great historical sweeps of the past. Few have considered the interplay of forces that shape events, the motivations of men and nations, the subtle traditions that lie behind the attitudes of the moment."

Nixon earlier had more than an hour of talks with Italian leaders at the Chigi Palace in Rome following anti-American demonstrations Thursday night that produced some of the most violent rioting in recent Italian history.

At least 119 policemen and civilians were hurt in the demonstrations in Rome and Milan.

German Fears Chain Reaction If Canada Should Quit NATO

OTTAWA (CP) A Canadian military withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization might produce a deplorable chain reaction of other withdrawals, a West German journalist told the Commons external affairs committee Thursday.

Theo Sommer, foreign editor of the Hamburg newspaper Die Zeit, testified that possibly Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway and even West Germany would follow Canada out.

If that occurred, the West might have to fall back on the old "massive retaliation" approach as a deterrent to Eastern agression.

Mr. Sommer, in Canada to deliver a lecture at the National Defence College, said he did not see why Canada should be the one "to pull the stopper out of the dike."

Mr. Sommer said it did not do France any diplomatic good in the councils of the world to withdraw militarily from NATO. President de Gaulle had been on "diplomatic crutches" ever since.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) said the witness' "domino theory of withdrawal" is not very convincing.

Europe could not be too concerned about security if several nations would withdraw because Canada did.

Instability in the socialist camp was cited by Prof. Albert Legault of Queen's University as a major cause of uncertainty in Europe, which in his view demands the maintenance of a strong NATO with Canada as a contributing member.

Prof. Legault, who occupies the chair of strategic studies at Queen's and who served as a research associate at the graduate school of international studies in Geneva, said all the countries of the socialist bloc are "in the grip of a struggle for control."

Events similar to last summer's Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia could be repeated in Poland, Hungary or Romania, and could well spill over into Western Europe.

"Only a strong and united NATO would be in a position to cope with problems of such a magnitude. In this sense the organization constitutes an excellent insurance policy against a fire that could spread from the socialist bloc to engulf all Europe."

NATO is irreplaceable until Europe takes responsibility for its defence into its own hands, he argued.

News Briefs

TORONTO (CP)—John White, Ontario revenue minister, said Thursday he would like to see a guaranteed minimum wage for the 1,000,000 Canadians in the lower-income range, but he did not want any new social programs started within the next two years because of the present tight money situation.

Medicare: 1-Too Expensive for Ontario--Robarts 2-It Keeps Doctors' Fees Down--Munro

1-Con

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said Thursday that those who suggest Ontario is ready to enter immediately into the federal medical care insurance scheme display "a lack of understanding of the rigidity" of the plan.

Speaking in the legislature, Mr. Robarts said there have been suggestions Ontario can qualify for the federal scheme by simply making a few administrative adjustments in the present provincial health-care plans.

However, he said, entering the federal plan would mean Ontario would have to drop its present "extremely successful" combination of privately-and publicly-financed schemes "which ensure virtually every Ontario resident with complete medical care."

The plan would also be more expensive for the Ontario taxpayer than the present Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan, Mr. Robarts said.

The average single person would pay $8.16 a month in taxes and premiums in 1969 under federal medical care if Ontario entered while the monthly OMSIP premium for a single person would only be $5.90.

The premier's remarks brought an angry reply from Liberal Leader Robert Nixon who said Mr. Robarts should resign because he is personally opposed to the plan and suggested he let a new leader of his party take Ontario into the scheme.

In his speech Mr. Robarts said Ontario is not opposed to the general principal of a national scheme providing protection against the financial calamity of sickness.

"But I do oppose the method by which the federal government is trying to force us to do what they want, when it doesn't suit us," he said.

JOHN ROBARTS

Mr. Robarts said that if Ontario entered the federal scheme it would not simply mean the province would start to get federal money while provincial costs would not rise.

"To get the federal share, the province must also raise additional large sums from the people in taxes and premiums," he said.

He added that to qualify for federal plan under the present criteria, which stipulate the scheme has to be run on a non-profit basis by a public authority, Ontario would have to exclude "the insurance companies which currently cover one-third of the cost of medical care in Ontario."

Doctor-sponsored plans and county co-operatives offering medical coverage would also be excluded.

If all provinces participated the total cost would be $1,000,000,000 annually and Ontario's share would be about $230,000,000 annually, Mr. Robarts said.

He said, at present, the plan is for the federal government to step out in five years "leaving us to finance a rapidly escalating program."

CIGARETTES

Veneration Of Dead Bars Aid to Living

CHICAGO (AP) — A Virginia pathologist said Thursday it may become necessary to authorize organ transplants from dead persons over the objections of their survivors to save the lives of persons critically ill.

However, others participating with him in symposiums at the American Academy of Forensic Sciences argued that consent of next-of-kin should be required.

The Virginian, Dr. Geoffrey T. Mann, said: "We are going to have to educate the public to overcome the unrealistic veneration of the dead in this country."

2-Pro

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Health Minister John Munro struck back sharply Thursday night as vested interests such as doctors, insurance companies and politicians tied to them who attack the federal medical care insurance plan.

In the hometown of Ontario's Premier John Robarts, the federal minister argued that the public would have stormed Parliament by now if the federal plan were a "gigantic fraud" as claimed by Mr. Robarts at the federal-provincial constitutional conference two weeks ago.

Since the plan was unveiled, "every vested interest in Canada had a shot at it in the past five years, especially the doctors and insurance companies."

"Every politician who's tied to these vested interests has taken a whack at it, too," he said.

He rejected criticism that the provinces weren't consulted on the plan, detailing 11 federal-provincial health meetings at which it was discussed since 1965—without counting the number of federal-provincial finance ministers' meetings as well.

The voters were given a chance to speak, too. First in the 1965 election campaign and again at the 1968 election, in which the Conservative party "made it clear that, under it, medicare would be a dead duck."

Labor unions, whose members and their families represented 5,000,000 Canadians, had recently reiterated support for the plan.

Defending the federal constitutions attached to the offer to pay half the average per capita costs of participating provinces, Mr. Munro said:

"The requirement that the plan be public and non-profit is nothing but good common sense on cost control."

JOHN MUNRO

Between 1963 and 1966, cost of doctors' services under Saskatchewan's plan, which meets the federal conditions, rose 4.9 per cent, while those for Canada as a whole climbed about eight per cent.

"In other words, the increase in Saskatchewan was about two-thirds of the corresponding rate for Canada as a whole."

Mr. Munro said this is part of the failure of the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan (OMSIP), in which the provincial government had to contend with the actions of private companies.

In Saskatchewan between 1962 and 1968, medical fee schedules were unchanged, yet doctors' incomes more than held their own in comparison with those in the rest of Canada.

Ontario in the same period had three new fee schedules "and the medical profession here is busy preparing another schedule . . . despite the fact that the average doctor's income in Ontario is the highest in Canada by a substantial margin."

OMSIP was forced to agree to the higher rates when competing insurance agencies readily accepted the doctors' proposals.

Restrictions on Stock Car Track

No Reduced Assessment for Pine Acres Residents

TRENTON — The residents of Pine Acres subdivision have been turned down in their bid for reduced assesment on their properties.

But for the upcoming season Riverview Speedway, a stock car track in the area, will be operating under restrictive measures.

During a recent court of revision hearing in Murray Township 17 residents requested an assessment reduction of not met, the township has the power to take the issue to court.

25 per cent as a result of the nuisance value of the track.

A letter outlining the court's decision was sent to the residents yesterday. The court was headed by Read Budge.

"I am of the opinion that the emphasis was being placed on corrective measures being taken by the municipality so that property values will not suffer nor will the owners lose the enjoyment of their properties," said Mr. Budge in the letter.

"As a result I do not feeel that an assessment reduction is the answer to the problem," he said in the letter.

The Pine Acres residents complained that the race track has had a detrimental effect on property values. Mr. Budge said that it is too early to know what effect the track is having on property values.

Referring to the only recent sale of property in the subdivision, Mr. Budge said it was sold in 1961 for $15,700 while last year the selling price on the same property was $21,500.

"This property does not seem to have suffered any depreciation," he said, "but the conclusion that I do reach is that it is too early to know the effect of this racing operation on nearby property values."

Nor did Mr. Budge find assessments too high in Pine Acres.

Once again referring to the property that was recently sold at the price of $21 500, he outlined the following situation:

"Turning to assessment made in 1968 for the collection of rates in 1969 the total assessed value of this property at $21,500 is $9,000. Applying the 1968 factor of 19 percent which is the relation of assessed values to sale values for Murray Township the property should have sold for $15,300."

"If this formula should be taken as an indicator", said Mr. Budge, "the property would appear to be underassessed by about 40 percent."

So what is the solution?

Mr. Budge said he had approached Murray township council to inquire if a remedy was being considered and was later presented with a draft bylaw concerning restrictive measures to be taken at the track.

So he dismissed the appeal.

Only if there is future evidence of property devalution will further consideration be given.

"To this date the encroachment of residential uses followed by the commercial promoters has been permitted.", added Mr. Budge.

"To buy or build in an unprotected area always carries a risk which may or may not develop into a hardship."

Mr. Budge concluded his report by saying that with regulations the track may disappear or it may grow and property values may drop.

If the latter happens there would be evidence for another appeal to the court of revision.

"This appeal, in the meantime, will be dismissed," stated Mr. Budge.

New Regulations Affect Speedway

TRENTON — No racing after midnight, the elimination of dust, less amplification of loudspeakers and a $600 licence fee are but a few of the restrictions which Riverview Speedway will be facing this season.

Although residents of Pine Acres did not get an assessment reduction from the court of revision after complaining about the nuisance from the track, their struggle has rewarded them with a restrictive bylaw.

Read Budge who headed the court of revision did not believe assessments in the subdivision were too high and said it is too early to tell if property has been devalued.

As a result he did not feel an assessment reduction was the answer to the problem and the appeal was dismissed. However he did confer with Murray township council to seek a remedy to the problem.

The result was the restrictive bylaw which was passed by council and made public today.

The bylaw licences regulates and governs the racing of motor vehicles and holding of races in Murray township.

It states that no person shall hold a race until a licence has been obtained in accordance with certain conditions.

The track must be constructed with adequate provision for the elimination of dust and over amplification of loudspeaker noise.

Barriers and fences must satisfactorily protect passengers who will not be closer than 20 feet to the barriers.

The track owner and operator must be insured against injury to spectators and property damage at each race for an amount of not less than $100,000 for each type of claim.

Traffic control and off-street parking must be arranged before and after the race by the owner and operator.

The track is not allowed to operate between the hours of 11.45 p.m. and 8 a.m. seven days a week.

● The $600 annual license may be revoked on decision by council and may not be reissued unless by order of council.

● The building inspector of the township is given the authority to inspect the track the day preceding the meet between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m.

● A mechanized fire fighting car, approved by the fire chief of Murray Township, must be present during the entire race.

The complaints of Pine Acres residents centred around the noise, dust and late hour racing at the track. Others complained of traffic cutting across their lawns.

Reeve Gerald Roos stated that the residents were too late in their action. According to the reeve, action should have been taken when the track began, not after it was in operation.

This was verified by the solicitor of Murray Township.

Now the township has a bylaw to control the track and if the specified conditions are

Today is the final day for picking up 1969 licence plates. The scramble at the city licence bureau today was less pronounced than last year and the long line-ups have been kept to a minimum.

No Scramble for New Plates

The midnight bell tolls ominously tonight for any driver still without 1969 licence plates.

But, from all appearances, there will be few Bellevillians running foul of the law.

In contrast to other years, today's deadline has brought no dramatic last-minute scramble to the city licence bureau.

George Olsen, city issuer of vehicle permits, says local licences have been steadily renewed in recent weeks, and the long lineups of other years now apparently belong to the past.

Thus far, all Mr. Olsen says about 11,400 new plates have been bought in the city — approximately equal to the 1968 demand.

However, all is not so relaxed behind the scenes.

Keeping records and reports updated with the demand means much work after hours. Mr. Olsen says he and his staff have been working up to midnight in recent days processing the paperwork stream.

Making It Easy!

Railway section men operate boring machine prior to driving railway spikes on the track re-location project at the CN's north station yards. Project will see closing of the Station Street level crossing following construction of overpass, building of a new rail welding plant and the re-location of a section of county road.

Budget Almost Ready

PICTON (Staff) — Although March 1 is the deadline for submission of annual budgets from school boards in Ontario, Ernest Shortt said yesterday that, due to a delay in announcing the government grants the Prince Edward board won't have its budget ready.

Mr. Shortt is administrator of the Prince Edward board.

Budget expenditures for the Prince Edward board of education are prepared but without the amount of the government grant nothing definite can be set down.

"We've done our part," said Mr. Shortt but the grants won't be announced until March 14.

"We're still very busy but things are finally beginning to ease up," he concluded.

The next meeting of the board will be March 10 at the board of education building in Bloomfield.

ENROLLMENT HIGH

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 43,000 persons are enrolled in night school classes here for the 1968-1969 term. Only 27,000 attend regular day classes in the city's secondary schools.

Blood Needed Urgently

TRENTON — The upcoming Trenton blood clinic has been asked for five pints of AB positive blood which is urgently required for a major surgery in a Toronto hospital Tuesday.

The clinic, which is to take place at the Trenton Legion Hall Monday, has officially set its goal at 250 pints.

"I feel that not only will we obtain the five pints, but will also meet our goal and perhaps surpass it," said Mrs. W. Berry, chairman of the Trenton Memorial Hospital Ladies Auxiliary.

Mrs. Berry said she was recently informed of the request from Toronto and adds that this is a definite proof of the importance a blood donor plays in saving lives.

"This person who goes into surgery on Tuesday will owe his life to Trenton-area donors," said Mrs. Berry.

This clinic is the first of three to be held this year.

Quinte Area School Officials Off on Hunt for Teachers

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

"Good luck and good hunting."

With this send-off, Hastings County board of education superintendent of staff, L. F. Reid, yesterday deployed his scouts through the province on their annual teacher hiring expeditions.

Armed with a five-page procedure directive from Mr Reid, a kit of materials including application forms and county maps, hotel reservations, four hiring teams began their attack on the citadels of teacher training.

Their objective: to snare at least 43 secondary school teachers, including three department heads, for eight high schools in the county.

The rules of the game are carefully scripted to avoid actual mayhem. Each recruiting team carries a copy of the academic Geneva Convention — Code of Ethics 1969 — endorsed by all school boards engaged in the battle.

"This year will be the worst yet for teacher hiring," superintendent D. C. Stirling told Hastings County trustees at their last board meeting.

Education minister William Davis concurred earlier in the week when he said a shortage of high school teachers caused by curtailment of summer courses for student teachers will probably last two to four years.

Hence the highly competitive hiring campaigns mounted by most school boards in Ontario this weekend.

Interviewing teams composed of administrative personnel and high school principals and vice-principals left yesterday for four centres: Althouse College of Education, London, Ont., McArthur College of Education Kingston, Ontario College of Education, Toronto and the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

Director of education Eric Runacres will personally lead the team interviewing prospects at Toronto's OCE.

The salaries offered by the Hastings board are comparable to those offered in metropolitan centres. Salaries are now under negotiation, but at the moment stand at $6,838 to $11,000 for category 1 teachers, $7,100 to $11,600 for category 2, $7,900 to $13,000 for category 3 and $8,400 to $13,800 for category 4.

In addition the board offers an increment of $300 for the first five years and $400 a year thereafter to maximum salary in each category.

Major department heads receive an allowance of $1,800 a year, minor department heads receive $1,200 and assistant department heads receive $700. Up to $500 a year is allowed for post-graduate degrees.

Centennial Secondary School has requested the largest number of teachers for next September — 16. An expected increase of 200 in enrolment accounts for the number of new teachers required. Centennial will add grade 13, with just under 100 students, next year.

The board has advertised extensively in Ontario newspapers, but has plans to go further afield.

The county's teacher needs will be advertised in Vancouver and Halifax newspapers and in The Times of London.

EARL FRANKLIN GREEN

DESERONTO—In failing health for e TAOI TAOIN TAOIN

DESERONTO — In failing health for some time, Earl Franklin (Sonny) Green, RR 1 Deseronto, died suddenly at his home on Wednesday in his 67th year.

Mr. Green was born in Manhattan, N.Y., a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Franklin Green, and came to this country as an infant and resided in the Deseronto and Point Anne districts all of his life.

"Sunny" Green as he was known to baseball fans of the district was one of the finest second basemen, outfielder and sometimes pitcher ever developed in this area.

He played for the Grand Trunk Nationals in 1928 when that team won the provincial title from the Windsor club. His happy disposition made him the life of the party when the team was on road trips.

He could play almost any position with equal skill and for years was a standout baseball player in this district. He also played with Point Anne when that team was winning titles and after his playing days were over he never lost his love for the game.

He became an electrician and with his sons conducted a business in the district.

Mr. Green was a member of Christ church on the Tyendinaga Reserve.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mabel Maracle, three sons, Vernon and Donald, RR 1 Deseronto; Earl, Deseronto and one daughter, Mrs. Glen (Marilyn) Maracle, Toronto.

Also surviving are three sisters, Mrs. E. Green, Belleville, Mrs. Charles Cummins, Hamilton, Mrs. Johnson Brant, Deseronto and nine grandchildren.

Presented in Church

Play Breaks New Ground

For all its venerable 150 years, St. Thomas' Anglican church is breaking new ground.

Last night it became the first church in the Quinte district to house a full-fledged dramatic production as The Forum Players presented Christopher Fry's Sleep of Prisoners for local theatregoers.

The production is a high-point in the current sesquicentennial program of the St. Thomas' congregation. For playgoing Bellevillians it is also an opportunity to view a new departure in dramatic presentation.

The play itself blends perfectly with both setting and centennial occasion.

In fact, British poet-playwright Fry designed the famed work specifically for a church festival, inspired by an actual event during the English civil war.

Fry updates the setting to a modern times in the midst of war. His characters are a group of soldiers taken prisoner by the enemy and lodged temporarily in a church.

Age-old themes of men in conflict are explored by the playwright as he projects his characters through their dreams into biblical events.

Fry's moving lyricism develops around such characters as Cain and Abel, Abraham and Isaac, King David, as the play progresses.

For the Forum Players the presentation, directed by George Brickwood, is also an ambitious undertaking that won an appreciative audience last night.

The cast, which includes Mr. Brickwood, Rod Coyne and John Shaw, meets a challenging task, moving through various characterizations and interpretations as the drama unfolds.

Belleville's First 'Teach-in' Features Four Panelists

Belleville's first community teach-in will highlight education week in the city, March 3 to 8.

In keeping with the education week theme: unrest in education - - - change to what? the public, students and teachers are invited to air their views at Moira Secondary School auditorium March 5 at 8 p.m.

A panel of four people representing different segments of society will give their ideas of what changes should be made in education. Following their presentation, members of the audience will be asked to join in discussing their points of view.

Susan Swan, a youth reporter with the Toronto Telegram, will give the students' point of view. She has travelled about the province interviewing students and is expected to present a wide range of opinion from all parts of Ontario. The organizers hope Belleville students will be on hand to argue her conclusions.

C. J. McCaffray, a former president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, will give the teachers' point of view. He is now on loan from Ottawa Collegiate Institute as the department of education's liaison officer with secondary schools.

Mr. McCaffray is considered to have the best idea of anyone in the province regarding the department's guide lines for teaching in the future, and is expected to explain what they mean.

Eric Runacres, director of education for Hastings County will present the administrator's view of educational changes.

J. N. McKibbon, a businessman and former trustee with the Bay of Quinte District board of education, will explain what business and industry require from high school graduates.

The teach-in is sponsored by the local branch of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation and will be under the chairmanship of Wallace Beevor.

Another activity planned for education week is the teachers' federation banquet at Club Canara at 6.30 p.m. on March 4. Mr. Runacres will be guest speaker.

The week begins at 8 a.m. March 3 with a breakfast at the Sun Valley Motor Inn. The Sir Mackenzie Bowell award for service to education will be presented during the breakfast.

Tawana the Pet Cheetah Prrrrrs Through Belleville

"God made the cat that man might pet the tiger" — or is it cheetah?

Some Belleville citizens found a second meaning for Mark Twain's quote this morning when a cheetah came to town.

The cat — Tawana by name — a 100-pound two year old, is travelling throughout many Canadian communities with its master, Al Oeming, director of the Alberta Game Farm near Edmonton.

Mr. Oeming will be back in Belleville on March 17, accompanied by Tawana, for a film showing at Centennial Secondary School.

The film will be shown in many communities. It is entitled "Galapagos".

"Galapagos" has been seen on BBC television in Britain and in ratings tied the coronation for a record high score. The National Geographic Society has arranged to show one hour of Galapagos on its special film series on the NBC network shortly this winter.

"Galapagos" has won four international awards including the Bundesfilm Prize with a $25,000 cash award, the Silver Bar from the International Film Jury, the Grand Prize of Triente and the Youth Film Festival in Berlin.

The film portrays the wierd and fascinating forms of life that evolved over the years on the volcanic islands of the Galapagos.

The film, which shows giant marine lizards, land iguanas and herds of sea lions, also has underwater film depicting 12 foot long sharks and giant manta rays.

Mr. Oeming's game farm just outside Edmonton is now internationally famous as a breeding farm for various wild animals.

His project became a reality in 1957 when he purchased 500 acres of land near Edmonton. Since then the farm has been acclaimed as a conservation project and a tourist attraction.

And Tawana is living proof of the adaptibility of animals living in a cold region of Canada.

The cat is perfect as a good will ambassador. The number of curious citizens of Belleville that flocked to the station wagon on Bridge Street which houses Tawana on his travels was witness to that.

Festival's Success

The Rotary Club's music festival has shown most effectively the extent of the Quinte area's talent in this artistic sphere. As a new venture its influence on this community and the surrounding area is incalculable.

A number of benefits come to mind immediately. Straight away we realize what an encouragement the festival has been to young people who are musically-inclined, and even to those who are not but may, with training, show promise.

As for the so-called generation gap . . . if there is such a thing it was not in evidence as parents came out in force to see the young people perform. Choirs, soloists, instrumentalists, folk singers . . . who would have thought there was such an abundance of musical talent so readily available.

For an inaugural event, the festival was a remarkable success. The smooth organization belied the hard work of the past few months. At a time when events on the world scene reflect varying degrees of turmoil, when traditional values are being questioned, and the conduct of society at large is so frequently suspect, this further evidence of cultural riches in our midst is impressive indeed.

More Taxes?

Shades of the federal-provincial conference — tax sharing, equalization payments and all that; in short, money, money, money. That is what the provinces want, Ontario included, and it will come as no surprise if the provincial budget to be presented early next month takes another bite in the form of additional taxation.

Government spokesmen have hinted as much in recent statements. Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough was in Belleville recently for a meeting on regional government and he was asked if regionalism would mean higher taxes. He replied: "I won't say it will lower taxes. Taxes have already reached a level that should not be exceeded, but there are ever-increasing demands."

It is not difficult to deduce from this that the government, in all probability, will have its hand out again at budget time.

Then there was Health Minister Matthew Dymond's statement at the opening of the Belleville hospital extension last Sunday. Noting that construction of a new school of nursing had been deferred, Mr. Dymond said: "You will have to make do for a while — we just do not have the money. The federal government pulled the rug from under our feet and we feel the government has been in your pockets enough — at least for a while."

That last little bit, almost an afterthought, affords another clue to what may lie ahead — in the immediate future in fact — for Ontario taxpayers.

Meanwhile, no one can complain about what government grants already have accomplished in Belleville. The new hospital wing is a handsome building, a credit to the city and to all concerned with its conception and development.

The Quebec Scene

A Montreal insurance broker's claim that fear of persecution is driving English capital out of Quebec is not as extraordinary as it sounds. Persecution . . . in Canada? Not physical perhaps, but there are English Quebecers now living in Ontario and elsewhere who will relate how the "cold shoulder," in social and business contacts, has driven many out and discouraged investment from outside Quebec.

George J. Archer, a 40-year-old Westmount resident told of his fears in a personal brief to the national assembly's education committee meeting in Quebec City. Comparing the atmosphere in Quebec with Nazi Germany, Mr. Archer said business decisions in Quebec have been held in abeyance. Capital is moving at an ever-increasing rate to "safer" areas.

There is hope though that the fear of persecution may be arrested — by guaranteeing the education rights of the province's English-speaking minority. This is the purport of a bill which has been introduced by the Union Nationale government. This bill in turn is currently the subject of the public hearing referred to above.

Whether protection of the English minority's education rights will be sufficient to arrest the flight of capital from Quebec of course is another matter. For one thing, the current wave of bombings in Montreal is no encouragement to anyone to settle or do business in Quebec at this time.

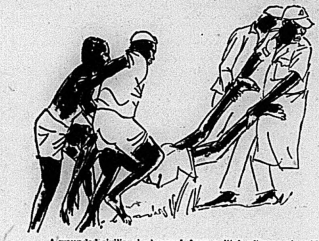
The Quebec problem is a continuing one. Evolution, swift and sure (if not revolution) will be the order of things in the province for years to come.

Wicks in Biafra

Bombs, Bullets, Hunger, and a Girl Called Kate

Ben Wicks, whose cartoons bring some humor into a somewhat grim world everyday in this newspaper (and in 139 other North American newspapers) was recently in Biafra. He only found tragedy there.

During his stay he not only made sketches but kept a diary in a dime notebook. We print it, exactly as he wrote it:



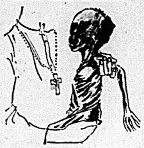
A wounded civilian is dragged from a ditch after an air raid

JANUARY 21:

SAO TOME — Visit Biafra house and after much discussion receive permission from Biafra Rep. OSUJI. Handed sealed orders.

4 p.m. — Airport — Join mottled crews from various countries drinking in the bar. Persuade Norwegian captain to take us. His is first plane out.

4:30 p.m — We are told by other crews that the first plane out arrives in Biafra soon after dark. A favorite airstrip bombing time. Have not the courage to refuse lift. Perfect takeoff. The plane is a DC7. Carries blankets and canned meat. We cross African coast at dusk. Arrive over Biafra 1 hour, 20 minutes from takeoff. I go to captain's cabin and look forward. Can see nothing. We are losing height. Voice over intercom relayed from ground instructs us to land quickly. Altimeter reads 2,000 feet. Are they never going to light this highway that we are to land on? 1,000 feet. Blacker than coal outside. 300 feet and I'm wondering whatever made me take up journalism. Suddenly lights. It's a roadway just 75 feet wide. Our wheels touch. The lights go out. Ten feet of space each side of our wheels. 125 m.p.h. Would be a hell of a way to get a ticket! Never seen it so dark out.



Ecumenism means help from the churches — all churches.

Plane stops. Voices outside. Down a ladder. A hand says "Welcome to Biafra". Pushed into a car. Voices shout at trucks. Our car moves off. No lights. Into the jungle. Past three "Halt, who goes there?" shouts. Amble to a halt. A small clearing. Hut. Well - guarded compound. We are steered in. Very dim lights. Three rooms. My God — it's the customs! Show our visa. Young girl named Kate answers any questions. Looks attractive in the dim light. Young guy from Ottawa has tagged along. Seems he is following drugs worth $250,000 to rightful ending place. Customs search his bag.

JANUARY 22:

After breakfast we are driven to Umuahia. It's an 1½ hour drive. We arrive at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital at 11 a.m. From here we are driven to the "Biafran Propaganda" building. After much formality and double checking we are allowed to stay and are given a room. The cost is 8 pounds ($19) a day if we supply our own petrol. Forced to agree as this small town is packed to the rafters. Told that this price included food at a Government centre in town plus guide, driver and tour. Our guide is Eliezer Chuka. Speaks good English plus French. Educated at Lagos University. Fled to Biafra 1966.

Back to information centre for press conference given by American. Rev. Bishop Edward Crowther. He is heading an American fact-finding team. Will be going to Nigeria Saturday then London and on to UN. Impressions: "Biafran determination for independence — incredible". No Genecide. Have not seen this, he says.

A quick look around the market place. Shocked at prices. Box of matches 10s. — ($1.30). One bar of soap 15s. — One cup of salt £2.10.0: One chicken £5.10.0 ($14).

Back to room at information centre. Share this with Peter Worthington, Canadian reporter. There waiting on the curtains the biggest spider either of us had ever seen. Valiant effort by P.W. with a towel results in the spider hiding somewhere in the room.

JANUARY 23:

8. a.m. — breakfast. On to the Queen Elizabeth Hospital. First sight of real horror of starvation. Given a tour of wards. About to enter children's ward when air raid takes place. Pandemonium! Children run amok! Nurses and sisters incredible. Gather up smallest children ever seen and bundle them under beds. All clear. Hospital has feeding centre attached. Feeds 700 each morning. 7 - 8:30 a.m.

Leave for Press conference. Dr. Eke, Minister of Information. Goes into spin searching for disparaging adjectives to describe Wilson.

JANUARY 24:

5:30 a.m. — Leave for Elinihitte area — 20 miles west.

Discuss in car.

Guide: "We will fight till heaven falls!"

"So many European — African experts — never any African — European experts.

Arrive Elinihitte camp. Greeted by Father Kevin Dohney. Taken to feeding centre at Nguru.

6:30 — 4,000 children — 4,000 mothers — 2,000 aged line up for one large serving spoon of food. Father explains he feeds six days a week.

"One day for prayer," I ask. "Certainly not," he replies. "I have to have a rest."

God knows he needs it.

He feeds this number with the help of two sisters. Mary Conrad, Mary Columbia. Food prepared night before.

Garri (like African pan cake) and fish meat.

All mashed into large pots or rolled into balls.

Order of feeding — children first (serious cases held back for second spoonful.) Women second. Old last. Children fight to get at empty bowls when all fed. Fathers, sisters in some incredible way appear to keep control of pushing mass.

Father Dohney (Irish) quotes: "Armies move dependent on winning towns." "We want food — not prestige."

Sister Conrad (Irish), in Africa, 35 years. Owing to recent crisis bought a bicycle. Had not ridden for 35 years. Has boy lead her into bush giving warning of holes or sand. Most needed in bush. Tells of finding mother with four sets of twins. Husband dead. Gets them all to sick centre.

Visit sick bay. Small crosses edge the compound. Too many deaths for coffins. Bodies wrapped in cloth and buried in shallow grave. Bishop conducts service en masse once a month, rather than give Fathers extra daily work. Pathetic to see these children as they kneel and sing for "friends passed on". What a sickening world this is.

From here to Umuzu.

Fathers Ebu, Boniface Nwachukwu, Ignacius Okoro are at centre to meet us. Big day for them. Everyone in half circle. Children laughing and giggling. These Biafran children happiest have ever seen! Father Nwachukwu reads Bishop message of welcome that ends with plea for more food. Bishop thanks them and promises to do his best.

Small child presents Bishop with bowl of food — 3 bananas, 4 oranges, 1 coconut. Bishop thanks child and passes on fruit to other children.

This centre treats 1,000 outpatients daily, feeds 1,000. Has 106 children in sick bay and 70 mothers. Long hut that serves as sick bay was overcrowded.

Bishop stops to pick up child of about 3 months. On being told the girl is 4 years remarks "Oh, my God".

We leave centre with promise to return. A million hands flutter and smiling faces help our misty eyes. Incredible people.

Two miles from centre, car comes to halt. Body by the side of road. Woman about 26 years. Enquire at bush village nearby. She has died not twenty minutes before. Was on way to centre to get food for her two children, 4 and 7 years. Cause of death, starvation. Reason for death, an animal named man! We drive on close to front line.

MBUTU-OKOHIA:

We visit the hospital. Wounded everywhere. 20-bed ward has 80. Floor covered. Reminiscent of scene "Gone With The Wind". Father gives last rites to three as we step between. Explains that this is the third last rites for one soldier and if he doesn't go soon, "Oi shall kick him up there!"

JANUARY 25:

7 a.m. — Drive to State House. Searched at gates. Surprised at defence lapse. House itself very close to fence.

7:45 a.m. — Led into comfortable room.

8:05 — Ojukwu arrives. Sits at small table facing 10-15 press men.

9:15 — leave State House. Breakfast and back to press building. Told that I must leave today. Owing to fuel shortage cannot get me to airport so must join two from Look magazine.

11:30 — A low-flying plane is heard. A bomb drops. Our guide and rest of staff throw themselves under stairs as Peter Worthington and self run from building preparing cameras.

The plane — a Russian jet — is now pulling away and strafing as we race to first bomb site. It is close to a church and has blown a car over. It is on fire. Impossible to get close. Body in ditch. Hasten over. Biafrans drag body out. Quite dead. Part of back missing. Man about 30 years. Film, and rush to place of strafing. Horrible sight greets us. Man sheltering by wall has been cut in half by bullets. What an animal man is!

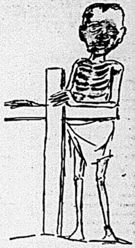
We stroll back to press building. TV crew stop us for on spot interview. Suddenly realize I have a cartridge shell from aircraft. 20mm. We talk of this and poor soul who has left half himself on the wall.

Back at press buiilding we prepare to leave. After much fussing with petrol, the 2 Look magazine men and self get into a car with no windows. All get out again to push and finally get started. One hour along and the road is bombed. One plane — one bomb. Three killed. Can see nothing to warrant a bomb. A few huts — a small roadside market plus a few starving, weeping people.

Two hours later we emerge from the bush into Uli airstrip. First sight of the road in daylight. Incredible to think a plane can land on this road. At the thought of leaving this strip in a plane at dead of night consider biking out. Customs again. Kate is on duty once more.

We wait at nearby feeding centre run by Father Finuchane. Made very welcome. He promises to drive us to our strip on time. Warned against taking first flight out because of regular bombing in recent weeks.

6:30 p.m. — We eat and talk. Drive to clearing house. Now very dark. Wait by roadside for first plane. Enemy plane overhead. Anti-aircraft fire. Despite bombing, first plane arrives. Out of dark. Stops near where we shelter. Trucks drive up. We introduce ourselves to the pilot and ask for a lift. Norwegian crew. Agree. We wait for unloading. Climb aboard. No bombs dropping. Plane starts up. Final goodbyes. Leave Biafra. For first time in three nights I sleep.



Each refugee camp has its burial ground on the perimeter.

Moonlighting Scandinavian

Kingston Whig-Standard

A certain chain of restaurants in that city recently employed an attractive and very efficient woman as manager of one of their establishments. Her record with the company had been perfect until one day the boss of the chain visited her restaurant and called her into the office. He told her that an executive of the company had seen her working as a topless Go-Go dancer, in a downtown tavern. The company, he explained, could not countenance such after-hour activities by one of its employees and that she would have to give up her tavern job as a condition of remaining with the chain. He made it clear that he objected not to her having two jobs but to the nature of her second job.

Because she was bound by a contract with the tavern the lady had to give up her restaurant job. But, in her disillusion, she probably would have done so in any case. She is a Scandinavian who has lived in Canada for several years. Before coming here she worked in England, full-time, as a stripper. She now looks with a considerable degree of scepticism upon Canadian standards of conduct and morals and will probably go back to England.

The executive who looked is considered to have done his duty by his employer. The woman who acted while he looked is considered to be a social outcast, a moral casualty. It is something like the Bunny clubs — look, but don't touch the merchandise. No wonder other countries sometimes have trouble understanding Canadian standards.

Americans Clueless on Geography of Canada

The Toronto Star

Canadians have long suspected that geography is not the favorite subject of American school children.

We're no longer offended by surveys showing that our neighbors think Vancouver is the capital of Saskatoon. We only smiled a patient, superior smile when Hollywood moved northward to shoot the movie "Saskatchewan" on location — in the mountains of western Alberta.

But we have to admit the results of a recent U.S. survey hurt our sense of civic pride just a bit. Even among cosmopolitan Americans, it appears Toronto shares the obscurity of Medicine Hat and Moose Jaw.

An investigation by the Ontario government, carried out in New York and three other big cities, has revealed that one in three Americans don't know where Toronto is, or even that it is in Ontario.

Virtually, the only good thing to come of a $51,000 promotion campaign in the U.S. by the Ontario government were some letters asking whether camping permits were available for Queen's Park.

Proposed Addition to School

Marysburg Principal Wants Child Centre--Not Teacher Centre

By ROBERT DUNNETT
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — "I'd like to make this school a child centre instead of a teacher centre," E. D. Lockwood, principal of North Marysburg Centennial Central School said yesterday.

At a recent Prince Edward County board of education meeting he submitted a brief explaining the need for a three room addition to the existing seven classroom school. It would cost an estimated $70,000.

According to Mr. Lockwood, the three room addition would solve many problems including everything from providing extra help for disability children, to cutting down transportation costs.

One of the rooms would be used for a kindergarten class which Mr. Lockwood hopes to have operating next fall — even if the addition is not accepted or completed. This is the only school in Prince Edward County other than Ameliasburg that does not provide kindergarten classes.

The second of the three rooms would be used to eliminate the problem of two double grades in two separate rooms.

In his brief to the board, the principal said, "This problem puts added stress and responsibility upon the teachers involved — plus an added work load and extra burden. However, the teachers are handling the situation to the best of their abilities."

"Moreover, the real problem involves the children and their parents who must put up with unnatural and unsatisfactory conditions that do not produce a good learning situation."

Some of the major problems created by double grades listed in the principal's brief were:

● Slow children who are easily distracted are continually confused and the fact that even children with exceptional ability find it difficult to concentrate.

● Little chance for individual help and remedial work in a double class.

● Interesting and motivating variations to a topic cannot be pursued as those in the other grades may be cheated of their class time.

"Too often the child has to work without the assistance of the teacher," he said.

Age span of children from the youngest to oldest increases two-fold with two grades, making group activities such as art, music and physical education difficult as too wide a range of interests exists.

Subjects which seem to be at a disadvantage are reading and literature. As there is little time for individual oral expression and oral reading this furthers the great reading gap, he claimed.

A double grade limits the use of visual aids severely, as one class cannot sit in the dark while the other watches ETV, a film, or presentation of lessons involving the opaque projector.

Theoretically the children only have a teacher one-half of the day — or two and one half hours. Over a three year period this definitely hinders a child's normal progress."

These are only eight of the 21 problems mentioned in Mr. Lockwood's brief to the board concerning the difficulties arising from double grades which could be eliminated if another room were available.

Mr. Lockwood said that he would like to set up a special education centre for teaching children who for some reason, and it need not be mental retardation, have a disability for learning.

According to his brief, "Special education endeavors to help those who need it and then reintegrate them into the regular classes.

"Special education goes beyond the idea of an opportunity class for those who have been classed as retarded in mental growth. Previously, this opportunity class often became a prison where these children were kept, isolated from their peers during their entire school career," he said.

Although North Marysburg gets a cross section of students, Mr. Lockwood said that learning disabilities are much higher here than the norm". He said that five per cent is the figure quoted, but in North Marysburg it is higher.

For this reason Mr. Lockwood said that he wants to be able to provide extra help for these children, "before they develop negative attitudes."

He outlined five handicaps that might retard a child's learning ability: speech defects, sight, hearing, left handedness and emotional problems.

Although as Mr. Lockwood explained, most of these disabilities make the child a slow learner, it does not mean that the child is retarded and he shouldn't be treated as such.

According to Mr. Lockwood, when the present building was constructed it was done so that a three room addition could be made in the future at minimum cost. He estimates that $70,000 would complete the addition.

Mr. Lockwood feels that a considerable saving could be made in transportation — both in money and time that children have to spend on buses.

The principal pointed out to the board that some of the children on the Glenora Road are being transported to Bloomfield when they live within a mile or two of North Marysburg school.

Mr. Lockwood said that his school has an enrolment of 200 pupils. With the addition of the Glenora Road children, this figure would be increased to 250.

According to Mr. Lockwood the three room addition would ensure optimum working conditions for both students and teachers for the next 10 years.

'Police Headquarters Totally Inadequate'

DESERONTO — At a meeting last week, Deseronto Town Council members heard a letter read from Chief of Police David Saunders, pointing out that the quarters for the department are totally inadequate, both for space and privacy. At present the so-called office consists of a space partitioned off the town office, with the partition not reaching the ceiling.

Not only is it impossible to find sufficient office space in this small area, but also privacy is an impossibility.

Not long ago this matter was brought to the attention of council, which discussed building a separate edifice east of the town hall, not only for the two offices which are really necessary, but also to house the lockups, which are in such a state of disrepair they cannot be used. Police Chief Saunders drew the attention of the council to the fact that conditions had not improved, and asked for action. Council agreed that he had been very patient, and that something must be done to rectify the state of affairs.

Accordingly Councillor Ed. Gordanier, chairman of the police committee, and Councillor Mrs. Dorothy McCullough, chairman of the property committee, were directed to make an investigation and report at the next meeting

VENTURER CONFERENCE

TWEED — Venturers Bill Ingles and Robert Cope of the 1st Tweed Company, accompanied by Venturer Advisor, J. R. Poste, attended the first Quinte Region Venturer Conferences at Breadner Public School, Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, earlier this month.

The purpose of this meeting was to promote Venturing in this area and to elect delegates to attend the First National Venturer to be held in Ottawa from June 22 to June 26, 1969, Venturers constitute a branch of the Boy Scouts of Canada for older boys aged 14 to 17 interested in camping, fitness, exploration of various vocations and public service. The Tweed Venturer Company is sponsored by the Tweed Kiwanis Club.

Col. H. A. Carswell, CD Base Commander gave the welcoming address. The Venturers and the advisors formed small discussion groups to exchange ideas on the program and the problems of the movement. The delegates then toured an Air Force hangar to view the reconstruction of a World War I German bomber being prepared for the Aircraft Museum at Ottawa.

Lunch was enjoyed at the Airmen's Mess. The afternoon session included two more discussion periods.

Tentative plans were made for a Quinte Region Venturers camp to be held at Millbrook on the long May weekend. It was agreed that a fall conference would be held in Peterborough to hear the reports from the delegates to the Ottawa conference.

Dinner at the Airmen's Mess was served by the Rangers of Trenton.

Lt.-Col. H. G. Hedley-Smith, protestant chaplain for the Base, gave a humorous illustrated talk based on the book "The Gospel According to Peanuts".

Czechoslovakian Bids Sad Farewell

MONTREAL (CP) — With tears streaming down her face, Pavla Hartlova stood at the Czech border that August morning and said goodbye to her mother who had been turned back because she had no exit papers needed to escape to Austria.

The date was Aug. 26, five days after the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia.

"I asked the border guards if they'd shoot us if we just took a run for it," the 25-year-old dark-haired girl said in an interview.

"And they said yes, they would have to.

"I made up my mind then to return to Prague with my mother but she wept and pleaded with me to go ahead, and finally I did."

Pavla, a graduate in mechanical engineering from the University of Prague, and a friend then went to Vienna. Pavla had only $15 in her pocket. The two found accommodation in a students' residence and Pavla began to work in a hosiery factory.

Two weeks later she was in Canada.

Lifeline Counsellors Complete Training

On Feb. 24 in Holloway St. United Church Rev. Maurice McLeod and Rev. John Bunner assisted Rev. William Lamb in commissioning 22 new Lifeline counsellors who have just completed a 17-week training course, the third such course since Lifeline began in 1967.

This brings to 65 the number of counsellors on the 24-hour voluntary telephone service for persons in any kind of difficulty. They were required to take vows to remain anonymous and to keep all telephone conversations in confidence and will now begin a six-month probationary period as counsellors.

On October 4, 1967, Lifeline Belleville first went into operation becoming the 11th service in the World-wide Lifeline Movement. It was reported that more than 1,000 calls were taken over the Lifeline number, 962-4111 in 1968.

This fall, Hamilton will follow Sudbury and Belleville to become the third city in Canada to start a Lifeline telephone service.

Competition Keen Among Young Speakers

STIRLING — The second step in the public speaking contests for school children sponsored by the Royal Canadian Legion, zone F3, was taken last week in Stirling, Branch 228 when competitors contested the right to represent their district in Peterborough on March 2.

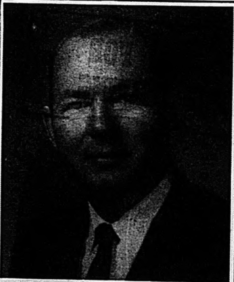
Although all the branches held the preliminary contest, only three of the twelve branches sent contestants.

Taking first place for pupils of grade six and under was Maureen Cassidy of Deseronto who chose "Centennial projects" as her topic. Placing second was Lisa Maynes of Marmora.

Janice Clancy of Stirling won first place in class two, open to grades seven and eight, speaking on "water pollution." Placing second was Joanne Fahey of Belleville. Only two grade nine pupils competed in class three, open also to grade ten.

"How much do you hear?" was the subject of the address given by Lana Lachapelle, of Belleville, the only competitor in class four.

Chairman for the competition was Zone Commander, Earle J. Brant of Deseronto, commander of zone F3.



A. E. LePage Limited are pleased to announce the appointment of Charles E. Cooke to their staff at Belleville.

Following his discharge from the R.C.N.V.R. after World War 2 Mr. Cooke soon entered the Civil Service where he served in several Departments; his most recent position as Excise Supervisor, Excise Duty Branch at Corbyville.

A Native of Belleville his early education was received at Public and High Schools in this city.

A Member of the Quinte Kiwanis Club, Bay of Quinte Yacht Club and Bay of Quinte Country Club, he is interested also in minor hockey and in the Boy Scout Movement.

Auxiliary Assists in Transfer

Again the Belleville General Hospital Women's Auxiliary volunteers came forth with a sterling performance as they assisted members of the hospital staff move some 200 patients to the new seven-floor wing.

The volunteers under the guidance of Auxiliary president Mrs. Ben Burley gathered at eight o'clock and were willing and ready to assist in any of the necessary tasks throughout the day-long operation. Mrs. S. Bochnek is chairman of the volunteer services and has worked diligently on behalf of the Auxiliary, although on moving day she was unable to attend but duties on her behalf were performed by Mrs. R. G. Moorman who marshaled the some 60 volunteers who gave assistance.

This is only one of the many services the Women's Hospital Auxiliary has contributed for the betterment of the local hospital and patients. Throughout the past year the WHA pledged $20,000 to the hospital. Other accomplishments included the purchasing of furnishings for eight day-rooms for the new hospital. Adding to the decor of the waiting rooms a number of planters have been purchased amounting to $1,000, along with artistic centrepieces for the tables. Mrs. Fred H. Deacon is in charge of the volunteers who will solely care for the planters and other flowers.

Auxiliary president Mrs. Burley was loud in her praise for the volunteers who performed in a quiet and efficient manner to make things just a little easier on the day of the "Big Move" which has been anticipated for quite some time.

Application Asked by Woman

TORONTO (CP) — The Advertising and Sales Club of Toronto, an exclusively male group, has been thrown into a state of confusion by an application for membership from a Toronto advertising woman.

Members of the club Tuesday voted 71 to 43 in favor of amending the constitution to allow women. The result of the voting was greeted by loud applause.

But then someone discovered that the club's bylaws require a majority of two-thirds of the members present to approve a change in the constitution.

And although Ray Purves, president, said the way has been opened for the woman to join, other members were preparing to challenge any change in the constitution.

Meanwhile, Pauline Hill, the woman who made the application, said she was astonished at all the fuss.

"I didn't think that a simple application would cause such a flurry."

Ann Landers

Advice to Wives Re Unfaithful Spouses

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to say a few words to the wife who decides to keep quiet and suffer in silence rather than break up her marriage with a nice but immature husband who indulges in an occasional affair.

ANN LANDERS

A woman need not go completely to pieces merely because her husband behaves like a jackass from time to time. Many a good man has become victimized by a predatory female and doesn't know how to escape from her clutches. Here are a few rules for a wife who suspects her husband is having an affair.

(1) Don't beg him to be faithful and don't cry or threaten him. This sort of noise goes in one ear and out the other.

() Be mature, calm and steady. Let him know you have no intention of breaking up your marriage merely because he insists on acting like a fool.

(3) Invite couples in, accept invitations. Stay in the social swim with family and friends.

(4) Never utter one word against your husband to the children, to his mother, to your mother, or to anyone, for that matter. When he regains his sanity he'll appreciate your loyalty.

(5) Make love, not war. Remember, a man has only so much energy. What he expends at home cannot be expended elsewhere. — EXPERIENCED.

DEAR EXPERIENCED: Your counsl is sane, sensible and practical. It takes a strong woman to carry it off, however. Not all wives are equal to it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For years I have been reading in etiquette books and most recently in your column, that a widow should be called Mrs. Joe Blow, not Mrs. Mary Blow. I protest in the name of common sense.

I live in a city where no one knew my husband. They knew me as the owner of a thriving beauty salon. If someone wanted to cancel or make an appointment after hours, they looked in the phone book for Mary Blow, not my husband Joe.

A socially prominent divorcee or widow has the privilege of being known as Mrs. Charlotte Ford Niarchos or Mrs. Mary Lasker. But heaven help a woman if she is a nobody.

I remember so well what Alice Roosevelt Longworth said years ago, "I'm me, not my dead husband's shadow. Please call me Alice Roosevelt Longworth." And they did — ANONYMOUS MRS.

DEAR MRS.: I am not a slave to any one etiquette book. I've said repeatedly that good manners are based on good sense. If a widow or divorcee would prefer to be called Mrs. Mary Blow, that should settle it.

* * *

Confidential to WHY DO THEY DO IT?: Drug users do it for a variety of reasons — disappointment, insecurity, to get out of the dumps, to combat fatigue, to escape boredom, to remove inhibitions, to induce sleep, to feel peppier, and alas, to experiment with something they've been hearing about so they can say that they, too, have had the experience.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

CARMEL WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The February meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Earle Ross with a good attendance.

The meeting was opened by the president Mrs. Russel Ritz. Correspondence and treasurer reports were given. Mrs. Earle Ross was appointed as delegate to attend officers' conference in Guelph in May. It was decided to have a white elephant table at the April meeting to raise money for the WI.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Clayton Sullivan. Mr. and Mrs. Dale Sullivan will also show slides and give a commentary of their trip to Europe.

Mrs. Clayton Sullivan, convener for citizenship and education gave a reading on salaries and students, and campus violence. Mrs. George Graham convener for historical research gave an interesting reading on how the names of the months of the year originated.

Mrs. Allan Gowthorpe, convener for health and home economics gave a reading on tough chickens.

Mrs. Arthur Treverton convener for Canadian industries and agriculture took charge of the program. Mrs. Treverton gave a reading on Robert Gibbon Johnson who lived to the age of 76 years after eating the first tomato. Mrs. Earle Ross favored with a piano solo. Mrs. Russel Ritz introduced the guest speakers. Mr. and Mrs. Genereau who have recently opened a greenhouse on highway 14 near Foxboro.

Mr. Genereau assisted by Mrs Genereau gave an illustrated talk on landscaping. He outlined the various shade trees and shrubs that can be used in landscaping one's home. He explained the various kinds, how they should be planted, their size and shape. He explained a rock garden, the building of a rock garden and the plants that can be used in a rock garden.

He explained the different shapes and sizes of flower beds according to various lawns. Also the nursery stock as it is shipped to the customer, the care that it should be given, how it is wrapped and the planting. He mentioned that it takes five years to grow an evergreen from a cutting until it is ready to sell. This is just one of the reasons nursery stock is so expensive.

Mrs. Arthur Treverton thanked Mr. Genereau for a most interesting talk and presented him with a small gift. Mrs. Arthur Treverton closed the meeting with a poem.

Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a social period followed.

Bride Has Answer Re Wedding Photos

By DORIS CLARK

Doris Clark

Dear Doris: I, too, have been to many weddings where I have been amazed at the thoughtlessness of the wedding party allowing photos to take up to 1½ hours.

When I was married I was determined to avoid this. We had the photographer take our photos at the reception, while the guests watched, chatted to us and drank wine which we had arranged to have served as soon as the first people arrived.

It was a hilarious experience, the photos are good and relaxed — looking; not phoney as they usually are, and no one suffered any inconvenience. The receiving line casually grouped into line after the 20 minutes that the photographer took. Wouldn't Miss Your Column.

Dear Wouldn't: That sounds like the perfect solution.

• • •

Dear Doris: I have a five-year-old autistic boy and two other children. We find it very trying to keep going at his high speed and length of day. On the advice of a child psychiatrist we have applied to have him accepted into a school for retarded children. It does not seem quite the right thing to do when the child is not retarded.

It seems strange that in a country such as Canada we have some backward ways. These children need professional guidance and yet sit waiting their precious lives away while politics hold them back.

I would gladly put my support to any organization that could get action going for these children. — Patience All Gone.

Dear Patience: Public action on any problem takes time; sometimes far too much. But teachers of retarded children handle many frustrations and will do what they can for your boy. I'll send you what I have on autism, as well as the name of a book about it.

Would any others like to join Mrs. Patience in her campaign for Help For the Autistic Child?

Dear Doris: I was wondering whether you have or could get any information on convents for over-weight girls? I don't know if there are any in Canada, but I have heard of them. By this I mean schools where girls could board, getting their education and losing weight at the same time. You see, I am 13 and weigh 150 pounds.

Please don't tell me to go on diets, because I have tried, but at home there are so many temptations. I have gone on crash diets and successfully lost weight, but they don't last for long. — Fatso.

Dear Fatso: The principal I asked couldn't tell me about any student-reducing convent. His boarders usually put on weight. At one boarding school the students have formed their own diet club.

It helps a teen if her mother puts the right low-calorie foods before her — but you still need to develop your own good eating habits, like resisting second helpings, saying no to between-meal nibbles, keeping down the sweets.

Ideas for Small Tasty Dinners

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I live alone so I look forward to my evening dinner. I buy a small chicken and sometimes roast, sometimes boil it. I use ground round steak which I make up into four meat patties and freeze separated by wax paper. Sometimes I splurge and buy a small steak but I would welcome some of your ideas for small tasty dinners.

ANSWER: You did not mention fish or eggs so I am going to.

GOURMET CHEESE OMELETTE FOR ONE

1½ tablespoons butter
2 eggs
½ cup shredded Edam or Gouda cheese, gently packed
½ teaspoon freeze dried chives
⅛ teaspoon salt
small shake garlic salt
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons warm water

In heavy small frypan (preferably slope-sided omelette pan) melt butter gently. Beat all remaining ingredients together until blended and foamy. Turn up heat under frypan until butter turns gold. Immediately add omelette mixture and without distrubing it let it cook until gold and crispening on bottom. Pass under heated broiler to dry off top. Fold over and serve on hot plate with toast. A green salad and a good book are good accompaniments to a dinner for one. A broiled large grapefruit half is a delicious dessert — especially since the broiler will be hot.

CREAMED SALMON ON TOAST FOR ONE

one 3¾-oz. can B. C. salmon
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
½ cup milk less 1 tablespoon
1 slice buttered whole wheat toast cut into triangles.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Speedy Salmon Skillet Supper (see Thurs.); Irish Scones; Sliced Cucumbers and Green Onions; Baked Apples with Pouring Cream; Coffee.

In a small saucepan melt the butter, blend in the flour then stir in the milk until thick. Remove centre bone from salmon and add salmon and liquid and stir to barely break up salmon. Heat through. If desired a few chopped olives or peas may be added to this at future meals for variety. Serve on hot buttered toast points with broccoli as a vegetable and a sliced ripe banana with milk for dessert.

Community Honors Couple

GILEAD — The 15th annual meeting of Gilead Community Centre was held on Saturday evening in the form of a potluck supper.

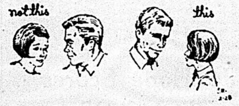
The newly elected officers are: past presidents, Earl and Ruth Ross; presidents, Graydon and Nancy Pound; vice-presidents, George and Eloise Clare; secretary, standing; treasurer, Roy Huffman; cards and flowers, May Embury; catering, Wilma Huffman, Ruby Pound, Irene Huffman.

Regular business under the direction of the new president consisted of planning for future entertainments, euchre parties and banquets and to cater to the D.H.I.A. dinner on March 19. Arrangements to be outlined for future water rights were discussed.

A short program was under the direction of Earl and Ruth Ross with music selections by the Clare boys.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Daughter: "I wish I had a regular allowance."

Father: "I don't know why you need one. I give you lunch and bus money every day and buy everything you want when you need it."

Father: "I think $5 will cover your school expenses and still leave you about $2 for spending money. Keep track of your expenses for a few weeks so we can tell if you will need more."

The purpose of an allowance is not merely to provide necessary funds; it also is to teach a child to budget and to manage money in a realistic way.

Curling has come a long way since 1759, when members of General Wolfe's Scottish Brigade wiled away the hours on the frozen St. Lawrence by heaving make-shift rocks fashioned from cannon balls.

Today, with more than half a million Canadian participants in the game at 1,500 curling clubs, the rock-hounds say their recreation — not hockey or lacrosse — truly deserves the label of this country's national sport.

Hog-line fever is particularly infectious right now, from this city's pebbled lanes right on up to the stratosphere of top-flight tankard competition.

Area skips will be vying for the Quinte Men's 'spiel titles in seven trophy classifications that wind up Sunday eve after activity at this city's Quinte club, and the Trenton and CFB Trenton rock-shoppes.

There'll probably be a few local buffs making the trip to Oshawa for the prestigious Brier next week in the 42nd installment of Canada's national curling sweepstakes.

It's Oshawa's first time as host Briertown, and reports have it that Motor City organizers have gone into high gear in plans to make the March 3-7 classic an unforgettable one.

Advance ticket sales for the 4,500-seat Civic Auditorium games are indicative of capacity crowds, and hordes of media representatives are threatening to invade Oshawa with enough pencils and cables to shove a global crisis or two off the odd Ontario newscast or front page.

Colorfully-feathered official Brier hats and badges are "in" these days on Oshawa streets, being prominently sported by a special Brier committee of 75 volunteers.

Another 100-or-so city residents have donated the services of family cars as "Brier Buggies" for the convenience of the curling guests representing the 10 provinces and Northern Ontario.

Meanwhile, at "action central," Civic Auditorium ice-maker Joe Roberts says he will have the usual five sheets of ice with the traditional red, white, and blue Brier markings "shaved to a tee."

Re-arrangements in arena lighting will be necessitated to accommodate no less than seven color television cameras.

And much of the limelight is expected to fall on the activity of Ron Northcott's Calgary rink, favored to repeat as Brier champions and win their third Tankard.

There will also be plenty of rooting for London's Ken Buchan, who "upset" his way into the Brier past such impressive hacksters as Alfie Phillips Jr. in the Ontario Consols.

The winning foursome will have little chance to rest on their laurels — they'll be whisked off to Perth, Scotland for the March 18-22 Silver Broom 'spiel, world curling's Super Bowl.

That event, too, will draw prominent television coverage, and it's worth the price of admission just watching the Scots burn up the lanes with those bristled little whiskbrooms of theirs.

Saskatchewan Nips Ontario for Women's Crown

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP) — The Saskatchewan rink skipped by veteran Joyce McKee of Saskatoon came from behind Thursday to win the Canadian women's curling championship with a 6-5 victory over Ontario in the last round.

"The team was a little shaky at the start," said Miss McKee, who now has two national championships to her credit.

". . . Then I missed some in the middle ends. We steadied up near the end and beat a great team."

The soft-spoken Saskatchewan skip won the championship in 1961, the first year it was a truly national final. She finished second behind British Columbia in the 1962 event.

Miss McKee completed the with just one loss in the econd with just one lossin the second round to Alberta.

Three members of the Saskatoon foursome—Miss McKee, third Vera Pezer and second Lee Morrison—have curled together for four years while the lead, Jennifer Falk, was picked up going into club play this year.

The Ontario four, skipped by June Shaw of Kenora, finished in second place and Prince Edward Island's Marie Toole showed unexpected strength by winning six of her nine games and ending up in sole possession of third place.

A 5-4 record was shared by Alberta's Simonne Flynn of Medicine Hat, Maw Shaw of Kimberley, B.C., and Pat Brunsdon of Winnipeg.

Newfoundland's Vi Pike of Grand Falls finished with a flurry to take a 4-5 record while Phyllis Chapman of Moncton, N.B., was 3-6.

Nova Scotia skip Mary Naddof of North Sydney had seven losses against two wins while Leona Ackimmie of Lachute, Que., did not win a game.

In other ninth-round action, Nova Scotia came from behind and took an extra-end decision from B.C. 9-8, Newfoundland defeated Alberta 7-3, P.E.I. bombed Quebec 10-4, and Manitoba downed New Brunswick 12-4.

In the championship match, Saskatchewan fell behind 4-1 after four ends after getting into trouble on a number of missed shots.

Then the Ontario team started missing and Saskatchewan picked up one more in the fifth and proceeded to steal points in the sixth, seventh and eighth.

Miss McKee wrapped it up in the 10th by burying a shot behind two Ontario stones and Mrs. Shaw wrecked on a guard with her last shot.

Phil Ties Record In Bruins' 9-0 Romp

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins certainly didn't get rusty sitting out his two-game suspension last week.

Making his second appearance since serving the suspension, Esposito scored a goal and assisted on two others Thursday night to tie a National Hockey League record and help Boston to a 9-0 thrashing of Oakland Seals.

The three points gave Esposito 97 for the season on 37 goals and 60 assists and enabled him to tie the record for most points in one season, held by Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks.

In other games Thursday night, centre Mike Walton scored late in the final period to give Toronto Maple Leafs a 1-1 tie against Philadelphia Flyers and Pittsburgh Penguins shaded Chicago 4-3.

Esposito picked up two assists Wednesday night against Los Angeles Kings in his first game back after the suspension, given for shoving and punching referee Bob Sloan in a contest earlier this month. He had gone scoreless in the two games immediately prior to the suspension, so last week's vacation may have been a blessing in disguise.

The Bruins' victory, watched by 9,460 at Oakland, moved the Bruins to within two points of the first-place Montreal Canadiens in the Eastern Division. And the Bruins have two games in hand.

Eddie Shack and Johnny Bucyk scored two goals each for Boston. Other Bruin goals were shared by Ed Westfall, Ken Hodge, Bobby Orr and Johnny McKenzie.

PHIL ESPOSITO

Boston led 1-0 at the end of the first period and 5-0 at the end of the second.

Bucyk's first goal was the 275th of his NHL career and his appearance in the game set a Bruin record for games played at 777.

The shutout was the first for veteran Ed Johnston, used infrequently this season.

Walton, also playing his second game since serving a suspension, scored at 13:44 of the final period on a power play to help Toronto move to within three points of fourth-place Deroit Red Wings in the battle for the final playoff in the Eastern Division.

The goal was scored just 11 seconds after Walton returned to the ice from serving a penalty. He picked up a loose puck near the Philadelphia goal and lifted it over goaltender Bernie Parent.

Jim Johnson scored for Philadelphia on a rebound from a shot by Gary Dornhoefer in the second period. Imlach protested loudly that Dornhoefer had been offside on the play.

Walton had been on the trading block during his suspension, but apparently he is off it now.

"I don't think I'll trade him right now," said Imlach after the game watched by 11,728 at Philadelphia.

Pittsburgh goals were scored by Lou Angotti, Bob Woytowich, Jean Pronovost and Val Fonteyne. Hull scored two goals for Chicago, his 44th and 45th of the season, and Mikita added one.

The loss left the Black Hawks last in the Eastern Division, two points behind Toronto. Pittsburgh is last in the Western Division, five points back of Philadelphia and Minnesota North Stars.

Showdown Today

Phillips Tied for Lead

HAMILTON (CP) — Alf Phillips Sr. of Toronto Thursday night gave Quebec a lesson in strategy and led his Ontario rink to a tie for first place in the Canadian seniors curling championship.

The strategy, coupled with superb shot making, gave Ontario a 6-4 victory and assured a showdown battle for the title between the Toronto rink and Gordon Moore's British Columbia champions from Victoria in the final round at 3 p.m. EST today.

British Columbia, which sat out the ninth round Thursday night, and Ontario each have 7-1 records in the 11-rink, round-robin competition for men of 55 and over.

Quebec with a 5-3 record, and the eight other provincial champions, have been eliminated from title contention.

If either Ontario or British Columbia loses a 10th-round game at 10 a.m. today, and win in the afternoon, an extra-game playoff will be played at 8 p.m.

Tied for fourth place at 4-4 after nine rounds were rinks skipped by Dr. Wendell MacDonald of Charlottetown, Jim Murphy of Saint John, N.B., Stan Brooker of Noranda, Que., representing Northern Ontario, Gord Walker of Edmonton and Merrill Rawding of Liverpool, N.S.

Saskatchewan, skipped by Fred Cochrane of Lumsden, followed at 3-5. Manitoba's Al Fahrner of Charleswood was 2-7 and Newfoundland's John McCarthy of St. John's, 1-8.

Ontario plays Northern Ontario at 10 a.m. today, while British Columbia takes on Newfoundland, Nova Scotia meets Alberta, Quebec goes against New Brunswick and P.E.I. plays Saskatchewan. Manitoba drew the bye.

Phillips, with George Cowan playing third, Sandy McTavish second and J. G. Young lead, lost his first game of the tournament, 8-7 to P.E.I., Thursday morning.

Quebec defeated British Columbia 7-5 in the seventh round. It was also the first defeat for Moore and his Victoria foursome of third Dick Pick, second Lawrie Perlette and lead Joe Leibel.

Jo Hope Scores Playoff Win

TORONTO (CP) — Jo Hope of Canadian Forces Base Trenton won the Southern Ontario women's curling championship Thursday, defeating Helen Jewett of Unionville in two playoff games.

Mrs. Hope scored two points in the last end of the afternoon game to edge Mrs. Jewett 9-8 after winning 10-5 in the morning.

Mrs. Jewett had been undefeated in the double-knockout competition going into Thursday's matches. Mrs. Hope had suffered one loss.

Other members of the winning rink are Dorothy Mooers, Ruth Miller and Gladys Birbeck.

Selects Defeat Sick Nationals

WINNIPEG (CP) — Playing-coach Jack Bownass says "maybe all the pieces will fit together" when Canada takes on the touring Moscow Selects in a third exhibition hockey game tonight in Calgary.

Missing pieces, in the form of sick players, plagued the Canadians who went down to a 4-2 defeat Thursday night, the second straight loss at the hands of the Russians.

The Selects, rated Russia's second-string team, outplayed Canada 2-0 in the first period and shared the scoring with the Nationals in the second.

Canada took over the play near the end of the third period but was unable to make a comeback.

"I thought we played looser, and better in the third period," said Bownass, coach of the Ottawa-based Nationals. He scored Canada's first goal.

Moscow took the opening game of the eight-game series Tuesday night 4-1. Canada lost eight-straight games earlier this year to Russia's first-string squad.

Goalie Wayne Stephenson was back in the Canadian nets after he asked to be pulled in the opener because of failing eyesight resulting from tension.

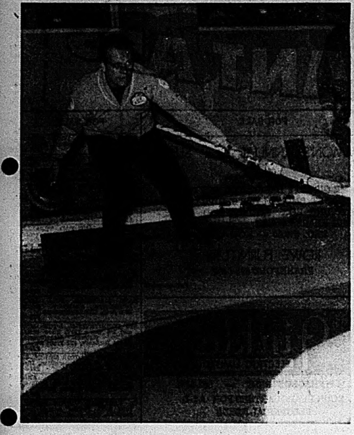
But Nationals were without Ab DeMarco, a Kitchener, Ont. junior defenceman, who suffered an injured back. He is expected back in the lineup tonight.

Forward Steve King and defenceman Bob Murdoch are to be brought from the Ottawa squad to bolster the lineup of the Winnipeg team.

Yevgeni Zimin scored twice for Russia and Aleksander Martynyuk and Vyachelsalv once each.

Bob Birdsell got Canada's other goal.

Through most of the second period Russia was shorthanded and for almost a minute Canada had a two-man advantage, but could not score.



Away We Go!

Linda Carbonetto Impresses Pros

Scouts for the big ice shows consider Linda, 19, among the best free skaters around.

Miss Seyfert was far above anybody else in the free-skating windup of the women's singles Thursday night, winning the first-place nod of all nine judges for a perfect ordinal score of nine.

Miss Carbonetto finished sixth with a dazzling performance and, as one official noted, may have been marked higher if she hadn't been so far back in the compulsory school figures.

As it was Linda jumped three placings—from her ninth-spot in the compulsories.

Miss Seyfert, 20, collected a total of 2,795.5 points while the second-place silver medal winner, Beatrice Schuba, 17, of Austria, scored 2,709.4.

Hungary's Zsuzsa Almassy, 18, was third with 2,704.6.

Miss Carbonetto had 2,616.0 points, and her showing was the best by any Canadian in the world competition in three years.

Miss Seyfert grabbed the women's crown despite a fall during her otherwise beautiful performance.

"I'm happy, my dad's happy, everybody's happy," she said.

Whether she will continue her education to become a teacher, or accept a pro offer, remains to be seen.

Right now she hasn't thought too much about it.

One agent for an ice show said that he would "trade a world champion for her anytime."

The Canadian senior champion was 13th in both the 1968 Olympic and world championships, and thus showed tremendous improvement in the last year.

The best of the Americans was 17-year-old Julie Lynn Holmes from South Pasadena, Calif., who finished fourth ahead of the U.S. and North American title winner, Janet Lynn, 15, of Rockford, Ill.

Miss Holmes scored 2,696.2 points to 2,663.4 for Miss Lynn.

Tim Wood, 20, of Detroit is favored to bring the men's crown back to the United States after a 10-year absence.

Tri-Club Bonspiel Weekend Attraction

STAFF — The rock throwing started in earnest last night at three local curling clubs as the eighth annual Bay of Quinte Men's Bonspiel officially got under way.

There will be two draws tonight, at 6.30 and nine o'clock, at each of the three local clubs the Quinte Curling Club, Trenton Curling Club and CFB Trenton, with play continuing all day Saturday and winding up Sunday with the finals of each of the seven events.

Murray Johnson's Bay of Quinte rink will be back to defend their championship and the Bay of Quinte Shield, which along with the Belle Cleaners Trophy, goes to the lone undefeated rink in the 43 rink competition.

The other trophies up for grabs are the Pepsi Cola Limited trophy, the O'Keefe Brewing Company Limited trophy, the Elliott Motors Limited trophy, the Quinte Transport Limited trophy, the H. Corby Distillery Limited trophy and the North American Van Lines Limited trophy.

The top four teams in each of the seven events will receive prizes, with the top prize in each event being of equal value, and the prize value totalling $3500.

Two of the championship finals will be held Sunday at Belleville's Quinte Curling Club, two at the Trenton Curling Club and three at the CFB Trenton rink.

The 43 entries include 11 rinks from the Bay of Quinte Curling Club, plus rinks from Virginia, Utica, N.Y., Ottawa, Uplands, Rockliffe, St. Hubert of Montreal, Camp Borden, Richmond Hill, Trenton, Napanee, Whitby and CFB Trenton.

Each event is a straight knockout affair, with the loser dropping down to a lower classification, and every one being guaranteed of five games.

Ontario Playdowns Resume Here Sunday

STAFF — Two things are on the minds of Belleville Minor Hockey supporters this week-end, Thursday's election of an executive for the coming year, and Sunday's slate of three games in the second round of the Ontario playdowns.

The election of next year's executive will take place at 8.20 p.m., Thursday, March 6, at the Belleville Recreation Centre.

Meanwhile, Sunday's minor hockey action will start with the Smith Fuels peewees taking on Cobourg at 3.15 p.m. in the first game of a best two out of three series.

The Kinsmen bantams will be out to eliminate Lindsay in a 4.30 p.m. game, after taking a one game lead in the best two out of three series with a 3-2 overtime victory, in Lindsay Tuesday night.

The Western Tire juveniles will be battling elimination when they take on the Whitby Dunlops in an 8 p.m. game. Western Tire dropped the first game of the best two out of three series by a 10-3 score Monday night in Whitby.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Children With Allergies Have Good Cause to Hope

Recently I wrote about a mother of a 4-year-old boy who was terrified that her youngster would grow up to be an asthmatic. Although many allergic children are potential asthmatics, parents should not look hopelessly on every boy or girl who develops an allergy when young. Here are two reassuring letters.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: After reading your column in the Washington Evening Star the other night, I had to write in hopes you would let the mother of the 4-year-old with allergic bronchitis know of my 5-year-old daughter with similar symptoms.

After seeing three doctors with no improvement, we took her to a young pediatrician who gave her a blood test to check her gamma globulin level. It was very low. Now, every month, she receives a globulin injection to increase her immunity to infection. She feels better than she ever has. Her appearance and general health are almost unbelievable. All she still has is some minor reactions to pollen and change of season. — Mrs. K.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My heart goes out to the mother of the 4-year-old who has allergic bronchitis. This brought memories of our own boy at 4. He suffered constantly from colds. We went from doctor to doctor. At last a doctor sent us to a famous clinic where he received desensitizaton injections. They found he was sensitive and allergic to his teddy bear. Also to tomatoes, oranges, and other citrus fruits. So I strongly advise her to keep on seeking and asking and the Good Lord will guide her to relief for her son. Sincerely, Mrs. G. (Mother of a healthy, teenage boy!)

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: This is a tip for Mrs. G., whose cigar-smoking husband is about to drive her to divorce. I, too, heartily dislike cigar smoke. And cigarette smoke, too.

Here is a remedy that works on cigarette smoke. Perhaps it will work for Mrs. G. Keep a candle lighted in the room — or perhaps rooms. For some reason, this consumes smoke and odor. If he just won't stop smoking he'll have to budget candles along with other home expenses!

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My problem is that I desire chalk (blackboard) or other powdered substances. I just like to eat a piece of chalk or lick some powder during the day. I know this isn't normal. It first started when I was pregnant several years ago. What can I do to get over this craving? — Mrs. N.

COMMENT: We call such abnormal — but common — appetite "pica. In a number of similar patients I have found an iron deficiency. After taking iron tablets for a few months, the anemia disappeared and the craving for chalk, too. Check with your doctor.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have the white spots of vitiligo on my face and hands. I'm much interested in purchasing walnut juice to stain these spots. But I cant find any in drugstores. Can you help? — Mrs.

COMMENT: I've had no experience with walnut juice. Meanwhile, why don't you buy some cover-up preparation in the drugstore?

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: At last I've found my trouble. It is gout in my hands and fingers. Please print this in your column for the benefit of those who think you can have gout only in the big toe. It may save someone a lot of unnecessary grief.

MAJOR FOOD FRANCHISE OPPORTUNITY

"A rose is just a rose by any other name". In the past many food franchises have been offered to the public comprising the same type of standard food items disguised by fancy names with the possibility that their product could be duplicated right next door by any competitor who wishes to do so.

Now for the first time in Canada, STOP 29 RESTAURANTS LIMITED offers a totally new concept in economy food merchandising. e.g., Fresh brewed coffee 5c per cup together with the fabulously new patented TOASTREAT SANDWICHES at the amazing low price of 29c each.

The fabulous new TOASTREAT SANDWICH MACHINE produces a perfectly toasted, completely sealed sandwich, piping hot within a space of 1 minute in 12 delicious varieties —among them, corned beef, smoked ham, blueberry cobbler, smoked turkey, etc. Already the pilot operation has produced a public response beyond any expectation.

We must however warn prospective applicants that STOP 29 RESTAURANTS DO NOT sell hamburgers, hot dogs, French fries (French Friars or would you believe Acapolco Potato Stringers) but are exclusive in Canada with the fabulous New Toastreat Sandwich maker. Excellent locations are now available in the Toronto area for qualified operators who have the vision for this entirely new concept and who feel that they want to be connected with "THE ONE WHO STANDS OUT AMONG THE REST".

An investment of $22,500. is required to commence. This amount will give appointed franchisee a completely equipped and furnished store outlet right down to the last detail ready to commence operation. If you feel you have the qualifications and the vision for this type of enterprise and want to be among the first in your area with the fabulous Toastreat, then write us giving background, etc. to:

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market posted moderate gains in light mid morning trading today.

All four major indexes were higher as gains nearly doubled losses.

Toronto appeared to gain strength from New York where Thursday's losses were wiped out in early trading.

Observers believe that an increase in Canadian and United States bank rates, which has been expected for some time, will come shortly because of the British bank rate increase Thursday.

But they feel the damage to both markets was done in advance and that the increases will clear the air for investor optimism.

At Toronto, all components of the industrial index were up except oil refiners and construction issues. Chemical issues, merchandizers and real estate issues were strongest.

Emco fell 1¼ to 20 after the company reported 1968 earnings of $1.17 a share compared with $1.35 in 1967.

Pacific Pete rose 1½ to 28½, CPR ¾ to 79, Shully's ¾ to 20, Bethlehem Copper ¾ to 19¾ and Charter Oil ¼ to 14.

On index, industrials were up .63 to 184.66, western oils 1.93 to 222.41, golds 1.06 to 259.47 and base metals .68 to 115.88. Volume by 11 a.m. was 875,000 shares compared with 1,013,000 at the same time Thursday.

THURSDAY'S MARKET

Golds touched an all-time high Thursday as the Toronto market posted fractional gains in an effort to snap out of a nine-day slump.

The gold index was up 1.94 to 258.41 after reaching a record 261.30 after two hours of trading. Gold issues reacted to news that bullion on the European free markets reached record price levels and that Britain and Sweden had raised their bank rates.

Observers also felt the increase in British rates might put pressure on the United States Federal Reserve Board to follow suit.

A report in Washington that the U.S. interest-equalization tax may be reduced was given by brokers as a possible reason for the late strength on the Toronto and New York market.

If the tax is lowered, American money could flow into Canadian exchanges. Americans now pay 18¾ per cent on money invested in many Canadian stocks.

Fibre closed Friday after trading was stopped at the company's request, at 14, up 1½.

New Rules Make Department Shuffle Natural

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday that the proposed reorganizing of government departments is a natural and desirable step, following reform of cabinet procedures and the streamlining of parliamentary rules.

"The new rules will enable this House to add a large number of laws to the statute books at each session of Parliament and we must assure ourselves that the public service is organized to administer these laws as effectively and economically as possible," the prime minister told the Commons.

Mr. Trudeau was the first speaker as MPs considered a government bill that creates five new departments, wiping out or merging five others and creating three new Crown corporations.

Under an all-party agreement, the Commons quickly passed second reading of the measure and then went on to clause-by-clause study of it.

Their detailed scanning of the bill continues today.

Both Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and New Democratic chieftain T. C. Douglas flatly rejected Mr. Trudeau's claim that the bill constitutes a major reform of government departments.

Mr. Stanfield called it "a skeleton needing plenty of cash to flesh it out." Mr. Douglas said it is a futile step until the government sets national goals and provides the resources needed to meet them.

Henri Latulippe (Creditiste—Compton) said the reorganization would only mean more taxes to pay the salaries of more and more high-priced public servants.

Both Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Douglas aimed most of their remarks at a clause setting up the new department of regional economic expansion under Rural Development Minister Jean Marchand.

Another key clause sets up the new department of communications under Postmaster-General Eric Kierans.

Mr. Stanfield said one danger in setting up the department of regional economic expansion is that other ministers will wash their hands of the problem of regional disparity.

All ministers were involved in this problem, but the bill did nothing to encourage the degree of co-ordination needed among government agencies to fight it.

The Conservative Leader said the government would have wide powers of discretion in the help it gives industry to locate in certain areas.

"There is a danger in this, the danger of distrust arising as between different regions, because it may be felt that the government is adopting different standards in different parts of Canada with regard to this aid," Mr. Stanfield said.

Mr. Douglas said that until the government makes known its goals and priorities, it will be impossible to assess the reorganization.

He said the government in the past set up new departments and agencies with great fanfare but few results.

"There was the war on poverty, which was launched with the blowing of bugles and the beating of drums, but the government lost that war without ever firing a shot," he said.

He also pointed to opposition warnings about the setting up in 1963 of the industry department. Now the government was admitting it was a mistake by folding the department and making it part of the trade and commerce department.

Unless there is more explanation later in the debate, "we will be justified in concluding that this is merely another reorganization, that it is a playing around with departments and agencies which are in search of a policy," said Mr. Douglas.

Maritimes Agriculture Can Become Healthy - - - in Decade

OTTAWA (CP) — Large-scale farm enterprises in a few specific products can put agriculture in the Maritimes on its feet, but a decade of painful readjustment lies ahead.

This is the assessment of Ottawa economist D. W. Carr in a study of the competitive position of Maritimes agriculture, prepared for the Atlantic Development Board.

Dr. Carr says potatoes, tree fruits, fluid milk, hogs, poultry and greenhouse products can be produced economically.

Strawberries, blueberries, and the processing of vegetables may survive as profitable complementary enterprises.

But the long-term outlook is not good for feed grain or beef cattle operations.

Dr. Carr's report and a complementary analysis of the profitability of specific enterprises, undertaken by B. H. Sonntag, are the second in a series of background studies of the economy of the Atlantic Provinces undertaken by the Atlantic Development Board.

A study of forestry potential was released three weeks ago.

Newfoundland is not covered in the agricultural review because the subject was dealt with in a recent royal commission report on that province.

Dr. Carr foresees a period of consolidation of farm enterprises, resulting in only half as many farms by 1977 as there are in the three provinces now.

He attributes the depressed state of Maritimes agriculture to a combination of factors, including geographical isolation, historical development and an unrealistic appraisal of the capability of the land for agricultural production.

Good farm land is less extensive in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia than has generally been believed, the report states.

"Several climatic characteristics tend to mislead the unwary regarding the potential productivity of the land. . . .

"The long frost-free period gives a poor indication of the period of growth. The greenness of the sward is an inaccurate measure of the abundance of growth.

"The spring and fall temperatures may be inaccurate measures of the wind-chill that inhibits the profitable grazing of livestock."

Government administrators failed to recognize the deficiencies of much of the farm land, although it should have been evident from the amount of subsidies that have been needed.

"It became traditional to promote farming first and appraise the land after serious troubles became evident.

"A great tragedy of Maritime settlement has been that agriculture has been so frequently conceived as an activity that could be profitable when other enterprises failed."

Students Rebuked For Levity

MONTREAL (CP) — Students and sympathizers charged in a $2,000,000 damage spree at Sir George Williams University were accused by a judge Thursday of treating court proceedings with levity and were warned that new charges could be laid against them.

In three angry outbursts during the preliminary hearing of Kennedy J. Frederick, 29, of Grenada, Municipal Court Judge Emmett J. McManamy told the 87 accused that their conduct was making it impossible to carry on.

Seventy-seven of the accused, arrested after the rampage of burning and smashing in the university's main building Feb. 11, were in court Thursday as witnesses in Frederick's hearing which began last week.

Ten others were denied bail and have been held in jail pending preliminary hearing scheduled for March 5.

The 77 spent the morning in the courtroom where they received a severe tongue-lashing from Judge McManamy for treating proceedings with "levity not in keeping with the seriousness of the charges."

They face charges of conspiracy to commit arson and damage property after violence erupted towards the end of a two-week occupation of the university's computer centre.

At one point, Judge McManamy interrupted the proceedings to warn the accused that whispering comments to the witness constituted contempt of court.

The accused face up to life imprisonment on the charges, if convicted.

When the hearing resumed in the afternoon, the students were asked to remain outside the courtroom while a police constable testified.

Laughter and loud talk could be heard inside the courtroom and at one point the judge shouted:

"I can't stand the noise. I am going to send them up to the cells to be kept there."

Turning to police posted at the door to the courtroom, he said:

"You advise them that they will wait in cells if there is any more of that noise and tell them that more charges will be laid against them."

The noise stopped.

Picton Student Wins Math Prize

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Three mathematics students at the University of Waterloo didn't like sitting idle during football telecasts time-outs last fall and now are $225 richer.

Peter Adamson of Kitchener, Lee James of Fort William and William Cunningham of Picton, Ont., began working out math puzzlers and riddles during the time-outs. They became skilful enough to place second in the William Lowell Putnam mathematics competition for North American universities.

Mr. Adamson and Mr. James both placed among the top 35 students in the individual standings out of 1,400 entries. Mr. Cunningham was in the top 100.

The three students plan to enter post-graduate studies at the University of Waterloo and teach mathematics.

East Block Reopened

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester B. Pearson, former prime minister, marked the completion of a personal Centennial Year project Thursday when he snipped a white ribbon to reopen the Privy Council suite of East Block offices, restored to their 1867 character.

He then posed for pictures sitting in the prime minister's high-backed chair at the head of the cabinet table.

All privy councillors residing in the Ottawa area were invited to the function. Mr. Pearson caught sight of Robert Stanfield, Conservative Opposition leader, and called to him: "Come on up here and sit down, and see what it feels like." Mr. Stanfield chuckled, but stayed where he was.

American Negotiators Conclude Attacks Don't Violate Terms

PARIS (AP) — American negotiators at the Vietnam peace talks appear to have reached the conclusion that the current Viet Cong offensive thus far has not violated the tacit "understanding" under which the United States halted the bombing of North Vietnam last Nov. 1.

Chief U.S. negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge is due to report on the deadlocked conference to President Nixon during a scheduled three-hour meeting Sunday.

Conference sources said Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam will attend at least a part of Nixon's talk with Lodge.

They are expected to review the stalemate in the talks and discuss the possible repercussions of the Viet Cong attacks.

There was a noticeable difference in emphasis between American and South Vietnamese comments on the attacks.

Following the sixth weekly conference session Thursday, South Vietnamese spokesman Nguyen Thieu Dan stressed the large number of civilians killed and injured by what he called indiscriminate Viet Cong shelling of population centres.

Lodge also deplored the civilian victims of the Viet Cong's "wanton violence." But U.S. spokesman Harold Kaplan told reporters the United States was satisfied the Viet Cong attacks were aimed "mainly" at military targets.

Kaplan said the American delegation kept "under very active review" the question of whether the attacks violated the package deal under which the bombing was halted.

Details of the deal never have been announced, and Kaplan said it was best "for the sake of the future of the negotiations" to avoid spelling them out.

North Vietnam has frequently denied that it made any commitment in return for the bombing halt, and Hanoi's spokesman in Paris, Nguyen Thanh Le, Thursday described American reports of such a commitment as a "pure invention."

Sunday School Lesson

New King of Militancy

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

A resident of the towering complex known as Marina City in Chicago recently came up with a novel idea for a new kind of party. She called it a Bible party. She sent out copies of one of the Gospels to several of her apartment house neighbors. She invited them to read the Gospel, and then to come to her apartment on a certain evening for refreshments and fellowship and to discuss what they had read. She pointed out that one did not have to be a Christian, or even to believe in God, to come and share his views.

Several residents responded. When it came time for the discussion, one resident said, "Surely, Jesus could not have been serious in all His talk about service, could He?" That kicked off a lively discussion about how much of a role service to others should play in a person's life.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for March 2: "Jesus Fortells His Suffering." Mark 8:27 through 9:50.

Service and self-denial do not strike a responsive chord in many people's minds today. They are out for all they can get. They want affluence and power. They read about the problems of the world, but do not want to get involved. They blame much of the trouble in the world on trouble-makers. They forget that often conditions create trouble-makers.

There is an increasing polarization today between militants and moderates. Militants want action. Often they say justice can only come about through violence. Moderates want justice, too. But they say justice cannot come about through firebombs. They look to education, political action, and religion to change the hearts of men. These methods are too slow for impatient people.

Jesus faced the same problem in His day. People wanted action to get rid of the tyranny of Rome. They looked for an anointed one from heaven to lead them in this action. He would become God's militant to throw off the yoke of Rome.

This is why some of the disciples, at least, followed Jesus. He gave evidence of being the anointed one of God. If so, He could use the powers of Heaven to restore independence to Israel. He could become the kind of a king they so earnestly desired.

But this was not Jesus' way. He saw Isaiah's way of the divine Servant as God's way (Isaiah 53) The cross, not a club, would be His weapon. He would not impose suffering. He would accept it, and in so doing would reveal the suffering Heart of God. He would be God's Missionary, not His Militant, and so reveal a new way of life to men; the way of the teacher, not the tyrant; the way of the doctor, not the dictator; the way of the servant, not the sword-wielder.

This was hard for His followers to take in. Why have divine power if He did not use it to free the people? But Jesus preferred to suffer with and for them rather than to lead them into a blood-bath against Rome.

This was entirely different from refusing to get involved. The temptation for many religious people is to take the easy way, the way of meditation and prayer. Like Peter, they would like to live on some mountaintop of inspiration. (Mark 9:5)

Such moments are important. They give one assurance when he is faced with the nitty-gritty of the world problems. But the valley calls. That's where the children are who need help. (Mark 9:17-18) That's where parents are whose faith is being tried, (Mark 9:24) and who often feel the church has failed them. That's where the disciples themselves wonder why they are so impotent in the face of the world's problems. (Mark 9:28)

There are many people today who still want God to be a militant. Why doesn't He strike the communists dead? Why doesn't He rid the world of criminals and trouble-makers? But if God started throwing His vengeance around, where would He stop? Whom would He spare? Who could escape His divine judgment? Far better that He come as a Physician than as a Fuhrer: as a Worker than as a Warrior.

Jesus was not a moderate where God's will is concerned. But He saw God's militancy as a militancy of love. He pointed men to a cross, because He believed God had hold of that cross and could use it for man's liberation. So Jesus sets the pattern of self-denial for peace corps workers, social workers, teachers, missionaries, all who would lift mankind by their efforts.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For Mar. 1st,

Your birthday today: The coming year affords opportunity to set things right. Start from your inner self and work outwards, confirming each step in your re-examination of purposes. Increased physical energy and many new ways to put it to use are promised. Today's natives are not much for showing off, but do enjoy sports and contests. Most are faithful to whatever responsibilities they undertake.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Get out early. Make the rounds looking for fun, something to add to your hobby. Gather your friends for an afternoon, evening of pastimes, simple festivities.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Check over your home for improvements; think about some tentative layouts. Also, get housecleaning done. Organize light entertainment for the evening. Good music helps.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Get your routine chores done promptly. Catch up on shopping. Then, work on developing important contacts. Entertainment and romance beckon this evening!

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Look over your wardrobe, think about your needs and what your associates are wearing. Within your means, go out and get something new. While you are at it, bring home a surprise for your loved ones.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): The odd jobs can be completed easily if you start promptly. Then seek out the most unusual people you know. Kindred hobbies and pastimes turn out to be particularly satisfying.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): A little thinking can show you sources of more income, some shortcuts to better economies in your household. Spend the afternoon alone, preferably in meditation or reading.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Let your intuition lead you into a fun week end; wear clothes to match the mood. Go in for those amusements where your enthusiasm has free rein!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Be all ears at any gathering; interesting information is making the rounds outside the normal channels. Check before you act. It's a great day for special interests, planning for future surprises.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): This is the perfect day to organize contacts over long distances or make deals concerning inported or exotic materials. A business journey begun now turns out to have unexpected and most desirable side-effects.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Start in the morning with your tried and true friends, and keep widening the circle all day until you have quite a party assembled. Public places of sport or amusement are preferred.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Long journeys are favored today, but it is unlikely that any single trip will have only a single goal. Many purposes are served at every turn. Planning turns out to be complex, difficult to settle, but effective.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your habitual activities cover extra time. Do what is demanded, however try to find a way for the overload to reflect in some reward.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Dbl	P	P

Opening lead: 5 of diamonds.

An opening bid of one no trump classically describes a balanced hand containing 16 to 18 high card points, and a stopper in at least three suits. As such it is a very descriptive opening bid, and alerts partner immediately to the potential of the hand.

This does not mean, however, that every hand with 16 to 18 points should be opened with a one no trump bid, if another more descriptive sequence is available, such as with today's hand, which should be opened one spade.

If partner hasn't enough strength to respond, game is unlikely, and the best contract has been reached. If partner responds one no trump, a two no trump rebid suggests game if partner is on a maximum; and if partner can bid at the two level, showing at least 10 points, game is almost a certainty, and all that remains is deciding where to play it.

Today's South, a Belleville player playing in a pairs contest in Ottawa, but who prefers to remain nameless, chose to open one no trump. West doubled, North had nowhere to go, and East, an expert, decided to pass on the strength of his good clubs. Now it was South's turn to bid, and rather than try two spades, which also would have been doubled, he decided to risk a pass, hoping for the Queen of spades from North, or some other such miracle.

After a low diamond was opened, and the defence collected four diamonds, West switched to the eight of clubs. The Queen was topped by the King, and after much squirming, and some brilliant dummy play, South managed to bring in the grand total of three tricks. Down four, doubled and vulnerable, for minus 1100 points was difficult to explain to partner. South tried to point out that two spades would have been down three, for the same match point result of zero, but when North pointed out that the opponents would have had no way of doubling one spade for penalties, South conceded.

I won't do it again, I promise.

Belleville "SALUTES" THE ARMY !

THE SALVATION ARMY

CAPT. JUNE DWYER
Command Officer

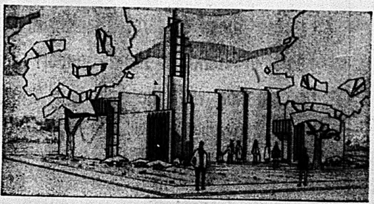
On this 85th Anniversary which will be sealed with the opening of our colossal building, I personally greet every citizen of Belleville with a particular warmth and appreciation. I assure you The Salvation Army wants to keep a courtesy and readiness to do a kindness and give incessant toil for others.

I believe the Army is of a peculiar and unique importance to your city. It will continue to serve you in a ministry of love for it is among you as 'one who serveth' talking the truth and tackling actualities.

The new Citadel will be a beacon of hope to all in need and its greatest weapon will be the light of love. There will be no distinction of class, creed or color for everyone is a 'brother for whom Christ died'.

May God bless you.

Capt. June Dwyer



"Blest Be the Tie that Binds Our Hearts in Christian Love . . ."

Commanding Officer Veteran of 15 Years

Commanding officer of the Salvation Army for Belleville and District is Capt. June Dwyer, a veteran of 15 years service with the Army.

Capt. Dwyer is a native of Windsor, Nova Scotia, and joined the Army in her mid-teens. Although none of her family is a Salvationist, she dedicated herself to a career as an Army officer while still in school.

After graduating from officers' training college she served in Nova Scotia. Later she was appointed to the teaching staff at the officers' training college in Newfoundland, where she taught old testament theology.

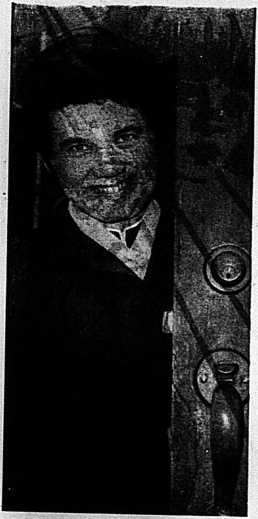
F[illegible] as director of youth activities for Central Ontario, with headquarters in Belleville, she joined the staff of the Salvation Army College in Toronto, again teaching her specialty, the old testament.

For the last 2½ years she has commanded the Belleville Corps.

"I marry and I bury, conduct worship services and make pastoral visits,' she [illegible]ains.

However, at th[illegible]art of Capt. Dwyer's ministr[illegible] the Army's counselling service, and this she conducts herself.

"I do all the counselling in the city and district, for both sexes, and all age groups," she says.



Captain June Dwyer

Spirit of Army Embodied in Flag

The significance and spirit of Salvation Army endeavor is embodied in the flag. It is the rallying point of all activities and its presence at all important occasions is imperative.

The flag of the Salvation Army came into being in 1878 and was first used at Coventry, England.

The colors, chosen by the founder, William Booth, symbolizes the Army's beliefs. The blue border typifies holiness, the scarlet ground is a reminder of salvation through the blood of Jesus, and the yellow star in the centre represents the fire of the Holy Ghost.

The motto, Blood and Fire, inscribed across the star signifies the two essential doctrines of the Salvation Army, salvation and holiness.

WE SALUTE
Capt. June Dwyer

Belleville History

Salvation Army Came to City in 1884

The Salvation Army came to Belleville 85 years ago, in February, 1884.

First meetings were held in the old Metropolitan Hall on the site of the present Royal Bank of Canada. At that time the rent charged was $13 a month.

William Bleecker donatgd the lot for a Citadel and the seating for the hall was donated by James A. Roy.

Later, Mr. Roy left a legacy of $1,000 toward the cost of a new Citadel on the same site. It was opened in 1940 and has served the Army's needs in Belleville for the last 30 years.

This week the Army moved to its new site on Victoria Avenue. The new, three-level brick citadel was built at a cost of $218,000, a sum that includes the cost of land and furnishings.

One of the big events of the early days in Belleville was the wedding in 1896 of Capt. Nellie Ryerson, a young officer who commanded the Corps for four months. Her marriage to Capt. Joe Ludgate, one of the two pioneers of the Salvation Army in Canada, featured parades led by brass bands before and after the ceremony.

By 1887, Belleville's Corps was considered one of the best in Ontario. It had a complement of 130 uniformed soldiers on its rolls.

The Station Street Branch was acquired in 1915, and has now become the welfare centre for distribution of clothing, furniture, and food.

In 1951, an advisory board was organized to assist with many facets of public relations work. The board helps with the annual Red Shield fund raising drive, and played a large part in the campaign for funds for the new Citadel.

WOMEN'S RIGHTS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The UN announced Ethiopia has ratified a 1952 conventtion for equal political rights for women, another 1952 convention for correction of erroneous news reports and a 1956 convention against slavery.

Emergency Worker

When an emergency strikes it's Envoy Mary Townsend who takes over for The Salvation Army. She's on hand at all major fires to dish out hot soup but she also handles an unending stream of requests for aid from the Army.

Evangelism, Social Service Joint Efforts

The Salvation Army, although single in purpose, operates on two fronts, the evangelism and social service fields.

Its evangelical work is largely carried on by local Corps (Churches). The supreme purpose of the Army, laid down by its founder, William Booth, is soul-winning. At all times an intense spirit of evangelism prevails in Corps efforts.

The Corps is the heart of the Salvation Army. Corps activities, in more than 400 Citadels, encompass a wide varity of humanitarian and spiritual services — religious instruction, worship, women's meeting youth character-building groups young people's classes, family visitation, counselling, social welfare and community projects.

Corps officers are ordained ministers, whose missions parallel those of ministers of other denominations.

In the field of social welfare there are few, if any, areas of human suffering in which the Salvation Army does not serve.

In Canada, women's social work began in 1886. It now embraces activities in every phase of social service — general hospitals, maternity hospitals, homes for unmarried mothers, drug addicts, senior citizens and unfortunate children.

There are four general hospitals and six maternity hospitals. In additon the Army maintains 22 homes for senior citizens.

Under the men's social services division the Army operates hostels, clinics for alcoholics, rehabilitation centres and emergency relief services.

The reclamation of the "down and out" is carried on in five Harbor Light Centres established since 1951.

The prison and police court work of the Army goes back to the early days of Army activities in Canada, when a "Prison Gate Home" was opened in Toronto in 1890. The federal government in 1905 appointed a Salvation Army officer as the first Canadian parole officer.

Today, more than 100 trained officers across Canada daily visit the police courts, penitentiaries and correctional institutions. They interview, counsel, and help the inmates and their families.

One of the least known of Salvation Army operations is on behalf of missing persons.

The international scope of the Army provides a ready-made network of help in locating those who have become "lost" to relatives and friends. Each year in Canada, about 500 persons are found.

The Army's Red Shield services to the armed forces continues in peacetime the celebrated work it carried out during two world wars. Two centres have been established in Germany, with reception rooms for servicemen and their friends, canteens to provide Canadian-style refreshments, and recreation rooms.

Lessels Family Typical Of Salvation Tradition

Salvation Army service is a family tradition for Bandsman Stan Lessels and his four sons They are an example of the way entire families, generation after generation, remain with the Army.

Mr. Lessels, who comes from a Salvation Army family, has been linked with the corps for over 40 years. He played and sang in the first instrumental and vocal quartet at the Citadel, and over the years has held important positions with the local corps.

Mr. Lessels was Songster Leader for a long period and also held the position of Corps Sergeant Major.

His four sons are all involved in corps leadership.

Kenneth, a computer operator with Mead-Johnson, leads the Young People's Band where junior members of the Corps receive their primary instrumental training.

Ted, who is with the Ontario Provincial Police in Kingston, is the solo horn player in the Citadel band.

Like most other Salvation Army bandsmen, Mr. Lessels and his sons have all played under the leadership of retired Bandmaster Jack Green.

FARMLAND TREATED

Victim's Brother on Trial

Man Who Shot Watkins Denies He Hates Negroes

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — A liquor store manager who shot a Negro to death in an alleged robbery denied a defence contention Thursday that he had "demonstrated severe hatred of black people."

The manager, Fred E. Larsen, killed Ted Watkins, 27, who had played with Hamilton Tiger Cats of the Canadian Football League, Jan. 2.

Watkins' brother, Clifton, 24, a U.S. public health service investigator, was wounded by another employee of the liquor store.

Larsen is a key prosecution witness at the younger Watkins's trial on a charge of armed robbery.

Judge Maxwell M. Willens dismissed the all-white jury Wednesday while defence lawyer Lawrence K. Karlton questioned Larsen about his views on race.

Judge Willens permitted the questions to be repeated Thursday in the presence of the jury.

Karlton, cross-examining the manager for the second day, brought out that Larsen was a member of the National Guard in 1965 at the time of the Watts rioting in Los Angeles.

"Isn't it true that you said, 'I hope they activate my outfit so I can go down and kill me a big black buck'?" Karlton asked.

"No, that is not true," Larsen replied.

The trial continues.

Commander Visits During Activities

Commissioner Clarence D. Wiseman, commander of the Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda, will officially dedicate the new Belleville Citadel Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

The first Canadian to hold the position of territorial commander, Commissioner Wiseman graduated from the Salvation Army College in Toronto in 1927. He has commanded some of the largest Salvation Army Corps in Canada.

During World War II he served overseas for three years as a chaplain with the Canadian forces. During the last two years of the war, he directed all Salvation Army welfare services in the various fighting fronts.

Following the war, Commissioner Wiseman and his wife were in charge of Salvation Army work in Newfoundland for eight years. Later, he held positions as field secretary and chief secretary for the work of the Army throughout Canada and Bermuda.

In 1960, Commissioner and Mrs. Wiseman were transferred to East Africa, where the Commissioner directed Salvation Army work in Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda.

For five years he served as principal of the Salvation Army's International Training College in London, England, and was a member of the General's Advisory Council.

Services for Housing Needs New Approach

OTTAWA (CP) — Radically new approaches need to be taken in provincial supervision of municipalities and in arranging municipal services for housing, H. W. Hignett, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., said Tuesday.

Speaking before the Senate's special committee studying science policy, he said too little research is being done on urban problems. OMHC had a $10,000,000 revolving fund for help to university and other research work but limited facilities of its own.

"Providing water and sewage disposal for our cities is still being done the way the Romans did it," be said. Water and sewer lines determined the shape of a city and the kind of city it would become. These umbilical cords had to be cut.

OMHC and the Ontario Research Foundation had developed self-contained water and sewerage systems for houses and now were working towards developing such devices for large buildings. If they proved successful in actual use, urban development could take on an entirely new complexion.

Mr. Hignett also said that the legal framework within which municipalities must work in all provinces is 100 years old and relates to another age.

He cited the case of Ottawa, which recently was taken into a new regional government of suburban communities.

"The regional government of Ottawa is brand new but it has none of the powers it needs."

Senator Allister Grosart (PC—Ontario) said property developers should be required to contribute to urban research.

"The drug industry is required to do its own research, and submit it to a regulatory department of government because there is a social hazard involved. But there is a social hazard involved, too, in urbanization."

GILEAD — Miss Angela Haines underwent an emergency appendictomy on Friday evening at Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Gerald Swan entertained a number of friends at an informal party Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Wilfred Clare and Mrs. Gerald Swan attended Women's Institute summary day at Stirling on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Joseph Peck returned home from Belleville Hospital on Saturday where she had been a patient for the past week.

Youngsters Model Braces, Devices

TORONTO (CP) — The fashion show was without the usual glamor and glitter of mannequins and high-priced creations, but it brought bravos from the audience that would turn Dior or Cardin green with envy.

The models were five crippled children, the fashions were the latest braces and motor devices available and the setting was the Ontario Society for Crippled Children's 47th annual conference.

The children, ranging in age from three to eight, displayed to about 500 persons Wednesday the ingenious creations of two young designers whose braces and devices have enabled many children to walk or move by themselves for the first time.

Clendon Wooldridge, a 31-year-old mechanical engineer, and Wally Motloch, 24, a researcher, are the mainsprings behind a new department at the centre devoted to orthopedic-aids research and service.

Research into orthopedic aids stepped up when the thalidomide children of the early 1960s needed mechanical devices to replace missing or malformed limbs. Through research it was discovered how helpful specially-designed braces could be, Mr. Wooldridge said.

The two-man team hopes to have every child at the centre fitted with a brace designed to fit the individual need.

Harriet Lehman, a seven-year-old who has little control over any part of her body because of severe brain damage, demonstrated one of the inventions.

In December, Mr. Wooldridge designed a tricycle with a strong harness and a back support which slanted Harriet's body at an angle opposite to the way most children would ride.

"The moment we put Harriet on the tricycle she flew across the room," Mr. Wooldridge said. "I've never seen a little girl happier. For the first time she moved by herself."

He was able to design the tricycle to harness Harriet's involuntary actions so that when she moved her legs, she propelled the trike.

One of the most useful and popular devices displayed at the show is an eating tray for cerebral palsy children which has gone into mass production for use across Canada.

By simply pushing knobs on the tray a child is able to feed himself.

Newfoundland Starts Medicare on April 1

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland joins the national medical care plan April 1 with the bulk of its population already registered for coverage and most of its doctors expected to take part.

Two other provinces—Nova Scotia and Manitoba—are expected to enter at the same time to make it a five-province plan in the coming fiscal year. British Columbia and Saskatchewan already are participating.

Once the plan is operating here, it will pay fees of general practitioners for home, office and hospital visits, specialist fees where a general practitioner recommends such treatment and surgeons' fees, among others.

There are no premiums or other methods of public payment except general taxation revenues.

A seven-man commission, two of them doctors and two of them non-voting members, has been appointed to administer the plan and a staff of 65 persons has been employed. The cost of setting up the program is expected to be $500,000 to $600,000, with registration accounting for well under $200,000.

The cost of the plan for Newfoundland's 500,000 population is expected to be around $13,000,000 to $14,000,000 annually, plus administration costs, which the province must bear. Ottawa pays 50 per cent of the [illegible] per-capita costs toward the per-capita cost of each province.

Health Minister T. Alex Hickman says the province expects to get about $10,000,000 from Ottawa in the first year of the plan's operation.

He says consultant reports have indicated Newfoundland can not afford to stay out of the plan—largely because it would be more difficult to retain her doctors if other provinces had the plan and she did not.

The province agreed with the Newfoundland Medical Association to pay participating doctors 90 per cent of the association's 1967 fee schedule. This can be renegotiated later. Dr. P. J. Whelan, association president, said Thursday night the "vast majority" of about 360 doctors in Newfoundland likely will join the plan.

Participating doctors will send their bills to the medical care commission. Non-participants will send theirs to the patient, who sends them to the commission.

The commission will pay a non-participating doctor the rate he would get as a participant. But he can charge the patient more than this set fee and the patient can not expect the provincial plan to pay the difference.

One effect of the introduction of medical care in this province is that the government will be relieved of the financial burden of the cottage hospital plan, a miniature medical care scheme introduced in the 1930s covering about half the population.

For a family fee of $10 to $24 annually, it pays practically all physicians' fees.

The same is true of the children's health plan, which pays physicians' fees for children under 16 years of age. Mr. Hickman says these plans will be covered by medical care and their cost to the provincial treasury absorbed in "large proportion."

The opening of the new Salvation Army Citadel climaxes 85 years of service in Belleville. Both Commissioner Clarence D. Wiseman and his wife will be on hand for the official opening tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. Commissioner Wiseman is commander of The Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda.

Jack Green Plays Cornet For 40 Years

For 40 years Bandmaster Jack Green of the Salvation Army has been making a joyful noise unto the Lord.

"It was in 1929," he recalls, "when I first began going to the jail every Sunday to play my cornet."

Mr. Green's ministry of music began when he was a boy in his native Wales.

"When I was a young Salvationist the Army was still encountering trouble and opposition when its band played in the streets," he recalls.

With a chuckle he recounts a story of playing in a parade led by a police officer to guarantee good order and safe conduct through the streets.

"But I never encountered any trouble after I came to Canada," he adds. "There was never any of that here, in my experience."

During his long years of service to jail inmates Mr. Green accumulated a treasury of memories, but his most vivid is of two men sentenced to death in Belleville.

"One of them left me a note under his pillow when they led him out to the gallows," he says. "I still have it. He wanted to thank me for my music."

Although the cornet is his instrument, Mr. Green can play and teach all brasses. Most of the present members of the Salvation Army band and many Belleville citizens learned to play under his direction.

He now tutors 12 pupils a week, seven of them contestants in the Rotary Music Festival.

"I've played, myself, in every established music festival in Ontario over the years," Mr. Green admits.

Among his prizes is a coveted gold medal from the Canadian National Exhibition.

Mr. Green has retired from leadership of the Army band, but still plays in its ranks and at the weekly jail service.

"I couldn't have lived without my music," he says. "I'll die playing."

Jack Green -- Playing Since 1929

CAPT. SHIRLEY ROWSELL

Second in command of the Belleville Salvation Army Corps is Capt. Shirley Rowsell.

A native of Newfoundland and a school teacher by profession, she has served in Newfoundland and taught at the Army's staff college in St. John's.

Her teaching specialty, like that of her commanding officer in Belleville, is old testament theology.

Capt. Rowsell is a fourth generation Salvationist, but the first of her family to become an officer. She has served in this capacity with the Army for nine years.

Army Heads Line-up at Major Fires

For 85 years the Salvation Army in Belleville has marched in a crusade against the miseries of mankind.

Its social and humanitarian work in the front line of assault against disaster, poverty and suffering is recognized throughout the community.

In the forefront at every major fire in the city is the fire department's emergency van manned by Salvation Army personnel.

"There's one good thing about every fire," a cold and weary fireman said once, "and that is the Salvation Army's soup."

Heading the Belleville welfare services of the Army of which the emergency van is only one aspect is Envoy Mary Townsend.

The most public and dramatic of her duties is her service on the emergency van during fires. For the most part she works quietly in her Citadel office or at the Salvation Army Hall on Station Street, dealing with an unending stream of requests for aid.

"We work closely with the city welfare department, Children's Aid and other community agencies," she says. "We often operate as a referral agency for troubled people who come to us first for help.

"A lot of our work is of an emergency nature," she continues. "We give assistance to tide people over a brief tough spot in their lives."

Examples include the grocery vouchers the Army gives to an average of about 12 families a month to help out until a welfare cheque comes in or material goods can be collected again after a fire.

Transients, up to 10 of them each month, are among Envoy Townsend's concerns.

"The public doesn't realize the number of transients we have stranded in town because of a job offer that didn't work out or a car breakdown or some similar trouble," she says.

Again the Army extends a helping hand, in the form of vouchers for food, gasoline or occasionally, a room for the night.

From the Station Street Hall, Envoy Townsend distributes clothing to about 20 families each month, and furniture to another seven.

Since its inception, the Army has taken a close and personal interest in unmarried mothers. Through its welfare services it refers them to Army homes, where they can be admitted for care and comfort.

Envoy Townsend, a Salvationist for 30 years, has headed the welfare services of the local Corps since 1950.

From her office in the new Citadel she will continue to extend the Army's helping hand in its outreach to all in need.

Congratulations . . .

Boards Hunting For Teachers

TORONTO (CP) — The annual recruiting scramble by Ontario school boards to fill secondary school teaching positions starts today.

Traditionally, this is the weekend when teachers looking for a job next year and school boards looking for teachers get together in downtown hotel suites.

And it's a tradition that teachers and school boards claim they deplore. Snide references to the annual "egghead auction" and "cattle market" add little to the professional tone of the proceedings.

But the system continues in Toronto and at the colleges of education in London and Kingston.

There is the usual teacher shortage, already indicated by Education Minister William Davis. He told the legislature Wednesday that recent termination of summer teacher-training courses will affect the supply of qualified teachers for two or three years.

School boards in the Toronto area are expected to have little difficulty finding the teachers they want.

But farther north, the situation changes. The distance from Toronto is measured in dollars. The Timmins board of education offered salaries last year that began $400 to $600 above the base rates in the south. In Kapuskasing, salaries are up $1,000 and more over Toronto's.

Quebec Storm Takes Five Lives

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec province today slowly struggled free from a two-day snowfall that clogged transportation routes, stalled ships on the St. Lawrence River and claimed at last five lives.

Five ships were trapped in ice jams in the St. Lawrence River near Quebec City Wednesday.

Ferry operations between Quebec City and Levis were halted when the Cite de Quebec also bcame wedged in the ice.

Ice-breakers were attempting to free the Canadian coasters Chimo and Cabot, the Russian freighters Olenegorsk an Egonwesh, and the British freighter Manchester Port.

Vehicles stranded on snow-clogged Highway 53 near St. Anselme, south of Quebec City, had been cleared out and conditions were described as "good."

Police said at least four men died and two were in serious condition after suffering carbon monoxide poisoning on the highway Wednesday night.

Music Plays Major Part in Activities

The Salvation Army has always recognized the value of music to move the hearts of men and women.

The phenomenal growth of Army bands, in number and artistic stature, attests the excellence and appeal of brass band music.

Since the first Army band was organized in Belleville in 1904, its music has played a big part in not only its own activities, but in community events.

Santa Claus parades, remembrance day and inter-faith services, Scout rallies and Legion events, all are marked with the appearance of the Army band. About 12 engagements a year are given by the band for community purposes.

The band now numbers 25 instrumentalists, under the direction of bandmaster Robert Lessels. All the members serve without remuneration at morning and evening services every Sunday. In addition the band plays at one open air service downtown every Sunday evening in the summer and a 10 a.m. hospital or nursing home service in the winter months.

"We play nothing but sacred music," says Bandmaster Lessels. "However, over the years the Army has adapted popular tunes for liturgical purposes."

"The Army has always kept up to date with its music, and now even rock and roll idiom is creeping into some of our selections."

Prospective bandsmen receive their primary musical training in junior bands. In Belleville 10 to 12 young people between the ages of 9 and 14 belong to the junior band and are training to fill the ranks of senior organization.

A national music camp for young bandsmen is planned for a week this summer at Lake Simcoe. Salvationists across Canada will join in the fellowship of music and return to their Corps to enrich the Army's musical life.

VISIT THE ARMY THIS WEEKEND!

Mrs. P. Hart, now in her 96th year, has worshipped with the Salvation Army for the past 80 years. She will attend Sunday's service at the new Citadel and cut the 85th anniversary cake to climax Sunday's events at the new building. Making a pastoral visit on the oldest member of the corps is Capt. June Dwyer.

National Commander's Wife

Mrs. C. Wiseman Heads Army's Women's Groups

Mrs. Commissioner C. D. Wiseman (the former Janet Kelly) is the wife of the National Commander for the Salvation Army, in Canada and Bermuda.

As a young woman she became interested in Salvation Army activities through its branch of the Girl Guides in Toronto in which she was a leader.

Entering the Salvation Army's Training College in Toronto, she was commissioned as an officer 1927 and appointed to the editorial department. This was followed by a period as a Corps officer.

Following the war, the Wisemans were appointed in charge of the Army's work in Newfoundland where they served for 8½ years. Mrs. Wiseman conducted a weekly Sunday School by radio, and had an enrolment of over 4,000 boys and girls, many of them living in isolated parts of the island.

During several years in East Africa, Mrs. Wiseman gave leadership to work among women of Kenya and assisted in the establishment of homes for crippled and blind African children.

Mrs. Wiseman is national president of Canadian Salvation Army women's organizations, which include the Home League, League of Mercy, and Nurses' Fellowship. As the guiding mind behind these units of Christian service involving more than 17.000 dedicated workers, Mrs. Wiseman is laboring unceasingly for the humanitarian betterment and spiritual well-being of people of all classes. She also takes keen interest in the National Council of Women and the Women's Inter-Church Council, on which she served for a period as vice-president.

A prolific writer, Mrs. Wiseman is a frequent contributor to the Army's international publications and periodicals.

All hail the power of Jesus name,
Let angels prostrate fall,
Bring forth the royal diadem,
And crown Him Lord of all!

Let every kindred, every tribe,
All nations great and small,

While carpets were being installed inside, workmen took down the construction sign on the outside to reveal The Salvation Army name on the Citadel wall.

Visits to Jail Important in Work

In daily visits to prisons and police courts, the Army serves inmates and their families.

Envoy Bram Humphreys is the Army's correctional services officer for Hastings County.

His work covers all phases of prison and court work, from conducting services at the county jail to visiting families and friends of inmates. At all times any accused person has a friend in court in the person of the Army representative, ready to stand by, advise and give whatever assistance is possible.

Envoy Humphreys, for instance, received over 700 telephone calls and drove over 6,000 miles in the last year on prison and court work.

"Calls come at every hour of the day and night," he says, "and many very rewarding results have been derived from the efforts I have been able to put forth."

Just last week he was able to start two teenaged boys, in trouble with the law, on the road to rehabilitation. He arranged for them to take up residence at the Salvation Army's House of Concord north of Toronto, where hundreds of boys have been put on the road to success.

O God–

May the Cross always be the key . . . to our lovely city . . . the very centre of our faith . . . the inspiration of our love . . . and the power of our peace. May it be Thy searchlight upon us all but even beyond that, the pathway to our forgiveness. In these anxious days, may the message of Thy Cross bring unity to all Thy People — Happiness to every home — Purpose and Meaning to our youth and Hope to any out of the line with life.

AMEN
